FRANCE IS DRIFTING TO SOCIALISM, SAYS PRESS; HUGE STRIKE IS ENDING

Government Employes Resume Work After Days of Rioting.

Conclusion of Labor Conflict Comes Through a Compromise.

Dangerous Tendency in Public Sentiment Shown, Declare Papers.

Paris, March 22.—In spite of minor delays the adjustment of the strike of the French telegraphers and postmen that has disorganized the business life of France for a week or more is considered virtually in sight. Fully 1,000 employes returned to work this morning. A meeting attended by 5,000 strikers was held this morning when it was decided that the recommendations of the strike committee in the matter of a settlement constituted a surrender to the government because the resignation of M. Simyan, under secretary of posts and telegraphs, has not been secured. It is the general opinion that the strikers will emerge victorious and that the government has saved its dignity in refusing to oust M. Simyan. This official, however, already has been practically eliminated. He had no share in the recent negotiations and in the future Minister of Public Works Barthou will treat directly with deputations from the employes associations. Furthermore the government agrees to regard the whole affair as a "wave of folly" and to wipe the indiscretions off the slate; in other words to punish no one.

The newspapers of Paris are reviewing the strike movement as if it was over. The Socialist papers claim victory; the government organs are gratified at the end of the unfortunate understanding, while the independent conservative press says the incident furnishes an eloquent lesson of the dangerous state of Socialism towards which France is drifting.

BARBED WIRE TO PROTECT

Coal Company Fortifies to Be Ready For Strike.

Lewis Calls on Miners to Observe April Holiday.

Hazelton, Pa., March 22.—In order to be prepared for a strike if one is ordered by the United Mine Workers of America, the Lehigh Valley Coal company, a subsidiary concern of the Lehigh Valley Railroad company today began repairing the high fences surrounding the collieries in this city and new barbed wire is being strung along the top of the fences.

Nearly all the collieries in the anthracite region during the big strike of 1902 were surrounded by high board fences to keep the strikers off the property and to protect the coal and iron police. The miners called them stockades and several of the fences were set on fire and destroyed.

Circulars were received here today from President Lewis of the miners' organization asking the anthracite men to observe as usual April 1 as a holiday in commemoration of the granting of the eight-hour day in the soft coal fields.

ARE LOST IN CLOUDS

Six Balloonists Somewhere in Midst of Mountain Blizzard.

Canyons Snow-Filled and All Trails Obliterated.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 22.—No word has been come from six men, who made an ascension in the balloon America.

It is feared they have been lost in the mountains in the midst of a terrific blizzard now raging there.

The last trace of the balloon was when it appeared through the clouds in Grand canyon on the slope of Mount Lowe, the big bag containing 76,000 cubic feet of gas was being driven then by a strong north wind toward the peaks of the range.

One of the worst storms in years is raging in the mountains. Four feet of snow has fallen on Mount Wilson and nearly two feet at Mount Lowe. All day a terrific blizzard raged, the wind attaining a high velocity. The whole side of the mountain is covered with many feet of snow, and the canyons are filled and the trails are obliterated.

It would be impossible for the men to make their way any distance in the present snow storm. They have with them only a meagre supply of provisions and but little warm clothing. Two searching parties were organized early today from Pasadena and will go into the mountains at once.

LATONIA RACES ON FORMER BASIS

Court Holds Kentucky Commission Law Unconstitutional.

Cavington, Ky., March 22.—Judge Harbeson in Kenton county circuit court this morning rendered his decision in the noted case of the Latonia Jockey club vs. the Kentucky racing commission, holding the law establishing the commission unconsitutional.

The effect of the decision is to place Latonia racing back to its former basis.

Judge Harbeson held that the law creating the Kentucky racing commission gave that body power to regulate running races; that trotting races and running races came under the same legal category; and that therefore the law was class legislation and unconstitutional. The court, in other words, held that the law to be valid must give the racing commission specific authority even over both trotting and running races.

The decision is a complete victory for the Latonia Jockey club. The racing commission had insisted that Latonia use pari-mutuel machines. Latonia put in these machines, but alleged that they were run at a financial loss, and then allowed bookmakers to operate. The Latonia Jockey club secured a court injunction preventing the racing commission from interfering with the races while bookmakers were operating last season.

The commission will take the case to the court of appeals.

PREDICTS GOOD CUBAN SUGAR CROP THIS SEASON.

Washingon, March 22.—Cuba will produce 1,400,000 tons of sugar this season, an estimate based upon the prospect for excellent spring weather, according to Consul General Rodgers of Havana. He is inclined to discredit low estimates of probable yield in the crop, despite the fact that rains in the eastern half of the island have given the belief that production would be curtailed.

PAYNE OPENS TARIFF TALK

SENATORS SECRETIVE

The Upper House Finance Committee Not to Divulge Schedules.

Democrats Ignored Until the Measure Shall be Completed.

Washington, March 22.—Emulating the ways and means committee of the house, the Republican members of the finance committee of the senate will take extraordinary precautions to prevent the divulging of schedules agreed upon for the new tariff bill until such time as the bill has been perfected. In the few sessions of the committee that have ben held rates have not been discussed at all. The business has been confined to questions of proceedure, such as agreeing upon the employment of certain experts in tariff making to aid in preparing a bill.

All the Republican senators have agreed that they will not discuss rates outside of the committee room. Following the usual custom, the Democratic members of the finance committee will not be consulted until the bill has been completed.

The plan outlined by Senator Aldrich and his Republican colleagues on the finance committee is to take up the bill and put it in shape, and then to call the full committee together. The Democrats then would have the unhampered chance of submitting a minority report to the senate at the same time the bill is reported.

In maintaining secrecy on rates to those recommended by the finance committee, it has been decided not to incorporate in the bill any figures until the bill is completed. There will be prepared tables, which will be kept under cover in the committee. As a further means of preventing disclosures concerning details of the bill, the question of rates will be postponed until the phraseology of the various principles to be incorporated in the measure has been agreed upon.

BILL IS IN THE HOUSE

Ways and Means Chairman Starts the Long Discussion.

Minority Leader Champ Clark First to Follow Him.

Washington, March 22.—Both houses of congress assembled at noon today, and in the house the tariff bill was laid before that body for discussion. Sereno E. Payne, chairman of the ways and means committee, delivered the opening speech in support of the bill.

Champ Clark, leader of the minority party in the house, will follow in a speech in opposition to the measure, and a vigorous attack upon many of its provisions. These leaders will be followed in turn by many members of their respective parties.

The meeting of the two houses today was preceded by meetings of both the Democratic and Republican caucuses to take action upon the committee selections.

Legislation by the congress has increased almost incredibly during the last decade. Thousands of measures are introduced at every session, but the number enacted into laws ordinarily is comparatively insignificant. The development of the country's resources and the increased demands of the people are indicated, however, by the immense increase in the number of laws passed.

"This increase," said Col. W. C. Palmer, in charge of the enrolled bills of the senate, "has particularly been notable during the last year. In the last decade the increase has been astonishing.

"During the first and second sessions of the Fifty-fifth congress, 1,473 bills were passed by the house and senate and "messaged" to the president. In the third session of the same congress 644 measures were enacted into laws. In the Fifty-sixth congress 1,962 measures were passed; in the Fifty-seventh 2,781; in the fifty-eighth, 4,041; in the Fifty-ninth, 4,910, and in the Sixtieth, the congress which ended on March 4, the number of bills enacted into law reached the great total of 9,711."

NOTED BANDIT SHOT TO DEATH

Another Bandit Proves Quicker at Drawing His Gun.

Culiacon, Mex., March 22.—Valerio Quintero, a notorious bandit and head of a band of robbers, was killed in the outskirts of Badiraguato, in a pistol duel with Ontaviarazo, another bandit leader whom Quintero was trying to drive out of the country.

The men unexpectedly met, but Ontaviarazo was quicker on the draw than his rival, and shot Quintero four times before the latter could get out his revolver.

WILLIE WHITLA.

Whitla Receives Two More Letters From the Abductors.

Leaves Money Once But They Do Not Appear.

Lad at Cuyahoga Falls Not the Missing Child.

Sharon, Pa., March 22.—Two more letters were received today by the parents of William Whitla, the kidnaped boy, whose abductors demand a $10,000 ransom. The contents of these letters have not been made public, but all signs seem to point to the early recovery of the boy and to the payment of the ransom by the father.

Early today it was intimated that the detectives and the Whitla family had received word from the abductors that they are in conference as to what steps to take.

Detective Perkins, of Pittsburg, and other operatives are scattered throughout the vicinity today. Six members of the Pennsylvania state constabulary in plain clothes have crossed the line into Trumbell county, Ohio, and are running down clues in Warren, Niles and Girard, Ohio. A mounted squad of state police has left for the Northeast, and a third squad rode off at 9:30 a. m. to the south in this state. Owing to orders received from Harrisburg, Pa., the state police will not cross into Ohio in uniform.

The state police who have started into the Northwest territory are investigating a story made known here today. According to this story, an old

NOT GOING TO BE SHOT

Roosevelt So Assures the Nurse of His Children.

Mrs. Ledwith Worries for Fear of African Mishap.

New York, March 22.—Accompanied by two of his children, Miss Ethel and Kermit, ex-President Roosevelt arrivtd here this morning from Oyster Bay and began a round of visits of a social and business nature. A visit to the children's nurse, Mrs. Mary Ledwith, was the ex-president's first move. He made the trip with his brother-in-law, Douglas Robinson.

Roosevelt found Mrs. Ledwith, who is 76, in a three-room apartment which is shared also by Miss Katherine Daly, also a former nurse of the Roosevelt children. Miss Daly was ill in bed. Mr. Roosevelt told Mrs. Ledwith that he could not go to Africa without calling to see her and Mrs. Ledwith.

Mrs. Ledwith was afraid Mr. Roosevelt would be killed.

"Don't worry about that," he said, "nothing like that is going to happen. You know I am a pretty good shot."

Roosevelt's program included a visit to the offices of the Outlook and one to Robinson's office. Following the trip to Hoboken to inspect his quarters on the steamer Hamburg, he lunched with his sisters, Mrs. Douglas Robinson and Mrs. W. S. Cowles at the Robinson home.

Addressed to Naples.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., March 22.—Ex-President Roosevelt left Oyster Bay early today to make his farewell visit to New York city before his departure for the African expedition. Miss Ethel Roosevelt and Kermit accompanied their father. A special baggage car was attached to the train and eighteen pieces of his baggage were placed aboard for shipment on the Hamburg. The baggage contains clothing, saddles, hammocks and traveling utensils. The tags were addressed "Theodore Roosevelt, Naples, Italy."

The guns and ammunition are now at the Hoboken pier.

IS KILLED IN CAMBRIA MINE

Phillip Abbott Mangled by Premature Explosion in Michigan.

Negaunee, Mich., March 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—As a result of a premature explosion at the Cambria mine, owned and operated by the Republic Iron & Steel company, Phillip Abbott, an old and well known citizen, is dead.

The accident occurred between 4 and 5 o'clock Saturday evening. Mr. Abbott's eldest son, who had been working with him, narrowly escaped death in a like manner. They were both preparing a blast, when the father dispatched his son to the next level for some tools. The explosion occurred a few minutes afterward, and the son upon returning was horrified to find the lifeless and mutilated body of his father.

Mr. Abbott was prominent here, having been a member of several local societies and a resident of this city for the past fifteen or twenty years. He is survived by a wife and five children, two girls and three boys.

YOUNG CHILD ON WITNESS STAND

Tells Story of Revolting Case in District Court.

Dora Zini, a frail child of 10 years of age, on the stand in district court this morning told a story of indignities she claims she suffered at the hands of John Ripple, who is on trial on a charge of indecent liberties with her.

The testimony in the case is revolting and is made more so by the witnesses being children. Ripple maintains a calm demeanor, boldly asserting his innocence. All parties concerned are from Eveleth.

Ripple's mother sits by him during the trial, expressing faith in her boy's innocence. He is 19 years old and her sole support. She has ten children, and three of them she recently turned over to the state home on account of her inability to care for them.

NATIONAL BANK SOON

American Exchange Will Come Under U. S. Regulations.

Change From a State Bank Will Soon be Made.

Duluth will soon have a fourth national bank. The only formality that remains to be passed through, before the American Exchange bank becomes a national institution, is the passing upon the bank by a bank examiner from the department of currency at Washington, and the permission of the government for the bank to do business as a national institution.

The necessary papers pertaining to the transfer from a state to a national bank, have been sent to Washington by the officials of the American Exchange bank. When these are passed upon, the examiner will examine the condition of the bank. Then the government will doubtless permit the institution to conduct its business as a national bank.

All other details of the transfer have been completed by the stockholders directors and officials of the bank and as soon as the permission comes from Washington, the American Exchange bank will become a national institution.

It was only recently that the Duluth Savings bank become a national institution.

The American Exchange bank, while one of the strongest institutions in the Northwest, has been doing business as a state bank, as the state laws allowed a little wider latitude in loans than the national laws. With the growth of the city, however, the directors decided to place themselves under the national laws.

DEATH DUE TO OWN NEGLIGENCE

Widow Cannot Collect for Death of Husband Killed on Railroad.

Helena Maronich will not be able to collect $5,000 from the Great Northern railroad for the death of her husband, George Maronich, who was killed while walking the track between the Utica location and Hibbing on Nov. 6, 1906.

The case was dismissed this afternoon in the district court on an order sustaining a demurrer. The demurrer was entered on the ground that the complaint did not state a sufficient cause for action. The point raised was that Maronich had no right to be on the railroad right of way, and that his death was due to his own negligence.

HOPES FOR SAME TRADE RELATION

Philippine Assembly Will Let Congress Know Tariff Desires.

Manila, March 22.—The Philippine assembly is considering the tariff legislation pending in Washington. It is planned to embody the views of the assembly in a set of resolutions which will be forwarded to the Filipino representatives in Washington. These resolutions will oppose any action tending to alter trade relations between the Philippines and the United States. It is manifest that a majority of the members of the assembly fear that closer relations will lead to closer political relations, which will interfere with the ultimate independence of the Islands.

DIAGRAM OF PARK RECEIVED

Local Land Office Gets an Outline From Washington.

The diagram of the Superior natural forest as outlined at the land office at Washington, was received at the local land office this morning.

The big tract of land which will be set apart as a national park in Minnesota, comprises about a million acres and, with the exception of a few miles, adjoins the Canadian boundary. Before it was decided to make a park out of the piece, some of the borderland had been settled on, and this may be bought back by the government or taken by the right of eminent domain, so that the whole million acres will be free from settlers or any other sign of civilization.

Directly opposite the land set apart by Uncle Sam and comprising almost an equal amount of land, the Canadian government has set apart a piece for the same purpose. This will make two national parks containing over 2,000,000 acres of ground.

The United States land comprises land in St. Louis, Lake, and Cook counties and is a rare hunting ground.

The project was begun in 1902 and the government officials have been working on it continually ever since.

DEPARTMENTS WILL COMBINE

Auditor's Office of Wisconsin Central Moved to Minneapolis.

Chief Clerk Newhouse of the auditing department of the Wisconsin Central railroad, who was in Duluth Saturday, is authority for the statement that the auditing department of the Wisconsin Central will be moved to Minneapolis May 1, and that department of the Wisconsin Central line will be operated in connection with the main office of the Soo.

Taken in connection with the announcement that J. C. Pond, former general passenger agent of the Soo and the Wisconsin Central, with headquarters at Minneapolis, it is now generally believed that the operation of the combined roads will be directed from the Minneapolis office.

It also begins tho look as if the Duluth territory will be one of the main traffic points of the two lines. The Soo line is concentrating the management of the two lines in the Northwest, with an eye to the development of the business in this territory. This policy is going to help the business of Duluth, just as the coming here of the two roads is going to make Duluth one of the important traffic centers of the Northwest.

VERY HEAVY ADVANCE SALE

One of the heaviest advance sales for any production that ever visited Duluth, is reported for "Ben Hur" which will be presented tonight, tomorrow and Wednesday at the Lyceum. The Herald's theater party tonight took 150 seats, and there has been a very heavy demand not only from Duluth, but from the ranges. At 2 o'clock this afternoon, however, there were still a few good seats left for tonight, and a number for Tuesday and Wednesday nights. There will also be a Wednesday matinee. It is impossible now to lengthen the engagement, owing to the engagement of "Brewster's Millions" for the last half of the week, or an effort would have been made to add another performance or two.

MORE MONEY TO RUN BLACK HAND TO EARTH.

New York, March 22.—That Police Commissioner Bingham has asked the board of aldermen for a special appropriation of $100,000 to pay the expenses of a secret investigation, became known today. It is understood the fund, if obtained, will be used to continue the work of which Lieut. Joseph Petrosini was engaged in Italy when he was assassinated.

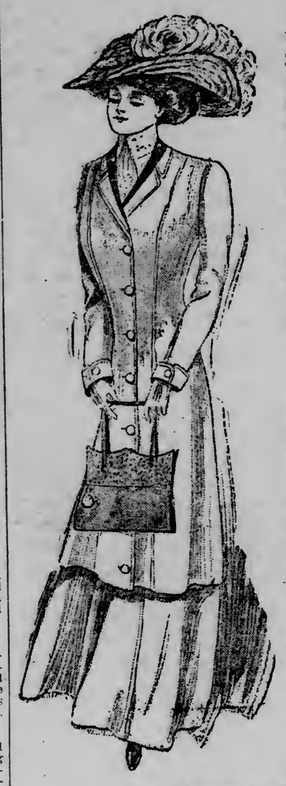
'Tis Time to Select Your Easter Wear



With Easter only just three weeks off, the woman who expects to come out in Spring attire on Easter Sunday must begin to choose; for when March sees practically no snow on the ground, a Middle-of-April Easter should find every woman who dresses well with her spring wardrobe quite completed.

One need not go to the larger cities to secure the Newest Fashions, for we have brought them here—all that is distinctive, smart and practical of New Season Style is shown in Gidding Garments.

ONE-PIECE FROCKS WITH COATS TO MATCH are among the most prominent fashions of the Spring. Our styles are exclusive, being imported, designed or particularly adapted for us. These are most often developed of Fine Serges, Soleil, Satin Cloth, or Tussah, in the rare Spring Shades. Prices range from $55.00 to $125.00.

STRICTLY TAILORED TWO-PIECE SUITS from the main body of the Garment Trade. There is a wide range for the display of individual choice in model, fabric and color. Soft, deadened color tones are very much favored. Navy Blue is very good, and New York is using many stunning combinations of black and white. Prices range: $25.00, $29.50, $35.00, $37.50 to $90.00.

SEPARATE COATS IN STUNNING STYLES—Good to look upon! The lines are so perfectly symmetrical. The Cut and Finish are so perfect in every detail, and the Material, Color and Trim is in such exceedingly good taste. Prices run from $15.00 to $50.00.

SWAGGER SUITS FOR GROWING GIRLS—The thing we wish most to emphasize about these suits is the skillful gradation of sizes and accurate proportioning according to the ages for which they are designed. Jaunty Tailor-mades, in 2 or 3-Piece Styles, that conform to the developing forms of girls from 12 to 20 years of age. Materials and colors correspond with the adult Tailormade, so far as Youthfulness permits. Prices $17.50 to $32.50.

We are also showing Complete Lines of Peter Thompson Suits, Coats, Tub Frocks, Sweaters, Headwear and Guimps.

A Special Exploitation of THE Gossard CORSET

Mrs. A. M. Klein, an expert corsetiere, will be at our store during the entire week.

Every woman interested in a good figure and the proper corseting is invited to meet Mrs. Klein and to see the new corset models. Ladies not yet ready to buy are just as welcome as purchasers.

Mrs. Klein is confident that she can make a marked improvement upon any figure which has never been fitted to a Gossard Corset, and is pleased to give suggestions and information regarding the art of proper corseting.

In Connection With the Corset Showing, We Will Hold a Display of Combination Undermuslins

The effect of a perfect corset, or well fitted undergarment is entirely spoiled by undermuslins that lie in bunches of puckers and wrinkles. When once a woman wears these shapely, smooth fitting combination garments, she could not be persuaded to revert to ill fitting gathers. Combination garments from $2.75 up.

AUTO RIDE FOR DRUNKS

New Police Patrol Will be in Service Next Week.

"Free Ride With Every Jag" for Every Woodsman.

Duluth's new automobile police patrol wagon is due to arrive in the city next Friday. After a few trials trips on local hills, it probably will be put in active service the following Monday.

For several years past certain interests in Duluth have been trying to devise ways and means to induce the gay and frolicsome lumberjack to stop off here and spend his money.

It is a recognized fact that fewer woodsmen spend their time and money in the Zenith City now than formerly. There are reasons for this. One is that most of them, several years ago, were paid off in Duluth, where now they are paid at the camps. Another is that inducements are now held out to buy tickets from the nearest depot straight through to the Twin Cities, and they stop off in Duluth only a few hours.

But this spring the situation should be different. The police have solved the problem of the saloon men. What other city in the state can offer a lumberjack a free automobile ride as a grand climax to the customary spree? It isn't every woodsman that gets a chance to ride in such style, and as soon as the news of Duluth's new auto patrol gets noised through the north woods, it is expected, upon the breaking up of the camps, that there will be a rush of lumberjacks to Duluth. No longer will they buy through tickets to the Twin Cities. They will be content to spend their good money in Duluth, and will be happy in the knowledge that, the drunker they get, the better will be their chances of a ride in the auto patrol to the police station.

The new patrol wagon was designed especially for the Duluth hills. It is of high power, and guaranteed to be able to make the steepest grade in the city without difficulty. The maximum speed is twenty miles an hour, and the minimum is four miles an hour. The city is safe in buying the machine, for the purchase is made under an absolute guarantee that it will prove satisfactory. If anything goes wrong within a year the municipality will be able to gets its money back. The auto is given on thirty days' trial and an experienced man is sent along to run it for that length of time, and to teach police department drivers the details of operation.

BUNNIES TROUBLESOME.

Pesky Rabbits Giving People Whole Lot of Trouble.

Whitewater, Wis., March 22.—Hosts of hungry rabbits, fearless and resourceful, are devouring the fruit trees of the farmers in this county and are doing inestimable damage to orchards and groves of young shade trees.

So serious has become the invasion that a petition is being circulated for presentation to the legislature, asking that a bounty he put on rabbit scalps. It is desired that a 15-cent reward be paid to the slayers of bunnies, and that the hunters be permitted also to keep the skins to "wrap Baby Bunting in," or do anything else they want to with them.

The petition to the legislature will be presented this week.

HAD MONEY, BODY FOUND IN A CAR

The Coroner's Jury Says Pneumonia Killed Cyrus Foster.

Oakland, Cal., March 22.—The body of a man found a week ago in a box car at Melrose station, near here, has been identified as that of Cyrus Foster, a well-to-do farmer of Springfield, Mass. The identification was made by George B. Ferguson, husband of a niece of the dead man.

Foster left home several weeks ago with a considerable sum of money in his pockets. Since then little is known of his movements until the body was found by two boys at play in the railroad yards.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict of pneumonia and the police think the body was robbed after death.

WILL OPERATE FIVE SAWMILLS

Stearns Lumber Company Will Cut 120,000,000 Feet This Summer.

The Stearns Lumber company is preparing for extensive operations in Northern Wisconsin during the coming season, according to P. G. Phillips, who has just returned from Red Cliff, Wis., where he superintended the overhauling of a mill.

The Stearns company will cut 120,000,000 feet of burnt pine during the present logging season and it will be driven to the Wisconsin mills for sawing. The company has adopted the expedient of cutting timber on burnt over lands as soon as possible for fear of rotting. Some lumbermen hold to the idea that trees scorched by fire will be good for several years, but most of the companies are working to get it into lumber as soon as possible after the fires which swept over Northern Minnesota and Northern Wisconsin during the fall of 1908.

The Stearns Lumber company will operate five mills during the lumbering season. They own a mill at Odanah and in addition, they will operate the Thompson mill at Washburn, one mill at Bayfield, and two at Red Cliff. Lumbering operations have been on the decrease in that section for several years, but the coming season will see the employment of hundreds of mill workers and a consequently short era of prosperity.

RAT'S NEST FROM FIVE-DOLLAR BILL.

Crystal Falls, Mich., March 22.—(Special to The Herald)—Clayton DeLong missed a $5-bill out of his cash drawer at the depot several months ago and was unable to account for its disappearance until a few days ago when it was discovered in the nest of a mouse.

The corners had been chewed off, but Mr. DeLong was able to piece the bill together and sent it in for redemption. A new bill was returned to him through the bank.

been in the city. Mr. Whitla had intended keeping his presence in Ashtabula a secret, but happened to get on a street car with Chief Taskey and Detective McKean of Pittsburg, who were working on the case. Detective McKean recognized Mr. Whitla and a conference followed, in which the father of the missing lad told the whole story and implored the chief to call off his men and leave the way clear for the abductors to get the money as he feared if they were arrested the boy would be killed.

Acting in response to a letter received Friday from the kidnapers, Whitla left $10,000 in bills Saturday night, under a rock at the base of a gorge in a park at Ashtabula, Ohio. The note said the boy would be returned Sunday morning, if the money be left in the park, but the police kept guard near by and no one came near to get it.

Not "Billy."

Akron, Ohio, March 22.—Investigation today proves that a boy found at Cuyahoga Falls last night, stopping at the Upson hotel is not "Billy" Whitla, but that he is Crawford Bowman, son of Harvey T. Bowman and that the man with him was his father, both of Curwensville, Pa. They reached Cuyahoga Falls last night at 6 o'clock, registered at Mr. Bowman and Crawford Bowman. The night officers and Dr. F. D. Smith, who was called by orders from the Whitla home at an early hour this morning, after an examination, felt satisfied that the boy is not "Billy" Whitla. Bowman gives a list of references, saying he is a justice of the peace and a deputy tax collector at Curwensville, and the boy told about his school and said Mr. Bowman is his father.

"My teacher is Lottie Baker and I go to the Bloomington school," said the boy. A report that the boy had been doped was denied by Dr. F. D. Smith as soon as he saw him.

There's nothing so good for a sore throat as Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Cures it in a few hours. Relieves any pain in any part.

He Prefers Minnesota.

St. Vincent, Minn., March 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Munro has returned from California after spending two years in that state. Mr. Munro was delighted with California and its climate, but says when it comes to saving and making money this part of the state has the lead.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—"Ben Hur," and The Herald's theater party to 150 school children.
BIJOU—New vaudeville bill.

"Ben Hur."

Pomp, pageantry and magnificence mark the movement of Lew Wallace's great drama, "Ben Hur." All the Roman plays and Biblical dramas of the past decade have had their hearing and are laid away, but "Ben Hur" goes on without a hitch, and is still the most successful spectacular drama of the American spectacular drama of the zation of Gen. Wallace's great book has been seen by more people, and has secured more money, than any other play produced on the American stage, and although it is now in its tenth season, it apparently will continue to be the greatest production of the age for many years to come.

Reasons for the wonderful hold this play has on theatergoers, and on the public generally, are not far to seek. In the first place, "Ben Hur" is a great play. It has romance, adventure, vengeance, triumph and beauty to recommend it to the habitual seeker of amusement, and aside from these purely theatric qualities, it has a far greater invitation to the men and women who seldom or never visit the playhouse. More clearly than ever printed word set forth the power of Christ to "draw all men to Him" does this play exemplify this superhuman fact, and the power of Jesus is shown with dignity and reverence. The presence of the living Christ is never boldly before the eyes, but is suggested by almost imperceptible bits of action and dialogue. The exaltation of the final scene wherein the populace of Jerusalem is waitign tahe coming of the long-expected King without the gates of the Holy City, singing "Hosannas" to His name, is inexpressible. Even in this supreme moment, the personal presence of the Nazarene is saved, and the curtain falls with the shining light of His presence full in the eyes of the audience. All that relates to the religious element in the story is treated with the utmost respect and reverence, and ministers and church people generally have indorsed "Ben Hur" as a great lesson for the lover of Biblical lore.

The dramatic side of the story has been no less carefully looked after.

The production of "Ben Hur," which Klaw & Erlanger will offer at the Lyceum theater tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, is even more remarkable than heretofcre.

The cast to be seen here is a particularly strong one, containing such names at Conway Tearle, who will enact the responsible role of Ben Hur; Mitchell Harris, Anthony Andre, John M. Troughton, William Leyden, Charles H. O'Donnell, Charles Canfield, Walter Markham, Daniel E. Hanlon, Alice Haynes, Florence St. Leonard, Loyola O'Connor, Zadiee Appleton and Maud Ream Stover.

The curtain rises promptly at 8 o'clock on the evening performances of "Ben Hur," and at 2 o'clock on the matinees. "The Star of Bethlehem" scene, with which the play opens, is accompanied by the impressive musical score of Edgar Stillman Kelley, and late-comers will not be seated until its conclusion, in order not to mar its mystic charm.

"Brewster's Millions."

Cohan and Harris' comedians will again present Winchell Smith and Byron Ongley's dramatization of George Barr McCutcheon's famous story, "Brewster's Millions," at the Lyceum on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening and Saturday matinee.

The merits of "Brewster's Millions" are two-fold. It is not only a splendid play, but it is also an achievement in stage-craft. It tells an odd, fantastic story of a young man who is forced to spend $1,000,000 in tw elve months by the terms of a subsequent will by which he inherits many times this amount. His efforts to dispose of this enormous sum in secrecy, and without any wild display of extravagance or generosity, within the stipulated time, forms the basis of so many humorous complications that it is impossible to record them.

Messrs. Cohan and Harris, who have secured the touring rights to "Brewster's Millions," have equipped it in the same lavish fashion that marked the metropolitan engagements, and the cast is headed by Robert Ober.

CHILDREN GET TICKETS

Many Were on Hand Before the Office Was Opened.

Twenty-One Teachers Will Also Be In "Ben Hur" Party.

The Herald this morning fulfilled its part of the contract with 150 school children, when the tickets for the big Klaw & Erlanger production of "Ben Hur" were placed in the hands of Supt. R. E. Denfeld of the city schools, who will see that they are distributed from his office in the Central high school building today.

Bright and early this morning many of those who had won prizes were on hand on the steps of the Central building, waiting for the office to open.

Tonight the big theater party will be held. More than 150 school children and the twenty-one teachers who judged the contest, are to be the guests of the paper at the biggest theatrical production of the year. The stage at the Lyceum has been altered greatly so as to carry the stirring scenes the show presents, and a treat is in store for those who have never witnessed the production.

The contest has been the most successful ever attempted in the city, and the climax comes tonight, when the children see "Ben Hur" as guests of The Herald.

RANGE MEN INDIGNANT

Aroused Over Move in Duluth to Get Fourth Judge.

Tacit Understanding That Range Man Should be Appointed.

Virginia, Minn., March 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Iron Range Press association, comprising the twelve newspapers of the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges, held a meeting in this city Saturday evening, at which resolutions were adopted urging the appointment of a range man as the fourth judge of the Eleventh judicial district, in case the bill creating a position becomes a law. The resolution adopted is as follows:

"Whereas, it appears likely that a certain bill now before the legislature of Minnesota for the creation of an additional judgeship for the Eleventh judicial district will become a law, and since the move to secure said additional judge was taken for the principal purpose of affording relief for the iron ranges of St. Louis county, and since it was naturally supposed that the ranges would receive first consideration in the appointment of the new judge, and with such understanding only the measure has received the indorsement of the range press; therefore be it

"Resolved, by the Iron Range Press association, at a meeting held at Virginia, Minn., on March 20, 1909, that it is the urgent desire, and is hereby made the express wish, of all of the twelve newspapers represented in this association, that the governor shall appoint a range man as judge, in case the said bill for the creation of a fourth judge for the Eleventh judicial district shall become a law."

This resolution fairly represents the sentiment of the people of the ranges. The bill as now framed and under consideration in the legislature for the creation of a fourth judgeship in the Eleventh judicial district is far from being entirely satisfactory to the iron ranges. The ranges demanded, and they still feel that they are clearly entitled to have, a separate court of their own, but they finally consented to a compromise by which a fourth judge is to be appointed and sessions of the district court are to be regularly held at Virginia and Hibbing. The consent of the ranges to this compromise was secured upon the tacit understanding that the judge so to be secured should be appointed from the range teritory, inasmuch as the additional court facilities are to be secured mainly for the relief of the ranges.

This feeling is very strong on the ranges and it is with no little indignation that the ranges have noticed evidence of a move on the part of the Duluth men to induce Governor Johnson to appoint a Duluth attorney to the fourth judgeship. Duluth has succeeded in enforcing a compromise that the ranges insist does not give them a full measure of justice in the trial of cases arising on the ranges; nevertheless, the ranges are content to accept the compromise, which does, indeed, in considerable measure, better their condition, providing the new judge is appointed from the range, as every consideration of right and justice demands that he should be appointed.

The treatment which the ranges have received at the hands of Duluth has revived interest in the matter of county division, and despite the strong opposition to division from the various mining companies, there is more talk of county division heard in the range towns at the present time than at any time since the vote upon division was taken several years ago. Upon this matter of a range man for the position of the fourth judge of the Eleventh judicial district, the ranges are quite determined, and if Duluth succeeds in taking away from them what they think to be their plain right in this matter, the county division sentiment will be fanned into instant flame. There have been evidences of a growing sentiment on the ranges for range unity, and nothing will be so effective in solidify the ranges as to defeat them in the matter of the fourth judgeship.

RANGE EDITORS DENOUNCE BILL

Iniquitous Tonnage Tax Scored by Molders of Public Opinion.

Virginia, Minn., March 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Denounced as an iniquitous measure calculated "to ruin business in this section, depreciating property and putting in jeopardy the local governments, schools and every livelihood, the Iron Range Press association, at a special meeting here Saturday night, adopted the following resolutions, calling upon the state senate to defeat the bill passed by the house last week imposing a tonnage tax:

"Whereas, the house of representatives of the legislature of Minnesota has passed the so-called tonnage tax bill, whereby it is proposed to levy a tonnage tax upon iron ore mined in Minnesota, and

"Whereas, there are in the territory in which the principal iron mining operations of this state are carried on more than 50,000 people entirely outside of those conducting or engaged in mining operations, but nevertheless wholly dependent for a livelihood and prosperity upon the stability of the iron mining industry, and

"Whereas, the tonnage tax bill, if enacted into law, is certain to make the mining of iron in this state unstable and uncertain, and thereby most seriously and most injuriously affect the welfare of the 50,000 persons aforesaid by making their daily livelihood precarious and insecure, and

"Whereas, We are confident that the tonnage tax bill has been passed by the house of representatives under a total misapprehension of the conditions that actually exist upon the iron ranges, that it has been passed under the mistaken notion that it will seriously affect nobody but the Steel corporation and other rich owners of iron ore lying outside the state; but on the contrary it will seriously injure the business and depreciate the value of the property of every man in this section of the state. Therefore be it,

"Resolved, That we, members of the Iron Range Press association of Minnesota, deplore and denounce the passage of the tonnage tax bill as calculated to destroy property values and ruin the business of the business men of all classes upon the iron ranges and put in jeopardy the local governments, schools and every livelihood, and be it further

"Resloved, That we respectfully petition your honorable body to reject and disapprove of the tonnage tax measure and to apply to the Iron Range country and its people the same methods of taxation which prevail in all other parts of the state.

Eveleth, Minn., March 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a fit of despondency that came over him as a result of drinking too much, and because of his inability to send any money to his parents living at Frederick, N. D., Charles Criksman, aged 35, employed at the Spruce mine, cut his throat in Jacob Kenutta's boardinghouse, where he lived, on the Payal road, last night. He complained to Henry Baldi, his roommate, about being discouraged, that he could not send any money to his parents, and about 7 o'clock retired to his room, where he did the deed with a rusty razor. He was discovered soon after he had gashed his throat, weltering in a pool of blood. Coroner Gleason decided an inquest was unnecessary and the body will be buried here. The suicide was a native of Finland.

Sponges and Wash Cloths.

Sponges have almost been discarded from the modern bathroom on account of the difficulty of keeping them in a sanitary condition. When they are used one should not be satisfied with giving them an occasional washing even in warm water, but they should be boiled once a week in water to which has been added a teaspoonful of Gold Dust washing powder and rinsed through several clear warm waters. Wash cloths should also be boiled in Gold Dust suds and thoroughly rinsed, sunned and ironed. Those of thin linen crash are more desirable than heavy ones.

GILBERT WILL TRY IT AGAIN

Will Again Incorporate Trying to Keep Within the Law.

Gilbert, Minn., March 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court ruling that Gilbert is no longer a village because it was illegally incorporated, while not wholly unexpected, will change plans to some extent. Just what the people will do is not known. They have annexed the Sparta addition, have incurred indebtedness, and have granted a number of saloon licenses which may be affected by reincorporation. At present plans for reincorporation are not ready, but it is believed that the town will incorporate at once, as it has much work to do this year. If a new incorporation is made, the Sparta people will, no doubt, join in making a new town, whose limits will not be as large as the village whose incorporation is declared illegal.

MOTHER DIES; SON IN JAIL

Man Sought for by Police Serving Sentence for Vagrancy.

Peter Melloy, arrested as a vagrant, received a message in the county jail yesterday informing him of the death of his mother at Yankton, S. D. He has no money with which to pay his fare West, and will be unable to attend the funeral, although the services will not be held until after his term in jail has expired.

Owing to the fact that when arrested his name was spelled as Pete Malloy, the police did not realize that the man in jail and the one they were looking for to deliver the telegram to, were one and the same. Chief Troyer received a telegram a few days ago asking him to locate Peter Melloy in order to notify him of his mother's death. A search failed to disclose his whereabouts, until some one remembered that a man with a similar name was in jail for vagrancy. Inquiry brought out the fact that he was the man wanted.

RAILROAD NEWS

BONDS TO BE ISSUED

By Wisconsin Central for Duluth Tunnel and Extensions.

Line to Be Built Into Milwaukee and Terminal Erected.

New York, March 22.—Of the $60,000,000 first mortgage bonds which Wisconsin Central directors have authorized, it is planned to issue in the near future between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 for additions and improvements, exclusive of the $36,000,000 reserved to refund existing bonds and equipment obligations.

There is little question that holders of Wisconsin Central preferred will do otherwise than accept in exchange for their shares of the Soo leased line certificates. Such certificates will be an investment of the highest order, having behind them the earning power not only of the Soo line, but, one might say, the Canadian Pacific.

Sufficient assents have already been received to make acceptance of the plan practically unanimous, and chances are that the few who still stand out will fall in line when the intentions of Canadian Pacific-Soo line interests regarding the Wisconsin Central become known.

In all probability the formal transfer of the Wisconsin Central to the Soo line will take place about the middle of April, just after special meetings of stockholders of both roads.

Shortly after, a Wisconsin Central bond issue will be announced. The amount is expected to be between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000. The Soo intends to shorten the Wisconsin Central main line between Chicago and the Twin Cities, forty miles by a 150-mile cut-off, involving an expenditure of $6,000,000.

At the present entrance into Milwaukee is secured only by a short-term contract for trackage rights and terminal facilities. A line will be built into the city and a terminal erected. This will cost between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000. The third and last immediate capital requirement is the raising of $750,000 to reimburse the treasury for payments for completion of the Duluth extension. This includes cost of the tunnel at Duluth.

Soo Line Certificates.

Newman Erb, president of the Wisconsin Central railway, states that the new Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway company leased line stock certificates to be issued in exchange for Wisconsin Central railway preferred stock deposited with the Bank of Montreal will be a direct obligation of that company for payment of 4 per cent in semi-annual instalments for a period of ninety-nine years.

This obligation takes preference over preferred and common stock of the Soo line and at the present market value has an equity behind it of nearly $40,000,000.

When the Soo line issues its $6,048,000 new stock, it will have $31,248,000 stock outstanding, $10,416,000 7 per cent preferred and $20,832,000 common, on which the current dividend rate is 6 per cent. The new stock increases annual dividend requirements by $383,040, to $1,979,040.

Up to September, 1907, the authorized stock was $21,000,000; $14,000,000 common and $7,000,000 preferred. Then the directors voted to double the share capital to $42,000,000. Its issues are always in the proportion of one-third preferred and two-thirds common.

The Soo line is controlled by the Canadian Pacific by ownership of 51 per cent of its stock. The parent road will exercise its right to subscribe to the new stock to the full extent of 24 per cent of its holdings. If stockholders do not subscribe all the new stock, the Canadian Pacific will, as usual, take all that remains.

FARMER HINES HAS BIG SCHEME

Would Build Railroad From Duluth to Hudson Bay.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 22.—D. W. Hines of Hannah was in the city yesterday explaining his latest railway project to business men. The proposition contemplates a line from Duluth to Hudson bay, by way of Regina. The initial project is known as the Farmers' railrfond and a charter has been granted by the Canadian government for the first section, extending from Regina to Melford, Sask. He plans to secure the co-operation of the farmers along the way and has already sold many shares of $100 each to be paid for in two years in instalments.

The Canadian government will guarantee the bonds to the extent of $1,300 a mile, he says. He anticipates no difficulty in selling stock to the extent of $4,000 a mile to farments along the route and the remainder of the money for construction will be easily forthcoming.

The plan is similar to that on which his prospective line from the lower Red River valley was mapped out some ten years ago and which was also later adopted by the Farmers' railroad extending north from Devils Lake and the Northern Dakota railroad extending from Edinburg to Concrete.

Mr. Hines has left for Blackduck, Duluth and other points for the purpose of interesting residents in his project, and will then go on to Ottawa to secure a charter for the extension of his railroad from Regina to the boundary line, where ehe expects to make connections temporarily with either the Great Northern or the Soo until the extension to Duluth can be built. He says the first fifty miles of the road will be constructed this year and will be used to haul out a million and a half bushels of wheat.

NEW ROUTE TO TORONTO

Opening of New Sudbury Branch Shortens Time to East.

Duluth will have a new route to Toronto and Eastern points in Canada. This route is made possible by the completion of the new line of the Canadian Pacific railroad from Sudbury to Toronto. Train service has been installed upon the new line, and through tickets will be sold from Duluth direct through to Toronto.

Formerly when Duluth passengers went over the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic to Toronto, they went on the Canadian Pacific from the Soo to North Bay, taking the Grand Trunk from North Bay to Toronto. The new cutoff from Sudbury to Toronto, enables the Duluth traveling public to go direct through to Toronto via the South Shore and the Canadian Pacific.

The new route will cut off forty-five miles from the distance, and will lessen the traveling time thirty minutes. When the road becomes more "travel trained," as they say in railroad parlance, South Shore officials say the running time will be reduced still more.

Section 2 of the Sudbury-Toronto train has been assigned to the Duluth office of the South Shore, and through sleeping tickets will be sold from there directly through to Toronto. The Sudbury-Toronto sleeper leaves daily from Sudbury at 7 p. m., reaching Toronto at 6:30 the next morning. The Canadian Pacific from the West, which carries Duluth travel east, reaches Sudbury at 5:45 p. m., giving a good connection with the Toronto train.

Besides being a more direct route to Toronto, tickets will be sold over the new route to Montreal for the same price that tickets are sold directly to Montreal. Thus a person traveling from here to Montreal, has the option of traveling by Toronto, or a person can go to Montreal and return by way of Toronto.

The new line skirts the shores of Georgian Bay and passes through the famous "Muskoka Lake" district, one of the greatest fishing and hunting districts in Canada.

WATCH FOR KIDNAPERS

Abductors of William Whitla May Have Come West.

Situation is Growing Too Warm for Them in the East.

While it is not considered very probable that they will get this far West, local police are, nevertheless keeping a sharp lookout for the abductors of William Whitla, who was kidnaped from his home at Sharon, Pa., last week.

The situation has become so warm in the East, and the police there are working so energetically upon the case, that it is thought possible the kidnapers will conclude that their safety depends upon putting a big stretch of country between themselves and the center of excitement. In this case they might be expected to come West.

It is considered likely that the men will remain in hiding for a while, until the heat of the chase dies down, and there is said to be a good chance that they will go to Canada to do their waiting. All the border stations in the East are being closely watched, to prevent their carrying out any designs in this direction.

The abductors will naturally realize that such stations will be watched, and if they conclude to go to Canada, will have to come West to make the attempt. From their position in the East, a study of the map might easily lead them to Duluth, for at this distance they would consider themselves safe, and the fact that a railroad leads direct from here across the border, would make the Zenith City find favor in their eyes for the attempt.

The theory that they intend to remain in hiding in Canada for a time appears the more plausible, from the fact that their attempt to receive the $10,000 ransom demanded in Ashtabula, Ohio, was a failure.

Acting in response to a letter received Friday from the kidnapers, the father of young Whitla left $10,000 in bills Saturday night under a rock at the base of a gorge in a park at Ashtabula. The note said the boy would be returned Sunday morning, if the money was forthcoming. The police kept guard near by, and no one tried to get the cash.

It is believed the abductors kept careful watch, and thus became aware of the watch being kept for them by the police. From this they might have concluded that any subsequent attempts to secure the money would have to be made under the same watchful eye of the police, and deciding that Whitla was not sincere, but was all the time acting in conjunction with the police, it is no more than natural to assume that they would decide in favor of the waiting policy, which might bring them West and through Duluth on their way to Canada.

SUPERIOR NEWS

Run Over By Car.

Ivar Nattison, a woodsman, has filed suit against the Terminal railroad for $20,000 for injuries he claims to have received by being run down by a car, which was being switched. He claims that there were no lights on the car, and that no signal was given to warn him of its approach. He claims that the car dragged him for some distance, crushing his ankle, so that the leg had to be amputated just below the knee.

M. J. Hiland Dies in West.

M. J. Hiland, a former Superior railroad man, died yesterday morning at San Bernardino, Cal. Mr. Hiland left Superior last November for the West, for his health. He is survived by two brothers, John and William H., both of Superior. The body will arrive tomorrow and the funeral will take place from the residence of William H. Hiland, 1305 Hughitt avenue, and will be in charge of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

LARGER POLICE FORCE NEEDED

Mayor Will Make Recommendation in His Annual Message.

It is understood that Mayor Haven, in his message to the council tonight, will recommend that steps be taken to provide for a larger police force in Duluth. The mayor believes that the present force is inadequate.

The matter of electing a president of the council will again come up tonight. It is said that no agreement has as yet been arrived at, and that the result is still in doubt. At the last two meetings vain attempts have been made to decide upon a man. In neither case did an alderman secure enough votes to give him the place. Alderman Shartel is in the lead, with seven votes.

The vote on the proposition to revoke the Carpenter Bros. saloon license for the sale of liquor to minors will probably be close. The indications are said to be that there will not be enough votes to revoke, or enough to allow the transfer of the license to William Meier. In this case the Carpenters will be able to continue in business. Several other matters will come up tonight.

Valley City won from Minot last week, and the championship now apparently lies between Fargo and Valley City. Efforts are being made to have the City team come here for a deciding game Saturday night. The big armory at the A. C. will be placed at the disposal of the two teams.

WHERE THE UNEMPLOYED COME FROM.

There is just one source from which the unemployed come, despite all the learned essays upon the sins of politics, the sins of Wall street and the wrongdoing of this one and that one, which have brought about a panic and thrown men out of work. Such things are but the agencies, not the cause of the panic. If it were not politics or Wall street, it would be something other equally unimportant thing that acts as the immediate means of precipitating a panic which the whole country by its bad methods of living, has been bringing on from the very day when the previous panic was ended and prosperity began anew.

Doubtless we are talking about something that we do not know very much about. If that is the case, there is all the more reason why we should talk about it, to the end that if we do not throw any light whatever upon the subject, we may at least stir up thought and inquiry, and that others with clearer vision and higher mentality may devote themselves to the study of the problem of the unemployed, which is the problem of physical existence, and discover where the unemployed come from, how they may be prevented, and what is necessary and how it may be secured, that this succession of fat and lean years may give way to a time of steady, if only moderate, prosperity.

Where do the unemployed come from? Directly from our bad methods of living. When prosperity comes to us we abuse it. We push its opportunities to violent extremes. We lay hold on the fat of the land and feed upon it, throwing all else to the dogs. By these spendthrift measures we are shortly bankrupt. All that might have served to keep us from hunger we have thrown away. There is only a limited amount of cream in every dish of milk. If we insist upon eating the cream and throwing away the milk, the cream will soon be gone and we shall have nothing to eat, whereas had we been content to eat the milk with but a moderate amount of cream, our cows would have time to give us a fresh supply of milk before the present supply is gone.

There is no reason in the nature of things why this country should ever have a panic, no reason why it should not have prosperity all the time, instead of only some of the time. The reason that we have prosperity by spells and jerks is because of our bad methods. If we insist upon being wasteful in the years of plenty, years of famine must inevitably follow.

This is not an abstract principle of the world's economy before which the individual is helpless. It is true that the individual suffers when his fellows suffer, and that we cannot have the truest prosperity until we begin as a people, to give up our bad, wasteful methods, and practice in their stead, as a whole people, good, conservative methods. But the individual, by taking thought thereto, may avoid the years of famine just the same. Even though he must suffer something from his neighbor's wastefulness, he can by right living in times of plenty be in such a position that when his neighbor's folly brings on the years of famine, he shall have a sufficiency. The more the individual practices care and economy in fat years, the sooner will the nation be done with its lean years.

It is out of our wasteful methods as individuals and as a people that the unemployed come. Politics, the greed of capital, the oppressions of unrestrained power are but the active agents of our national wastefulness. We must do battle against them, but however we curb them and put them to good uses, we shall never be rid of the unemployed until we remove the thing that inevitably creates him.

EVACUATION DAY.

March 17, in addition to being the Seventeenth of Ireland, is Evacuation day in Boston, for it is that notable day on which Gen. William Howe and his hated 11,000 red coats marched out of Boston and the colonies won their first great victory under George Washington in their fight for freedom and the establishment of a new nation.

On the 17th of June, 1775, Washington was commissioned by congress commander-in-chief of the Continental forces. He immediately set out on horseback for Boston, then the real seat of the war. While he was on his way the battle of Bunker Hill was fought. On July 3, Washington took command of the Continental forces under the historic elm at Cambridge and the siege of Boston was immediately begun. The fighting force of the colonies under Washington's command at Boston was only 17,500 men, 3,000 of these unfit for service, and none of them properly clothed, provisioned or armed. The indomitable spirit of Washington kept a brave heart in the breasts of the little army, however, and it hung to the siege with a bull-dog grip through the long months of the fall and winter. On March 4 Washington, by brilliant strategy, seized and fortified Dorchester Heights, in what is now South Boston. The fortification of this hill by the colonists made the occupation of Boston by the British untenable, and on March 17, 1776, just nine months from the day that Washington received his commission as commander-in-chief, the flag of England came down forever in Boston town and the British evacuated the city.

Such is briefly the history that makes Evacuation Day a great day each year in South Boston. For Washington's grand exploit, congress voted him a gold medal bearing on one side a likeness of himself and on the other the words: "Hostibus primo fugatis Bostonium recuperatum," and the medal is now in the Boston public library.

Evacuation Day at South Boston this year was celebrated by an unusually long and brilliant military and naval parade. The parade was headed by Brig.-Gen. Davis and Rear Armiral Snow, with Governor Draper and the mayor of Boston and other dignitaries.. Behind them marched platoon after platoon of the military from the harbor, corps after corps from the coast defense and, most observed of all, the bluejackets from the battleships Missouri, New Jersey, Vermont and Illinois, just returned from their magnificent trip around the world. At the head of the bluejackets marched the men from the Vermont, carrying a red pennant with a black ball in the center, the gunnery pennant of the navy, won by the Vermont at Manila, during the trip around the world.

Evacuation Day is a great day each year in South Boston and it is worth remembering the country over, for it commemorates the first great victory of this nation in its struggle to be free.

THE TRIUMPHS OF PREPAREDNESS.

Alfred Henry Lewis relates that he was talk with President Roosevelt one day last November, just after the president had completed his message to congress. Mr. Lewis said: "And what did you say to our foreign friends?" "Told them that we were the most peaceable nation and had the finest navy in the world," the president quickly replied.

It is said that Mr. Roosevelt regards his work in building up the navy and reorganizing it as the greatest achievement of his administration. However that may be, what he has accomplished in the way of preparedness for war undoubtedly seems to Mr. Roosevelt of high importance in the scale of his accomplishments. Preparedness is a virtue with Mr. Roosevelt which he regards as absolutely essential to success. Without it, in fact, Roosevelt had not been; all his triumphs are distinctly traceable to his preparedness. From that day when he first entertained his mighty resolution to be well and strong, he also resolved to be ready for whatever emergency might arise. Roosevelt's life has been a life of incessant labor. He worked hard even at his play. When the immediate duty of the hour was done, he instantly devoted himself to preparation, preparation for this and that and any worthy thing, in fact, which he could imagine might come to pass. It is this that explains the extraordinary quickness of the man. He appears to be instantly and completely equipped to meet every situation that arises. He is prepared because he has made it a business to be prepared. Consequently he has succeeded while others were meditating whether to begin.

The lesson of preparedness is one that every man, especially every young man, should take to heart. It was Benjamin Franklin who pointed out that the tax we pay to the government is an insignificant tax, but that the tax we pay to idleness, to unsatisfying pleasure and to unpreparedness, is the tax under which we really groan and stagger. The tax that we pay in time wasted keeps hundreds of thousands of us poor all our lives and has cost men not only happiness, but high honors and the inestimable blessings of usefulness. It was not brilliant talents that made Theodore Roosevelt police commissioner of New York city, the head of the civil service commission, or president of the United States, but preparedness. He was always ready when the hour struck. He had paid no tax to idleness; his idle hours had been employed in getting ready.

It is an old saying that genius is an infinite capacity for work. If the saying be true, then Roosevelt has genius of the highest order, but it is the only genius he has. The great of earth, or those whom we call such, have all been workers, but most of them have also been men of brilliant parts; they have in more or less measure been born great. Roosevelt was born a weakling and became great only by dint of the constant labor of preparedness.

Preparedness has its triumphs every day. It has its little triumphs from day to day and it inevitably has its great days. The world always has something to do for the man who is prepared to do it, and every man can be prepared if he wills it.

Cannon just gave 'em Fitz-gerald.

Every girl's a tube rose this year.

It's about this time of year that Duluth always wins the pennant.

Uncle Joe seldom discusses men or measures. He cussses them though.

If Mr. Taft wants to save that inheritance tax he'll have to show his ability to fight.

The cause of woman's suffrage has received a crushing blow. The legislature of Rhode Island has voted it down.

Some folks say that maximum and minimum in the new tariff means the maximum of revision with the minimum of relief.

Gee, but it's great to be president of the United States. Here's Taft presented with season tickets by all the big leagues.

Mr. Roosevelt is the source of much joy to the New York Sun, which takes six days of each week to disproving what he says in the Outlook on the seventh.

Edward Pennington, who succeeds Thomas Lowry as president of the Soo road, was once a brakeman. Nobody has been able to put any brakes on him, however.

While the predatory rich and their crumb-catching satellites are so gleefully glad over the shortness of President Taft's tariff message, they should not overlook the fact that it was also very pointed.

Roosevelt is about to depart this country, the tariff is still unrevised, Joe Cannon still smokes supreme, and congress is likely to go on forever, but all is not lost. The great glad day when the umpire says "Play ball" will soon be here.

The tariff bill has a rough and rugged road to travel. It appears in its present shape to offer a substantial revision downward and it is to be hoped that it can get to President Taft in as good shape. But its way to the White House is a perilous one.

Northern Minnesota has been getting restive over the failure of the legislature to evolve something tangible in the shape of a plan for reapportionment and Senator Laybourn's vigorous demand for action is backed by the undivided sentiment of two-thirds of the territory of the state.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

There seems, after all, to be some dispute about the true ownership of the famous speed nag that was secured very cheaply (?) by Messrs. John Kleffman and Martin Hughes of Hibbing. It is commonly believed that the horse is owned by the aforementioned gentlemen. Mr. Hughes, his legal mind taking in that phase of the question, expresses doubt as to whether Mr. Kleffman and himself are really the men who own the animal with the grand opera singer's temperament.

It wasn't very long after the two Hibbing men secured the horse in a raffle that they placed the horse in the barn of a gentleman who lives at Hibbing. The barn is a very durable one, and that is well.

Right here lies the question as to whether the horse is the sole property of Messrs. Kleffman and Hughes. At the St. Louis the other day, Mr. Hughes brought it up. The question is, has not the man who owns the barn a large sized lien upon the nag. Mr. Hughes asks the question, and it is probable that if the question as to the value of the nag and the amount of havoc he has done to the barn he has been confined in all winter were settled Mr. Hughes would be correct in his idea that there is at the present time a third party interested in the horse.

Have Messrs. Kleffman and Hughes driven that horse upon one single occasion? No, they have not.

Why haven't Messrs. Kleffman and Hughes driven the horse?

Because the horse wouldn't stand for it.

Not since the day the nag became theirs has either of the two gentlemen undulated the reins along the sleek outlines of the beast's back and merrily chucked him with the gad. They have never had the opportunity. The man who originally owned the horse, who, by the way, is very thick with the nag, will probably come along and buy him back. He received a good price for the animal when he raffled him, has had him kept free of charge all winter, and now should be at least willing to give Messrs. Kleffman and Hughes something for the trouble and expense they have been to, not to mention the disappointment they suffered when they discovered that the horse, they believed to be one of the faithful and obedient kind, was one that just stood in the barn all day and laid back its ears, kicked a bit, knocked the beams out of the barn, and in general was the kind of animal that Hans Anderson and Aesop gave villainous roles to in their near-nature stuff.

Georgo M. Russell, who is at the Lenox hotel, says that the packing plant squabble between the Twin Cities, over the location of the Armour plant, will result in the plant being located at New Brighton, the site that has been chosen by the Armour people, but against which the citizens of St. Paul are clamoring.

Mr. Russell is of the opinion that the legislature will take no action in the matter. He thinks that the resolution of the legislature will never get from the hands of a committee. That will leave the two cities free to settle the matter themselves.

According to Mr. Russell, all of the land that has been sold at New Brighton, has been sold by St. Paul real estate agents. He says, furthermore, that there were no protests at the time the negotiations for the location of the plant were being carried on, but that the protestations of an apparently indignant public, have come at a time when the Armour people are ready to carry the project through.

Mr. Russell says he is of the opinion that certain interests are behind the feeling against the location of the plant at New Brighton. Some people say that the Chicago Great Western railroad might not like to see the new plant located at New Brighton.

But down in Minneapolis they are of the opinion that the plant will be eventually located at Minneapolis. They think that the matter is all but settled at the present time. Mr. Russell says the plant, if erected, will be one of the largest, if not the largest in the world. It is believed that it will cost $3,500,000. It will mean that cattle from the Montana and North Dakota districts, and even further West, that have heretofore been going to the Chicago market, will come to Minnesota.

Mr. Russell says the business men of Minneapolis are strongly arguing the location of the plant at New Brighton. Many citizens of the two cities are loath to see the revival of that bitterness of city spirit, that years ago existed between the two towns at the head waters of the Mississippi. But the citizens of Minneapolis are strong for the plant, and they are going to adopt every means to secure it.

Mr. Russell says the protestation meeting, which was recently held upon the steps of the state capitol, was greatly exaggerated in the newspapers. Instead of having a crowd of some 5,000 earnest souls, the loyal Minneapolis man says there was a mere scattering of people. He says the Lenox lobby would have held all the citizens who were present upon the occasion of the protest.

Charles Oakman, from Pelican Lake, says the Indians up in his section of the state are getting fat on the fine hunting that abounds in that part of the country. Mr. Oakman was at the St. Louis yesterday. He stated that the Indians simply have to walk out with a gun and they will bag some game. When Mr. Oakman was down here before, he told about the Indians killing ducks with sticks. There were so many ducks in the lakes that they couldn't fly. Now, in the winter time, they get frozen in the water, and all the Indians have to do, it to walk out and kill them with a club—or at least that is what Mr. Oakman says.

THE WEATHER.

There was a raw wind from the lake yesterday, that made an otherwise bright day, unpleasant. It grew cloudy this morning, and the weather man looks for light snow or rain tonight.

A year ago today it was clear and warm.

The sun rose this morning at 6:07 o'clock and will set this afternoon at 6:23, making twelve hours and sixteen minutes of sunlight.

The weather man makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the past twenty-four hours light snow or rain fell over Minnesota, the Dakotas, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Eastern Montana, Utah, Nevada, California, Virginia and the Carolinas due to barometric depressions central off the Florida and New England coasts and over Southern California and Alberta. A rise in pressure over Alberta and Eastern Montana is attended by slightly colder weather. The barometer continues high over the upper Lake region and pressures are rising throughout most of the Northwest. Rather unsettled weather is indicated for Head of the Lakes tonight and Tuesday with some snow or possibly rain."

No Party Standards.

Sioux City Tribune: President Taft has been criticised for taking Mr. Dickinson and Mr. MacVeagh into his official family. Republican criticism has been on the inconsistency and needlessness of taking men rated as Democrats into a Republican cabinet. Democratic criticism has aimed at a surmised purpose to disrupt that party, though its peerless leader has said neither gentleman is a Democrat, that all depends on the standard. And there is no standard.

That is the point of the appointments. Mr. Taft recognizes and accepts conditions as they are. Party names carry no precise meaning. Republicans support policies that are fundamentally Democratic and Democrats hold opinions that are essentially Republican. That is, defining Republicanism and Democracy in terms that fifteen or twenty years ago were definitions of practical accuracy. Then a Republican was a thick-and-thin protectionist; a Democrat halting temporarily at the halfway house of a revenue tariff but with the path leading directly to free trade. Then a Republican was a strict advocate of a representative government by the people. All that is changed, reversed. Individualism is permeating the Republican party. It is states controlled by Republicans that have gone farthest in bringing government back to the voters.

The question is not what men have been, what party attached to, but where do they stand on the new phases of party policy. Mr. Roosevelt broke the crust for his party that had kept it conservative for thirty or more years. Mr. Taft purposes to keep the crust open that this new growth may continue and the party return to its pristine progressiveness. He selects men for his cabinet not for what they were under old definitions of party, but for what they are under the new movement. The sifting, the realignment is still in process. It appeared in the house. Fitzgerald and his twenty-two standpatters went, under the law of political cohesion to the aid of the Republican standpatters. He calls himself a Democrat as those he reinforced call themselves Republicans. Neither is either. They are simply conservatives.

Little Fathers of the Poor.

Brooklyn Daily Eagle: Those outsiders who fail to understand the hold which Tammany district leaders get upon their voters should have heard the speech which James J. Hagan of the Fifteenth district made to the Women's Democratic club, at the Waldorf, the other night. Mr. Hagan explained in part the system of unofficial paternalism which makes the district leader a sort of deputy of Providence to every one in trouble in his district. This paragraph gives a fair indication of the spirit of the talk:

"He couldn't hold his job down for a month unless he was able to laugh with those who rejoiced, and to weep with those who sorrowed. He must be equally at home at a wedding or a funeral. He must distribute charity without bothering with the red tape beloved of charitable institutions, and he must be prepared to get the residents of the district out of jail whenever a policeman was thoughtless enough to arrest one. Our constituents regard us almost in the light of father confessors. There are today in the city many upright, prosperous citizens, who have been snatched from the brink of a dark destiny by a Democratic leader."

That is the sort of service which has made Tammany popular. It is the sort of friendliness with power which the poor could find nowhere else. So long as there is poverty and ignorance, political leadership thus seasoned with philanthropy will remain formidable.

An Uncertain Quantity.

Richmond Times-Dispatch: Governor Hoke Smith is preparing to raise chickens to supply his own table. No doubt experience will have taught the governor not to count any of them before they are hatched.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1889.

The Minnesota senate killed the bill which waived the forfeiture of the swamp land agent of the Duluth & Winnipeg railroad after a battle of seven hours. The final vote was 28 in favor of indefinite postponement to 16 against. In the house county option was defeated by a vote of 52 to 26.

The Minnesota Car company will erect at once fully 100 dwelling houses at West Duluth for the use of its employes.

D. K. Osborne, who has just returned from Dakota, bought half a section of wheat land there.

Paul Blackmar of the Barnum sawmill has been in the city for several days and has increased his holdings of Duluth and Superior real estate by buying 360 acres near the latter city.

A. E. Stockwell of Grand Rapids is in Duluth to look up a location for starting in the iron works business.

N. B. Thayer, the land attorney, who is now in Washington, proposes to stay there and has telegraphed for his family to start for the capital. He will practice before the general land office.

E. G. Swanstrom has purchased the Davey building, corner of Michigan street and Garfield avenue.

Fred S. Barber, who for the past two years has been a clerk in the postoffice, has resigned and will go to California, where he will probably make his future home. He is succeeded by Charles Ehling.

Capt. Crawford of Hancock, Mich., who has won his suit against the Colby mine owners for $250,000, is the father of Miss Annie Crawford of Duluth.

H. C. Brice, who has been assistant village engineer at West Duluth during the past year, has left for his home at La Crosse, Wis.

A number of Duluth men interested in horses will hold a meeting tonight at the St. Louis hotel to discuss the question of a half mile track. It is believed that part of H. W. Wheeler's farm near Oneota can be secured at a reasonable rental for a long term of years and that $10,000 would fix up a first class track and necessary buildings.

Timothy and Peter Barrett, brothers, were hanged in the county jail at Minneapolis this morning for the murder of Thomas Tollefson, a street car conductor, whose cash box was rifled of $20. About 200 persons, including the jurors and attorneys identified with the trial, the sheriffs of the fifty-eight counties in the state and representatives of the press witnessed the double execution. Peter was 17 years of age and his brother 25. They were convicted largely on the confession of Henry, better known as "Reddy" Barrett, their brother, that the three committed the murder.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Rochester Post and Record: "And the mountain labored and brought forth a mouse." After all the fuss and feathers raised by the "insurgents" and Democrats of the lower house of congress, over their determination to revise the rules and wrest the autocratic power from Speaker Cannon of doing what he chooses with that body, allowing such bills to be passed as pleases him and killing those that he marks for death, he is the same boss as ever. The change that has been made in the rules is really insignificant, and Cannon is still the house of representatives. Cannon, Tammany and Wall street are the victors.

Winona Republican-Herald: Lest you forget, we desire to announce that Memorial day comes on Sunday this year, as does July 4, which will possibly result in a saving of a good many dollars to those who are liable to separate themselves from their coin by celebrating, if these dates fell on any other day. But the days will probably be observed, as is usual, on the following day, Christmas, 1909, and New Year's, 1910, fall on Saturday.

Virginian: Few people would care to be the horse that Mr. Taft rides, but they have no objection to occupying a seat in his band wagon.

Norman County Index: J. F. Jacobson and R. C. Dunn had a long conference in St. Paul Monday, and there is a rumor that the latter will try for governor in 1910, backed by Jacobson.

North Branch Review: In Minnesota there are about 600 newspaper men, each conducting a job printing plant, and each one tamely submits while the governments robs them of thousands of dollars' worth of business in the shape of printed envelopes. This injustice will be stopped in time, anyway, but why not do it now? Get busy, gentlemen, and prod your representative at Washington.

Le Sueur News: Taft had his snow storm in March. Bryan always takes his in November and Teddy had a storm the year round.

Albert Lea Times-Enterprise: The Brainerd Tribune is getting tired. It thinks that a legislative session every decade would be often enough. Cheer up, it will soon be good fishing.

Lake Crystal Union: The new president in trying to control that element that has made the life of President Roosevelt any other than a peaceful one, without the big stick, will make a complete failure.

Stillwater Gazette: Figures do not lie unless there is manipulation or addition. This applies to the female sex mostly.

The Life of Man.

Like to the falling of a star,
Or as the flights of eagles are,
Or like the fresh spring's gaudy hue,
Or silver drops of morning dew,
Or like a wind that chafes the flood,
Or bubbles which on water stood—
E'en such a man, whose borrowed light
Is straight called in and paid tonight
The wind blows out, the bubble dies,
The spring entombed in autumn lies,
The dew's dried up, the star is shot,
The flight is past, and man's forgot.

WIFE FLED TO ST. PAUL

West Duluth Woman Left Home Without Telling Husband.

After Long Search She Is Located at Sister's Home.

Telling her husband that she would be back at 4 o'clock, Mrs. Clarence Harvey of 5107 Roosevelt street left her home early yesterday afternoon and did not return.

She went over to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Boden, 30 South Fifty-second avenue West, apparently to spend Sunday afternoon with them. She had not been there long before she left, saying that she had forgotten to fix the stove at home, and would be soon be back. That was the last that was seen of her.

Late in the afternoon, her husband, who works on the night shift on the Wisconsin Central tunnel and sleeps during the day, awoke, and finding his wife had not returned home, went over to the Bodens, thinking that she was still there. They told him that she had gone home. No one was greatly worried until after supper, when the young woman's continued absence caused her relatives to grow anxious.

Fearing that some accident had happened to her, inquiries were made of the police and all the hospitals in the city, but with no results. This morning she still remained away, and the police and hospitals were again interviewed.

Later, as a forlorn hope, Mr. Harvey telephoned his wife's sister in St. Paul, and learned that his wife was there. She had barely enough money in her possession to buy a ticket to the Twin Cities, and the reason for her sudden departure is not known. It is believed that she was temporarily demented. Her husband left this morning for St. Paul to bring her home.

Mrs. Harvey is but 21 years of age, and is the mother of two children. Her life at home is said to have been happy in every way.

HAD TO HAVE TWO INTERPRETERS

Babel of Tongues in Assault Case in Municipal Court.

Two interpreters for one witness were necessary in police court Saturday afternoon in the trial of Tony Smaltz and Vasili Luzaich, charged with indecent assault upon a Finnish woman in West Duluth. After all the testimony was in, Judge Windom decided the men were not guilty, and they were discharged from custody.

Belgian, Austrian and Finnish witnesses were examined, and it kept two or three sets of interpreters busy. Finally a Belgian was encountered who could speak nothing but his own language. The Austrian interpreter used on the preceding witness was no use in this case, and the court officers began looking around for another interpreter. The best they could do was to find one who could translate the Belgian into Austrian, and then it needed another man to translate the Austrian into English. An attorney would ask a question, the Austrian would translate it into Austrian, and the second man would translate it into Belgian.

OBJECT TO TRANSFER

Mass Meeting of Oneota Citizens Protest Against Saloon.

Pass Resolutions Which Will Be Submitted to Council.

Resolutions protesting against the transferring of the Carpenter saloon license to William Meier were passed unanimously at a mass meeting held yesterday afternoon at the Hazelwood Presbyterian church, Thirty-ninth avenue west and Fourth street.

The Carpenter brothers conduct a saloon in the building owned by Meier. Several weeks ago they were found guilty in the municipal court of selling liquor to minors. Tonight they will appear before the council to try to get the license transferred to Meier.

Bert N. Wheeler presided at the mass meeting. A committee composed of J. Gibson, Lon Merritt and A. Wicklund was appointed to go before the council and give reasons why the license should not be transferred.

The resolutions follow:

"In view of the following important facts; first, that residents of Oneota and Hazelwood have in large majority protested in three former petitions against granting a license to any one to sell liquor within the confines of the Fourth precinct of the Seventh ward;

"Second, that there is inadequate police protection in the district;

"Third, that on account of the custom of demanding drinks for the house before cashing checks, much money is wasted;

"Fourth, that this locality is essentially a residence district;

"And in view of the additional fact that both aldermen from the Seventh ward are opposed to granting the transfer;

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, that we, the residents of said district, in mass meeting assembled, do vigorously protest against the transfer of the Carpenter license, and the continuance of that saloon, or any other; and that we do earnestly urge the members of the common council of the city of Duluth, each and severally, that they do not sanction such transfer, nor force this nuisance upon a district, the aldermen and people of which are united in their opposition to such action.

"And be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the common council of the city of Duluth, and copies sent to the daily papers for publication."

SWITCHMAN IS HURT.

Frank Bannock Nearly Brushed From Top of Train.

Frank Bannock, a switchman employed in the Northern Pacific's Garfield avenue yards, narrowly escaped being knocked off a freight train under a bridge, Saturday afternoon. Riding on top of the train, his head struck an overhanging plank as the train rounded a curve.

The blow stunned Bannock, but he was able to cling to a brake rod until the train could be stopped. Had it not been for this he would have fallen between the cars and been mangled to death.

As it was, his bruises were painful but not fatal. It is expected that he will be back at work in a week.

BIG NOISE AT AUTO SHOW

Duluth Men Were Best Customers at Minneapolis Exhibition.

Minneapolis Men Planning a Point Contest to Duluth.

Duluth men were the big noise at the Minneapolis automobile show held in that city last week.

They were the largest purchasers and bought the largest and most expensive cars sold during the show.

Julius H. Barnes bought a 60-horse power Stevens-Duryea. It is a six-cylinder machine and will be the largest car owned in Duluth. It was the largest car on exhibition at the show and was the admiration of all the patrons of the show, as well as the representatives of other makes. Mr. Barnes also bought an American Traveler, a four-cylinder, 50-60-horse power speedster, guaranteed to make seventy miles an hour and over. It has 40-inch wheels, the largest wheels used on Duluth machines. The largest now in use are thirty-seven inches.

Other cars of this make were purchased by A. C. Volk and George Lounsberry. These sales were made through William Jones, the local board of trade man, who is the local agent for the new car. There were more sales and at least ten cars were purchased at the show by Duluth men, but they wish the matter kept quiet for a time.

Besides the cars already named there were purchased one Verlie, two Fords and one E. M. F.

With the number of cars ordered for spring delivery some time ago, Duluth will, when the season finally opens, be quite an automobile city.

The Minneapolis men are now planning a point automobile contest to Duluth and return. This will take place some time in the early summer and it is expected that at least 100 cars will be entered.

There will be a speed limit set, and each car will be expected to keep inside that limit. The car making the run with the least amount of trouble will be awarded a cup which is to be donated by a Minneapolis automobile company.

There is much enthusiasm in Minneapolis over the proposed contest and the Duluth men that attended the show say it will be a great event in automobile circles.

OPEN ALASKA'S TREASURE BOX

Five Million Dollars' Worth of Gold Dust at Seattle.

Seattle, Wash., March 22.—Five million dollars' worth of gold dust from Alaska has arrived in Seattle, where it will form one of the exhibits at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition. Another exhibit now on the way here from Alaska is a 6,000 pound nugget of pure copper, the largest piece of this metal ever found.

As reports come in from the commissioners who are scouring the territory for exposition material, there is a new revelation of its fabulous wealth in metals, timber, fisheries and agriculture. Those who think of Alaska as an arctic wilderness will have a chance at the exposition to change their opinion. Grains, vegetables and melons as fine as any that grow will be shown in the Alaska building. On this feature of the exposition the United States government is spending $100,000. The Alaskans themselves are laying out twice this sum to show the world that their treasure box contains wealth in many forms besides the yellow metal that in ten years has given Alaska second place in the roll of gold producers.

President Taft has seen every possession of the United States except Alaska. This is one reason why people here are eagerly looking forward to the president's visit to the Seattle exposition. Not only the products of Alaska's mines, soil, waters and forests will be laid before the president; actual reproduction of mining, fishing, canning and lumbering operations will be carried out on a large scale. To complete the story of Alaska, the Esquimaux, the Siwashes, the Indians of the Yukon and the giant aborigines of farther north, the Gens du Large, will be gathered together at the Seattle fair when it opens June 1, complete and on time.

Are Named at Request of Bethlehem Steel People.

New York, March 22.—Receivers were appointed today by the United States district court for the J. B. & J. M. Cornell company, iron manufacturers, of this city, with a plant at Gold Spring, N. Y. An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against the company by the Bethlehem Steel corporation and two others, whose claims aggregated $46,375. The company has a capitalization of $2,000,000.

The company is stated, in the papers filed, to have unsecured liabilities of $500,000, with uncompleted contracts of $1,000,000, and outstanding bonds, secured by mortgage on the plant, amounting to $600,000. Preferential transfers are alleged in the petition.

A FORTUNATE STROKE

We were mighty fortunate to get this fine tract of land between Santa Fe and the shipping point on the Isle of Pines to sell at $40 an acre. We do not expect to get another tract to sell at the same price. We are actually selling it, too. Better come quickly if you want to get in on this deal. When 5-year-old groves are netting $400 an acre, lands will not stand long at $40 an acre.

AMMUNITION IS FLAME MENACED

Marines Save Fort Mifflin Supplies—Incendiarism Charged.

Philadelphia, March 22.—Two hundred United States marines fought a marsh fire near Fort Mifflin in the extreme southwestern section of the city, and after several hours' work succeeded in extinguishing flames which threatened the magazines on the government's reservation, in which are stored many tons of explosives.

Part of the force of marines with shovels dug a trench between the fire on the dry marsh and the fort, while others formed bucket brigades. Ten marines stood waist deep in the Delaware river passing water to their comrades ashore while the flames were extinguished. The fire is believed to have been incendiary. CONCERNING WOMAN.

The first week of the Y. W. C. A. membership contest has passed and although the bulletins have not yet begun to be posted at the rooms, a large number of the members are actively interested in the contest and it is expected that a large list of members will be added to the roll as a result of the month's work.

It is especially desired that every member realize the necessity of doing her part. There are no regular contesting teams or committees, the plan being to enlist every member in securing three new memberships or renewals. It will be impossible to again personally notify the members and the committees are hoping that a large number will voluntarily offer their assistance to the effort to bring the membership to 2,000 before entering the new building at Second street and Second avenue west.

There will be a meeting this evening of the membership and business women's committees at the rooms, and the plans for the more active conduct of the campaign will be discussed. The committee members will be entertained at tea followed by the business meeting.

It is planned to continue the contest for one month until April 15. Every member is urged to call at the rooms and get three or more membership cards.

ANNUAL EXHIBIT

Of State Art Society Opens at St. Paul.

Club women throughout the state are interested in the exhibit of the State Art commission which opened Saturday afternoon at the Auditorium at St. Paul with a private view and reception for members. It will be thrown open to the public every day next week, with no charge, and the various clubs of this district will take charge in the afternoons, receive visitors and give a short musical program.

In this connection it is interesting to know that the bill creating the State Art commission was drawn up by a club woman and its passage secured by the co-operation and urging of club women. The commission is doing much to educate public opinion in art, and holds annual exhibitions in different cities of the state, showing the work of local and outside artists and giving prizes. It has traveling galleries, employs noted speakers and loans collections of good pictures to clubs and schools.

The members of the commission who received the guests Saturday afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Koehler, and Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Herrick of Minneapolis; Miss McKinstry of Faribault, and Mrs. Robert Seymour of Duluth, and were assisted by St. Paul club women.

WORK AT HOME.

Carmen Sylva Thinks Woman's Work is There.

Carmen Sylva must be 60 years old. She is very tall, absolutely queenly, and everything about her is regal graciousness. I have never seen a finer, more sincere lady, and I surely have never heard a woman talk more delightfully. Her hands, almost devoid of rings, are fine, beautiful and delicate, and she uses them with the grace of the old race to which she belongs. Her gestures are full of kindness, one might almost say benevolence, writes Marie Van Vorst in the April Delineator. The good she has done, the warm-heartedness of her whole existence, the big, generous point of view and the poet's soul are revealed in everything she does and says. But it is, of course, her face one remembers above all—I have never seen a more radiant expression. Age seems to have no part in her. She is a most beautiful example of what the youth of spirit, vigor and work can accomplish. Her dark eyes are filled with fire, her smile is inspiring, and she talks as if she really cared and really felt everything she said. The fact that she is a queen has lifted her above her womenkind, but the fact that she is so real a woman has brought everyone near her.

"When I came to Roumania to be the queen," she said, "I determined them to be the mother of the people, and I have no children of my own." (This has been the cruel cross under which she has been bowed with grief, for the little crown princess has been dead twenty years.) "I have no children of my own, but every Roumanian is my child—I might say that I have been six million times a mother."

When one hears the Roumanians speak of Carmen Sylva, one knows that this is true.

"I care so much," she said, "about what women do and how they do it. While I think that work is the greatest things in the world, I would never have a woman work outside of her own home."

What a blow to the modern American business woman, to the suffragettes, to the Woman's Rights association! Carmen Sylva, who has made a reputation for herself as painter, designer, musician and poet, who is "mother to six million souls," assuredly has the right to be heard, at least no matter how the American woman disagrees with her.

"A woman," the queen added, "is made for her home. Her hands should be trained to do beautiful things, embroideries, painting—those things that she can do by her own fireside, and there her husband should find her. Of course," she said with a smile, "they should all be married! I think the very sight of an old maid is an accusation against the men. When a women is forced by her poverty, or by any conditions, to become a professional, of course, I admire her effort. It is the system I rage against," she said with animation; "there should be lots of children and all the thrown out of factory workers at all. I thunder against women's work, as it is understood. There is so much blessed, beautiful work at home to do, and a woman can think so deeply and freely, she can get over so many troubles when her diligent fingers are occupied with quiet toil for those dear ones in the home."

IN COMMON THINGS

There May Be Beauty of Color and Design.

That there is much beauty in common things is a fact that the flat dweller and the kitchenette girl would do well to realize, says an exchange.

The pots and pans are not mere symbols of an endless round of dreary cooking and washing dishes, they may be arranged in shining rows so that the kitchen is a veritable "Dutch Interior" that would do credit to an old master. As for a brass or copper kettle, an artist could sing its praises all day long. There are shadows and burnished, glorious high lights that are joy to the soul of the painter-person.

A girl who appreciates the beauty in common things keeps butter in a beautiful green and brown Japanese dish at one end of the broad window sill. The effect of this dish against the straight hanging ecru curtains is exquisite.

Every inch of room has to be utilized in a small flat, and yet there must not be an appearance of crowding that would spoil the whole thing. An artist in Boston said once, "Nothing is beautiful that is not useful." The common brown baking dish lives up to this statement most loyally. Every one knows the rare beauty of these earthen dishes—which by the way, cost only 5 to 25 cents—with their light pottery color outside and glazed dark brown inside, and as for their use, do we not bake common macaroni and cheese in them, as well as creamy rice pudding and "pan dowdy"—that juicy apple pie so dear to the heart of childhood and to those grown-ups who have not quite forgotten the young joys?

When this baking dish goes a visiting in the living room it must look its best Ginger jars are also highly artistic. When buying the ginger, it is well to select the jar one's self—for although the ginger is very good to eat, it is really the jar that counts. Besides their decorative value, they are all around useful. A number of things may be kept in them when the ginger is gone and the jar washed carefully—rice, barley and even sugar, for instance. It is also a handy place for tubes of paint.

PLANT THE SEEDS.

Spring Planting Should Be Done Indoors Now.

If seeds for the flower and vegetable gardens are not already in the hotbed or in boxes or pots placed near a sunny window, then the amateur gardener who wants to keep abreast of his neighbors when warm weather comes should prepare his hotbed or boxes at once.

The simpler method of raising plants to be set out after all danger of frost is over, is to sow seed in boxes or pots to be kept indoors. The boxes should have holes for drainage in the bottom, but should not be so open as to let the soil dry. Ordinary garden soil may be used in the bottom, but on top there should be a lighter soil. Small seed should be sown on the surface, then fine soil spread over them, and pressed down, but not so hard as to cause the soil to bake. Coarse seed can best be planted in little drills or each seed pressed down into the soil and the whole covered with a thin layer of earth. The soil should be gently sprinkled with water immediately after the planting. Only the quantity of water which the soil will readily absorb without becoming soggy should be given. The box should be watered subsequently whenever the soil becomes dry a little below the surface.

Set the box in the sunlight by the window but shield it from the direct rays of the sun. Keep the soil well stirred to prevent it baking.

Directoire Walk.

The Directoire walk is as exacting and difficult as the figure. The only way it is to be obtained is by practicing in skirts that are not only narrow, but rest upon the floor unstiffened, for several inches in front and on the side, while the back trails on the ground.

In walking, her steps must be measured void of all stride. This tempo can only be gained by counting and walking slowly in the beginning, until one fairly glides. The arms must hang loosely at the sides, or at least curve themselves, but never break into a swing, not even in walking.

The head is raised high and bent forward slightly, to avoid any suggestion of being haughty. The Directoire girl seats herself and gets out of a chair with splendid ease. These graceful movements are gained by having perfect control of her hips. She is never expected to rest her back against a chair, for the spine is the support of the body, and if cushions are there they are only considered an ornament.

IRISH MUSIC AT CONCERT

Masonic Temple Crowded to Doors With Erin's Admirers.

Instead of talking about closing the series of free concerts given at the Masonic temple under the auspices of the Scottish Rite, judging by the large attendance and expressions of satisfaction it will be necessary to hold them more frequently. Not only were the permanent seats and the usual additional chairs filled, but the late comers confiscated the chairs in the reception rooms and filled the auditorium to the stage steps. The program was worthy of the patronage. It was Irish day and no more popular exponent of Hibernian music could have been selected than Mrs. Leo A. Ball, who sang as her first number Balfe's "Killarney," with exquisite taste and feeling. Her voice was most satisfying, rich, pure, sonorous, equally effective in forte or piano. To the hearty encore she responded with Moore's beautiful Irish song, "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms." The air was originally sung in an old play "The Rivals," before Charles the II, by Mary Davis, to be words "My Lodging is on the Cold Ground." Mrs. Ball's second selection was the stirring, patriotic song, "The Harp That Once Through Tara's Halls," sung with a vim and a go which stirred all the hearers, Irish and otherwise, alike. To the deserved encore Molloy's celebrated "Kerry Dance," was rendered so acceptably that a second encore could not be resisted, and "The Low Back Car," was given with a grace and humorous conception which demonstrated that the singer is equally at home with the concert solo or the simple ballad.

The first organ number was a spirited, tuneful, military march, recalling the spirit of old colonial days, although Sousa-esque in style. The companion piece was in good contrast, a "Reverie," by Kathleen A. Roberts, a dreamy composition suggestive of spring thoughts and quiet contemplation, a very much appreciated number.

The second organ number comprised three movements of Beethoven's "Klavier Concert," which, being written for the piano, taxed the organ to its capacity, but the most delicate runs and staccato notes were brought out very clearly and the "sostenuto" effects of the accompaniment were very efficient. The first movement, the "Allegro con brio," was spirited and the main theme was gradually worked up from the simple statement to the complex regrouping, ending in a stately climax which prepared the listener for the delicately melodious and beautiful "Largo," the second movement. The touching melody was carried through as a solo by the doppel flute stop very effectively. The third movement, the "Rondo, was a brilliant finale with its contrasts of light and shade, delicate runs, and massivo fortes. The "Presto" with which it ended was very brilliant and a fitting climax to one of the composer's most celebrated works. The concert ended with an overture called "Dreams of Erin," in which some of the most popular and best known typical Irish melodies were arranged.

The music for next Sunday will be principally, if not entirely, from Wagner's "Tannhauser." There are so many beautiful and inspiring pieces in that opera that it is thought a full "Tannhauser" program can be made up without tiring the audience.

CHILDREN ENJOY SPRING VACATION

From this time on the truant officer will be kept busy all the time. The spring fever gets to Duluth school children annually. The truants have been remarkably few this year, but the fever usually breaks out with the coming of spring weather.

PANTON AND WHITE CO.

Thursday is Remnant Day

Owing to the immense volume of business in our piece goods departments, and to the fact that we are carrying a greatly increased stock this year and need all available space, we have decided to hold our remnant clearances once a month hereafter instead of quarterly as heretofore.

Thursday is the Day

Remnants of silks, of dress goods, of linings, of wash fabrics, of flannels, of linen, of table damasks, and of domestics — all good desirable materials, in 2 to 5 yard lengths—on sale at the various departments; also on Both Bargain Counters —at one-quarter, one-third and even one-half off the regular prices.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Eggs, 18 cents a dozen.
Squash, 4 cents a pound.

Pineapple, limburger and Swiss cheeses.
Cream cheese, 10 cents a cake.
Rye bread, 15 cents a loaf.
Lamb stew, 15 cents a pound.

Although no desire could be sillier than to sit in a garden this early spring weather, to eat and drink, still because it is silly, it is the thing that one most wants to do. Of course, there are no gardens laid out with the particular idea of sitting around on rustic furniture and admiring the scenery and enjoying the lazy feeling of summer in the air. In this climate if one should attempt it, a few buffalo robes to cuddle in, a long knitted muffler to wrap one's head and throat in, a carriage stove to put one's feet on, another to hold in one's hand, and "den den ganzes do one, one would go away from the garden wid a gold in one's head."

But if one should happen to do this thing, the markets have the nicest varieties of cheese and the best rye bread you ever ate, which, of course, would not need to go entirely to waste, even with the furnace roaring lustily the song of winter.

A Bundle of Tracts

By Dr. Knox Caldwell.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

"Look here, Wells," rasped the managing editor, wheeling about in his easy chair and surveying me sternly, "your work is getting rotten, absolutely rotten. What you need is a vacation. Take it. Get out and don't show your face around here for two weeks."

Thus it came about that the next day found me lolling comfortably on a settee, in a shady part of the park. My five years' work on the newspaper had given me a wide acquaintanceship within the city. Consequently, among the passers-by, there were many whose faces were familiar.

Presently two familiar figures came within my field of vision. They were a pair of girls whom I had encountered many times in my search for news, named respectively "Mag" and "Liz."

Being a trifle familiar with their especial brand of "graft," I decided to watch and see with what success they should operate it. So I lit my pipe and waited expectantly, nor did I have long to wait.

Suddenly there came a wild shriek and, in a moment, people were rushing pell mell toward the spot where a moment ago I had sighted this gifted pair.

I smiled sardonically and sat still, for I had seen the little play and its inevitable denouement enacted many times. "Mag," the smaller one, had just keeled over in a fair imitation of an epileptic fit while her sister "Liz" lent her aid by wringing her hands and proclaiming in heartrending accents, "O, me sister. She's dyin', She's dyin'."

Of course the whole exhibition would not take over five minutes and, as a finale, some sympathetic bystander would pass around the hat for the afflicted one. I yawned, as the little circle disintegrated, and wondered whether I ought to report "Liz" and her confrere to the police or give a dime and ask for a story. Fate decided the question for me.

The crowd had miraculously disappeared, having evidently forgotten "Mag" and her trouble, while the precious pair wandered slowly along in my direction, keeping a shifty eye out meanwhile for a possible policeman.

I pulled my hat down over my eyes and pretended to sleep. Presently I was rewarded by a whining voice. "Please, mister, help a poor girl that's got fits."

I sat up and pushed back my hat. "Why, hello, Liz," I said casually, "at the old game I see. Why don't you try something new?"

The girl, in whose hard and careworn face there was not a trace of fear, stared at me defiantly.

"Wot if we is?" she said sullenly. "folks like us has got to live some way and the old gags is the best anyhow. I tried a new one las' week, and it was all to the bum." Here she stopped and looked at me suspiciously.

"Go one Liz," said I good naturedly, "I'm not working this week and I'll give my word of honor not to peach on you. Sit down and tell me about it."

The hunted look left the girl's face and she glanced at me gratefully as she sat down.

"Tanks, Mr. Wells," she said, "I taut you wan't no piker. Well, it was like dis. Some o' de fly cops got wise to our game an' dey told us to quit it or get pinched, so we quit an' kep' in de house fere a while. T'ings to eat got kinder, scarce aroun' th' joint so, one night, I says to Mag 'I'm goin' to duck out an' see what's doin' an' I took a hike down to the Bow'ry.

"I wuz sneakin' along when, all of a sudden, I runs into Marble Mary' just out from t'ree months' trip to th' islan'. Mary she hooks into me an', w'en I tells her me bad luck, she puts me wise to a new lay that she says is a peach an' a winner. On de way home I lays me plans to try it out nex' day. Now dis is a kind of a particular job so I calls on all me frien's fer help.

"One lends me a swell lid she's swiped somewhere, another hands me a dress fer Mag an' finally, we're bot' fixed up like duchesses and ready fer parade.

"Den I gets out a new shiny hand bag, dat I copped from somebody or other, and I packs it full o' paper until it looked like th' property of Mrs. Van Astor.

"Wid dat in me mitt, me and Mag hits de bike fere down town. We wuzn't admin' fer no cheap joint, neither, but fere Wanacooper's, th' swellest place in town. Course, we didn't know w'ether we could get in or not, but a faint heart ain't productive of anything to eat an' anyhow we couldn't do no more than get trowed out.

"Well, luck was wid us, fere dey was a big sale goin' on an' th' bubbles an' carriages was lined up fer half a mile, an' swells goin' in an' out like bees in a hive. Me an 'Mag waited a bit an' then slid in wid th' mob and nobody said a word.

"We wandered around a while, keepin' an eye open fer the store cop, and finally I spots me meat—a big fat woman wid her hands covered wid sparklers an' a juicy lookin' grip in her hand that I figgered on layin' by good fer a couple of hundred anyway.

"The fat one she wandered around and around, wid me and Mag on her trail, lookin' careless but jest a waitin' fer a chance to get busy wit' th' valise. Finally, she stops at the glove counter an' sets down to look 'em over.

"I gives Mag th' wink an' den I sidles in aside her and plunks me hand cage down by hers. Say, but she trowed me a frosty face, and it was all I could do to keep from laughin', I felt so good.

"Says I to the pink complected doll behin' the counter, 'show me some 50 cent mitts please' and, jest as she was tohin' Mag got busy and trun a fit.

"'Well say' my fat frien' she jest give one screech an' turned aroun' to see what was goin' on. While she and everyone else was rubberin' I grabbed her cash box, leavin' mine there in place of it, an' walked away. Mag was still a hollerin' an' so was ev-rybody else as near as I could make out. People was a runnin' ev'y which way an', in the rumpus, I jest kep' a walkin' an' a walkin', and pretty soon I walked out the door with Mrs. Van Fattybilk's grip in my hand an' my old carpet sack of brown paper a layin' back there on th' counter beside 'r.

"'Gee,' I said to myself, 'this is too easy. If this keeps up I'll be a swell myself soon' an' I hugged that fat valise just like it was a baby.

"Well, I walked kind o' slow to th' corner, but after that you bet I went some, a swearin' for joy at ev'ry step an' a wonderin' how many plannys I'd get wid th' boodle an' swell togs and odder tings.

"W'en I reached de dump where we hangs out I sneaked up stairs into th' room, buttoned th' door tight an' den I set there, a lookin', lovin' like, at that grip an' my mouth jest a waterin'. My, how tickled I was!

"I was jest gettin' ready to bust it open an' feast my eyes, when Mag came up th' stairs, lickety-split. Well we clinches an' laughs an' den cries an', finally, we goes after th' boodle.

"I opened it up very cautious, so dat none of th' diamonds can roll out onto th' floor, an' say, you can't guess wot was in it. Money? No. Jew'lry? Nit. Gold, bonds an' diamonds? Not on your picture. Say! there wasn't nothin' in dat lyin' deceitful $20 carpet bag but a big bundle of tracts. You know what tracks is—them things th' W. C. T. U. and th' Y. M. C. A gives to us poor heathens instead of a sandwich an' a cup o' coffee.

"I pulled out a bunch and looks at 'em. 'Wat kind o' a life are you livin' an' 'Lyin' is the root of all evil,' an' more like that. I handed a few over to Mag, in case she should feel neglected, and went on.

"Way down at th' bottom was two copper pennies an' a postage stamp that had been used. That was all. I see at once dat Mrs. Van Astor had only been out shoppin' an dat we had made a mistake in pickin' her out as an easy mark. She was a wise gazabo all right an' we was the marks.

"Well, I looked at Mag an' Mag looked at me an' neither of us said a word. T'en I takes all dem valuables, tracks, pennies an' all, an' I puts 'em back in de' valise. After that I opens a winder an' I heaves it out an' I only hopes whoever foun' it got more joy out of it than I did.

"I never come so near bein' rich in my life, all right, but heart disease runs in our family so me an' Mag went back to th' old game. It's less excitin', but there's more in it."

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

FORECAST OF SPORTS

Associated Press Tells What Is Planned for Coming Week.

Racing Begins in England; Billiard Contests in New York.

New York, March 22.—Sporting events of the week that will attract more than the usual attention are the opening of the horse racing season in England, the international 18.2 balk line billiard championship which will be held in New York beginning Monday, and the 10-round bout, also in New York, between Philadelphia Jack O'Brien and Stanley Ketchell of Montana next Friday.

The racing season in England will begin Monday. The decadence of horse racing in this country, due to anti-betting legislation, has resulted in the invasion of England by many of the best American-bred horses. Americans generally are anxious to see how these racers compare with the crack British thoroughbreds, hence the keen interest in the British racing season. Two important events are scheduled for the week, the Lincolnshire Handicap, Tuesday, and the Grand National Steeplechase next Friday. H. P. Whitney's Delirium is the only eligible American candidate for the Lincolnshire.

Seven professional billiardists have entered for the international 18.2 balk line championship contest which begins Monday at the Madison Square Garden concert hall, New York. Play each afternoon and evening will consist of 500 points up, the prizes being 40, 25, 15, 12 and 8 per cent of a purse of $500 added to the entry fees and net gate receipts. The American players entered are George Sutton and Calvin Demarest, Chicago; A. G. Cutler, Boston; H. T. Kline, Philadelphia; George F. Slosson, Ora C. Morningstar, New York. Louis Cure of Paris is the only foreign entrant. Tonight the initial contest will be between Cure and Demarest; Kline and Cutler will meet Tuesday afternoon, and Sutton will play Morningstar Tuesday evening. In all, twenty-one games will be necessary to decide the championship, but should ties occur, extra games will have to be played.

There is still an element of uncertainty as to the intentions of Jeffries regarding a championship fight with Jack Johnson, but the big Californian makes no secret of the fact that he is taking more exercise daily than is theatrical exhibitions call for.

Johnson was to have reached New York during the past week but he made some engagements in Chicago which will keep him in that city for another week. In the meantime, Jeffries, who has been in New York, will go on the road opening in Boston Monday, so that all chances of the two big fellows meeting in New York, if only by accident, is passed for the time being.

Beginning Tuesday and lasting the remainder of the week, the Boston racquet and tennis club court will be occupied by the country's best amateur tennis players. The occasion will be the annual national championship tournament, in which Young Jay Gould has emerged with the honors during the last three years.

Golfers from the Northern state are having a gala time in the South just now and during the week three interesting tournaments will be played at Aiken, S. C.; Pinehurst, N. C., and St Augustine Fla.

NELSON TO FIGHT JIMMY BRITT

Hugh McIntosh Will Pull Off Battle in Australia.

Chicago, March 22.—Battling Nelson, the lightweight pugilistic champion of the world will fight Jimmy Britt in Australia some time next fall, according to an announcement made here yesterday by Hugh McIntosh, the Australian fight promoter. Nelson agreed to McIntosh's terms and the battle will probably be fought at Sydney, N. S. W. Nelson will accompany McIntosh to Australia when the latter returns.

McINTOSH IS A SMOOTH MANAGER

Takes Him But a Few Minutes to Get Johnson's Signature.

Chicago, March 22.—It took Hugh McIntosh, the Australian fight promoter, only a few minutes to get Jack Johnson, the heavy-weight champion of the world, to consent to fight James J. Jeffries, the retired champion for a purse of $50,000. After a short conference here yesterday, Johnson expressed himself as perfectly satisfied with the terms offered by McIntosh.

The Australian promoters is confident he will get Jeffries' consent and that the big fight is certain. McIntosh will return to New York today and says he will be back here in a few days with Jeffries' signature to the articles.

McIntosh's offer is a purse of $50,000 to be divided 60 per cent to the winner and 40 per cent to the loser. Each man will be required to put up a forfeit of $5,000 when he signs the articles.

SAILORS ARE HARD AT WORK

Sailboats Are Being Overhauled for the Coming Season.

The members of the Duluth Boat club who feature sailing, are already hard at work getting a number of their boats ready for the coming yachting season. Sunday a number of them were out looking over the boats, and several have already started their spring overhauling work. Many of the boats are receiving their annual coat of paint.

There will be a number of new boats this year. Several of the old yacht club members will have new ones and two new 32-footers are known to have been ordered. Many members of the boat club, who have heretofore been content to canoe or row, will order boats, and when the first race of the season is started there will be many new boats in the lineup.

WIND TOO STRONG FOR THE RIDERS

The Crowd Was Small at Benefit Ski Tournament.

The ski tournament held Sunday at Chester hill, under the auspices of the Duluth and Superior clubs, as a benefit for Christ Gunhus, was not the biggest kind of a success.

The crowd was small, and while the hill was in good shape, the wind was so strong that only a very few of the riders could keep their feet.

Several of the riders took bad falls, and not a few skis were broken. Several of the events were cut out, as, after trying the hill once, many of the riders refused to attempt it again.

Arnold Olson of Duluth was first in the amateur class, and Barney Riley of Coleraine was second.

In the professional class, Ole Jannum of Minneapolis was first, Ole Fierling second, and August Nordby of Superior third.

As a result of the benefit, about $100 was handed to the Superior rider, who broke his leg while performing on the Duluth hill some three weeks ago.

DULUTH BOY IS AN INVENTOR

Frank Chambers, Formerly of This City, Invents Gearless Auto.

Frank Chambers, a Duluth boy, now living in Spokane, has invented a gearless automobile.

Mr. Chambers is a former student at the Duluth Central high school, and is as yet little more than a boy. Eastern capital has been interested in the new type of machine, and it is expected that by early summer several working models will have been finished.

Mr. Chambers claims that his machine will be capable of running 120 miles an hour, that it will be less expensive than other machines, and that it will excell other makes in hill climbing.

The Duluth inventor, according to letters written home, intends to enter one of his machines in the races at the big Seattle fair this coming summer.

Some time during the summer he intends to bring one of the cars to Duluth for demonstrating purposes.

AMERICANS WIN SIX-DAY RACE

German Crown Prince and Immense Crowd Cheer Yankee Riders.

Berlin, March 22.—In the presence of the crown prince and an immense throng of spectators, the American team, composed of Floyd MacFarland and James Moran, finished winners of the six-day bicycle race at 10 o'clock last night and received a magnificent ovation, the cheers of the crowd mingling with the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner." The Americans won by a full lap. The track measured fourteen laps to the mile. Stol, of Holland, and Berthet of France finished second. The total distance covered was 2,425 miles, 312 less than MacFarland and Moran made when they won the six-day race in New York in 1908. The Americans said they finished fresher than in the New York race and were never pushed to win. The crown prince will receive them tonight.

ICE KING WINS THE LAST RACE

Roy Kent's Ice Boat Has Now Won Three Events.

The Ice King, owned by Roy Kent, took the last race of the ice boat sailing season Saturday afternoon on the bay. The wind was good and the Ice King took the race by more than half a minute.

It was the last race of the season. This makes three races this speedy ice boat has captured, and although the points have not as yet been figured up, it is generally believed that the cup belongs to the Ice King and her owner.

The races were six miles in length, three miles down and three miles back. The ice was in some places very soft, but the wind was brisk and the time made was very fair considering the weather conditions.

The summary follows:

Start, 3:48.

Ice King, Kent	4:02:30	14:40
Arrow, Roberts	4:03	15
Hare, Roth	4:05:30	17:30
Snow Bird, Lawrence	4:07:30	19:30
Dart, Williams	4:09	21

TWO DAYS MORE.

Curlers Have But Five More Games to Play.

Today and Tuesday will wind up the local curling season, should the weather remain cold enough to play the five games necessary to finish up the two remaining events.

Hall and Brewer will meet tonight at 6 o'clock in the A class finals of the Manley-McLennan event. The winner will meet Dinham's B class rink at 8 o'clock.

The finals in the event will probably be played off Tuesday evening, as will the finals in The Herald event.

Ball Teams Shift.

New Orleans, La., March 22.—The Philadelphia American league baseball club left here last night for Mobile, where they will wind up their anteseason practice. The Cleveland Americans arrived here last night from Mobile to remain for three weeks.

THE ISSUE WAS LOST SIGHT OF Socialism Introduced in Discussion of the Social Evil.

"Resolved, That the Social Evil Should be Concentrated" was the subject for discussion by the Question club at its meeting in the municipal court rooms yesterday afternoon. The club held to the question at issue at times, but the general discussion covered every question known to the Socialistic mind, and the question of the social evil was left hanging in the balance when the meeting adjourned.

President Early announced that the speaker, who was expected to lead the discussion, was not able to attend the meeting. The members started out to settle it among themselves, but before so many had spoken, the main issue was floundering in a flood of oratory, appearing at infrequent intervals, but 1998. The Americans said they finished fresher than in the New York race and were never pushed to win. The crown prince will receive them tonight.

engulfed for the most part in a spirited debate on the single tax, and the general doctrine of Socialism.

Short addresses were made on the main subject by S. Nixon, D. M. Robertson, E. J. Thatcher and others. But Mr. Nixon made another speech and dragged the single tax question in. After several appeals, and a speech by President Early, Morris Kaplan was aroused and he turned loose the floodgates of Socialistic principles.

The next meeting of the club will be held Sunday, April 4.

FERGUSON GOLD MINE

Work to be Started Again at Property Next Spring.

Swede Boy Mine May be Operated by Company's Creditors.

Mine Center, Ont., March 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word has been received from the present owners of the old Ferguson gold mine that work will be started there again this spring. This is the best mining news that Mine Center has heard for several years.

The property now belongs to Graham & Horne, the millionaire lumbermen of Fort William. They acquired it from the Ferguson estate of Liverpool, England, a couple of years ago. They are owners of the Mine Center Lumber company, which operates a sawmill here, and have ample means to make a mine if any one can.

While skidding logs at the Ferguson mine last year, ground was scraped from a vein that showed free gold in great quantities. This incident and the showing that resulted greatly influenced Graham & Horne in their recent decision.

The Ferguson mine was one of the pioneer gold properties in the Mine Center region. It is near the Golden Star, Randolph, Isabelle, Golden Crescent, Lucky Coon, Decca, Manhattan, Cuckoo and Emperor mines—all well known and in active operation ten years ago.

The Ferguson mine embraces mining locations A. L. 110, A. L. 111, and A. L. 112, aggregating 160 acres. It was acquired from Dave Kelley, formerly of Tower (now a wealthy Oregon lumberman), by Mr. Ferguson, a young Englishman, whose father was a wealthy Liverpool banker. He paid a good stiff price, and a choice lot of incompetent English soldiers of fortune secured employment. Fine camp buildings were erected and a three-stamp mill was installed, together with hoists and boilers at the shafts. Extremely rich ore was found—some of it being the prettiest specimen rock ever seen in the district—but the dissolute managers broke more bottles of Scotch and soda than they produced in bullion, and $100,000 for property, equipment and work fell a victim to consumption. He was taken to Duluth on a bed, via that terrible Power route and, accompanied by his beautiful young wife, went to the Bermudas, where he quickly died. His estate asked prohibitive prices during the days of activity in 1899, but finally sold to Graham & Horne for a reasonable consideration. Last winter, the present owners logged the pine on the locations and sawed the logs at their mill here.

The Swede Boy Mine.

In the boom days ten years ago one of the most prominent properties was the Swede Boy mine, between the Olive mine and the present station of Mine Center. It was close to Turtle lake and considerable development work was done by the Headlight Mining company of Duluth, but full payment never was completed. The original owners secured a judgment for the unpaid balance, $15,000, but never have taken out an execution. Efforts now are being made to have the property operated by the creditors. Among Duluthians prominent in the Headlight Mining company were John P. Rossman, A. E. McManus and S. Edward Smith.

In May, it is expected that the Mayflower mine will start up work under the management of Maj. W. A. Preston, M. P. P., backed by Winnipeg and Toronto capital. Some years ago, an English company did some work on the Mayflower but, owing to excessive cost of getting in equipment and supplies, work ceased. Now, the Canadian Northern railway passes within 500 feet of the workings and conditions have changed from very bad to most excellent.

Mine Center station is headquarters for this district, as was old Mine Center in the early days. It not only is on the railroad, but is accessible by trails, wagon roads and canoe routes. Any one wishing to visit the old Foley mine, the Wiegand property, Manhattan, Decca, Emperor, Cuckoo, Golden Crescent, Lucky Coon, Ferguson Golden Star, Randolph, and many others, can do so most easily from here. Glencarry, scat of the recent sensational discoveries, also is reached from here.

J. R. Gilbert, a real estate broker of Mine Center, who staked a property last January with Ed McCormack, recently sold out for a very profitable cash consideration.

Many inquiries are being received from many parts of Canada and the United States. Even Toronto people are turning their attention this way once more.

MISSING TWENTY YEARS, SUDDENLY RETURNS, KISSES WIFE, TAKES UP OLD LIFE

Chicago, March 22.—After an absence of twenty years John Allen returned to his home in Evanston yesterday, kissed his wife and took up the thread of existence exactly where he had dropped it off. One morning twenty years ago he left his home for work and mysteriously disappeared. After a long search by the police of many cities he was given up by wife and son, who was 10 years old when his father disappeared.

Recently his son received information that led him to believe his father was working on an orange ranch near Whittier, Cal. A trip to California resulted in the return of father and son today.

"I got discouraged, that was all," said Allen to his wife. "I just thought I would go West and see what I could do. Then I never succeeded much and would not write. I was mighty glad to see our boy, though. I will tell you.

CONSUMPTION IS KILLING RACE OF RED MEN; UNCLE SAM TO HELP COMBAT IT

Washington, March 22.—As the Buffalo vanished from the great Western plains, so is the red man gradually disappearing through the ravages of that slow but insidious disease of tuberculosis.

To save the Indian from extinction by this disease and yet lead him into ways of the white man is the task which officials of the bureau of Indian affairs have taken.

Warned at the excessive mortality among the Indians from tuberculosis, ways and means of effectually combatting the disease among them have been devised. There will be a concerted effort on the part of all connected with the Indian service for the removal of the causes of the disease.

INSURGENT DEMOCRATS ATTACK CHAMP CLARK; CHARGE SECTIONALISM

Washington, March 22.—Another explanation was forthcoming yesterday as to the course of certain Democrats in opposing Minority Leader Clark last Monday by voting for the Fitzgerald amendments to the house rules.

Representatives Kellher and Peterson of Boston, Mass., and Representative Francis Burton Harrison of New York issued a statement, in which they assert that so generally has the action of the Democrats who voted for the amendments been misrepresented and misunderstood that they "wish to present to those interested the facts."

The Fitzgerald amendments are defended as being very effective in the curtailment of the power of the speaker." For six months, Representative Fitzgerald, "acknowledged as the best parliamentarian on the Democratic side," had been preparing the amendments, it is stated, but no opportunity was offered to bring them before the Democratic caucus for consideration. "He was unable to do so because of the high-handed manner adopted by a few ill-advised friends of Mr. Clark."

The statement declares that Representative Underwood of Alabama took the floor of the caucus to bind the members to support the Clark plan, a committee of fifteen to report next December on amendments to the rules, and refused all an opportunity to amend the plan in caucus.

Referring to the fight in the house, the three members say that when Mr. Clark offered his resolution, he refused any Democrat a chance to speak.

"And then he did the very thing we Democrats have been deprecating and fighting against for years, he moved the previous question," they state. "It is bad enough to be gagged by our opponents, but when the muzzle was clapped on by friends, we protested, and successfully.

"Then the Fitzgerald amendments were offered, and in marked contrast to Mr. Clark's action, Mr. Fitzgerald allowed free and full opportunity for debate and amendments. In the debate which followed, lasting nearly two hours, it was not contended that the amendments of Mr. Fitzgerald would not remedy the abuses complained of. The contention of a certain element that the reforms secured cannot be good because of the manner in which they were obtained, is manifestly too absurd to dignify with an answer. The truth of the matter is that, so enraged was the old Republican machine at its defeat, in its anger it would have conceded almost anything rather than surrender to the insurgents an inch."

The Clark resolution is attacked because of the six Democratic members proposed by Mr. Clark for the committee of fifteen. Not one came from Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Massachusetts, New York, Ohio or Pennsylvania, with nearly one-third of the total Democratic membership in the present house. Every man except Representative Hitchcock of Nebraska represented a Southern state.

"No encouragement to the Democracy of the great states of Ohio and Indiana in the magnificent battles they are fighting," the statement concludes; "no voice to New York or the great Middle West, and yet we are criticised for not supinely submitting to such action."

STOCK GROWERS ORGANIZE TO WAGE WAR ON TRUSTS

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 22.—Asserting the time has come for the people of Oklahoma to fight to rid themselves of the trusts, which they assert control the output of grain and cattle of Oklahoma, and make practically their own price an experimental co-operative company, known as the Grain and Stock Growers' association, has been organized by a branch of the Farmers' union in Oklahoma. The headquarters for the new association will be at Enid and J. Y. Callahan, formerly Oklahoma's territorial delegate to congress, has been elected to head the organization. The new enterprise will have the direct backing of the Farmers' union.

In opposing the packers, the association will, it is stated, erect a packing plant. To finance the plant the association will accumulate a fund of about $500,000. Shares in it will be sold at $1 each and no person may own more than one share.

In the handling of Oklahoma grain, the association proposes to build a co-operative elevator at every grain shipping station in the state and to sell its grain for export.

PRINCE, WHO ONCE WORKED IN UNITED STATES FOR ONLY $7.50 A WEEK, DEAD

St. Petersburg, March 22.—Prince Michael Hilkoff, member of the council of the empire and formerly minister of communication, is dead. He belonged to an old but comparatively poor family, and emigrated to the United States when a young man, renouncing the title to which he was subsequently restored. In the United States he worked at a bolt machine at a wage of $7.50 per week.

Why Not?

To the Editor of The Herald:

In several of the recent issues of the newspaper, bearing on the Carpenter case, I have been impressed by the statement made by Mr. Carpenter, "that it was pay day at the mills, and they were so busy cashing checks and waiting on the crowd, they could not tell who they sold to and who not."

Now, this, to my mind, ought to set people to thinking, particularly those who work at the mills, etc. Why does the saloon have to cash your checks? Why not let the butcher, the baker or grocer do it, and let the saloon take what is left, at least once in a while?

DAM GOING UP RAPIDLY

Good Progress Is Being Made Harnessing Rainy River Water Power.

Famous Koochiching Falls Will Soon Be Thing of Past.

International Falls, Minn., March 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—A decided impetus has been given the work on the waterpower plant heer during the past two weeks and every day witnesses a great change.

The old settlers, who occasionally take a stroll down to the works to view the disfiguration that captains of industry are making on this falls of "leaping water" are awe-stricken, as they realize that Koochiching falls is soon doomed to be a relic of past history.

The wing on the Canadian side is practically completed, and its proportions are significant of what the dam will be when completed, as well as the institutions whose machinery will grind up the resources of the domain and be one of the main factors in transforming a wooded wilderness into an agricultural community.

The massive water gates have an anxious appearance, as though impatient to begin their task of regulating the Rainy.

Remove Cofferdam.

The cofferdam at the head of the canal was taken out last week, and by far the greater portion of the water is now running through that channel. Letting water through this source lowered the river eighteen inches and tamed the main channel so it has but a small resemblance of its former raging torrent.

New men are being shipped in daily from the Twin Cities, so that at present about 400 laborers are on the payroll. The shipping in of men will continue, so that by April 15 it is expected that 700 men will be at work. The prospects are that the coming summer will be a hummer and all of our business men are preparing for a record-breaker in all branches.

NOTED CASE IS QUICKLY ENDED

Horse Thief Shafer Acknowledges His Guilt and Stops Trial.

Devils Lake, N. D., March 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—After making a strong fight for freedom in one trial, in which he was convicted of horse stealing and with plans of making a fight against conviction in the second trial well advanced, Hartley M. Shaffer changed his plea of not guilty to one of guilty in the district court here Saturday afternoon. He was immediately sentenced by Judge W. J. Kneeshaw to four years in the state penitentiary. Two four-year sentences were given, but they were made concurrent so that the defendant will have but to serve four years in the state's prison.

The change in the proceedings came as a big sensation. After being convicted at the term of court held here in February, a second charge of horse stealing was filed against Shaffer, who is a well known Benson county resident, and has spent a fortune trying to clear himself. The proceedings in the second trial were well advanced when the case took the sudden turn, a jury having been selected to try him.

The Shaffer case has been one of the most sensational ever tried in North Dakota. A few years ago, Mr. Shaffer was a respectable farmer, residing in Benson county. About two years ago that section of the state was infested with a band of horse thieves and many animals were stolen from time to time, it being impossible to secure any trace of the thieves until Shaffer was caught in the dragnet. He was charged with having received a number of stolen horses one night and of having taken them to another farmer some distance away, it being claimed that there was a chain of farmers engaged in the business of getting the stolen horses out of the country.

When the sheriff's posse drove up to the Shaffer farm for the purpose of arresting him, he divined their purpose and, mounting a horse, rode to a strawstack some distance from his home, followed by the posse. At the strawstack, he backed the posse off with the aid of a shotgun and was soon on his way out of the country, eluding the posse and escaping to Seattle.

For some months no trace was secured of him, until a former Benson county resident met him in Seattle and recognized him. His arrest was effected at once and he was brought back to North Dakota, but not until he had made desperate efforts at escaping, both in Seattle and on the train en route to this state.

The case was to be tried in Benson county, but upon the filing of an application for a change of venue, on the ground that the defendant could not obtain a fair and impartial trial in Benson county, the case was transferred to Ramsey county.

Weak Little Boys

may become fine strong men. Some of the strong men of to-day were sickly boys years ago. Many of them received at their mother's knee. This had a power in it that changed them from weak, delicate boys into strong, robust boys.

It has the same power to-day. Boys and girls who are pale and weak get food and energy out of Scott's Emulsion. It makes children grow.

Mysterious Wahpeton Burglaries at Last Cleared Up.

Wahpeton, N. D., March 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the arrest of James, John and George Norton, aged from 14 to 18 years, and of Harry Herrick, aged 19 years, the local police believe they have broken up a gang that has been engaged in perpetrating petty robberies during the past winter. The lads are in jail here awaiting a preliminary examination.

A large amount of fuel stolen from the sheds of the Northern Pacific Railroad company, and also some taken from private sheds, chickens and confectionery composed the booty obtained in the winter's campaign, which was brought to a close when the lads were tracked from the Dakota County company's place to their homes.

A search of the Norton premises and of the Herrick place resulted in the discoveries of a considerable amount of confectionery that had been stolen during the past few weeks.

The dedication of the statue will take place the first week in August.

The monument project was first launched thirty years ago. Some $1,200 was raised at that time. A long period elapsed, and then the fund was increased to $2,600 by popular subscription. The enthusiasm has languished, however, and finally became dormant, in which condition it continued for more than a decade, until early last year, when Peter White ordered a bronze statue of Pere Marquette ten feet high, and a granite pedestal. It was his intention to personally pay the balance needed, but before the project could be carried out he dropped dead while on a business mission in Detroit. His heirs will carry out his intentions.

Making Good Makes Friends

There is no way of making lasting friends like "Making Good"; and Dr. Pierce's medicines well exemplify this, and their friends, after more than two decades of popularity are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. They have "made good" and they have not made drunkards.

A good, honest square-deal medicine of known composition is

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It still enjoys an immense sale, while most of the preparations that came into prominence in the earlier period of its popularity have "gone by the board" and are never more heard of. There must be some reason for this long-time popularity and that is to be found in its superior merits. When once given a fair trial for weak stomach, or for liver and blood affections, its superior curative qualities are soon manifest; hence it has survived and grown in popular favor, while scores of less meritorious articles have suddenly flashed into favor for a brief period and then been as soon forgotten.

For a torpid liver with its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, perhaps dizziness, foul breath, nasty coated tongue, with bitter taste, loss of appetite, with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is as good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It's an honest, square-deal medicine with all its ingredients printed on bottle-wrapper—no secret, no hocus-pocus humbug, therefore don't accept a substitute that the dealer may make a little bigger profit. Insist on your right to have what you call for. Don't buy

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Expecting it to prove a "cure-all." It is only advised for woman's special ailments.

It makes weak women strong, sick women well. Less advertised than some preparations sold for like purposes, its sterling curative virtues still maintain its position in the front ranks, where it stood over two decades ago.

As an invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine it is unequaled. It won't satisfy those who want "booze," for there is not a drop of alcohol in it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the original Little Liver Pills, although the first pill of their kind in the market, still lead, and when once tried are ever afterwards in favor. Easy to take as candy. They regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

ATTACKED IN BROAD DAYLIGHT

Duluth School Teacher is Victim of Assault In East End.

A criminal assault was attempted in broad daylight one afternoon last week on East Superior street.

A young woman, who is a teacher in one of the East end schools, was coming down an avenue, a little after 5 o'clock, when she was approached by a man very much under the influence of liquor. The drunken man seized the girl and dragged her from the corner into a vacant lot. Two men, who were passing, were attracted by the woman's screams. They ran to her rescue and pulled the man away. Little mercy was shown the brute at their hands. They knocked him down, pummelled him and kicked him, until it seemed that almost every bone in his body must be broken.

At the request of the young woman, the matter was not reported to the police. She was very anxious to avoid the publicity that would necessarily follow such an action. She is well known in the city and the attack upon her was a terrible shock to her. The men, at her request, allowed her assailant to go, and kept the whole affair quiet.

The matter came to light today through a friend of the young woman's, who refused to discuss it further than to confirm the main facts of the case.

Walker's copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial, says:

"Copper developed more decided heaviness at the beginning of this week, and sales were reported as low as 12½ cents for electrolytic and 12½ cents for lake. In the past two or three days the tone of the market has been firmer. Lake is now 12¾ to 13 cents, and electrolytic 12¼ to 12½ cents per pound. The sale of speculative holdings and bear operations in the London market for standard copper seemed to be responsible for the most recent break in prices. There is a feeling in the trade, both here and abroad, that announcement of the new tariff revision schedule marks the turning point in the general business situation, and that from now forward whatever change there is in the industrial situation must be for the better. The return of business confidence is due. The big railroad and industrial corporations will begin spending money on improvements, extensions and equipment immediately, commodities will move more freely and idle labor will find employment.

"Just at present there is an overproduction of copper, and this will continue to be the case until consumption has an opportunity to catch up. This will come about as soon as general business in this country again attains its normal volume. The foreign consumption demand is keeping up, and even gaining. The United States, however, have come to be approximately 40 per cent of the business world, and when there is any lack of industrial activity and prosperity here the metal markets must suffer.

"I can see nothing in the copper situation to cause discouragement. I believe the metal will be much higher between now and the end of the year, and that the surplus stocks will be exhausted very soon."

WHEAT HAS EASY TONE

Bearish Influences Cause a Slightly Lower Level of Prices.

May Flax is Off Two Points at Close Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 22.—Wheat was easier during all of the session in the American markets today. The Liverpool market was soft, and there was a good deal of pressure at times in the domestic markets. The news that seeding had started in South Dakota was a bearish factor.

The visible supply of wheat increased 55,000 bu, and is now 31,080,000 bu, against 30,025,000 bu last week and 30,887,000 bu a year ago.

Liverpool closed ⅞d to 1¼d lower, Budapest ⅝c higher, Berlin 1⅜c lower and Antwerp ⅝c lower.

The May option closed ⅛c lower in Duluth a scadge lower in Chicago and Minneapolis, ⅜c lower in New York, ¼@⅝c lower in St. Louis, a shade higher in Kansas City and ⅛c higher in Winnipeg. The July option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth, ⅝@¾c lower in Chicago, unchanged in Minneapolis, ⅞c lower in New York, ¼c lower in St. Louis, ⅛@⅜c lower in Kansas City and ⅜c higher in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ⅜c higher in Chicago and 1¼c lower in Liverpool, May oats closed ⅛c lower in Winnipeg.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—The market here was affected by the decline in American cables on Saturday, and at the opening values were ¾d lower. Following the opening and during the entire morning session, the market was under pronounced selling pressure and, with no support, offerings became larger and pressed for sale, which resulted in further declines of ¾d to 1d. There was some disposition shown to support the near distant month. Arrivals here continue liberal, stocks showing an increase since last week's world's shipments nearly a million bushels in excess of last week and particularly liberal receipts to the United Kingdom. The settlement of the Balkans' trouble and the continued liberal La Plata offerings also contributed to make realizing profitable. At midday the market was weak and from ⅞d to 1¼ lower than Saturday.

"Corn was easy and ¼d lower at the opening and further declined ¼d during the morning. The lower American cables on Saturday, liberal La Plata offerings, and the spring-like weather here, which will decrease consumption, all tended to depress the market."

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 86 against 31 last year and at Minneapolis 314 against 444 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 400 against 475 last year. Chicago received 84 against 36 last year. Winnipeg received 364 against 313 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 644,000 bus, last year 516,000 bu. Shipments 207,000 bu, last year 210,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 646,000 bus, last year 801,000 bu. Shipments 421,000 bus, last year 335,000 bu.

In Duluth May wheat opened ½c lower, at 1.12⅛, advanced to 1.12⅜, declined to 1.12⅛, rallied to 1.12⅜@½, declined to 1.12⅛, rallied to 1.12⅜ and closed there, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. July wheat opened ⅞c lower at 1.13, declined to 1.12¾@⅞, rallied to 1.13⅛ and closed there, a loss of ⅝c from Saturday.

Durum wheat closed ¼c lower, and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 1⅜c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was weak. May flax opened unchanged at $1.62, declined to $1.59¾, rallied to $1.60¾ and closed at $1.60, a loss of 2c from Saturday. July flax declined from $1.61 to $1.59 and closed at $1.59½, a loss of 3c from Saturdty. September flax opened unchanged at $1.58½, declined to $1.57 and closed there, a loss of ½c from Saturday. October flax declined from $1.25½ to $1.24½, and closed at $1.24½, a loss of 1c from yesterday.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Various Conditions Contribute to Generous Selling of Wheat.

Chicago, March 22—Lower cables, liberal world's shipments and favorable reports regarding the growing crops in this country brought out considerable selling of wheat here today, which resulted in declines of nearly 1c, compared with Saturday's final quotations. At the start prices were 3@c to ⅝@¾c lower, May being at 1.14⅜@1.14¾, and July at $1.02⅜@1.02⅝. After touching $1.14⅜, May declined to $1.14½, while July sold at $1.02¾.

The low point for May was reached at $1.14¼. July declined to $1.01⅞. Late in the day several of the leading bulls began to buy and this started active covering by shorts resulting in a sharp rally, all of the earlier loss being regained. May advanced to $1.15¾ and July to $1.02⅝. The close was firm although May was a shade below Saturday's close at $1.15¾. July was off ⅛@¼c at $1.02⅜@1.02⅝.

The slump in wheat inspired considerable selling of corn, which caused moderate weakness at the start. Weak cables and fairly liberal receipts also had a depressing effect. Trade, however, was not large. May opened ⅝@¾c to ¾@⅞c lower, at 67⅜c to 68⅛c.

The market rallied with wheat, May advancing to 66¾c. The close was strong with May up ⅝c at 66⅛@66¾c.

Trade in oats was quiet and the market was rather weak because of the heaviness of wheat and corn. May opened ⅜c lower at 53⅜c, sold at 53⅝c, and sold off to 53⅜@53½c. Provisions were firm owing to a 5c to 10c advance in live hogs. Trade was rather dull.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Elevator Stocks Decrease—Prices Take Brace at Noon.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 22.—Local elevator stocks of wheat decreased 100,600 bu for two days. Wheat opened ⅜c lower than Saturday's close, on account of weak cables and an increase in the possible supply of world's shipments. At noon the market took a brace and went as high as $1.13⅛, closing at $1.12@1.13⅛. Minneapolis today received 314 cars against 444; Duluth, 86 against 31; Winnipeg, 364 against 313. May opened $1.12⅜; high, $1.13⅛; low, $1.12; close, $1.12@1.13⅛. July opened $1.13¾; high, $1.13¾; low, $1.12⅞@1.13; close, $1.13¾. Cash wheat was in demand. Country and local millers were eager buyers. No. 1 northern sold 3¾@2¾c over May and No. 2 for the even May price. Close: No. 1 northern, $1.14½@1.14¾; to arrive, $1.14⅛@1.14¾; No. 2 northern, $1.12⅛@1.12¾, to arrive, $1.12½@1.12⅝; No. 3 wheat, $1.09⅛@1.11¾; No. 3 yellow corn, 60¾c; No. 3 white oats, 50⅛@51⅛c; No. 2 rye, 73¾@75¾c.

Flax receipts 21 cars today, against 66; shipments, 2. Demand was strong at Duluth May prices, but the lack of offerings made an inactive market. Close: $1.59¾.

Barley receipts 87 cars today, against 42; shipments, 29. Today's market was steady with Saturday's demand only fair, being both for feeding and malting grades. Prices declined on the higher malting grades. Close: 67@61½c.

Millstuffs shipments, 2,400 tons. Demand was strong and business was very gratifying to the millers. Shipments over Saturday were about normal and prices are quoted the same. Bran in bulk, $23.00@23.50.

Flour prices declined on account of lower wheat quotations. Demand was slow, with no foreign inquiry. Shipments were light. Country millers reported a fair business. Shipments, 48,198 barrels. First patents, $5.55@5.65; second patents, $5.45@5.55; first clears, $4.30@4.40; second clears,$3.65@3.15.

HEARD ON THE FLOOR

Seeding Will Begin in South Dakota in a Few Days.

Farmers Already Preparing to Plant the Spring Crop.

In South Dakota, where warm winds from Nebraska and the Southwest sweep across the prairies in the early spring, the farmers are about ready to begin seeding.

With favorable weather conditions, seeding is expected to be quite general in the southern part of South Dakota within a few days. The extreme southwestern part of Minnesota may share in this work now, if weather conditions are favorable.

South Dakota is always the first Northwestern state to begin seeding spring wheat. Local grain men say it will be another month before seeding can start in North Dakota or most of Minnesota.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Market Opened Higher and Closed Strong and Quite Active.

Late Rise Was Led by the Copper and Lead Industrials.

New York, March 22.—Initial prices of stocks showed some good gains today over Saturday's level in the active speculative issues and the whole list was moderately higher. The amount of business done, however, was small. Union Pacific rose 1¼, Peoples Gas 1⅜, Reading, Great Northern preferred, Canadian Pacific and American Smelting 1 and Brooklyn Rapid Transit and Amalgamated Copper ¾.

Buying orders increased largely and there was a further sharp advance in which the important railroads showed the largest share. The market quieted down considerably after many material gains had been made.

Buying orders for London account was a factor in the activity and strength of the first hour. When the orders had been executed, the market became extremely dull again and prices sagged a fraction. Bonds were steady.

The market closed strong and quite active. The copper and lead industrials led a later advance, in which American Smelting and Reading rose 3¼, Chicago & Alton 2¾, Amalgamated 2¾, Northwestern 2, New York Central 1⅜, Pennsylvania, National Lead and Tennessee Copper 1¼, and Atlantic Coast Line, Denver & Rio Grande preferred and American Locomotive 1.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., March 22.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: The horse market shows very little difference from last week's quotations. The good kinds in all classes show slight improvement, while the plain classes sell cheap. Dealers are having considerable inquiry for wagon horses, also for good big rugged mules. The Dakota trade for farm mares and horses continues of fair volume. On account of the large consignments of logging horses which will arrive from the woods during the week, an active market is expected, as these big work horses always find ready takers, and are always more than worth the money.

The Cotton Market.

New York, March 22.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 2 points under local bear pressure, but soon firmed up on covering, which seemed due to a desire to even up, owing to uncertainty regarding the interception of trade interests of the report by the census bureau. After selling about 2 to 4 points higher the market reacted a point or two from the best with trading rather quiet.

Spot closed quiet, 5 points lower; middling uplands, 9.60; middling gulf, 9.85; sales 1,100 bales. BOY PAID FOR MISSING FOOT

John M. Sandstad Receives $2,900 as His Part of Settlement.

For a foot, which was injured in a mine of the Oliver Iron Mining company at Hibbing and was amputated, John M. Sandstad, a boy 20 years of age, received $2,900.

Papers filed with the clerk of the district court this morning by Anna Sandstad, mother of the boy, who brought suit on his behalf, and after the settlement of the case, was appointed his guardian, notified the court of the receipt of the money.

The settlement, which was reached before the case went to trial, was for $4,000. Out of that amount, the attorney for the boy received $1,100 and Mrs. Sandstad reported the possession of $2,900 as the boy's share of the money. She has been appointed his guardian by the probate court of Goodhue county and she will retain the money until he is of age.

Sandstad, who was employed as a switchman on a railroad in an open pit mine, slipped on the footboard at the rear of a switch engine. The footboard, which was covered with ice, was wet and slippery and the company was alleged to be negligent because the footboard was not kept clean. The accident happened Oct. 27, 1908.

Farewell to B. S. Haskins.

B. S. Haskins, who has been the manager of a local lunch room for the last two years, leaves today for the East, where, after a few weeks of rest and recreation, he will engage in business on his own account.

An informal banquet was tendered him at the St. Louis hotel last night by a few of his friends.

A rumor has it that before engaging in business for himself he has planned to enter a life partnership with a young woman of Springfield, Mass. This rumor, however, Mr. Haskins refuses to either deny or confirm.

PULPIT AND PLATFORM

HARD TIMES IN ISLANDS

Missionary Says Tariff and Plague Are Ruinous to Philippines.

Islanders, He Claims, Are in Greatly Reduced Circumstances.

In his lecture on "Making Good in the Philippines," before the men's meeting of the Y. M. C. A., Rev. Paul Doltz, missionary to the Philippines, declared that the failure of the United States to remove the tariff from the island products is one of the greatest outrages ever perpetrated by this country, and said that the present session of congress should take immediate steps to remedy the situation.

The islanders, he asserted, are in greatly reduced circumstances, largely because of the fact that the Philippines are being swept by a plague which is fast carrying off the cattle used as beasts of burden. The only thing that can be expected to better their circumstances, he declared, is the speedy removal of the import and export duty between that country and the United States.

"In spite of what critics may say to the contrary," said Rev. Mr. Doltz, "conditions in the Philippines, socially and otherwise, are much better than they were under the old regime, and it is the constant prayer of the missionary in the field that the work will continue to be carried on, and that the United States will not cast the islands adrift, with their education and redemption but half completed."

Tonight Rev. Mr. Doltz will deliver an illustrated lecture in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. on "The Church and the State in the Philippines," at which women will be welcomed as well as men. The stereopticon views to be presented will give an excellent idea of conditions existing in the Philippines. They were taken by a fellow-missionary and close friend of Rev. Mr. Doltz.

DID NOT ATTACK CATHOLIC CHURCH

Y. M. C. A. Speaker's Remarks Concerned the Spanish Friars Only.

"The inference that Rev. Paul Doltz, in his address yesterday afternoon, attacked the Catholic church, which inference might be drawn from the published report of his lecture in the morning paper, is all wrong," said Rev. J. A. McGaughey, religious director of the Y. M. C. A., this morning, in an explanation of Rev. Doltz's remarks.

"The published report of the address and especially the headlines, were misleading to the Catholics of Duluth. Rev. Doltz did not say that the greatest hindrance to the advancement of the islands in every way is the attitude of the Roman Catholic church. What he did say was that the Spanish friars who hold the local power of the Catholic church in the Philippines, regard the educational work of the Americans through their opposition to progression and modern ideas of civilization.

"The speaker understood just as well as anyone else that the Catholic church is world-wide, with no distinction to be drawn between the Catholics of Rome, the United States or the Philippines, as far as their spiritual education is concerned. But the church, through its local clergy in the Philippines, controls the social education of its people as well as the spiritual and the Spanish friars, not having advanced with the times, cling to antiquated ideas of civilization and resent the attempted modernization of the islands.

"Mr. Doltz believes the Catholic church as a whole and the Catholics of the United States are anxious to see the Philippines educated socially, and economic and educational standards brought up to a modern basis, but the Spanish friars hold the balance of power, and whereas the pope is able to control the church spiritually, he cannot alter the ideas of civilization, with which the individual men in its sacerdotal body may be imbued.

"American Catholics are even now urging the pope to use his influence with the friars to abolish the opposition to the education of Philippine children in the American schools and to send American priests, with a desire for progression and a proper appreciation of modern standards of civilization to the islands. If the Spanish friars did not hold the balance of power at present, Mr. Doltz says, there would be no doubt of the Catholic church joining with the other forces on the island to secure the education of the Filipinos and their redemption from the erroneous ancient social traditions. Mr. Doltz did say that the American missionaries regretted that there were not more men of the type of the Roman Catholic priests in the islands."

ARCHITECTURE OF HUMAN LIFE

Great Characters Can Only be Built on True Foundation.

"In the moral and religious life the same holds good as in the sphere of art, of architecture. There must be the strong rock of truth upon which manhood is built; there must be high and lofty ideals and aspirations," said Rev. George R. Gebauer, at the First Unitarian church yesterday.

"Yes, the world may live comfortably without great artists and builders, it may die comfortably without the help of physicians, but it cannot live rightly nor die decently without true manhood.

"The temple of God not made with hands, but built by noble thoughts and deeds is a vastly greater thing than Westminster Abbey and St. Peter's The art of life is the noblest art, the science of conduct the noblest science. Hence the academy of the art of true life on the shores of the lake of Galilee is of infinitely vaster importance than all the schools and academies of Europe and America. Jesus comes to us as the great teacher of the true life. And He lays down two principles for the upbuilding of true manhood. He says: 'Hear my words of truth, my maxims of action, my principles of religion, and let them sink into your soul.' He says again: 'Not only hear my words, but do them, live them, objectify them in your daily walk.'

The world has much changed since the times of the Master; we stand far above the material civilization of that day, but the teaching of the Master is as true now as then. And now as then they are but little heeded. The present day of architecture of life is still a small and trifling thing; it lacks strength, beauty and grace. Only here and there towers up a great and noble character raised upon a deep and true foundation, a real masterbuilding inspired by the Great Architect. But around it, like in our cities are square miles of cheap little houses, squalid shops of selfish greed, garnished houses of sin and folly; acres of fairly useful and clean, but graceless dwellings and then miles and miles of mongrel buildings, which show a striving after beauty, yet blindness to its truth. Few of us have taken time to be grounded in the deep principles of life, upon which alone a stately building can be erected. Only few absorb the spirit of the ideal which will raise life upward like walls of a great cathedral.

"The great Master Builder laid down the principle of love as the foundation of life. He made service of man the object of this building. He made faith in God its inspiration. Now we may build useful lives without God; we may build a fairly helpful life without great love of mankind; ours may be even a selfish life and yet not without service to others. But a truly great life must have faith and must have love. These are the foundations. And on these foundations we must build. Too many are only hearers of the word, they do not get beyond the foundation wall. Such are the cheap, plous, everlastingly praying and never doing lives. 'Better build,' I say, 'upon the sand a little shanty of helpful love, better erect a tent on the shore of the ocean of life than dig a deep foundation and there sit from early morning till evening in ecstatic vision. God will get along without your prayers, but he must have your work."

FOSTER CASE GOES TO JURY

Defendant Claims Injuries Could Not Have Been Received.

Arguments were made in district court this morning in the case of Stephen Foster against the Duluth Street Railway company and the case went to the jury.

Foster brought suit for $20,000 for injuries he alleged were sustained by an electric shock received while he was painting a pole, in the employ of the company, at the intersection of Garfield avenue and Superior street, Sept. 14, 1907. He claimed the trolley pole slipped from the wire, communicating a current to the cross-wire, which in turn carried it to the pole on which he was working.

In his argument to the jury, the attorney for the street railway company contended that Mr. Foster could not have received a shock under the circumstances, for the circuit could not have been completed, if he had received a shock he could not have received the injuries he complained of and if he had received the injuries he complained of, he could not have worked after receiving the shock.

It Saved His Leg.

"All thought I'd lose my leg," writes J. A. Swenson, Watertown, Wis. "Ten years of eczema, that fifteen doctors could not cure, had at last laid me up. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured it sound and well." Infallible for Skin Eruptions, Eczema, Salt Rheum, Boils.

ANOTHER QUEER CASE.

North Dakotan's Mind Becomes Blank, But He Finally Comes To.

Thompson, N. D., March 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mourned as dead by his relatives residing near here, Jake L. Russell of Huron township, Cavalier county, who disappeared in Grand Forks early in November, returned to Thompson two days ago and told a remarkable story.

Russell remembers nothing of what happened from the time he registered at a Grand Forks hotel until he found himself standing on a street corner in La Crosse, Wis., Tuesday with a grip belonging to another in his hand. He had $8 in his pocketbook and with this amount he made his way back to Thompson, where there was a joyful reunion.

After the disappearance of Russell from Grand Forks it was ascertained that he had never occupied his room in the hotel. It was the theory of the relatives that he had been lured to some lonely spot, robbed, murdered and his body thrown into the Red river. They assert that he had only $10 on his person when he disappeared.

Although he had several hundred dollars on deposit in a bank at Munich, near which place he operated a farm, he drew none of the money out and just how he lived during his absence is a problem. It is supposed that he lost all knowledge of his identity.

HARASSED BY RUSSIA.

Moorhead Man Had Trouble in Visiting Native Land.

Moorhead, Minn., March 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—S. H. Kantor is now at the home of his aged mother at Mariampohl, Poland. He states that he had to go through all the degrees to get into the country, without subjecting himself to the anger of the Russian authorities.

He left Poland without their consent and without serving his time as a soldier, but he says that he has fixed everything up satisfactorily.

CUTS DOWN FATHER ATTEMPTING SUICIDE.

Baraboo, Wis., March 22.—U. Brewster, a farmer residing near this city, hanged himself His son arrived just in time to cut the rope. Brewster is still unconscious, but it is thought he will recover.

WISCONSIN BUTTER SCORES.

Madison, Wis., March 22.—The exhibits of butter and cheese from thirty-three counties in this state were scored in the March dairy exhibition at the University of Wisconsin dairy school.

The eighty-four butter entries were of the usual winter quality, and showed need of butter cream, as well as of improvements in the quality of the butter in the state, since only seventy-one out of eighty-four scored over 90 per cent.

The highest butter scores were: E. P. Sauer, East Troy, 95.50; A. H. Wilcox, Bloomer, 95.16; J. C. Miller, Augusta, 94.50; J. E. Hathaway, Jefferson, 94.33.

SCHWAB IS BLUE IN STEEL TALK

Says There Is No Denying Trade Is Depressed.

New York, March 23.—Charles M. Schwab, who came to New York today from Cleveland, has been investigating steel conditions in the Middle West. He was rather pessimistic today as to the immediate outlook. He said:

"I am naturally an optimist, but I believe it is unjust to the public and the trade to attempt to make things appear in a favorable light when the contrary situation exists. There is no denying the fact that the steel industry is very much depressed and the immediate future is not particularly hopeful. I think that steel prices are more likely to recede than to advance.

"There must be a general readjustment all around before the steel companies can make any profit at prevailing schedules."

HE USED NO INFLUENCE

Frank Day Took No Part in Tonnage Tax Fight.

Reports of Purported Interviews With Him Are Denied.

St. Paul, March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank A. Day, private secretary to Governor Johnson, said today when his attention was called to published reports that he had been active in the passage through the house of the tonnage tax bill:

"I have not used any influence that I may possess to influence the action of any member of the house on that or any other question before the legislature. If any member claims otherwise, I authorize him to say so publicly. It would be perfectly natural, in view of the part taken by the Steel trust in the last campaign against Governor Johnson, that I should be tempted to play even; but that was a political matter, and this is official, and I do not believe that as private secretary to the governor I have any right to attempt to influence the action of any member of the legislature."

Reports of purported interviews with Mr. Day upon the progress and prospects of the tonnage tax bill were one and all denied by him. He stated that he had authorized no reporter to quote him on the subject.

ST. LOUIS HEARING IS DRAWING TO A CLOSE.

St. Louis, Mo., March 23.—Special Examiner Sylvester Williams announced at the resumption of the inquiry today into the merger of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific lines, which the government alleges is illegal, that he expected to complete the hearing in St. Louis late today. C. A Severance, special counsel for the government, has twenty witnesses subpoenaed. J. R. Peachy, traffic manager for the Houck lines and J. L. West, assistant traffic general agent of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, were witnesses at the morning session.

STRIKE IS HELD NEAR

Anthracite Coal Miners, in Convention, Talk of Quitting.

Many Delegates Determined Not to Yield to Operators.

Scranton, Pa., March 23.—"Everything is in the air," said a miner this morning as he entered Music Hall, where the convention of the mine workers of the three anthracite districts of the United Mine Workers is in session on the question of arranging a new agreement with the coal mining companies, to take the place of the present one, which expires March 31. This expression sums up the situation.

Everybody is waiting to hear what T. L. Lewis, international president of the miners' union, has to present to the convention. There are many who believe the unalterable position taken by Lewis forebodes a strike. He will not sign any agreement, except as president of the miners' union, and the operators say they will not treat with Lewis and his officers, except as representatives of the anthracite miners. It therefore looks, as one delegate put it, "like a backdown of one or the other side or no agreement at all." Many believe no agreement will be reached, and that the miners will continue to strengthen their organization and make a fight later on.

The local companies will not make the usual 50 cents a ton reduction in coal April 1, if a strike is declared.

GOOD OLD YANKEE FRUITS IN AIR TIGHT CANS GO WITH ROOSEVELT

New York, March 23.—Theodore Roosevelt's camp equipment is contained in six large cases, each 42 by 32 feet and labelled "Theodore Roosevelt, Mombasa, B. E. Africa." Among the contents is a tanalite tent and fly, constructed under the direction of Roosevelt, and embodying the result of the combined experience of a half dozen of the most prominent explorers who have traversed Africa in recent years. It is really a tent within a tent, the second, or inner, tent allowing air space between it and the outer wall. Telescopic steel poles collapsing to two feet in length for portage purposes are carried with the tent.

Air mattresses and an aluminum cooking outfit, consisting of seventy-six pieces contained in an indestructible fibre case weighing seventeen pounds, are other items of the outfit.

There are concentrated foods embracing American fruits and vegetables of various kinds packed in air-tight tins, concentrated coffee in tubes like paint tubes, and special food cases designed to contain eighty-six cans of condensed milk.

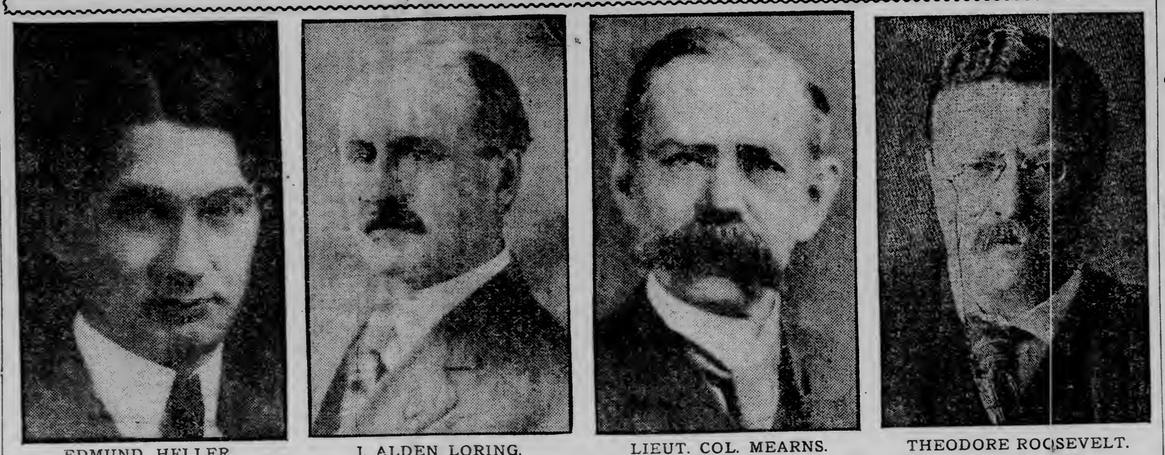
EX-CHIEF EXECUTIVE AND MEN WHO ARE GOING WITH HIM



EDMUND HELLER. J. ALDEN LORING. LIEUT. COL. MEARNS. THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

ROOSEVELT'S LAST WORDS: "GOD BLESS YOU ALL"

New York, March 23.—His hat knocked off and his leather case wrested from his hand by the surging crowd gathered to see him off, badly jostled and dishevelled, but smiling and buoyant withal, Theodore Roosevelt, only living ex-president of the United States, finally broke loose from his thousands of cheering admirers this morning and sailed at 11:06 on the steamer Hamburg for his hunting trip in East Africa.

One of the last things Mr. Roosevelt did before the steamer left the dock was to send a telegram to President Taft acknowledging the receipt of several fine pictures and a message of good cheer. The telegram read:

"Parting thanks, love and sincerity."

From his country home at Oyster Bay to the steamship dock in Hoboken the ex-president's route was a triumphal march, the greetings of the crowds which had gathered to wish him good luck being expressed all along the way in enthusiastic cheers.

A feature of the trip was that Mr. Roosevelt rode for the first time in the tunnel under the Hudson from New York to Jersey City. When he arrived at the Hamburg-American line pier, where he boarded the steamship Hamburg, the ex-president found a densely packed throng of his fellow-countrymen and as he appeared, loud cheers greeted him. He smiled and bowed right and left in cordial acknowledgment of the salutations of the assemblage, and evidently was

KIDNAPERS NOT PURSUED; WHITLA STICKS TO PLEDGE

LITTLE WILLIE WHITLA'S OWN STORY OF HIS EXPERIENCE WITH KIDNAPERS

Sharon, Pa., March 23.—Eight-year-old Willie Whitla thus tells the story of his experiences since he was kidnaped from school last Thursday:

"One man, tall, with a black moustache, came to the school and told my teacher, Mrs. Lewis, that papa wanted me at his office. I went out to a buggy with him. I got in and then he got in. Then we rode away. On the way downtown he asked me to address a letter to papa. I did this and dropped it into a mail box. He was awfully kind.

"We then went from Sharon to Warren. We had a nice trip. The man was the same who brought me to the car line last night in Cleveland. He tucked the robes about my legs and made me comfortable. It was a nice ride and I enjoyed it. Gee, he was good.

"When we got to a place the man said was Warren, he left the buggy in the road. Then he got on what I think was an electric car. I don't just remember what it was, but it was something like a street car. I don't know what became of the horse and buggy. I was sleeping when we got on the car and I slept most of the way to the place where we were going. When we got to the town that the man called Newcastle, they took me to a big building and turned me over to a woman. She was good to me. The hospital, or whatever the building was, was a clean place. There was a man there who I think was a doctor. He looked like a doctor, because he had whiskers, short gray whiskers.

"The people in the hospital told me that I must do just what they told me to do. If I did not obey them, they said, they would take me to a place called the pesthouse, where folks that have smallpox have to go. It was not a pretty place to go they told me. I would have been good anyhow, but when I thought there was any chance of having to go to the pesthouse I did not do a thing that I shouldn't have done.

"Saturday night I was taken away from the hospital and I think we went to a town called Ashtabula. We traveled in a buggy and on foot. Early in the morning we went back to the hospital. I heard one of the men say: 'There will be nothing doing tonight, I guess.'

"I might have been in Cleveland, though, for some of the towns I saw last night on the car looked like the place we went to Saturday night.

"They told me I was just taking a little vacation and was not going to be hurt. So I just acted nice and had a good time playing around the hospital. I knew I would get back home all right and just supposed Mr. Jones was one of my best friends who was treating me nice because papa wanted him to treat me that way."

Glad to Lose Ten Thousand Dollars to Regain Boy.

Great Crowds Cheer Little "Billy" in Three Cities.

"Oh, mother! I have Willie here in my arms. He is safe. Glory to God!"—James P. Whitla's Telephone Message to His Wife.

Sharon, Pa., March 23.—With $10,000 lost, but with his little son regained, William Whitla today returned to his waiting family, the child for whose liberty he paid the costly ransom to one of the kidnapers in Cleveland, clasped tightly in his arms.

All Sharon was out to greet "Billy," all Sharon cheered and all Sharon wept.

It was the touch of human nature that makes the whole world kin.

The kidnapers are still at liberty and probably always will be, as it is understood Whitla is pledged to them not to do anything to help the police in catching them.

But Whitla has his son. "That's all I want; I'm satisfied," he says.

Crowd to See "Billy."

Cleveland, Ohio, March 23.—"Billy" Whitla, the kidnaped boy and James P. Whitla, the rejoicing father, left Cleveland today for Sharon, Pa. Hundreds clogged the corridors of the Hollenden Hotel in anticipation of catching a glimpse of the lad, whose where-

A force of government rangers will start for Sierra Madre for the scene, which is an almost inaccessible canyon on the Southwest slope of Mount Wilson.

SOUTH POLE IS REACHED

British Antarctic Exploring Party Reaches Coveted Goal.

London, March 23. — Information reached London today, according to the Pall Mall Gazette, that the Antarctic expedition under Lieut. Ernest H. Shackleton, of the British navy, which left England in July, 1907, has found the south pole.

It is considered significant here that Lieut. Schackelton, when he came ashore at Invercargill, N. Z., refused all information regarding the details of his exploration. He at once went to the cable office and dispatched a message. He looked the picture of health and intimated that all his comrades were well.

Lieut. Schackelton's expedition bade farewell to England at Cowes in July of 1907. The last visitors to his ship, the Nimrod, were King Edward and Queen Alexandra. His majesty presented the lieutenant with a Union Jack to which was attached a card bearing the message:

"May this Union Jack, which I entrust to your keeping, lead you safely to the South pole."

STARR REPEATS "ROOSEVELT WILL NOT COME BACK ALIVE"

New York, March 23.—As ex-President Roosevelt departs for Africa, Prof. Frederick Starr of the University of Chicago, who is at present here, repeats the prediction he has made several times that Roosevelt will not return alive from the Dark continent. Starr spent many years in Africa in anthropological studies and, on one occasion, made a long trip over a route very similar to that which the ex-president has mapped out. He says:

"For two reasons I expect Mr. Roosevelt will not return from Africa—his age and his quick temper. No man can expect to go into the dangerous climates of the African wilds at 50 or more and come out alive. The strange unindentified fevers which abound there are withstood with difficulty even by the youngest and sturdiest blood. For a man of the ex-president's age, the attempt is suicidal.

"Then the matter of temper. In the tropics, there is nothing more dangerous than a quick temper such as Roosevelt has. Sudden outbreaks of temper, it is well known, frequently result fatally in these regions. The natives have this way of expressing it: They say a man 'dies from going into a rage.'"

THE ANNUAL FIELD MEET

Grade School Pupils Will Compete for Herald Trophy.

Under the auspices of the boys' department Y. M. C. A., a field meet will be held at Athletic park, at which all the grade schols of the city will be represented by track teams.

Already Physical Director J. D. Batchelor and Secretary Norman D. McLeod are busy on the plans for the meet, and as they are receiving much encouragement from the boys, they think the meet will be the most successful ever held in the city.

The boys will this year contest again for The Herald cup, and in addition a number of pennants and pins will be hung up by the boys' department. Last year badges were given, but this year, the officials of the Y. M. C. A. will donate pins as they believe them to be much neater and more acceptable to the boys.

Last year the meet was a success in every way. The Jefferson school walked off with the cup, but a number of boys from different schools won individual prizes.

The matter has not as yet been put up to the pupils of the schools, but about the last of this month they will be notified to begin training for the annual event. The boys who attend the gymnasium are enthusiastic and many of them are already working out indoors, so that they may be in the best condition when it comes time to do open air work.

It is now planned to hold the meet as soon after May 1 as possible, as during the last days of school, the pupils usually have all the work they can attend to.

SAYS CHARGE IS FAULTY

Howard Mutch Placed on Trial and Attorney Attacks Indictment.

Claims Offense Does Not Constitute Second Degree Larceny.

With an intimation from Judge Cant that if the evidence adduced on the stand by the plaintiff corresponds to the outline of the case by Assistant County Attorney Greene, in his opening statement, the indictment will be dismissed on the ground that the offense alleged does not constitute the charge in the indictment, Howard H. Mutch was placed on trial, in district court, this morning.

After the jury had been secured, and Mr. Greene had made his opening statement, Capt. E. L. Seavey, the complaining witness, was called to the stand. At that point, Attorney M. H. McMahon for the defense objected to the introduction of evidence, on the ground that the indictment did not charge a public offense, and the further ground that even if all the county attorney said in his opening statement were true, Mutch would not be guilty of the offense charged, grand larceny in the second degree.

The evidence, according to the statement of Mr. Greene, would show that Mutch sold some horses, which were Capt. Seavey's property, without Capt. Seavey's authority, and appropriated the money to his own use. If he sold the horses without Capt. Seavey's authority, he had embezzled the horses, but had not stolen the money, as the money never belonged to Capt. Seavey, since theer was no valid sale and transfer of the title, argued Mr. McMahon. The proper charge would be the embezzlement of the horses, continued Mr. McMahon, and the offense charged in the indictment could not be sustained by any evidence showing that he had sold the horses and misappropriated the money. In reply, Mr. Greene contended that the indictment was drawn under the proper section of the statute, and would be sustained by the evidence.

Judge Cant said he didn't want to let the case go by on a mere technicality, but if the statement of the county attorney was a proper outline of the evidence of the state, it would not sustain an indictment for grand larceny in the second degree. He refused to dismiss the indictment on the opening statement of the county for the state, it not being a part of the record, but he allowed the case to go on, with Mr. McMahon having the right to make a motion for dismissal after the state's case is in.

Mutch was indicted by the January grand jury on a charge of grand larceny in the first degree, in the misappropriation of four four horses and a wagon, in which he was claimed to have been in charge for Mr. Seavey. He sold the property to the Board of Trade Livery company of Duluth, Sept. 23, last. After the indictment had been returned against Mutch, Capt. Seavey sued the Board of Trade Livery company for the value of the horses, claiming Mutch had no right to sell them. The jury decided against him.

On the result of that case, the trial of Mutch on the first indictment was abandoned, the issues involved being the same. The March grand jury returned a new indictment, charging Mutch with the theft of $165, which he received from the Board of Trade Livery company for the horses.

Mutch was in charge of a camp in New Independence for Mr. Seavey, and the horses he sold were part of the camp outfit. After the sale of the horses, he went West, and when the indictment was returned against him by the January grand jury, he was arrested in Portland, Or., and brought back to Duluth. He has been in the county jail since that time.

Iron Range Road Orders Four Giant New Locomotives.

New Type of Ore Car Accepted By the Road.

Four new locomotives of the Baldwin make have been ordered by the Duluth & Iron Range railroad. The engines are ordered for early delivery and will be delivered to the road at an early date, from the plant of the Baldwin company in Baltimore.

The locomotives will be of the largest type now used for heavy freight work. They will be capable of hauling immense tonnage over a reasonable grade. The new locomotives will be added to the rolling stock of the Iron Range road early this spring.

The pattern ore car has been passed upon by the Iron Range officials and after several alterations of minor importance are made in the design of the car, it will be accepted on behalf of the company. It is probable that a few of the new ore cars will be received this month. The bulk of the consignment of 800, however, will be received during April.

RIFT IN CLOUDS FOR RAILROADS

Missouri Pacific Official Comments on Supreme Court Decision.

Mart Adson, general passenger agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad, is in receipt of a communication from one of the highest officials of the Missouri Pacific railroad, in which that official states that for the first time in more than two years there comes some prospect of a cessation of the anti-railroad legislation.

The indication spoken of, in the letter of the official to Mr. Adson, is the decision of the highest court of the state of Missouri, upholding the contention of the railroads that certain of the rates of Missouri were confiscatory and that the railroads could not exist under such rates.

It states that not one of the great railway systems operating west of the Mississippi river is making a profit upon its passenger business upon the basis of the 2-cent passenger rate. The communication says that under these circumstances, it was inevitable that the courts should find the 2-cent rate confiscatory.

The conditions in Canada and Mexico are compared with the industrial conditions that exist in this country. It is shown that the government of Alberta guaranteed $2,500,000 in railway bonds only recently for roads to be constructed by Kansas capitalists. The article states that other lines in Manitoba and in other parts of Canada are pursuing the same policy.

According to this communication, Mexico is assisting in the construction of the railroads of the country. Then it points out that today the railroads of America are not spending a single dollar beyond present contracts for construction work. It points out that American capitalists have been discouraged by the actions of certain state legislatures.

It is pointed out that if the present stagnation among the railroads of this country continues, the invigorated railroads of Canada and Mexico will be shipping cattle and wheat to the market ahead of the American producer. It warns the manufcturer and farmer that a few years more of a continued stagnation in railroad construction and development will result in disaster for the farmer, the manufacturer, the jobber and the general business man of the country.

Boyce Succeeds Hope.

St. Paul, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—An official announcement from the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railroad headquarters here today says that George Boyce, signal engineer of the road, has been appointed superintendent of telegraph to succeed the late Harry Hope. The appointment will take effect in April.

JURY LETS OUT THE TRAIN CREW

Not Responsible for Death of Man Thrown From Car.

St. Paul, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—That William Reiter came to his death by being thrown from a moving freight train of the St. Paul road, by a person, to the jury unknown, is the verdict of the coroner's jury which late yesterday afternoon investigated the circumstances under which the young man from Milwaukee was fatally injured Saturday night in the Burlington yards.

Reiter, who was riding on a flat car with W. J. Miller, was, he said, thrown from the train by a member of the train crew. He fell under the wheels of a car, both legs were cut off and he died shortly afterward at the city hospital.

The crew of the train from which Reiter was thrown was exonerated by the jury. It consisted of Conductor Peter C. Anten and Brakeman C. H. Grothe and Leo Bowball. Miller could not identify them.

ROUTE AGENT DROPS DEAD.

La Crosse, Wis., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—As he was leaving the hospital, where he had visited his wife, who was recovering from an operation William R. Renkins, aged 52, route agent for the Adams Express company covered the territory between Duluth and Chicago, dropped dead on the street yesterday.

He had held the position seventeen years with 128 offices in his charge and had the reputation of being the hardest working employe of the company. His body was taken to Decorah, Iowa, for interment. He was a prominent Mason and an Elk. His father-in-law, Fred Hincke of Duluth, was here when he died.

ARE RULING THE NATION

Missionary Says Chinese Women Are Grasping Modern Ideas.

10,000 Women Attended Mass Meeting—Work in Alaska.

"The Chinese women are ruling their nation," said Miss Myers, field secretary of the Presbyterian board of the Northwest and who is in the city to attend the twenty-first annual meeting of the Duluth Presbytery. "We of the West are prone to think of the Chinese as an unprogressive nation, incapable of receiving the new thought which we would like to bring them. We are likely to fall into the error of judging the nation by the laundrymen and servants who come to us. The late empress of the Chinese was a slave and her intellect and ability no one can doubt. A missionary friend has written me of a recent mass meeting at Canton, China, of the interested Chinese women of that city, who feel the new thought and progress that is pulsing through the nation, and who decided to meet to consider the part that they might have in this movement. The day set was rainy and disagreeable and Canton streets are very disagreeable in rainy weather. But 10,000 Chinese women of the better class were present at that meeting. Where in America could you gather such an audience? The missionary meetings, the mass meeting to consider the questions of public improvement or betterment, are attended by a few women. Americans may well think of that in calling the Chinese an unprogressive nation."

Miss Myers, who before entering the missionary field was a globe trotter, became interested in the possibilities of the work. She studied to become a medical missionary in Japan, but her first work was at a boy's school at Ceylon. Just after the Boxer trouble in China she was transferred to the latter country, when the missionary's labor, always demanding of much tact and sympathy, was many times more difficult.

"The Western missionary is so ready to teach the people of the East everything," said Miss Myers, "that it is well that he goes into the country tongue-tied. By the time he has in part mastered the language, he has learned a certain humbleness and that much can be learned from the people of the East. The Chinese reverence their women. They rejoice over the birth of sons to perpetuate ancestor worship, but show me an American father who isn't all smiles and delight if his first child is a son, and yet no one thinks of accusing him of not loving his daughter. The Chinese are a literary and cultured race and a wonderful progress is being made there."

Miss Myers will speak tomorrow afternoon at the meeting on "Open Doors, Our Opportunity."

Of an entirely different work does Miss Hayes, speaker for the Presbyterian Women's Board of Home Missions, who for thirteen years was a worker among the American peoples, first in New Mexico and later at Sitka, Alaska. The Presbyterian work in the latter country is carried on among the people of Southeastern Alaska. The school is situated at Sitka.

"The people are similar to the Japanese in stature and coloring, and like those of Darkest Africa in their religion," said Miss Hayes today. "They believe in evil spirits and in the healing of the medicine men. They are slow to respond, but steady and dependable when their confidence has been gained. Our work is hampered by lack of money. The buildings we are now occupying were built as a temporary shelter thirty years ago. But even those most skeptical of our efforts are coming to believe in the character of the work. In new Mexico different conditions exist. The people are isolated and ignorant, with nothing in their environment to help them. To the missionary in these fields there is no charm and beauty of an age-long civilization, no culture and understanding to act as a basis for further progress. Only the love for humanity and the hope of bringing to them the better way of life and a new spiritual uplift carries along the missionary to these people."

Both missionaries are women of wide experience, and most interesting in telling of their work in parts of the world separated by all differences of customs, learning, civilization and results. Miss Hayes spoke this afternoon, dealing in particular with the work in Alaska and the needs there.

Stiff Neck.

Stiff neck is caused by rheumatism of the muscles of the neck. It is usually confined to one side or to the back of the neck and one side. While it is often quite painful, quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlains' Liniment. Not one case of rheumatism in ten requires internal treatment. When there is no fever and no swelling as in muscular and chronic rheumatism, Chamberlain's Liniment will accomplish more than any internal treatment. For sale by all druggists.

BURNS HIS HOME, KILLING DOCTOR

Emil Roseneau of Montgomery, Minn., Is Under Arrest.

Montgomery, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—That Dr. Lambert Laurens, aged 60, came to his death after a series of quarrels between Emil Roseneau and his guests, Sunday night, and that Roseneau emptied the contents of a can of oil on the floor of his house and started a fire, which destroyed the house and burned Dr. Laurens to death, is the verdict of a coroner's jury which has investigated the crime. Roseneau is under arrest and will be held for the grand jury.

Sunday night was spent by Roseneau, John Kennedy and George French in playing cards and Roseneau became enraged at Dr. Laurens and struck the aged doctor.

Later the other men went out and Roseneau and Kennedy quarreled. Roseneau returned in an ugly temper and set fire to the house. Mrs. Roseneau fled with her children. The house was destroyed and Laurens' body was found burned to a crisp.

FEVER IS PREVALENT

Twenty-Nine Cases in City at the Present Time.

Sad Case Brought to Attention of Health Commissioner.

There is more scarlet fever in the city at the present time than for two years past, but the cases are so widely scattered that the situation can hardly be characterized as an epidemic. In all there are twenty-nine persons afflicted with the disease, but it is in very light form with the majority.

As showing how well scattered the patients are, there are four in West Duluth, ten in the West end, four at Woodland, four in the East end, and the remainder are in the central portion of the city. The health department, under supervision of Commissioner Patton, is taking all possible precautions to prevent a further spread of the disease, and has the situation now pretty well under control.

In this connection Dr. Patton is very anxious that all cases, even the lightest, be immediately reported to his department, so that proper precautionary measures may be taken at once. It sometimes happens that no report is made to the health department, and the general public is thereby laid open to the contagion, for families do not take proper precautions against the spread of the disease. Where the parents themselves refuse to make a report, Dr. Patton would be glad to have neighbors make a report, if they suspect a case of scarlet fever in another house. Such informers will be regarded in the light of public benefactors, and their names kept secret.

Perhaps the saddest case in the city at the present time of all who are afflicted with scarlet fever is that of Mrs. Gouthier, a widow living at 212½ East Third alley with her 10-year-old son. The two are dependent for a living upon the earnings of the mothers as a wash woman. These earnings are none too large at any time, and when the woman became seriously ill with the fever, the outlook was very dark, indeed. She has the disease in its very worst form.

The case was brought to the attention of Dr. Patton, and the city quickly rendered assistance. Mrs. Gouthier was entirely without funds. The case was a deserving one, and Dr. Patton saw to it that a trained nurse was sent to the little home, and that the services of a doctor were forthcoming. The city will also furnish fuel and food, and see to it that Mrs. Gouthier and her child are comfortable until she has recovered her health and is able to go to work again.

THE NEEDS OF DULUTH AS SEEN BY MAYOR HAVEN

His Annual Message to Common Council Is Read.

Improvements in Police and Fire Departments Are Urged.

MAYOR R. D. HAVEN.

MAYOR HAVEN'S RECOMMENDATIONS.

- Larger police force.
- Larger and better equipped fire department.
- Motor-driven fire vehicles.
- Motor cycle for police department.
- Municipal collection of garbage.
- Nothing but stone and concrete bridges.
- Construction of at least one such bridge every year.
- Lake shore drive and driveway on Minnesota Point.
- Strict observance of liquor laws.
- A vehicle license.
- Appropriation for revaluation of real estate for tax purposes.
- Ordinance for abatement of smoke nuisance.
- Ordinance to regulate hotels and lodging houses.
- Ordinance to regulate traffic on main streets.

A larger police department, a larger and better-equipped fire department, municipal collection of garbage, and a branch free public library for the West end, were among the recommendations in Mayor Haven's annual message, which he read to the council last night.

The message was a comprehensive one, requiring fifty minutes in the reading, but of such importance were the subjects touched upon, and so interestingly were these subjects handled, that his hearers did not tire during the reading. The aldermen extended their close attention, and when the mayor had finished, the motion of Alderman Foubister that recommendations of the city's chief executive be referred to proper committees, carried.

Mayor Haven called attention to the fact that the police department is no larger than it was fourteen years ago. He recommended that eight new men be added to the force at the earliest possible date, and that other additions be made as the city became financially able. He pointed to the fact that Duluth had fewer policemen in proportion to her population than almost any city in the United States of more than 60,000 population. He spoke of the auto patrol wagon now being built for the city, and said it would be a splendid thing if the city could afford an automobile for the use of detectives and policemen in getting quickly to the scene of crimes. He granted that this could not be afforded just now, however, but recommended the purchase of a motor cycle, frequent use for which could be found, especially in the enforcement of automobile speed regulations.

The Fire Department.

The mayor said the fire department was greatly handicapped through a lack of funds, and said the department should be enlarged and its efficiency otherwise increased. He recommended that motor-driven fire apparatus be purchased hereafter, and that when new fire halls are built they be constructed with a view to housing apparatus of this kind. He spoke of the saving that would come from not having to build stables for the horses.

He asked the co-operation of the council in the enforcement of the liquor laws, especially that part of them referring to the sale of liquor to minors. He characterized such sale as the worst and most vicious violation of the law possible.

Mayor Haven did not do much in the message in the way of summing up work of the past year, but left that to the annual reports of the heads of the several departments. He took up the present needs of each department in turn, however, and made recommendations concerning them.

In the city assessor's department he urged revaluation of all property, both real and personal, in the city. In this work he recommends that an examination be made into the actual conditions, and that a fair and just valuation of real estate that would come up to the requirements would require a larger appropriation for that department than had been made by the council. He mentioned a vehicle license fee as an additional source of revenue for the city.

The mayor commended the new accounting system in use here for its simplicity, and the chance afforded for comparison with the accounts of other cities.

Garbage Collection.

He mentioned the fact that in various large cities of the country municipal collection of garbage was being successfully carried on, and proposed that the same system be tried in Duluth. If the plan worked successfully through the experimental stage, he suggested that municipal collection be established all over the city.

In speaking of the plumbing inspector's department, he asked that an assistant inspector be employed to help the present official in his work during the building season.

The mayor reviewed the efforts toward getting a contagious hospital for the city, and said he was pleased to announce that such progress had been made as to assure actual work being started on the building in the very near future. He said the building would be erected with an eye to the needs of the future as well as the present.

Playgrounds.

In dealing with parks, he recommended that the city secure tracts of land in certain districts for use as public playgrounds in summer and free skating rinks in winter. He commended the work of the park board for the good work it has done with the limited funds at its disposal.

In this connection, he said, careful consideration should be given the suggestion that a water front drive or parkway be established in Duluth. With a water front extending the entire length of the city, Duluth has no such improvement. He said the plan suggested might require an expenditure too great to make it practical at this time, but that it should be considered and a beginning made. He expressed the belief that the city should acquire the land adjoining St. Croix avenue on the east side, between the avenue and the lake, and extending from the railroad on the north to the government pier on the south. A lake shore drive on Minnesota Point was suggested as a possibility of the future.

The mayor spoke of the urgent need of a branch in the West end, and said that steps towards its establishment should be taken at once.

He spoke of the board of public works as being the most important city department, owing to the fact that it has supervision over all the streets and sidewalks of the city. He complimented the board on good work accomplished, and spoke particularly of the manner in which streets have been kept clean in the central districts.

The mayor spoke of the aerial bridge, and said that a competent man should at all times be in charge, regardless of sentiment, friendship, or politics.

Grade crossings on London road came in for comment, and the mayor recommended that all bridge construction in the future be of concrete or stone. He said at least one concrete or stone bridge should be erected every year.

Ordinances were suggested to license and regulate hotels and lodging houses, to abate the smoke nuisance, and to regulate traffic on the main business streets.

At the end of his message, Mayor Haven took occasion to congratulate the city upon the bright outlook for its future, and for the loyalty and efficiency of its public servants. He had a good word for the newspapers of Duluth, and said that he especially wished "to acknowledge the impartial and courteous treatment given me by representatives of the press."

ROOSEVELT SAILS FOR EAST AFRICA

much pleased at the warmth and sincerity of the demonstration in his honor.

Points to Taft's Picture.

Mr. Roosevelt gave a short talk to the newspaper men on board the Hamburg, as he greeted them at the doorway of his suite.

"Now, gentlemen, I am glad to see you," he said, "what can I tell you? Oh, yes, there is that picture (pointing to a portrait of Taft). It is very interesting and very fine, don't you think so?"

"Oh, gentlemen, there is one thing that I desire very much to have you say for me. There is an immense mass of mail on board this steamship, which has come to me and which I have not been able to open, and much of which I will not be able to open for some time. I have no stenographer with me. Since I left the White House I have received 6,000 letters. Four-fifths of these I have not even seen. Any thanks to the people who sent them is, however, none the less. Now, I wish that you would say for me that it will be only a waste of time for anyone to write to me while I am in Africa. Again I will say that I deeply appreciate the courtesy of those who have written me, and take this occasion to give them my thanks."

One of the reporters in the party broke into the conversation with the interjection:

"Some one told me, colonel, that you were going to be our next president."

Mr. Roosevelt threw up both his hands and exclaimed, "Good-by, gentlemen, good-by." But he was still smiling when the interview closed.

M. Jusserand, the French ambassador, and Mrs. Jusserand went aboard the steamer shortly after Mr. Roosevelt's party arrived, and were escorted to the Roosevelt quarters. They conversed with Mr. Roosevelt for some time.

A notable feature of the reception on the steamer was a tribute to the ex-president by the Italian chamber of commerce of New York city. This body presented a bronze tablet, bearing on one side a portrait of the ex-president, and on the other the scene of the Sicilian earthquake and a representation of the Goddess of Peace placing a wreath on Roosevelt's head.

Shortly before the steamer sailed Mr. Roosevelt, escorted by a detachment of local police, appeared at the after gangway, which led to the pier. The police had cleared an open space across the pier to the point where the Italian American organization had a bronze tablet in readiness to present him. The appearance of Mr. Roosevelt was the signal for tremendous cheering by the crowds on the pier and on the steamer's deck. As he came down the gang plank, the cheering continued and a party of college boys from Stevens Institute in Hoboken let loose their college yell. On the way across the pier the lines of police escorting Mr. Roosevelt were broken through by the pressure of the eager crowd and the ex-president was swept toward the tablet by the rush. The crowd closed in solidly behind him and while the police were endeavoring to fight off the onrush, Mr. Roosevelt asked the speaker to make the presentation ceremony very brief. The Italian orator cut short his lengthy address, briefly stating that the tablet was presented by the Italians in appreciation of what Mr. Roosevelt had caused to be done for the suffering people of Southern Italy and Calabria. Mr. Roosevelt, in reply, said:

"I appreciate this very much. I want to thank you all. I cannot tell you how deeply touched I am."

Police Push Crowd Back.

Mr. Roosevelt seeing that the crowd became demonstrative, and many persons tried to shake the ex-president's hand. The police pushed back the crowd and rushed Mr. Roosevelt toward the steamer. In the process two of the policemen were knocked off their feet, but were not injured. As he neared the gang plank, Mr. Roosevelt's hat was knocked off and a vacuum bottle which had been presented him by a party of Pittsburg friends at the pier was knocked from his hand. When he reached the gang plank his lost articles were passed to him. He bowed thanks, and smilingly called "I'm all right."

The crowd becoming quiet, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I want to thank the men from Pittsburg who have come all this distance to see me off. I am indeed grateful and am touched by their thoughtfulness and their kindness in coming such a long way. I want to thank also all my fellow citizens who came to see me off. God bless you all."

With the departure of Roosevelt there begins the most interesting journey ever undertaken by an ex-president of the United States. Grant's trip circled the globe, but it was for the most part in the beaten path of travel, while Mr. Roosevelt is going into a wild and almost unexplored country.

The ex-president, on his arrival at the Hamburg-American line pier in Hoboken, was greeted with bands playing, flags flying and the cheers of several thousand people who had assembled to wish the distinguished traveler God-speed. He was beaming with good nature and enthusiasm about the trip. Everything was "fine" and "bully" to Mr. Roosevelt, and he acknowledged the cheering by repeatedly raising his hat. The steamship company had been besieged with requests from local and out-of-town delegations for places on the pier, and as many of them as possible were accommodated. The Italians were much in evidence, with six large delegations. They wanted to take six bands on the pier, but the company's officials persuaded them to cut it down to one. A large delegation from Pittsburg and other out-of-town delegates swelled the number on the pier by several hundred. A number of foreign diplomats, including the French ambassador, and men who were prominent in the Roosevelt administration, were received on board the Hamburg.

In Buttons And Braids.

While the distinguished passenger had left explicit instructions with General Manager Boas and Capt. Burmeister of the Hamburg on his visit of inspection to the steamer yesterday told them he would have no unusual attention shown him on board ship at the time of sailing, the captain and his officers could not forego the opportunity to greet the ex-president in true military style. They all wore their showiest buttons and braids and stood about at respectful attention whenever Mr. Roosevelt appeared. Everything had been put in spick and span order aboard the boat. The outside of the numerous deck houses and the cabins along the promenade decks had all received a new coat of white paint, and the big boat had been scrubbed and polished from stem to stern. The suite of five rooms combine all the conveniences and appointments of the best hotel apartments.

The first room, which is used as the parlor, was banked with flowers that had been sent to the steamer by friends in advance of the Roosevelt party today. The parlor walls are covered with rich green silk armure and the pictures of Washington and Lincoln are hung among several others. Two large mahogany sofas and a center table to match are the most prominent articles of furniture in this room. The second room, in the suite, Kermit's bedroom, and the third, used as a dressing room, are finished in light blue and gold, and the walls are covered with a blue figured jute tapestry. The fourth room, in which Mr. Roosevelt will sleep, is the most handsomely appointed of all. Golden brown silk damask covers the walls and the furniture is of mahogany with the exception of the heavy brass bed.

The bathroom has a high marble wainscoating, with a dark red tiled floor, and is equipped with two tubs and a shower bath, and is supplied with both fresh and salt water. Large windows open on the ocean side from all the rooms. The whole suite is electrically heated, and the electroliers and droplights are bronze. Some of the pictures and smaller furnishings in the suite were presented to the Hamburg officials by Emperor William at the time he occupied the same rooms on his cruise to Italy, and on another cruise to Norway. An ornamented picture of the emperor and empress, with their signatures attached, adorns the reception hall just outside the suite.

The Gymnasium.

The gymnasium, situated in a large deckhouse built on the upper deck aft, and equipped with all the latest exercising machines, is the pride of Mr. Roosevelt's eye. "Great," he said when he inspected it. Besides the saddle machines, on which one can get the exact motion of the horse and camel at all regulated speeds, there are all kinds of vibrations and appliances for reducing the waist, strengthening the ankles, and weight lifts and pulleys to supply action to every muscle in the human body.

Many of the passengers who sailed today on the steamer Hamburg went on board the steamer last night, in order to avoid the rush and confusion of the crowds, which were expected today. The last of the outfit of the Roosevelt party was stored in the ship's hold early today, and all of Mr. Roosevelt's personal effects were taken to the suite which he and Kermit will occupy during the voyage.

Photographs of President Taft and of several members of the Roosevelt family, including a full length photograph of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, had been placed on the walls of the parlor suite during the night.

No Message to Nation.

Mr. Roosevelt was met on arrival here by Douglas Robinson. The party proceeded to the Hudson tunnel in an automobile.

"It's a fine day to travel," said Mr. Roosevelt, "and ought to be fine at sea. I have received hundreds of telegrams wishing me a safe journey, but I will not give out the names of those who sent them. As I have said before, I have no statement to make and it is strange you gentlemen of the press have not asked me this morning if I have a message for the American people. No, there is nothing to be said, and I really don't know why newspapermen should want to travel with me to Naples or Mombasa. Really there is little likelihood of there being any incidents at sea.

"I cannot say definitely how long I will be away, but it will be about fifteen months. My lecture at Oxford will be in the spring of 1910. I expect to have a good time and I am sure the expedition will be a success."

On the trip from Oyster Bay dozens of men and women stopped and shook hands with Mr. Roosevelt, wishing him farewell and a successful trip. At Long Island City there were only a few who recognized Mr. Roosevelt and his son in their army great coats. At a brisk walk they boarded the ferry boat Hempstead and walked through the women's cabin to the forward deck. Here they were surrounded by a crowd of Long Island commuters, some of whom came forward and extended their farewell.

As the Hempstead entered her slip the captain of the boat, from the pilot house, called for "three cheers for Teddy Roosevelt."

Instantly there was a burst of cheers which lasted several minutes. When they had subsided the steam whistle of the Hempstead screeched out the marine salute of three long blasts.

DEMOCRATS BITTERLY RENT IN HOUSE CAUCUS; FITZGERALD MEN LOSE

Washington, March 23.—After hours of bitter wrangling the Democratic members of the house of representatives, in a caucus which was in session until after midnight, by an overwhelming vote repudiated the Democratic supporters of the Fitzgerald adherents to the rules which were adopted at the opening of the special session of congress over the opposition of Minority Leader Clark.

The defense which preceded the adoption of the declaration repudiating the action of the recalcitrants, was one of the most bitter heard in a Democratic caucus in years. A set of rules to govern future caucuses also was adopted.

Mr. Fitzgerald, who was present, spoke in defense of his action and was answered by Mr. Hardwick of Georgia, who spared the feelings of no one. Representatives Peters and Kellher of Missouri denounced the "gag rules" manner in which Minority Leader Clark had conducted the fight for a change in the rules.

After adjournment Representative Fitzgerald asserted that the "introduction and proposal of the declaration of the caucus was a manifestation of the the same idiotic leadership that has characterized the Democratic party for fifteen years, and that the Democratic membership of the house in imagining that they are the Democratic pary are like the three tailors of Tooley street."

"Champ Clark ought to have five crutches to walk on," said Representative Kellher, "he cannot stand on his feet."

"I stand for the manhood and liberty of the Northern Democracy," said Representative Francis Burton Harrison of New York, "and protest against its subversion to the selfish ambition of hot-headed, hair-brained representatives who do not even represent their own constituents."

BABY'S PITIFUL CASE OF ECZEMA

Summer Rash Became a Dreadful Itching Humor—Big Blisters Formed and Skin Grew as Hard and Rough as Bark—Scratched and Tore Flesh till Blood Ran.

ALMOST MAGIC CURE BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"Our son, two years old, was very much afflicted with a breaking out of what looked to be a summer rash. I applied the usual remedies, such as washing with soda water and powdering with boric acid. Finally, after he suffered with the trouble several weeks I took him to the doctor. He said it was merely a rash that was quite prevalent, and that I was giving the right treatment and that I should just continue it and the baby would soon be all right. But instead of getting better it was getting worse. The rash ran together and made large blisters. The little fellow didn't want to do anything but scratch and we had to wrap his hands up to keep him from it as he would tear the flesh open till the blood would run. The itching was intense, causing loss of appetite and flesh. When it seemed to hurt him most the skin on his back became hard and rough like the bark of a tree so that rubbing or brushing would not break it. He was so feverish that I thought it a bad case of eczema. He could not wear any clothes but a little nightgown with the sleeves just fastened at the top of the shoulder. He suffered intensely for about three months. But I found a remedy in Cuticura Soap for bathing and Cuticura Ointment with which I anointed the sore places. This kept the rash from spreading and in less than a week the result was almost magical. That was more than two years ago and there has not been the slightest symptom of it since he was cured. I am never very long without Cuticura Soap as my family knows the value of it and don't like a substitute." J. W. Lauck, Yukon, Okla., Aug. 28 and Sept. 17, '08."

Millions of women throughout the world use Cuticura Soap and Ointment for eczemas, rashes, itchings, irritations, inflammations, chafings, pimples, blackheads, dandruff, dry, thin and falling hair, sanative, antiseptic cleansing, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery.

JOHN RIPPLE IS FOUND GUILTY

Jury Convicts Youth of Indecent Assault on Little Girl.

A jury in district court yesterday found John Ripple guilty of indecent assault on Dora Zini, a 10-year-old girl at Eveleth, August last. The jury was out a short time.

The evidence against young Ripple was strong. The little girl's story was told in a straightforward manner and she had testimony to prove that she had told people of the assaults at the time they are alleged to have been committed. Ripple denied all knowledge of the assaults, alleging that he had never taken any improper liberties with the child.

The case has its pitiful side. During the trial Ripple's mother sat beside him to give him encouragement, and the conviction was a great blow to her. She still stoutly asserts her belief in the innocence of her boy.

On the stand yesterday afternoon she told a pitiful story of suffering. She said John is her eldest child and he has been working since he was 12 years old. He always gave her his money, she said, for it was necessary for him to support the family. She had fifteen children in all and five of them have died. Her husband deserted her and her ten children about Christmas time and shortly afterwards John, her sole support, was arrested and taken to jail.

She wept as she told her story. John had always been a good boy, she said and she had never heard of him doing anything wrong until he was arrested.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

THIS STATE FAR BETTER

Beltrami County Farmer Not Carried Away With Oregon Chances.

Northern Minnesota Offers a Better Future for Average Man.

Bemidji, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Beltrami county is far and away ahead of any part of Oregon as a place of residence or to make a home and engage in farming pursuits," says C. O. Larson, who has just returned from Southern Oregon, where he has spent several months looking over the country seeking acceptable opportunities to invest some money.

Mr. Larson had been a resident of Beltrami county for eleven years, making his home on a farm eight miles northwest of Blackduck, where he took up 160 acres. In the early days of that locality, as a homestead. Mr. Larson had heard much of Oregon and last fall went out to that state on a trip of investigation. He looked over the lands there, which he states are selling for from $35 to $110 per acre, and purchased some eighty acres, simply as a speculation, which he will again sell, if he obtains a raise on the original price.

"The land will have to be irrigated," says Mr. Larson, "and is not exactly what I would desire to farm on, myself. I am firmly of the opinion, that there is no country like Northern Minnesota for a man of moderate means to make his home in, and this is the place to get a good start, on little or no capital, and easily forge to the front as a successful farmer and dairyman."

CUT-OVER LANDS ARE WITHDRAWN

Indians Are Given First Chance to Make Their Lieu Selections.

Cass Lake, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The register and receiver of the local United States land office has received notice from the department of interior that all the lands in the Winnibigoshish, Cass Lake, Chippewa or the Mississippi, and Leech Lake Indian reservations, not included in the national forest reserve created by the act of May 23, 1908, and not yet opened to homestead entry, are withdrawn from settlement for a period of six months.

The purpose of this ruling is to withdraw from settlement for a limited time the cut over lands in the reservations, settlement on which as soon and as fast as the timber is removed is authorized by section 4 of the act cited, in order to permit Indians or their heirs, who relinquish allotments within the limits of such national forest, as provided in section 3 of the act cited, and also Indians whose allotments in the national forest are included in state swamp selections, to select in lieu thereof lands outside of such national forest.

This does not affect settlers who have settled on the land in good faith, provided the timber has been completely removed.

RISKS HER LIFE SAVING KITTENS

St. Paul Girl Dashes Into Burning Building After Tabbies.

St. Paul, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miriam Browne, aged 17, student at the Eleanor Miller school of oratory, proved herself a heroine, when she dashed into a burning barn in the rear of the school and rescued some kittens from death.

Miss Browne and other girls were entering the school when word was passed along that the barn in the rear, used as a dwelling, was on fire. They hurried to the scene and found flames shooting from the roof and sides.

The big gray cat, the pet of the Miller household, came bounding out of the front door of the barn, singed and scorched, and bearing in her mouth a tiny kitten, one of a large family, which the girls had found in an unused room on the second floor two days before. The cat deposited her little bundle on the ground and immediately went back into the flaming building.

Not stopping to estimate the consequence of her act, but realizing that the kittens would be burned to death unless rescued, Miss Browne ran into the building close on the heels of the cat, and a few moments later appeared with the mother cat and her babes in her arms.

The girl was little the worse for her adventure, except for a mouthful of smoke and a few slight burns on the hands.

POTATOES PURCHASE FARM.

What Clay County Farmer Did Raising Tubers in Ten Years.

Moorhead, Minn., March 23.—A Clay county farmer, who lives only a short distance from Moorhead, has made the final payment on his farm, which he bought ten years ago at $35 an acre, and he went home carrying with him the document of satisfaction which made him clear with the world.

He has paid for the farm, reputed to be one of the best in the county, solely out of his potato crops. Regularly, spring and fall, he has always been reasonably certain of having sufficient receipts from potato shipments to meet his deferred payments on his land contract.

On Monday he received a check for $1,102, covering one sale of potatoes at the rate of 76 cents a bushel, and out of that check he made the last payment on the farm home. Out of his grain, stock, poultry and miscellaneous produce he has maintained his family and made numerous improvements on his now well equipped place.

To Have a Clear Velvety Complexion

By MADAME D'MILLE

(From Chicago Inter Ocean.)

Madame D'Mille, one of Paris' most famous beauties just passing through Chicago, gives us a few valuable ideas on skin treatment, as follows:

"Yes, I have just come from beautiful Japan, and I must say the Japanese women have many toilet formulas and ideas which American women should know.

"What do they use to make their skin so soft and velvety?

"Any American woman can use the same treatment if she desires. Dissolve a small original package of mayatone in about eight ounces of witchhazel. Massage the face, arms and neck with this solution once or twice a day, and you will shortly find you have a lovely, soft complexion, and then the best of it all is that this solution prevents the growth of hair, and is absolutely harmless to the most delicate skin. Make the solution yourself.

"Why, yes—of course I use it. Just see how beautifully soft my arms and face are, and not a hair.

"No—you will never use powder again, and those stray hairs will soon be missing from your face."

MOTHER'S FRIEND

CURES ECZEMA QUICKLY

New Discovery Has Revolutionized the Treatment of Skin Diseases.

Nothing in the history of medicine has ever approached the success of the marvelous skin remedy known as poslam, which, it is safe to say, has cured more cases of eczema and skin diseases than any remedy ever offered for these ills.

The success of poslam is not at all surprising when it is considered that even a very small quantity applied to the skin stops itching immediately and cures chronic cases in two weeks. The very worst cases of eczema, as well as acne, herpes, tetter, piles, salt rheum, rash, crusted humors, scaly scalp and every form of itch, yield to it readily. Blemishes such as pimples, red noses, muddy and inflamed skin disappear almost immediately when poslam is applied, the complexion being cleared over night.

Every druggist keeps both the 50-cent size (for minor troubles) and the $2 jar, and either of these may be obtained at the Lyceum Pharmacy and W. A. Abbett's in Duluth, and Holmberg's in Superior, as well as other reliable drug stores.

But no one is even asked to purchase poslam without first obtaining an experimental package which will be sent by mail, free of charge, upon request, by the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York city.

LYCEUM—"Ben Hur." (See notice below.)
BIJOU—New vaudeville bill. (See notice below.)

THE LYCEUM IS CROWDED

Herald's Theater Party to 150 School Children, a Great Success.

Young Guests of Paper Show Appreciation of "Ben Hur."

Never has the Lyceum held a larger or more enthusiastic audience than that which crowded the building last evening, on the occasion of the opening of the engagement here of "Ben Hur" and The Herald theater party to 150 school children of the city.

Every seat in the theater was sold out, and many had to be turned away. It was a pleasure to see such an enthusiastic audience. The old "amuse me if you can" attitude of Duluth audiences was lacking. The young guests of the paper sat up, took the keenest interest in the performance, and appeared to enjoy every minute of it. It must have been an inspiration to play to such an audience. Every one of the 150 children had read the book, studied it thoroughly, and knew it from cover to cover. They were prepared to listen to the play in an intelligent manner, and there was no question about their appreciation of it. Their enthusiasm seemed to be infectious. The chariot race was never seen to better advantage; the horses seemed to run as they never ran before; the revolving scenery ran smoothly; the great storm scene was more realistic than ever, and the entire company seemed to have plenty of life and vigor. The young people gave Duluth audiences an object lesson in how to get the best results for their money. There was no rustling of programs; no lazy, blase, lack of interest; no sullen, "I dare you to amuse me" attitude. The young people were generous with their applause, but only when it was deserved, and "Ben Hur" never went off better than it did last night.

The company itself has not deteriorated since it was last seen here. In fact, there are fifteen more members in the company than there were two years ago. "The Sacred Circus" is the name that has been applied to "Ben Hur," and it is a very appropriate one. Those who have not seen the big Klaw & Erlanger production have missed the best demonstration ever made of the possibilities of modern stage mechanism. The chariot race is a revelation in the possibilities of stage pictures, and even to those who have witnessed it several times, it brings a thrill of excitement.

One of the best features of the play is the delicate and reverent manner in which the spiritual aspects are treated. Any attempt to portray the Christ on the stage could not but be sacrilegious. This was one of Gen. Wallace's chief reasons for refusing to allow the novel to be dramatized for so long, but this objection was finally overcome, and in a manner that reflects great credit upon the producers. The presence of the Nazarene is suggested only by a shaft of clear, white light and the scene in the last act on the Mount of Olives is one of the most impressive spectacles ever presented on the stage.

The cast this year is a capable one. It is sometimes difficult to secure capable actors for such productions as "Ben Hur" which have been running for years, and which hold out little promise of new reputations or triumphs. But this difficulty appears to have been overcome in a large measure. Conway Tearle in the title role, has all the physical requirements of the role. He is of athletic build, tall, straight, and with the clear cut features, and the straight, black hair, of the pure bred Jew. He has a splendid reading voice, and the beautiful impressive lines of the drama lose nothing in his delivering of them.

Mitchell Harris as "Messala," Anthony Andre as "Simonides," and William Leyden as "Ilderim," are fully equal to their roles, and Miss Florence Haynes makes a very sweet and pretty "Esther."

"Ben Hur" will be repeated at the Lyceum tonight and tomorrow with a matinee tomorrow. The evening performances begin promptly at 8 o'clock, owing to the length of the performance and the matinee at 2 o'clock. No one is seated during the prelude, which represents the appearance of the Star of Bethlehem.

SALOME DANCE.

Mlle. Athmore Gray Introduces It to Duluth Audience.

Mlle. Athmore Gray really initiated Duluth into the mysteries of the Salome dance last night at the Bijou. She is the second dancer to give a version of the famous dance, it is true; but the person who proceeded Mlle. Gray Duluthwards had little art and little grace in her dancing. Mlle. Gray has both art and grace. There is little that is offensive in her dancing. She is graceful, which is much in dancing, and dances as if she had made a real study of the famous Salome movements.

There has been much written and said regarding the famous Salome dance, the dance of the seven veils. Gertrude Hoffmann, Eva Tanguay and others have made the craze famous in this country, and even a colored dancer, Ada Walker, wife of the famous Walker of Williams and Walker, has essayed the histeric wriggle. However, if the others have been no worse than the one presented by Mlle. Gray, there is little reason to whisper "naughty, naughty," when some one casually mentions Salome.

Harry Burgoyne, an English comedian of the music hall type, who is really clever, received a generous show of approbation for his imitations of different English character types. He gave an imitation of a cockney, a dude, and a prize fighter that was a scream.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Forbes, in their one-act comedy sketch, are very good The act is cleverly written. The Elite musical four furnish some music that is far above the average heard in vaudeville. They play on about everything imaginable, utilizing bottles to produce harmonious sounds.

Mort M. Fox and Horace Crystal furnish one of the stereotyped knock-about Hebrew turns that gets the crowd though there is little that is new or really clever in the turn. However, "the brothers of Hebrew comedy" work with a will and do the very best they can with their lines.

Saona does some impersonations of famous characters that are very good. His impersonation of Gen. Grant was striking in its likeness to the grizzled veteran, and his impersonations of Gen. Robert E. Lee and Mark Twain were also very well done.

Isadore Silver sang a new song, and the motion pictures were very good. The bill is a strong, well balanced one.

"Brewster's Millions."

"Brewster's Millions," a stage version of George Barr McCutcheon's interesting novel of that name, will be presented here at the Lyceum Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and on Saturday afternoon, by the Cohan and Harris comedians, headed by Robert Ober.

The dramatization was made by Winchell Smith and Byron Ongley, and has met with the most emphatic success. It is now being played by two companies in America, two in England, and by one on the continent. It will be presented here with all the striking stage effects invented and conceived by Frederic Thompson, a master mind in this particular direction. The story has a great deal of ingenuity, and the sidelights of humor and pathos which the author throws upon it emphasizes its human interest.

While departing in detail now and then from the written story, the adapters have kept to the main theme and preserved most of the incidents of the book. Related briefly, the story recounts the efforts of Montgomery Brewster to spend in one year his inheritance of $1,000,000, in order that, under the whimsical will of an uncle, he may come into a bequest of $7,000,000.

The Latest in Cravenettes.

Just opened, stylish shades, popular prices, elegant fitters, at $10, $12, $15, $18 and $20.

WILL NOT GO TO THE COAST

President Taft May Make Trip to Denver in August.

Washington, March 23.—Unless President Taft changes his present plans he will not visit the Pacific coast next summer, but may go as far West as Denver, where the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic is to be held in August.

Mr. Taft had expected to visit the West coast and to attend the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition at Seattle. The Seattle people had some hope also that he would make a trip to Alaska.

The president has concluded that he cannot afford the expense of so long a journey and he has said within the last week that he must reconsider his intention of visiting the Pacific slope this year. He thinks that it would be necessary to take with him a rather large party, including secretaries and stenographers, who must necessarily accompany him during so long an absence from the capital, and he is unwilling that his party should accept private hospitality on the journey.

There is to be no deadheadism during the present administration. President Taft has determined that when he travels he will not accept private entertainment, but will pay his own way and the expenses of the members of his party.

The president's salary was increased by an act of the last congress, but the $25,000 appropriation for traveling expenses was not renewed. The president feels that he cannot afford to go to the Pacific coast this year by traveling as he wishes to travel—without incurring any obligation to anybody.

NEW BOWBELLS SCHOOL DEDICATED TO SERVICE.

Bowbells, N. D., March 23.—The new schoolhouse, which has just been completed, was dedicated Saturday with pleasing ceremonies. The important features of the program were addresses by ex-Governor J. M. Devine and County Superintendent E. G. Warren. The new building is one of the finest of its kind in this part of the state and a credit to Bowbells' enterprise.

Good Cough Medicine for Children.

The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. F. F. Starcher of Ripley, W. Va., says: "I have never used anything other than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for my children, and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

PURDY ON BENCH AGAIN.

Judge Morris Has Been Assigned to Duty in Utah.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 23.—Judge Milton Dwight Purdy of the federal district bench, is at his post again after an absence of a fortnight following the expiration of the term to which he was appointed by President Roosevelt.

While enjoying his vacation in the South he was notified that President Taft had reappointed him temporarily, and he went to St. Louis to take the oath.

Judge Purdy said today that he had no intimation how long he would remain on the bench or what the future had in store for him. He will have sole charge of the April calendar in Minneapolis, as Judge Morris has been assigned to duty in Utah while the judge in that district is presiding in Oklahoma.

"My 3-year-old boy was badly constipated, had a high fever and was in an awful condition. I gave him two doses of Foley's Orino Laxative and the next morning the fever was gone and he was entirely well. Foley's Orino Laxative saved his life." A. Wolkush, Casimer, Wis. Sold by all druggists.

SHOW PEOPLE DINE.

Manager Marshall Entertains Little Party of Advance Agents.

Duluth is getting to be quite a Mecca for theatrical advance agents. It has always been considered a good meeting place among theatrical people, and during the past winter the men who travel ahead of the show have had many jolly times in this city.

Charles L. Towle, manager of the "Ben Hur" company and C. E. McCuen, who is in the city arranging for the appearance in Duluth of Viola Allen, who is playing this year in "The White Sister," met last night at the Lyceum theater.

Mr. Towle is accompanied by Mrs. Towle and Miss Towle. Mr. McCuen is also accompanied by his wife. Although the men in the party have visited the city many times, it is the first time the women have ever been here.

Manager C. A. Marshall of the Lyceum entertained the party at a dinner at the Spalding last night.

TAKES CARGO FOR STORAGE

Steamer Walker Loads 240,800 Bushels of Grain at Itasca.

The steamer P. G. Walker of the Gilchrist line, yesterday took on a load of about 240,000 bushels of wheat. She will hold the grain in storage until navigation opens and will then carry it down the lakes.

The Walker has been tied at the Itasca elevator during the winter with the understanding that if the elevator needed more room for grain, the boat was to help out.

D. T. Helm is the local agent for the boat. The rates were not given out.

An Ideal Cough Medicine.

"An an ideal cough medicine I regard Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in a class by itself," says Dr. R. A. Wiltshire of Gwynneville, Ind. "I take great pleasure in testifying to the results of Chamberlain's Cough Medicine. In fact, I know of no other preparation that meets so fuly the expectations of the most exacting in cases of croup and coughs of children. As it contains no opium, chloroform or morphine it certainly makes a most safe, pleasant and efficacious remedy for the ills it is intended." For sale by all druggists.

A LITTLE KNOWLEDGE A DANGEROUS THING.

The Pioneer Press in a long editorial urging the passage of the tonnage tax measure, again demonstrates the ignorance which prevails throughout the state concerning the country which this measure will most affect. When so intelligent a newspaper as the Pioneer Press displays such profound ignorance of the measure it advocates and of its effect upon the iron country, it is not astonishing that the state at large continues to insist upon the tonnage tax out of its dangerously little knowledge.

The Pioneer Press bases its whole argument in favor of the tax upon the statement that it "does not adversely affect any public interest in St. Louis county or the other iron counties." To prove this it cites the fact that the Bjorge bill "provides for the retention of the ad valorem system as a basis for county and local taxation." This provision of the bill, the Pioneer Press triumphantly declares, removes all possibility that the tonnage tax will result in harm to the people who live in the iron country. The statement is based upon the grossest ignorance of actual conditions. In the first place there is grave reason to fear that the ad valorem clause of the bill will be declared double taxation and unconstitutional, in which case the iron country would be left with almost no property upon which to pay taxes. This is clearly seen when we know that in Hibbing, for instance, the largest town on the ranges, the mines pay 95 per cent of the taxes. This is of course but a possibility, but it is a possible danger, and would the Pioneer Press want to be placed in such danger? In the second place, there is a danger from the Bjorge bill that is not only possible, but absolutely inevitable, and that is that the tonnage tax will render the mining of iron ore far more uncertain than it now is. Advocates of the tonnage tax go upon the assumption that under the tonnage tax the mining of iron ore will go forward just as it has in the past, but such is not the fact. It is not only quite possible, but highly probable, that in case the tonnage tax bill becomes a law, the mining of iron in Minnesota will be reduced to the minimum this year, which means that less than 10,000,000 tons of ore would be mined this year, possibly far less, instead of 25,000,000 last year and 42,000,000 the year before. Such action on the part of the mining companies would drive nine-tenths of the business men on the ranges from the country.

Nothing but gross ignorance will lead anyone to say that there will not be such a partial suspension of iron ore mining in Minnesota as here suggested. The suspension is absolutely certain to come if the tonnage tax bill passes. To what degree it will be carried or how long it will last is very uncertain, but it will follow the passage of the tonnage tax bill as inevitably as the night the day. Last year at this time active preparations for the opening of the shipping season had been under way on the iron ranges for six weeks; today, with the opening of navigation less than a month away, practically nothing has been done. There are other signs also which cause one to fear that the Steel corporation has been preparing for just such an emergency as the passage of a tonnage tax measure, and that the Minnesota ranges in that event may be worked only to the extent required by leases for a period of several years to come. In any event, the present time is a poor one to exchange blows with the Steel corporation on this proposition, for business is now at a low ebb and the demand for iron ore is so light that it would be very easy to cut ore shipments to the quick.

Were it not for such ignorance as the Pioneer Press displays, an ignorance which prevails generally throughout the state upon the subject of iron mining and the conditions of the people who live in the iron country, were it not for this ignorance, the tonnage tax agitation would die an instant death and never be heard of again.

THE PUBLIC'S PART.

The new tariff bill as reported to the house appears to be a substantial reduction of duties, a revision that if enacted into law will redeem the promise of the Republican party to give the country a real revision. Whether it is actually what it appears to be, must be left to a closer examination to tell.

In the discussion of this bill the country certainly has a duty to perform. It has demanded real revision and it ought to do everything in its power to help to that end. The attacking of schedules which have been reduced will not help to that end. Hardly was the ink dry upon the first edition of the first newspaper reporting the terms of the bill before certain labor unions had adopted resolutions denouncing the bill because it provides for the reduction in the duty on certain articles which they labor to manufacture. If this example is to be followed all over the country, what will become of the bill as a means to a real revision of the tariff in the interest of the whole country? Great business concerns, trusts, corporations, predatory wealth, whatever you may be pleased to call them, are certain to bring every influence in their power to bear to keep the duty as high as possible. If every other interest in the country that is in the slightest degree affected begins to clamor for the retention of the present duty upon its special article, what will become of revision?

Every man must look out for his own interest, but all should realize that the tariff is a matter that affects not only some localities but every locality—it is a nation-wide matter, and if we are really desirous of revision, we must try to support that revision upon which the greater part of the country can agree.

But the country also has another duty to perform. It must be insistent in its demand for the reduction of duty upon necessities. The duty on sugar is a particular instance. Although substantial reductions are made by the proposed bill upon iron ore, pulp wood, hides, steel, lumber, etc., practically no relief is given the country as to sugar, one of the prime necessities. Sugar is now taxed 1 and 95-100 cents per pound and the Payne bill proposed to cut it to 1 and 90-100 cents per pound. If you will look at it closely, you may be able to discover that this is a reduction, but so slight is it that one might easily overlook it entirely. A reduction of 5-100 of a cent on a pound upon an article now taxed at practically 80 per cent of its ad valorem value, a total tax amounting to nearly $150,000,000 per year paid for the most part by those least able to bear the burden of taxation. This infinitesimal reduction made in the face of the testimony of all independent sugar producers that the industry does not need the protection and that practically the whole of the tax goes into the pockets of the sugar trust.

The country has need to be conservative in any demand for the retention of a tax which the bill proposes to remove, and it has also great need to voice its demand that substantial reductions should be made upon all necessaries.

FREE BUT RESPONSIBLE.

"It is a surprise and a disappointment to observe the attitude of The Duluth Herald, which we have considered was animated by more just and liberty loving principles, upon the tyrannical Roosevelt assault upon the freedom of the press in the unprecedented prosecution of the New York World and the Indianapolis News which he instituted," says the Freeborn County Standard.

If the Standard really believes The Herald to be what it says above, "animated by just and liberty loving principles," it should neither be surprised or disappointed at the attitude which The Herald has taken. If men must humbly bow the head to every vicious and lying assault made upon their character, without the right to stand upright and defend their honor, where is the boasted manhood of America, where our vaunted liberty? The press is free in America; it may print what it pleases, but it is answerable to every man for the consequences. The puny power of man might almost as well assault the gates of heaven to overturn them, as attempt to deny or abridge the freedom of the press in this country. But when the press publishes abroad statements attacking the honor and the good name of men it must be prepared to defend those statements in court. What a contemptible thing it is to publish the most scandalous accusations against a man, and when called upon to prove those accusations, to creep behind the skirts of the goddess of free speech and whimper that the goddess is being attacked.

The Standard says that the prosecution of the New York World and the Indianapolis News is "iniquitous, outrageous, and personally revengeful and vicious." The Standard does not disclose by what process of reasoning it arrives at this remarkable conclusion and The Herald is unable to conceive of any arguments which will justify the use of such violent adjectives against any man who calls upon his accusers to face him in open court and prove their charges. Is any man in America so vile a thing, that he will allow any newspaper to utter such scandals about him as were uttered by the papers mentioned against the president of the United States, a candidate for the presidency and the near relatives of these gentlemen, without moving himself in his defense, without calling his slanderers to account? Such a man would merit the contempt of all; he would universally be adjudged to be guilty as charged.

What is the freedom of the press? Is it the right to print and publish any lie and any slander against any man and be free from prosecution? That is exactly what it would be if the attitude taken by the Standard could be written into the law of the land.

If for a man to call upon a newspaper that has published the most serious charges against his character to meet him face to face in open court and prove those charges is "a vicious blow at free government," let us rain down blows upon free government until the last spark of life is pounded out of it. But The Herald has no such conceptions of a free government; a free government does not compel any man, be he a ditch digger or a president of the United States, to submit to calumny.

The Herald will maintain the freedom of the press with its last breath, but it will also maintain the responsibility of the press for every syllable that it may utter; otherwise the press were an unrivaled instrument of tyranny and a cloak of darkness to every evil, instead of the flaming torch of enlightenment it is to all the world.

INHERITANCE TAX ECONOMICALLY SOUND.

The inheritance tax provision of the Payne tariff bill is coming in for the brunt of the criticism of that measure. There are thirty-five states that have inheritance tax laws at present, Minnesota being one of these. Several states have already passed resolutions by their legislatures memorializing congress to leave the inheritance tax as a means of raising revenue for the states. There is, however, no reason why both the state and the nation may not levy a tax upon inheritances, unless it can be found in the rather doubtful argument that it simply aggravates a tax that is already a class tax.

The proposed national inheritance tax law will levy a small tax on collateral inheritances from $500 up to $10,000. No tax will be levied on direct inheritances under $10,000. Over that figure the rate is much heavier on both direct and collateral inheritances.

There are sound economic reasons to justify the inheritance tax, most of which have been set forth in The Herald on different occasions. The inheritance tax does not in any way disturb business, it prevents the withdrawal of a portion of the wealth of the nation from active use in business, and it returns to the state a portion of that wealth which the very rich have in excess of that which their talents and powers can in any way legitimately earn for them.

The argument that the inheritance tax is a class tax may appeal to persons of great wealth, but we may doubt if economists will hold it to be sound. At any rate it is a notorious fact that wealth now escapes paying its just share of the cost of maintaining the state, and if some means can be devised by which it shall be forced to pay taxes on what it actually has, an injustice will simply have been in a measure corrected.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"I believe that there will be more woodsmen in Duluth this spring than there have been for the past two or three years," said E. F. Martin at the McKay yesterday. Mr. Martin has just come down from Scanlon, and says that several of the big camps will break up in a few days and that more than 2,000 men from one large lumber company will be coming down toward Duluth.

"There will be an early break-up this spring," he says. "There is going to be a fairly heavy movement of labor westward, and for that reason many of the men are coming out of the woods early.

"Some of the camps have already begun to break up, and most of the men are coming through Duluth. This will be the last year for some of the big camps in the northern part of Minnesota. Scanlon will be almost a thing of the past after the present lumber season is over. The gerat timber belts are disappearing, and I have no doubt that some of the jackies, who have come to Duluth for years, will hit Duluth for the last time upon the present trip.

"You see, there is a very strong demand for men in the timber belts of the West. Agents of companies operating in the Western and the Southwestern timber belts, have been in the habit of sending for men in the northern part of the state. Duluth is one of the largest labor markets in this part of the country, and in the past Duluth has supplied many woodsmen to the Western, Southwestern and coast timber belts. If the timber operations in the Western country increase the present year, you will see a greater demand for men.

"At any rate, there will be a great many woodsmen come down this way this spring. I have noticed an unusual number of men upon the streets at the present time—more than there were in Duluth at this time last year—and you will find a proportionate increase as the camps begin to break up."

E. Hultquist of Attala, Wash., returned to Duluth yesterday from a trip through the Western country. He says there will be an immense immigration to all parts of the West this year, not only through the heavy travel that will result from people going to the fair, but through the great number of people who are going to take advantage of the cheap rates.

Mr. Hultquist says many people are seeking cheap homes in the West. Many of the land men are of the opinion that more land will be taken during the present year than ever before in the history of the West or the Southwest. There is a great movement to the fruit lands of the West and to the cheaper lands of the Southwest.

John Stokke, the recently elected mayor of Floodwood, who was at the St. Louis Saturday, is not an executive who believes that it is necessary to begin his term of office with some sweeping reform wave.

"The people up our way are pretty good citizens," said Mr. Stokke. "I suppose that every man who is elected to any kind of office has some ambition to accomplish some reforms, to do something that will have made the office better for his having occupied it. I have this desire, as far as the office of mayor of Floodwood is concerned, but we stand in need of no sweeping municipal reforms up there, for the most of us are conscientious and honest. We have the kind of citizens to do right by instinct, and those are the kind of people who make being a mayor an easier task than it might be in other instances."

According to W. M. Starkweather, the people of Sparta are still coming over Gilbert way, and the latter village continues to increase as Sparta continues to put on a more desolate appearance. Mr. Starkweather says building is going on rapidly in Gilbert, that plenty of capital is being invested there, and that to all appearances the town has a very bright future.

The Best Way Out.

Baltimore Sun: In this matter of readjusting taxation and levying new taxes the Republican party is walking on thin ice. The pocket nerve is sensitive, and any serious jar to that sensitive organ is sure to cause resentment at the polls. Possibly the best plan at the extra session would be to substitute some revenue tariff rates for prohibitory rates, and then let congress cut the coat according to the cloth and limit appropriations to the income of the government. With a revision along this line, returning business activity would produce abundant revenue.

Prospective.

Indianapolis News: There is every prospect that this year's June bride crop will be large, but subsequent legal proceedings may show that it did not come up to expectations.

THE WEATHER.

Rubbers or water-tight shoes are the thing today. It's as slushy and muddy as a love story in a 10-cent magazine. Last night and this morning a half-rain, half-snow fell, making it extremely disagreeable under foot. The temperature is warm, last night's minimum being 30 degs. above zero. More snow or rain is expected tonight or tomorrow.

The sun rise schedule this morning was 6:05 and the sunset 6:24. A year ago today it was clear and warm in Duluth.

Mr. Richardson says of weather conditions:

"Temperatures average close to the freezing polut in nearly all Northern districts. The barometer remains high over the lake region and is rising in Alberta. Low preasures overlie Nevada, Utah, Manitoba and the New England coast, attended by a quite general increase in warmth over the whole country during the past twenty-four hours. These disturbances also caused light snow or rain over Lake Superior, Minnesota, Manitoba, Nevada, Southern Utah, Southern California, Arizona and Southeastern Texas since 7 a. m. Monday. The easterly movement of the Manitoba low pressure area will doubtless cause further light snow or possibly rain at the Head of the Lakes tonight and Wednesday."

Taxes on Charity.

New York Evening Post: A tax on charity should be unknown in civilized countries, but that will not persuade Sereno Payne to remove the tariff from all medical and surgical supplies imported for hospital use. Your protectionist has never been a stickler for precedent; indeed, he is fond of doing things unheard of. And, as for letting humane considerations enter into this ad valorem percentages, that is contrary to the deepest spirit of his enterprise. For all that, however, he will find it difficult to refuse the petition of the New York city hospitals. It is so very awkward to argue that the American manufacturer of antiseptics and lancets should be considered before the unfortunates on whom his products are used; and there is no other possible objection. The revenue accruing to the government from this source is but a mite in the treasury; to our charitable institutions, though, it means much. If the Roosevelt hospital will save $3,000 a year when its supplies are on the free list, the funds thus released for extending charity will amount to a handsome bequest. Thousands that now are collected at the expense of human suffering and spent perhaps for the deepening of New York or Oklahoma harbor will then buy extra beds and service. Can even a "standpatter" resist the opportunity to play the large philathropist?

When We Are Dead.

John D. Rockefeller may
Have more cash than I have hay—
Little profit comes from writing foolish rhyme—
I'm a plain financial wreck,
But that man can draw his check
For a million and a half at any time.
Yet I find that I can pay
For three modest meals a day.
And at night I have a place to rest my head;
Wide as now the gulf may be
'Twixt myself and old John D.,
I will have as much as he when we are dead.

What a life that man has led Trying hard to get ahead,
Breaking in where there were profits to be had.
Knocking the competition out,
Putting other men to rout—
Now the man is half a billion to the bad.
All that fabulous amount
Credited to his account,
Will be lost to him when all is done and said;
Death is camping on his track,
He will have to put it back—
I will have as much as he when we are dead.

Looking back o'er life today,
I have only this to say,
I have had a heap of pleasure right along;
Tending sheep or writing rhyme
I have had a bully time,
And the earth seems full of gladness and of song.
I have heard the wild birds sing
Their glad welcome to the spring—
In these richest gifts of God I'm way ahead.
John D. cannot understand
How much wealth he has on hand—
I will have as much as he when we are dead.
—DOC BIXBY, in Nebraska State Journal.

A Feminine Apology.

"I'd like to be a suffragette,"
She said with truth sublime.
"I ought to clam my rights; and yet
I cannot find the time.

"I have no leisure to go out
With speeches brave and strong,
Because of tots, who climb about
To hear the mother song.

"I'd like to be extolled and sought,
With lofty thinkers ranked;
But I have girls who must be taught
And boys who must be spanked.

"And so admiringly I let
My friends to glory climb;
I'd like to be a suffragette,
But cannot find the time.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Aitkin Republican: The bill limiting the number of saloons to one for every 500 of the population has passed both houses of the legislature and will likely get the approval of the governor and become a law. This law will not disturb existing saloons and if one goes out of business, it is stated that the council of a village may grant another license. The only way the present number of saloons can be reduced is to vote them out altogether for a year and if at the end of the year the people of a village want them re-established, the law would be in effect, and only one could be allowed for every 500 of the population. This may result in many towns voting out saloons for a year and it may not. The daily newspapers state that this law was favored by the brewers, and if this be true, it is an indication that they see the handwriting on the wall and deem it wise to make some concessions to the sentiment in favor of temperance reform. This helps some.

Sauk Rapids Sentinel Free Press: The state senate killed the bill providing for the nomination of United States senators by the people. It is interesting to read the arguments of the "Johnson-for-governor" press against a senatorial primary. It is also rather discouraging to think that men with red blood in their arteries let their fear of Johnson's possible elect on to the national senate cloud their sense of right principles.

Monticello Times: Mr. Taft has written a letter on optimism. It will be interesting to compare it with his message to congress in a year or two.

Alexandria Post-News: The legislature proposes to abolish the bounty of $200 for catching a horse thief. This is one of many laws now on the statute books which have long ago outgrown their usefulness. There is no more excuse for a bounty on horse thieves than there is for the detection of night prowlers about a hen coop.

Little Falls Herald: Such an exhibition of frankly confessed fear of John A. Johnson as given by the Republican senators in killing the bill providing for a direct vote in this state on United States senators, has been seldom witnessed. It is just such actions as these that increase the governor's hold on the people. They will reason that if the governor can so terrify the dominant party, he must have qualities above the ordinary and they will proceed to put him where he can use those qualities.

Sauk Center Herald: The Minnesota legislature is so "skeered" of John A. Johnson that it promptly killed a bill providing for the nomination of United States senators by popular vote.

St. Cloud Times: St. Cloud granite producers vote "No" on the stone clause in the tariff bill.

Ortonville Herald-Star: It has just been discovered that the dreadful inauguration day blizzard at Washington was the result of a spring editorial in one of the Washington dailies. Since the awful experience of the Pioneer Press some years ago, no Minnesota newspaper ever springs a spring editorial in March.

Sugar Might Be Cheaper.

Utica Press: There is a very general demand that something be done about the tariff as it affects sugar. The statisticians say that now it is taxed at about 80 per cent of its value, whereas an automobile can come to this country from France with a duty of only 35 per cent. Sugar is a necessity, and automobiles are a luxury. It is said on what purports to be good authority that if the duty on sugar were removed it would be possible to buy granulated sugar at 2 cents a pound less than is now being paid, and that in the aggregate, the whole United States taken into account, this would mean a saving of $142,000,000 a year to the consumers. The theory of government is the greatest good to the greatest number, and if that be the rule, the tariff should be changed, because there are precious few who profit by the arrangement, and there are millions upon millions who would profit by the change proposed.

Sugar goes into every family, and as well to every hotel and boarding house Everybody eats it and the per capita consumption is a good deal more than most people think. It is only the sugar trust that gets any profit out of the present tariff, and the sugar trust would continue to make money in reasonable amounts if the duty were entirely removed. There is nobody in the United States actually needing the particular protection which is thus afforded. There is always an attempt to get up a little howl on the part of the beet sugar growers. There are not many of them at best, and if they must be protected, by all means let it be done by a bounty. Neither the wholesalers nor the retailers make any more money under present conditions than they would if the duty were removed. In fact they are in favor of such removal, and on account of it no American interest would actually suffer. It would seem as if the real question is whether the sugar trust is big enough and influential enough to control congress, or whether the wishes of the people in every state of the Union will have the greater weight.

The Village Blacksmith.

New York World: The Romans used to call Cincinnacus from his plow to serve the state in critical times, and the people of North Pelham seem to have recognized an efficient public servant in the village blacksmith they have four times chosen to be their president. From the anvil came one of the most noted of Unitarian clergymen, Robert Collyer, and "the learned blacksmith," Elihu Burritt, a linguist and philanthropist with an international reputation. No good reason is apparent why it should not be at least as good a training school for a city official as the saloon.

The choice of a city executive from a blacksmith shop would excite less notice in other parts of the country, where men are elected to local offices from all trades, than in the suburbs of the city which has largely restricted political preferment to occupations not so desirable.

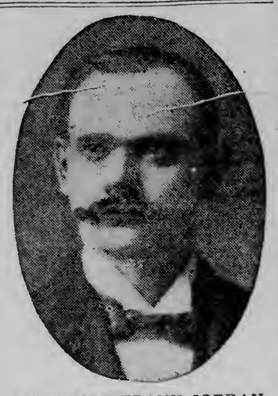
Long Deadlock Is Broken On the Eleventh Ballot.

John Hogan Elected Vice President on the Tenth Ballot.



ALDERMAN FRANK JORDAN,
New President of the Council.

Alderman Frank Jordan was elected president of the city council last night, upon the eleventh ballot of the evening. John Hogan was elected vice president on the tenth ballot. Vain attempts were made at the three preceding meetings to decide upon a president, bringing the total number of ballots cast up to seventy-one.

Alderman Jordan was something in the nature of a dark horse. On the first nine ballots, Alderman Shartel was in the lead, with six to eight votes. On one ballot, he received 8 votes, where 9 were necessary to elect. The remaining votes were scattered about among the aldermen.

After the ninth ballot, a ten-minute recess was taken, and evidently an agreem nt was reached before the end of the recess, for upon the second ballot after the council was again called to order, Mr. Jordan was declared elected.

The balloting for president was put off until all the other business of the evening had been taken care of. At the conclusion of such business, a motion for adjournment was made, but it was lost, by a vote of 7 to 8. A motion to proceed with the balloting for president was lost by the same vote. At this point, President Getchell ruled that the council should go ahead with its balloting, making it unnecessary for the motion to pass.

The resolution adopted last week, authorizing the repair of the Sixth avenue viaduct, was returned without the mayor's signature. He said in a note attached that the railroad companies could be compelled to stand the full cost of repair, about $3,000, and recommended that, after the city engineer had prepared plans and specifications for the work, the companies be ordered to go ahead with it. This recommendation was carried out by a resolution covering the points in question, and the Northern Pacific and Omaha roads and the Union Depot company will be called upon to stand the cost of repairs.

Alderman Shartel withdrew his ordinance designed to make it a misdemeanor for minors to purchase intoxicants by misrepresenting their ages, and substituted another covering the same points, but applying only to boys from 18 to 21 years of age.

A resolution was passed directing the starting of condemnation proceedings for an easy-grade roadway over the hill at Sixty-seventh avenue west. The road will start from Highland street and Sixty-seventh avenue west, and will extend about two miles to the city limits at a point on the St. Louis river road, thence over the hill.

J. L. Washburn, by letter, thanked the council on behalf of the state normal school, of which he is a director, for its recent action in vacating a portion of Garden street, for the use of the school.

The alderman were notified that William Casey was about to enter suit for $3,000 damages against the city, because he was thrown from his wagon on Seventh avenue west and Superior street, owing to a hole in the pavement.

A resolution was adopted directing the street railway company to lay a double track on West Fourth street before that street is paved. The West Fourth street line runs on Fourth street from Fifth avenue west to Sixth avenue east.

The proposed ordinance governing peddlers, hawkers, etc., and the matter of condemning land for the extension of Railroad street, were laid over for one week, because of the press of other business.

ISSUE CALL FOR A CONVENTION

Sunday School Workers of the County Will Organize.

For the purpose of forming a county Sunday school association, a call has been issued for a convention in Duluth, on April 23 and 24. Following is a copy of the call:

"There is a movement among all churches for better Sunday schools, and a desire on every hand for more efficient Sunday school workers, and for practical methods of doing Sunday school work. Sunday school associations have been formed that institutes and conventions might be held.

"Many of the counties of this state have their county Sunday school associations. Without exception the Sunday schools of these counties are growing in membership. Practical methods are being introduced and teachers and officers are being trained for more efficient service. The result is that churches are being strengthened, and the best interests of communities furthered.

"From our experience with a local association, through which much good has come to our Sunday schools, we believe that God will bless the Sunday schools of St. Louis county, through a county association. With the desire in our hearts that He will do this, we issue this call to all Sunday school workers and friends in St. Louis county, to meet in a convention at Duluth, April 23 and 24, 1909, at which time a county association will be formed.

A Religious Author's Statement.

Rev. Joseph H. Fesperhan, Salisbury, N. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy." Sold by all druggists.

BILL PROVIDES NATIONAL CONSUMPTION SANITARIUM.

Washington, March 23.—An appropriation of $250,000,000 is provided for the establishment of a national tubercular sanitarium in Colorado, in a bill introduced by Representative Sabath of Illinois. The measure directs the secretary of the treasury to acquire a site comprising not less than 20,000 acres, and to erect suitable buildings and supply complete equipment for the usages and treatment of any person in the United States afflicted with tuberculosis.

VERIFY IT.

The Proof Is In Duluth Almost at Your Door.

The public statement of a Duluth citizen is in itself strong proof for Duluth people, but confirmation strengthens the evidence.

Here is a Duluth citizen who testified years ago that Doan's Kidney Pills relieved sick kidneys and now states the cure was permanent. Can any sufferer from kidney ills ask better proof? You can investigate. The case is right at home.

J. H. Tomlin, 112 W. Palmetto St., Duluth, Minn., says: "Backache clung to me persistently for two years and finally became so bad that I had to lay off from work. If I brought the least strain on the muscles of my back, sharp pains would seize me. The kidney secretions were also irregular in passage and I did not rest well. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me in 1898 and at that time I publicly endorsed them. I am only too pleased to again speak in their favor, as I have never suffered from kidney trouble since."

JEALOUSY OF JOHNSON

Johnson, calling attention to the need of such action.

Delay has been due to the fact that the Republican steering committee of the house feared that, if the commission plan were adopted, Governor Johnson would get some credit out of it, because the compromise plan between labor and capital came through his hands and with his indorsement.

The house is now considering a bill, fathered by several members of the house, but prepared largely by Representative D. A. Stuart of Winona, which is to be considered this week. There is absolutely no question of the good faith of Mr. Stuart in presenting this bill. He believes in it, and his argument in its favor last week was strong and able. It may be that when the commission proposed gets through with its investigations it will present to the legislature a measure very like his. But the argument that in the time at the disposal of the legislature, this problem cannot be settled for all time, is unsurmountable. If both capital and labor are willing to postpone action for two years, giving time for an honest, earnest and exhaustive investigation of all sides of the question, it is hard to overcome the proposition that the legislature, which ought to seek only exact justice to all interests, should be willing to grant the time desired, especially as the legislature, in all its history thus far, has steadfastly stood in the way of progress in this matter.

The commission plan includes three bills. The first provides for a committee of three to investigate the proposition in the next two years, and to report a bill, based upon its investigations, to the next legislature. The commission is to consist of one representative of the employers, one representative of labor, and one lawyer, to be appointed by the governor, and to receive no compensation whatever as members. The second bill requires all casualty and indemnity companies to report to the state insurance commissioner all accidents to workingmen, with full particulars regarding each, and the third requires employers to make full reports of accidents to the state labor commissioner. The information derived from these two measures is expected to help materially in directing the commission in its work af framing the workingmen's compensation act, which it is expected to report—if the commission creates it—to the legislature at its next session.

Representative Gates of Kenyon introduced a bill yesterday afternoon which has a direct bearing upon this problem. It abolishes the "fellow-servant" rule as to the following industries: Street railways, mines, quarries, machine shops, foundries, sawmills, planing mills, waterworks, electric light and power plants, slaughter houses, grading work or manufacturing.

Elmer Adams' bill, changing the plan of a farm for inebriates, adopted two years ago, was killed by the adoption of an adverse committee report. The law of 1907 provides that the money shall come from a 2 per cent tax upon liquor license fees, and authorizes the board of control to buy a site and construct the institution. Mr. Adams' bill limits the expenditure to $100,000, and provides that the board of control can buy state lands for the site. His idea was that the unfortunate seekers after relief from the demon Rum could be put to work clearing up state land. The committee on board of control, however, recommended the bill for indefinite postponement.

Mr. Adams moved as a substitute for the adoption of the committee report that the bill be printed and placed on general orders. This motion was lost by a tie, 39 for and 39 against, and the committee report was adopted.

The board of control has selected a site at Willmar, and has almost reached the point of purchase.

Representative Grant of Duluth got the rules suspended yesterday afternoon on two bills affecting St. Louis county and Duluth. One, by the St. Louis county delegation, increases the salary of the St. Louis county judge of probate from $3,000 a year to $3,600 a year, and fixes his clerk hire at $4,200 annually. The other, by Representative Congdon of Duluth, authorizes cities of the first class—Duluth, St. Paul and Minneapolis—to "lay out, open, build, maintain and repair roads, streets, boulevards, parkways and other public highways outside their corporate limits," and gives such cities the right of condemnation for these purposes.

The extension of a boulevard drive along the lake shore east of Duluth is said to be the object of this measure.

The house committee on public lands has recommended for passage the so-called Iverson bill, creating a separate state land department, by separating from the state auditor's office the present land department, under a chief appointed by the governor.

The Brady-Nimocks bill against red, white and blue tights is going farther than the joke for which it was intended. After Brady and Nimocks had repudiated the bill and Representative Sawyer of Minneapolis had adopted it, the measure was referred to the committee on crimes and punishment. The committee yesterday afternoon recommended the bill for indefinite postponement, and introduced a substitute to the same effect, which will be printed and placed on general orders. The committee bill makes it unlawful for any "female person to wear red, white and blue tights, or any other unseemly apparel displaying national colors in any public performance in this state," under penalty of $1,000 fine or ninety days in jail.

On motion of its author, J. N. Johnson of Canby, the bill putting the issuance of stocks and bonds by Minnesota railroads under the supervision of the railroad and warehouse commission, was made a special order for Friday morning. This is the bill which two years ago was known as the "Rockne bill."

As a result of the adoption of a resolution by Representative Zelch, the house chamber will be given over on the afternoon of March 31 to exercises appropriate to the unveiling of a statute of Col. William Colvill of the First Minnesota. The house at the same time accepted an invitation to be present.

The house adopted the resolution by the committee on mines and minerals calling for a state mines building at Hibbing, and requesting the committee on appropriations to provide $25,000 for its construction.

A joint resolution by Representative Gates, asking congress to put coal and lumber on the free list because they are public necessities controlled by trusts, was adopted by the house.

A resolution by Representative Doyle, asking congress to maintain the tariff on finished granite, was referred to the committee on manufactures.

Representative White put over until today by a notice of debate a resolution by Representative Lennon calling for a joint committee of five house members and three senators to investigate the pending amendment to the commodity rate law of 1907, and to negotiate if possible an amicable compromise with the railroads on this subject. The law of 1907 is now pending in the United States supreme court on an appeal from the local federal court, and Mr. Lennon charged that the present amendment is in the interests of the railroads because it will furnish further occasion for litigation and therefore for further delay of the settlement of the matter. In the meantime excessive rates are being paid, and the longer the litigation continues, the longer those rates will be collected.

Representative Holten introduced a bill providing for county probation officers in all counties of more than 30,000 inhabitants, to enforce the law providing for compulsory attendance at school. Now the law provides for probation officers or truant officers in communities of over 50,000 inhabitants.

To prevent doctors and druggists from infracting anti-liquor laws, J. N. Johnson of Canby yesterday afternoon introduced a bill providing punishment for dispensing liquor by either doctors or druggists except for medical purposes. Violations are to be punished, not only by fine or imprisonment, but by forfeiture of licenses.

Aid for school districts where, by reason of the fact that a large proportion of the property which gives employment to the population is railroad property and, therefore, pays no local taxes, it is impossible to raise taxes enough properly to support the schools, is provided by a bill which Representative Grant of Duluth introduced in the house yesterday afternoon. It provides that in school districts not containing more than 3,000 inhabitants, where such conditions prevail, the state auditor may pay out of the general school fund money to keep the schools going, limited to $3,500 in each case.

Representative Grant also introduced a bill for the relief of F. L. Ryan, surveyor general of logs and lumber at Duluth. It appropriates $18,476.94 for disbursements and expenses incurred by him in scaling logs at the boom of the Rainy River Boom corporation in Beltrami county in 1905, 1906, 1907 and 1908. The scaling is required by law, so Mr. Ryan, in doing it, merely complied with his lawful duties, but the company is resisting payment because the logs were in international waters. In consideration of the appropriation, Mr. Ryan is to assign to the state his bill for fees, which are to be collected by the state.

There is a precedent for this action in a case where logs were scaled in the Mississippi river between Minnesota and Wisconsin. In that casse the scaling was required by law, and when the boom company resisted payment, the state paid the surveyor and fought the case in court, winning out in the end.

A bill by Representative Welter of Scott county, introduced yesterday afternoon, leaves the closing hour for saloons up to the "governing body of the municipalities granting the licenses." This would go further than the midnight lid bill, by abolishing the state law on saloon closing altogether, and leaving the matter subject entirely to local regulation.

Representative Sulerud is the author of a bill reorganizing two Ninth congressional district legislative districts. The Sixty-first district is to consist of Norman, Clearwater and Mahnomen counties, with one senator and two representatives, one of whom is to come from Norman county.

The Sixty-fourth district is to consist of Beltrami and Red Lake counties, with one senator and two representatives, one from each county. These counties are now included in one district with one senator and two representatives.

The fate of the proposed state agricultural school for Foley, Benton county, proves that the country press need not be without influence. The bill was introduced by Representative Doyle of the Benton county district, and it was reported for indefinite postponement today by the house committee on agricultural schools. The reason for the killing of the bill is said to be the activity of the Foley Independent in attacking leaders of the house who were in a position to use this method of retaliation.

HELD UP BY TWO HIGHWAYMEN

Asa Tark Robbed of $5 on Lower Lake Avenue.

Asa Tark of 330 Lake avenue south was held up and robbed last night by two unarmed highwaymen. He was on his way home about 11 o'clock, and when within a block of the house two men sprang at him. They grasped him by the throat, and compelled him to hand over $5 which he had in his pocket.

The holdup was reported to the police, and with Tark's assistance Officer Andree located the two men, claimed by Tark to be the right ones, in a saloon in the vicinity. They gave their names at the police station as Hjalmar Olio and Emil Hamlund.

The alleged holding artists pleaded not guilty in municipal court this morning, and their hearing was set for tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

EAST GRAND FORKS MUST OBSERVE LAW.

East Grand Forks, N. D., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor Dunlevy has ordered City Attorney Finlayson to draw up notices citing the law with reference to pool rooms and billiard halls visited by those under the age of 21 years. The law prohibits any person under the age of 21 years to participate in a game of pool, billiards or cards in a saloon or any room adjoining a saloon, or in a place where cigars, tobacco or soft drinks are sold or disposed of, except it be water.

Proprietors of pool halls were warned today by receiving notice served by Mayor Dunlevy that in the event of any violation the proprietors of such places will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

GIVEN $1,200 FOR ELECTRIC SHOCK

Jury Awards Damages to Stephen Foster in District Court.

A jury in district court yesterday afternoon brought in a verdict for $1,200 in favor of Stephen Foster and against the Duluth Street Railway company.

Foster sued for $20,000, claiming that while he was in the employ of the company painting a pole at the intersection of Garfield avenue and Superior street, Sept. 14, 1907, he received an electric shock, which did serious injury to his sight, hearing and nervous system.

The accident was alleged to have been caused by a trolley pole slipping from the wire and striking the span wire, which supports the trolley wire. The street railway company was charged with negligence in having the wire system at this point improperly insulated.

The company claimed that Foster had received no shock, offering expert testimony to show that no shock of the kind Foster claimed he received could have been sustained; and even if it had been received, Foster could not have received the injuries he complained of. Late yesterday afternoon the jury decided to award the old man $1,200.

ON THE IRON RANGES

CHISHOLM IS GOING AHEAD

Building Improvements in Once Devasted Village Are Marked.

Chisholm, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—In ruins last September and today one of the best towns on the range that is probably doing more building than any other Chisholm is certainly anything but a quiet place. On all sides are evidences of the truth of the prophesy made when the fire wiped the place off the map to build a newer, better and larger Chisholm.

George E. Kreatz, the contractor for the Neally hotel is pushing the work of completion most rapidly. The plastering is now completed, the finishing lumber has all arrived and a large force of carpenters are putting on the the finishing touches, and it is no small job on a building of this size having sixty rooms, besides the family rooms, rooms for the help, the kitchen, dining room, office and parlor and a number of other rooms for miscellaneous purposes. The new hostelry will be opened to the public about April 15.

Mr. Kreatz is also the contractor for the city hall building, and has had a crew of men busy the past month cleaning up the debris and ruins of the old city hall, in preparation of starting the building as soon as the weather permits. Mr. Kreatz has ordered all his material for the building and will push work thereon as fast as possible when once started in earnest. For a building costing $50,000, this will surpass anything in the state for neatness, quality and arrangement.

Gust Anderson has secured the contract for the erection of Isaac Lewis' residence on Chestnut street. This is going to be one of the nicest and best constructed frame buildings in the town.

SALOON MAN IS VICIOUSLY CUT

Attacked in Virginia at Night by Man Lying in Wait.

Virginia, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jim Seborski, a local saloon keeper, was assaulted Sunday night while on his way home, and received an ugly cut across the face with a knife.

His assailant lay in wait for him at the corner of Wyoming avenue and Cedar street, and when Seborski approached jumped out and slashed him across the face. Seborski was taken to the Miller hospital, where his wound was found not of a serious nature, but an ugly one and will probably leave a scar for life.

FOR RURAL TELEPHONE.

Farmers of Waldo, Lake County, Organize 'Phone Company.

Two Harbors, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tn enthusiastic meeting of the farmers of Waldo township has just been held at the Stewart river schoolhouse and preliminary steps taken for the organization of the Lake County Rural Telephone company. L. D. Rose was elected as chairman and E. E. Cavalin secretary of the temporary organization. There was much enthusiasm at the meeting and enough shares were spoken for to insure the success of the project. The shares will sell at $25 each. Arrangements will be made with the Duluth & Iron Range Telephone company exchange for connections and the use of the long-distance facilities, which will assure the company of good service from the outset.

PROPERTY OWNERS ARE AGAINST IMPROVEMENTS.

Two Harbors, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Owing to the protests of property owners, who were present in large numbers last night, the city council did not act on the bids for grading and macadamizing portions of Second and Fourth avenues. The bids went over until the next meeting.

Pastoret & Lawrence submitted the only bid for the contract to grade and macadamize Fourth avenue between Willow and Bird streets, their figures being $20,262.96, an average of $1.75 per 50-foot lot. For the contract to grade and macadamize Second avenue between Cedar and Poplar streets, the bid of Pastoret & Lawrence was $4,752 and of Beckman Bros., $5,414.

ANOTHER BOATHOUSE BURNED BY FIREBUGS.

Coleraine, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The firebugs who recently set fire to and destroyed Foley's boathouse on Trout lake and burned it to the ground, are believed to have caused the fire that destroyed the Ingalls Motor Boat company's house near the same place yesterday, involving a loss of about $2,000, with about $1,000 insurance.

In the building were twenty rowboats and a gasoline launch. The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin.

Mr. Ingalls has been at Shell Lake, Wis., where he was superintending the construction of a launch with a capacity of 150 passengers.

WANT SPECIAL ELECTION.

Charter Commission Asks Virginia Council to Fix Date.

Virginia, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—An adjourned meeting of the council was held last evening. The session was a short one and only a few minor matters were taken up and disposed of. A communication from the charter commission was read asking for a call for a special election to vote on the new charter recently framed by the commission. This was laid over until the next regular meeting.

Coleraine I. O. O. F. Dance.

Coleraine, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first annual ball of the local lodge of Odd Fellows will be held at the auditorium of the Greenway school Tuesday evening, April 13.

EVELETH WILL SEND PROTEST

Meeting Tuesday Night to Denounce Tonnage Tax Bill.

Eveleth, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The passage of the tonnage tax by the house of representatives has brought forth a storm of protest from this section, the part of the state most interested. On all sides that is one of the main questions of the day, and many are figuring whether or not the bill will become a law. If it does, it will affect all the towns on the range, and the business men of Eveleth, seeing this, have called a special meeting of the Commercial club, to be held tonight, at the city hall, when resolutions will be passed concerning the tonnage tax.

These resolutions will be sent to the senate at once.

The other towns around here are also very much interested, and at the Gilbert Commercial club meeting last night, the matter would have been brought up were it not for the lateness of the hour. The business men see in the passage of the law much harm to them, and will do what they can to help stop the passage of the bill.

GILBERT FIGHTS FOR EXISTENCE

Committee Will Try to Straighten Out Present Tangle.

Gilbert, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial club last night discussed the decision of the supreme court declaring the incorporation of the village null and void. A committee composed of John Saari, A. E. McInnis and Neil McInnis was appointed to do what they see proper and necessary for the best interests of the town.

Village Attorney McGilvery reviewed the case and the reasons underlying the decision which was that the Mariska and La Belle mines, which could have no benefit from the municipality, and were quite a distance from the town proper, were included in the incorporation.

Mr. McGilvery has not received the full text of the decision and does not know its exact provisions. There was much discussion as to whether contracts and licenses made by the village council were good, and it was shown that they were. All present were resolved to affect a new incorporation.

Every effort will be made to see if all the acts of the village council are legal, and if necessary the committee will go down to St. Paul to see the legislature and, if necessary, have some legislation passed which will so help the town that it will not lose much by re-incorporation.

A committee composed of Solomon Sax, Fred Masterson, Judge Welsh, W. Colvin and Harry Silver, was appointed to solicit funds to finance any movements the executive committee will formulate. Quite a sum was secured from those that were present.

If a federal question is involved and it is deemed necessary, the case will be appealed to the United States supreme court.

PROFITABLE POSTOFFICE.

Virginia Office is Certainly Not a Losing Proposition.

Virginia, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Comparing the cost of the local postoffice last year, placed at $8,000, with the gross receipts, $14,783, the office cleared about $6,000.

The registry division in charge of Mrs. Alice L. Giles showed an increase, there being 4,884 pieces received for registration during the year. The pieces coming into this city from other offices number about 6,000. The enormous amount done through the postal money orders is enough to astonish the average civilian. Throughout last year there were 11,081 domestic orders issued, aggregating $115,990.18 for which the government received $776.44 in fees. There were 1,113 foreign orders issued, aggregating $36,366.81, for which Uncle Sam received $260.73. From these figures are seen that the receipts at the money order window were $153,070.16. The burden of this responsibility rests largely on the shoulders of C. Oscar Peterson, who has proved himself a very able and efficient clerk.

The general delivery window is presided over by Cora E. Bolen and William A. Brenner, and their work is very satisfactory.

The assistant postmaster is Victor Peterson, who is well and popularly known. Mrs. J. R. James, the postmistress, is congratulated upon the very efficient and satisfactory way in which she conducts the office.

HIBBING CONCERN GETS BIG ELECTRIC CONTRACT.

Eveleth Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The school board has awarded the electric lighting contract for the new high school building to the Hibbing Electric company, whose bid was $1,497.

The other bids were as follows: Unity Electric company, St. Paul, $1,575; H. W. Irwin and Abe Rauma, Eveleth, $1,875; Electric Construction company, St. Paul, $1,895; Harrity Electric company, Superior, $1,510.

From present indications, the high school building will be finished in less than the expected time, so that more time can be given for the inside furnishings. The building has been worked on with all possible speed, so that everything will be ready for the opening of the building next September.

NOT DISHEARTENED.

Gilbert, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The invalidating of the incorporation of this place has had very little effect on building operations. The property owners have faith in the town, and a number of people are building at present on the main street. The lumber companies find very little difference since the decision was made known, in the matter of sales. The town has a very good appearance, with its street lights and sidewalks. The new road from Eveleth coming in on Broadway makes the street a very long one. The mines around the town are working good, and the future of the town looks bright, though the recent decision may tend in a measure to dampen affairs for a while until everything is straightened out.

The new laboratory at Gilbert is one of the best on the range. Ore will be sampled here for the Gilbert mines and also for that district including the McKinley, Genoa and Duluth. H. S. Sherman of Eveleth is in charge of the laboratory, and most of the ideas embodied in the laboratory are those of the men working there. The latest processes for analyzing ores will be used, and electricity will be used throughout. The mining operations around Gilbert promise to be big this season, and the town should grow rapidly.

The council will transact business as formerly until it receives the writ of ouster from the supreme court. A meeting will be held Monday.

AFTER WRING'S SCALP.

Hibbing, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charges of offensive ture, will be preferred against Chief partisanship, or something of that nature of Police Peter Wring at tonight's village council meeting, if one can credit reports current.

It is said that the chief took an active part in the late campaign in the interest of a certain candidate, and the rival candidate wants his scalp. The chief is not losing ny sleep over the matter, believing he can successfully combat such charges, if they are presented.

VIRGINIA TO DECIDE ON BUILDING SCHOOL.

Virginia, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of directors of the new independent school district has ordered a call for a special election to be held at the Roosevelt high school on Saturday, April 3, for the purpose of voting on the proposition to build a new high school. The plan is to erect a building at a cost of about $100,000, which will be the most modern in construction and absolutely fireproof. The cost of the structure and its location will be decided by the election at this meeting.

VIRGINIA RED MEN INITIATE TWENTY-FIVE.

Virginia, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Twenty-five candidates were initiated in the local order of Redmen last night. A dog feast, war dance and buffalo hunt followed these ceremonies.

The Minneapolis Symphony quartet and Miss Adelaide Pierce, contralto, appeared at the Roosevelt auditorium last evening. They were greeted by a capacity house and the entertainment throughout was greatly enjoyed and of the highest character.

Chief Madden Hapy.

Chisholm, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dennis Madden, the chief of police, is wearing the smile-that-won't-come-off these days as a result of an interesting event at his home that brought him a son and heir who tipped the scales at ten pounds.

abouts had become a puzzle to the detectives of the land.

"Gee, papa," said the youngster, as he was being helped into a taxicab, "I hope mamma is on the front porch waiting for us."

"She will be there," was the simple answer from the father, as he clasped the hand of his boy.

The speed of a Cleveland taxicab did not deter hundreds from following to the Erie depot, where Whitla, senior and junior, boarded a train for Sharon. The father appeared to be the happiest man in Northern Ohio, and "Billy" professed to believe that a "real chu chu was more better than one of them street engines."

"I am so glad to hove the boy in my arms," said the father, half smiling and half crying, "that I have given no thought to kidnapers. That will be up to the police, and as I live and breathe, I am not worrying over their movements."

The $25,000 ransom of Billy Whitla was paid to his kidnapers in a little grocery store at East Fifty-third street and Standard avenue, an hour after noon Monday.

The money was received by an ordinarily dressed workingman, who gave his name as Hayes.

He picked up the package filled with yellow-backed bills, smiled non-chalantly and left.

Mrs. Bernard Hendrickson, temporarily in charge of the store for her mother, Mrs. Margaret Uhle, forgot to notice which way the man went, and at the door of the little grocery is the last trace the police have of him.

Asked For a Package.

The Hayes man stepped into the store at noon and asked if a package had been left there for him. Mrs. Hendrickson, without noting his appearance, told him there had not been. An hour later a prosperous looking man, who said his name was Williams, came in with a small package in his pocket.

"He said he wanted to leave it for a man named Hayes," said Mrs. Hendrickson Tuesday. He asked if Hayes had been here and I said he had. Williams left the package and not two minutes later Hayes came in and asked: 'Is my package in here.' I told him that it was and he smiled. Without further word he walked from where it lay exposed on top of the cigar case and walked away."

The Uhle grocery store is one of those familiar small establishments, where school children may purchase pencils and note books. Its customers are frequent, and the place was well chosen for such a transaction when publicity was not desired.

Mrs. Uhle, the proprietress, has conducted the place for seventeen years. She was not in the store when the passage of the ranson took place, and only her daughter, the wife of an employe of the natural gas regulator company, was a witness to the transfer.

In compliance with an agreement entered into with an agent of the kidnapers, the boy had been placed on a street car on the outskirts of the city and started to the hotel shortly after 8. Two boys, G. W. Ramsey and Edward Mahoney, recognized the lad on the car, and taking him in charge, conducted him to his father, who was in waiting, according to a plan he had followed at the dictation of the kidnapers. The boy wandered about the hotel lobby unannounced for several minutes, asking bell boys for his father, before the latter knew his son was in the big foyer. The moment the anxious parent heard that a strange boy was in the hotel, sauntering in aimless fashion, he rushed across the lobby, grasped him in his arms and smothered his face with kisses.

Was Well Disguised.

An attempt had been made to disguise the lad. He wore a pair of smoked glasses and a large tan cap which was pulled down over his ears, and the father said it would have been difficult to have recognized the boy in such a garb had he passed him on the street.

Willie is in perfect health. He says that he has been well treated and ever since his capture has been constantly indoors. He believes he was taken from Sharon to Warren and thence to Newcastle, Pa. It is his opinion, expressed in a happy schoolboy way, that he was in Ashtabula Saturday night at the time his father was to leave his $10,000 in Flat Iron park.

Shortly after noon yesterday Mr. Whitla left Sharon for Cleveland, unaccompanied. His immediate family and the private detectives he had in his employ he apprised of the proposed secret meeting, but insisted that he make the trip alone. Every one of them was warned that he must be allowed to go unheeded and no attempt at the capture of the kidnapers was to be made. Whitla was certain that if he spoiled the plans of his son's captors tonight he would never see the lad again. His experience at Ashtabula served as a warning.

About 2 p. m. he went to a candy store in the East end. With him he carried the $10,000 expecting that it would be demanded of him there. He was met by a woman who detailed to him the terms of the kidnapers. With all the eagerness of a distracted parent Whitla agreed to them and paid the woman the money.

Shrouded in Secrecy.

His entrance to the hotel was shrouded in secrecy, and by a previous arrangement made with the hotel management, he did not register. Detective G. B. Perkins, who has superintended the search for the boy, was in the lobby smoking, and pretending to be unconcerned. The agent of the kidnapers had promised that the boy would be started toward the hotel shortly after nightfall.

As the hour for the appearance of the child approached, Whitla became nervous. He disregarded the advice of the detectives, who had told him to keep out of sight of the newspaper men, and the crowds of curious persons who had learned that he was in the city. Coming from his room, he walked up and down the hall on the second floor, with his hands clasped across his breast. Then, unable to stand the suspense longer, he went into the lobby and seated himself in a chair.

When the boys who had recognized Billy on the street car came in with him and Billy saw his parent. He opened his lips to speak, but the words were never spoken. Grasping Billy in his arms, the happy father planted a score of kisses on his lips.

"It's my boy, my darling Willie," he cried.

Crowd Gives a Cheer.

When the crowd realized that the kidnaped child had been returned to its parent, a cheer rang out. For three minutes the handclapping and shouting continued. There were cheers for the boy and cheers for the father.

Stripping off the boy's cap and the smoked glasses, Whitla revealed his boy's bare head for the first time. He lifted the lad high above his head so that everyone might get a good view of the now famous youngster, who came near to rivaling the lost Charles Ross of kidnaped fame.

Cries of "Speech, speech," came. Whitla's quivering voice was too full of joy for him to make a connected speech, but he poured out the happiness of his heart in the few words that he uttered. With his right arm around the boy's neck and little Willie's head nestled into the folds of his father's coat, the father said:

"This is my son. He was lost and is found again. If I live a thousand years I cannot do enough to repay the press, the police and the people who have all done noble work in helping me find my boy and in extending their sympathy to me and my family and relatives."

When Whitla ceased speaking there were demands for a few words from the boy. The lad, for the first time, showed signs of fright. Upon being restored to his feet, he wrapped his arms around his "daddy's" legs and hid his face under the coat. Whitla gently drew the lad's head from out of the folds of the coat and told him to say something to the cheering hundreds. The boy turned his face upward, but he could not speak. The tears, bigger than raindrops, coursed down his cheeks. Again the crowd cheered and the boy was lifted from the platform by his father and returned to his room.

Ovation at Youngstown.

Youngstown, Ohio, March 23.—An immense crowd gave "Billy" Whitla an ovation as he arrived at the Erie station here at 9:42 this morning. He was driven in a closed carriage, with his father and detectives, to the Central police station, where he failed to identify Joseph Wess, among a crowd, as his abductor. Seated in an open window of the police station, he was given an ovation. "Billy" and his father left at 10:40 by way of the Erie railroad for Sharon.

The Six-cylinder Franklin

The average six-cylinder automobile is ponderous and heavy—the whole advantage of six-cylinder construction is missed.

High power with light weight is the main thing to gain by the use of six cylinders.

A six-cylinder engine gives a steady torque—an explosion every one-third of a revolution, while in the four- the torque is intermittent, an explosion every one-half revolution. Steady torque allows lighter construction throughout the automobile, and because of this it is possible to increase the power and keep the weight down. Power gained without increasing weight means increased speed and ability. And that is what you want.

The six-cylinder Franklin is the only light-weight large automobile. It is luxurious without the disadvantages of ponderousness and bulk. In it you can tour all day without fatigue. There is a complete absence of jarring and jolting You feel no vibration. There is none of the burden and none of the anxiety that goes with a heavy automobile. It rides like the finest carriage. It answers any tests on hills or levels.

Talk this six-cylinder and weight question over with any Franklin owner.

Franklin Model H, seven-passenger, six-cylinder, 42 horse-power touring-car, $3750. Bosch high-tension magneto, 36-inch wheels, 127-inch wheel base. Other four- and six-cylinder models from $1750 to $5000.

TONE UP THE STOMACH

Get Rid of the Gas, Headaches and Dizziness.

The symptoms of stomach trouble vary. Some victims have a ravenous appetite, some loathe the sight of food. Often there is a feeling as of weight on the chest, a full feeling in the throat. Sometimes the gas presses on the heart and leads the sufferer to think he has heart disease. Sick headache is a frequent and distressing symptom.

A very delicate stomach requires easily digested food but nature never intended that the food should be digested before it is eaten. The stomach must be strengthened to perform its own work and what it needs is not food already digested but a tonic. The processes of digestion are controlled by the blood and nerves, and medical science has produced no better digestive tonic than

SPALDINGS TO BE THE BIG NOISE

Independent Local Team Looks Strong; Manager Lavell Makes Schedule.

The Spaldings expect to be some noise in baseball circles at the Head of the Lakes this coming season.

Manager Tony Lavell yesterday finished the signing up of his men, but refused to give out the personnel of his team until later in the season.

The boys made a great record with their last year's nine, and they expect to do a great deal better this year. Manager Lavell says a faster article of ball will be played this year, and the best teams in the Northwest will be met. The nine is composed of some of the best players at the Head of the Lakes. There are some fourteen men signed up, and each one will be given a thorough tryout. If, after weeding them out, the team does not seem to be fast enough, a few players from outside will be brought here to play ball.

Already the summer schedule is taking shape. Work on this has been going on for some time, and it includes games with some of the fastest teams from nearby towns.

A meeting of the Spalding Athletic association will be held some time this week, and business matters pertaining to the opening of the season will be talked over.

BAUDETTE BALL FANS GETTING INTO GAME.

Baudette, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—An enthusiastic baseball meeting was held yesterday at Williams' hall, when plans were laid out for the coming season.

The following officers were elected: General manager, J. U. Williams; secretary, J. Rose; treasurer, Axel Miller; organizing committee, Donahue, Rose and Noonan; contribution committee, Ramsey, Dundas and Dahlgren.

BAUDETTE WRESTLING.

Local Man Wins Over Russell, Minnesota Contestant.

Baudette, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The wrestling match here, a few nights ago, between Eskel Olson of Baudette, and Burt, the middleweight champion of Russel, Minn., was interesting throughout. The catch-as-catch-can, best two out of three falls, was observed.

Olson took the first fall in twenty minutes, Burt took the second in twenty-two minutes, and Olson took the third in nine and one-half minutes. Both wrestlers were fast and clever, but Olson was the stronger.

The match took place at Williams' hall.

Boys of Y. M. C. A. Will Take Hike Up the River.

The annual camp reunion for the boys who have attended Camp Miller, the boys' department summer camp, will be held this Wednesday. The reunion has always been held at the boys' building, but this year the campers will spend the night at the Spirit Lake branch of the boat club. They will leave the boys' building at 5 o'clock in the evening and take the 5:30 train. Each boy will bring his own blanket and some provistons. The campers will try to recall the good times they have had at Camp Miller, and will spend the evening in good old camp style, with songs, music, stories, camp fire and marshmallows. They will hike back to the city on Thursday morning.

Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock the first basket ball game in the inter-scholastic series will be held between the Washingtons and the Emersons.

All the committees are hustling in their effort to raise money for the camp fund. Selling Easter post cards is the latest scheme, and it is meeting with great success.

Bout Declared Off.

Chicago, March 23.—Jack Johnson will not fight Stanley Ketchell, according to an announcement made here last night by Willis Britt, Ketchell's manager, who came from New York to arrange the bout. The trouble was over the money guarantee.

Track Was Muddy.

Oakland, Cal., March 23.—The track at Emeryville was muddy yesterday, and as a result there were a number of scratches. Fordello was plunged on in the fourth, but was away none too well, and Gemmel beat him less than a length in a drive.

TO PLAY OUTLAW BALL.

Harry Tracy, Former Duluth Player, Passes Up La Crosse Team.

La Crosse, March 23.—Harry Tracy yesterday refused to sign his contract with the La Crosse team and left the city last night for Fresno, Cal., where he will play with the nine representing that place in an outlaw league.

TONNAGE TAX QUESTION.

Public Affairs Committee of Commercial Club to Consider Bill.

At the meeting of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club Wednesday evening, the tonnage tax bill, which has already passed the house and which will soon come before the state senate, will very likely come up for discussion.

Just what action will be taken is not yet known. The Commercial club and the St. Louis County club, which work in harmony on matters relative to the entire county, may take some action to lend their support to the St. Louis county delegation in fighting the bill. If any action is taken, it will probably be merely advisory, as the members of the committee believe the St. Louis county legislators can accomplish the best results by having active charge of the opposition to the bill. The public affairs committee has several other matters of interest to consider Wednesday evening.

INDORSE MAN FOR JUDGE.

The St. Louis County Bar association will hold a meeting at the Commercial club tonight, when the question of the fourth judge for the Eleventh judicial district will probably come up. There is a movement in the bar association to secure an indorsement of some man to present to Governor Johnson before he makes his appointment. The movement is for no one in particular, but members of the association believe the governor will give ear to their opinion as to the one of their number best qualified for the position.

The assurance that the bill providing for a fourth judge will become a law at this session of the legislature has started the usual run of conjecture as to the governor's appointment. The ranges, irrespective of politics, are working for a range man for the place, contending that the ranges are entitled to the judge, inasmuch as the bill is designed to relieve the crush of legislation and provide for terms of court on the range.

PROMOTER GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE

W. W. Lyles Guilty of Violating the Locke Anti-Racing Law.

New Orleans, La., March 23.—W. W. Lyles, alleged promoter of the city park race track "test" case, was sentenced to a term of six months in the parish prison and a fine of $350 by Judge Baker in the criminal district court here yesterday for a violation of the Locke anti-racing law. Lyles' attorney will carry the case to the supreme court.

Lyles secured the use of the city park track on the day the test of the anti-racing law was made. R. M. Sheffield and Placid Refrigerado, charged with making bets on that occasion, were tried first and given similar sentences, in the criminal district and the supreme court affirmed the judgment.

TAFT APPOINTS LLOYD BOWERS

Chicago Man Is to be Next Solicitor General.

Washington, March 23.—President Taft has announced the appointment of Lloyd Bowers of Chicago to be solicitor general of the United States, filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Henry Hoyt, who has held this post in the department of justice for a number of years. Mr. Bowers is general counsel of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad and has long held a leading position among the members of the Chicago bar.

While no announcement has been made on the subject it is generally understood among Mr. Hoyt's friends that he is to receive a federal judgeship for his work in preparing and prosecuting a number of important cases during his term of office.

As solicitor general, Mr. Bowers will work immediately under the direction of Attorney General Wickersham.

FALCONIO MAY STAY ABROAD PERMANENTLY.

Washington, March 23.—Mgr. Falconio, the papal delegate to the United States, if present plans are carried out, will leave this country about the middle of May for Rome, where he probably will make a prolonged sojourn. Primarily, he will make the trip to attend the golden jubilee of the American college.

It is likely that Mgr. Falconio may remain permanently abroad, either retiring from the papal diplomatic service or accepting another post. It is said the pope may create Mgr. Falconio a cardinal in recognition of his work in this country. It appears decidedly probable that Mgr. Alversa, the papal delegate to Cuba, who is an excellent friend of President Taft, may succeed him.

WEST END NEWS

DEMAND FOR DWELLINGS

Houses Have Become Very Scarce in the West End.

The "For Rent" Sign Is Not a Familiar One.

There is quite a demand for dwelling houses in the West end at the present time and business men declare it will be much more pronounced before fall.

Frank J. Narveson, is about to remove his family from the Copper country of Michigan to Duluth, and he says he has been having a hard time finding a suitable house in the West end, in which section of the city he desires to locate, as he and his wife have many friends there.

"I have been looking around for a suitable dwelling house, but I haven't been able to find any that suit me," said Mr. Narveson, today.

"I have not been searching for a vacant mansion or anything like that, but I would like to get a well-kept place of six or seven rooms. The fact that they are scarce is certainly an indication that Duluth is growing and that the West end particularly is having a boom."

What Mr. Narveson says is confirmed by residents of the West end. A large number of new dwellings were built in the West end last summer, but the keen demand now shows that the building activity then was not too great.

The sound of the hammer and the saw will be a familiar one in that section of the city this summer, as a number of people have already announced their intention of building houses or flats. David Adams has several dwelling houses in contemplation; James Downey is considering the erection of an apartment house, and others are having plans for improvements made.

BEFRIEND COUNTRYMAN.

West End Church Looks After Hans Nelson's Funeral.

Hans Nelson had been two yeahs in the United States earning money to send to his wife and children back in Norway, and when he died of pneumonia at St. Luke's hospital last week, he was penniless, but the members of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church are seeing to it that his remains are not buried in a pauper's grave. They have also collected $40 and sent it to the widow in the Fatherland.

Nelson heard Rev. H. K. Madsen, pastor of the church, preach once, and when he dragged himself to the Bethel, ill with pneumonia, he sent for the clergyman. Mr. Madsen saw his plight and had him sent to the hospital. He failed to survive the ravages of the disease.

Rev. Madsen told Nelson's story of hard work and ill luck to his parishioners and they are bearing the expense of the funeral this afternoon. The remains will be interred at the Hermantown cemetery.

Letters and money have been sent to the wife, who waits for the husband who will never come home.

Varde Club Growing.

The Varde Young People's club, organized two weeks ago by the Norwegian young people of the West end, is growing rapidly in membership, twenty names having been added to the lists. It is the plan of the organization to hold social and literary sessions. A social will be given next Saturday evening in Columbia hall. There will be dancing and refreshments.

NORTH DAKOTA MILITIA.

Fargo, N. D., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The inspections of the militia organizations in this state are to begin today at Dickinson, and to conclude April 12 at Wahpeton.

Fargo's Company B will be looked over April 10. Adjt. Gen. Peake will be assisted by Capt. Simons of the regular army, now stationed at Fort Lincoln, and Col. Truemann of Grafton, who is in command of the regiment, will also accompany the inspection party. The inspector officers are anticipating finding the companies on a better plane than a year or two ago. All except one or two organizations are reported in good shape. There is said to have been some lack of interest shown at Wahpeton, but an effort is being made to revive enthusiasm there.

CARPENTERS GET THE AX

Oneota Saloon Keepers' License Is Revoked by City Council.

Aldermen Are Unanimous in Decision to Cancel License.

Without hesitating for an argument for or against or any other delays, the city council handed out a little surprise package last evening, when it decided, by a unanimous vote, to revoke Carpenter brothers' saloon license. The saloon is located at 3741 Oneota street, and has been very much in the public eye for several weeks past, because of the sale of liquor there to minors.

Two weeks ago, and also three weeks ago, there were some heated arguments among the aldermen at their regular meeting, both for and against revocation, and two weeks ago the question was postponed until last night. Anticipating a hard fight, a delegation of West enders, including seven or eight women, was on hand to make a plea in favor of revocation. The resolution adopted at a mass meeting in the West end Sunday, protesting against allowing the Carpenters to remain in business, was first read, and then President Getchell asked if there was anyone present who desired to be heard on the matter.

Before any of the delegation had a chance to say anything, Alderman Foubister moved that none of them be heard. He said the aldermen were thoroughly conversant with the situation, and that listening to any of the speeches would only be a waste of time. The motion carried unanimously. Members of the delegation looked highly indignant, but before the expression became thoroughly settled, a motion was made by Alderman Mc Knight that the license be revoked, and this also carried unanimously, clanging looks of indignation and disappointment into gratified smiles.

The attendance at the revival services in the Central Baptist church last night was quite large. The services will be continued every evening this week, except Saturday.

Miss Ruth McNamara of St. Paul is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Frank O'Connell of the Osborne flats.

Rev. A. F. Elmquist, formerly pastor of Bethany Lutheran church, but now in charge of St. John's English Lutheran congregation in Minneapolis, will speak at Bethany Swedish Lutheran church this evening. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Men's league.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lawrence of First avenue have returned from Brainerd.

Mrs. J. C. Jennings and son, Fred, of Winnipeg, are visiting Mrs. Jenning's brother, Roger Jennings, of the West end.

Mrs. H. R. Hanson of Eau Claire, Wis., is the geust of Mrs. Oscar Helam of West First street.

The first of a series of class meetings will be held Friday evening in the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church. The pastor, Rev H. K. Madsen, will direct them.

Arthur Anderson of West First street, who has been suffering from pneumonia, is reported to be much improved.

Alex Wiley of Chippewa Falls, Wis., is visiting his sister, Mrs. E. A. Smith, of Twenty-sixth avenue west.

The Bema club will meet this evening in Dr Oredson's office.

BILL TO STOP SALE OR MANUFACTURE OF LIQUOR IS KILLED BY THE HOUSE

moved as a substitute for the adoption of the committee report that the bill be placed on general orders, and in support of his motion he made a formal speech against the liquor traffic. His motion was defeated, 38 for and 61 against. Several of those who voted for it said they would vote against the bill, but were willing it should be considered.

Representative Lee's anti-treating bill followed the same course, though it got two more votes. The temperance committee recommended the bill for indefinite postponement, and Lee moved as a substitute that the bill be printed and placed on general orders, which motion was lost, 40 to 59.

Representative Sawyer tried to get the rules suspended to pass his bill against the wearing of red, white and blue tights by stage women, but failed. He read a letter of approval from the Women's Relief Corps of Duluth, attached to Culver post, G. A. R. He said that people are getting too irreverent and too free in this country, and that the too liberal use of the cartoon is lowering the dignity of the presidency.

Representative Gates moved that the bill be killed forthwith, but his motion was lost. So was the motion of Representative Lennon, that the bill lie on the table. Then Sawyer's motion was put and lost, so the bill will have to go the regular way, which means that it probably will not pass.

Representative Rosenwald of LacQui Parle county, the successor of Jacobson in the house, sought to rescue from oblivion a bill by him prohibiting discriminations between sections in the purchase or sale of goods. It was referred to its author last week by a committee, but the author refused to accept it and this morning he moved a reconsideration of the reference.

Chairman Swendson of the committee explained that the committee had carefully considered the bill, had sent out one that it believed to be better, and that its action ought to be upheld by the house. It was overwhelmingly defeated, only a faint voice of two being raised in behalf of Rosenwald's motion.

Nine house members, mostly on the Republican steering committee, are the joint authors of a resolution, introduced this morning, proposing an inquiry into the Spooner state prison bill, passed some time ago, almost unanimously. Since the legislature so joyously and heedlessly passed this bill, appropriating $2,250,000 for new prison buildings, in the belief that it was providing for the manufacture of farm machinery on a large scale, it has been discovered that the plans provide much for chapels, hospitals, warden's residence, etc., but not a dollar for a machinery plant. The resolution proposes the appointment of a committee of five to investigate the matter and report immediately.

Representative Zelch put it over to tomorrow on notice of debate. The debate will be a hot one, as there have been mutterings of a coming storm for some time on this matter.

The special order for this afternoon in the house on the Stuart workingmen's compensation act was postponed until Friday afternoon.

The special order in the senate on the several bills for a state land bureau was postponed to Friday afternoon.

H. F. 227, the Bjorge tonnage tax bill, reached the senate this morning and was referred to the tax committee.

The senate killed a resolution by Senator Alderman, asking congress to retain the duty on finished granite.

The house adopted a long resolution by Spooner, declaring the advisability of investigating an elaborate plan for state waterways and water power development, designed by C. J. Mershon of Chicago. It involves a canal from Duluth to Sauk Rapids, another from Lake Vermilion to Red Lake and one from Red Lake to the Lake of the Woods. Representative Minocks will tomorrow introduce a bill making life imprisonment the penalty for kidnaping.

TO REMOVE IRON FROM FREE LIST

Michigan Congressmen Will Try—Young Attacks Gary.

Washington, March 23.—That the Michigan delegation will make an effort to have iron ore taken off from the free list, where it is placed by the Payne bill became evident when Mr. Young of Michigan in the house attacked the testimony of Chairman Gary of the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation before the committee. Mr. Young declared that Judge Gary's statement that royalty of 10 cents per ton was paid on iron ore about 1897 is misleading.

"Long before 1897," said Young, "leases were frequently made at the rate of 75 cents a ton, and I know of only one case where 10 cents a ton royalty was paid. That was for low grade ore which was very hard to get at."

He said Gary probably based his statement on a purchase of ore land on which the price figured at the rate of 10 cents per ton. This was due, said Young, to the fact that the land proved to contain much iron ore than the original owners supposed.

Mr. Randell of Texas asked Payne if the placing of iron ore on the free list did not practically give to certain furnaces along the Atlantic coast the revenue which has been produced by iron ore duties.

Payne admitted that the furnaces on the coast would get the benefit of the reduction.

BILL MAKES KIDNAPING PUNISHABLE BY DEATH.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 23.—A bill making kidnaping a felony punishable only by death by hanging was introduced in the senate by Mr. James of Luzerne county, as a result of the Willie Whitla kidnaping. It will replace the statute for such an offense, which provides that a kidnaper be imprisoned for life, or for such terms of years as the court may consider just.

ASKS PROFITS ON STOCK DEAL

Promoter of Butte-Ballaklava Company Sued at Butte.

Butte, Mont., March 23.—W. H. Nichols, a stockbroker, has brought suit in the district court against John A. Percival of Duluth, one of the promoters and a present officer of the Butte-Ballaklava Mining company, for $5,750, the value of profits on Butte-Ballaklava stock which he did not get.

Nichols says Percival entered into an agreement with him Jan. 1, 1907, by which Nichols was to do the best he could to boom Butte-Ballaklava stock, advertise it with the brokers and in the newspapers, distribute reports on the property and developments, for which he was to have the profits above $6.50 on 500 shares of stock. Nichols says he carried out his part of the agreement, but has never been able to get the stock, though he has often made a demand for it.

THE HILLSIDE CLUB.

Sixth Street Property Owners Asked to Attend Next Meeting.

At the last meting, March 18, a committee was appointed, at the request of a considerable number of Fourth street property owners, to look after their interests in regard to the paving of Fourth street.

The entertainment committee expecting a large attendance, has secured a speaker for the next meeting, March 25, and a good time is assured. The meetings are held in the Catholic school, Fourth avenue east and Fourth street.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 23.—County local option elections are in progress in Montgomery, Benton and Greene counties today. CONCERNING WOMAN.

The nominating committee for the Twentieth Century club was named yesterday at the last meeting of the executive board of the club, which was held at the club room of the library. The members who will serve will be Mrs. R. N. Marble, Mrs. J. H. Crowley, Mrs. Z. D. Scott, Mrs. Henry Taylor, and Mrs. E. A. Silberstein. The annual meeting of the club will be held Monday afternoon of next week at the club room of the library. The members who will serve will be Mrs. R. N. Marble, Mrs. J. H. Crowley, Mrs. Z. D. Scott, Mrs. Henry Taylor and Mrs. E. A. Silberstein. The annual meeting of the club will be held Monday afternoon of next week at the club room of the library, for the reports for the year, and the election of new officers.

Mrs. F. L. Barrows, president of the club, proposed at yesterday's meeting that a club day be established when the members of the various classes meet together once each week as a club, and consider some question of interest to the organization as a whole. In a department club the danger is always in losing interest as a whole, and the welfare of separate classes being considered paramount. During the time when the club members gather for a common purpose such as a lecture by an out of town speaker, the feeling of unity is pronounced, and it is to preserve this sense and to weld the classes into an individual club, that the naming of one day a week as club day has been proposed. The matter will be presented to the members of the club at the annual meeting next Monday afternoon.

The lecturers for next year were considered at yesterday's meeting. It is probably that among those who will appear before the club members will be Frances Squire Potter, Kate Upson Clark and lecturers from the Chicago University Extension course.

HAUG - LEWIS.

Pretty Wedding Takes Place at Bride's Home.

A pretty wedding took place last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Frerker, 822 East Second street, when their daughter, Miss Barbara Haug, became the bride of Dr. William Walter Lewis of St. Paul. The marriage service was read by Rev. Mr. Betzer in the presence of the relatives and a few intimate friends.

The bride wore a handsome gown of cream white satin trimmed with duchesse lace, and wore a veil. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. The wedding march was played by D'Aquilla, harpist of the St. Paul Symphony orchestra.

In the parlor where the service was read a glow of pink blossoms of roses and azelias, with the delicate smilax, was the decoration chosen. In the library green and white were the decorations, and the appointments in the dining room were in yellow.

Dr. and Mrs. Lewis left for a wedding trip through the South. The bride's going-away gown was of tan broadcloth, with hat to match. After June 1 they will be at home in St. Paul.

The out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. John V. Lewis, George J. Lewis of St. Paul; Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Lewis of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Lewis of Pittsburg, Dr. and Mrs. J. A. WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE

Is Subject Discussed at League Meeting.

The cause of women's suffrage was ably presented last evening before the members of the Women's Union Label league at Kalamazoo hall, by Dr. Mary McCoy, president of the Duluth Political Equality club. A. R. McDonald of the Labor World, and James Walsh.

Dr. McCoy spoke of the great interest which the question of women's suffrage is now arousing throughout the world, and of the progress which the cause is making in many of the countries of Europe. The extension of rights to women, said the speaker, would insure better child labor laws, the betterment of the pure food laws, one improvement of railroad laws, and better public hygiene. Only with the freedom which the ballot will bring, can mothers of the nation instill the spirit of freedom in their children, said Dr. McCoy.

Mr. McDonald quoted figures showing the advance that woman has made during thirty years in professional and business life, and said that woman had proved her right to be considered a factor in the government of the nation. Mr. Walsh also expressed the belief that with the extension of the rights of suffrage to the women of America, many wrongs would be righted, and that a better public condition would be brought about.

IS SUING FOR FALSE ARREST

Before Judge Ensign in district court, William Williams is suing the Itasca Mercantile company, D. B. McEachen, and Peter Wring for $3,500 for false imprisonment. The plaintiff rested his case this morning and the defense will be taken up this afternoon.

The Itasca Mercantile company's store, in which young Williams was employed, was burglarized in December, 1907. Shortly afterwards Williams was arrested, it being claimed that he gave information which enabled the burglars to open an iron door between the clothing department and the general store. He was held in jail for about forty hours, but was finally released and the charge was prosecuted no farther.

Williams denied all connection with the burglary and his imprisonment is alleged to have been made without just cause. After the close of the plaintiff's case, Martin Hughes, attorney for the defendants, moved for a dismissal as against the Itasca Mercantile company and D. B. McEachen, manager of the store, on the ground that they had been connected with no acts tending to support the charge against them, but Judge Ensign denied the motion. Peter Wring is marshal of the village of Hibbing.

Mrs. Davis Gets $4,000.

Mary E. Davis will secure $4,000 from the street railway company for the death of her husband, who was killed by a Lakeside car. The case, which has been on trial in the district court, was settled this afternoon for that sum. Mrs. Davis sued for $5,000 for the death of her husband, and $600 for the loss of the team and wagon.

SPEED WAS EXCESSIVE

Lakeside Woman Sues Street Railway for Death of Husband.

The suit of Mary E. Davies, administratrix of the estate of John D. Davies, against the Duluth Street Railway company was taken up before Judge Dibell in district court this morning. Mrs. Davies sued for $5,600 on account of the death of her husband, who was killed by a street car on Superior street near Forty-first avenue East, on the evening of Oct. 24.

Negligence in running the car at an excessive speed, and in not using due diligence to safeguard people on the street, is charged against the company by the plaintiff.

According to the outline of the case, Davies was driving his team, attached to a wagon, eastward on East Superior street. He turned from the north track on account of the approach of a west bound car, and the east bound car came up behind him and struck the wagon. One horse was instantly killed and the other was shot a short time later, to relieve its sufferings. The wagon was smashed and Mr. Davies was picked from under the debris He died that night.

Mrs. Davies asks $5,000 on account of the death of her husband, and $600 as the value of the horses and wagon.

HELP! PRUNES ARE GOING UP

Charles McMurdy, the prune statistician of the Commercial Bulletin, is out with a warning that will send thrills of apprehension up and down the spines of those who depend upon boarding house fare for their physical uplift.

No more will Mrs. Spareribs beam upon Mr. Bookkeeper from the head of the table and insist that he must have a second helping to the prunes. In the past, when Mrs. Spareribs saw Mr. Bookkeeper throwing gnawing looks at the mutton chops, she called to her aid the power of suggestion and mentioned a second or even a third helping of prunes.

Mr. McMurdy, in his editorial upon the prune situation, says:

"The better grades of prunes are not very plentiful, and it is quite possible that higher prices will prevail before long, as present figures are considered lower than are warranted."

SENIOR CLASS MAY WALK OUT

Minneapolis, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Any attempt on the part of the faculty of the dentistry department of the University of Minnesota to punish any student taking part in the demonstration against Dr Forrest H. Orton, an instructor in crown and bridge work, will result in a walk out of the entire senior dentistry class. This is the ultimatum issued by the dentistry students. Orton tendered his resignation Friday but it was not accepted. He then attempted to resume his duties, but was ignored by the students, who claim that his manner toward them is offensive.

President Northrop has issued a statement to the effect that the student will not be permitted to drive Orton from his chair, and that he hopes none of them will fail to get their degrees and begin practice next June.

ENDS OWN LIFE BY STARVING

Minneapolis, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—William O. Freeland of Zimmerman, Minn., starved himself to death in St. Barnabas' hospital by refusing to eat for twenty-three days following an operation for gall stones. Death occurred March 17, but the cause was not known until yesterday, when Dr. H. C. Aldrich filed the certificate which reads:

"The cause of death was exhaustion dependent on homesickness and consequent refusal to eat for twenty-three days. He was otherwise doing well."

Freeland is survived by a son, J. L. Freeland of Minneapolis and a daughter in Zimmerman. Both have children and it was chiefly for the grandchildren that Mr. Freeland pined. He was 58.

A Protest.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The vast audience at the Lyceum theater last evening was the strongest demonstration that the Duluth public appreciates really good stage productions, and the play "Ben Hur" certainly won a host of admirers. One of the most noticeable features of the performance was the really good work of the company's own orchestra, and since the management has taken such pains to provide such beautiful entre'act music to fill in the waits between acts, why oh why do they let loose a lot of program peddlers yelping like a lot of starving whelps after a bone, in their frantic efforts to extract another quarter from individuals who have already paid a "raised price" of admission? This program nuisance should be done away with. It is an insult to the patrons of this kind of play, and when the public show their appreciation of the management's efforts in such a substantial way as was evidenced by the audience of last night, nothing to mar the evening's enjoyment should be permitted inside the theater, even if it does do away with a little "rake-off" for the company's management. THEATER-GOER.

Duluth, March 23.

Not Stewart Transfer Line.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Referring to a communication from J. H. Davis, in Saturday's Herald, in which the writer took occasion to criticize the "Stewart Transfer company" for driving rapidly a team of horses not properly shod, down First avenue west, I desire to correct certain statements which have caused much annoyance.

If Mr. Davis had taken the trouble to investigate, before rushing into print, he could easily have learned that the "Stewart Transfer company" has been out of existence for months. Some time ago the company's equipment was sold at public auction by the receiver, and the wagons were disposed of to various individuals residing in different parts of the city. The purchasers, it would seem, have never taken the trouble to remove the old name from the wagons, and it was, no doubt, one of those rigs, now owned by another party, that Mr. Davis saw on First avenue west.

The Stewart Transfer line has nothing to do with the old Stewart Transfer company. It is one of the strict rules of the Stewart Transfer line that men in its employ shall at all times treat its horses with the best of care and exercise good judgment in driving. We have never heard a complaint that they have done otherwise. Notoriety, such as Mr. Davis seeks to give us, is unpleasant, to say the least. HARRY STEWART.

REPORT OF APPRAISERS

Government Asked to Pay $160,807.24 for Federal Building Site.

According to the report of the appraising committee the property to be bought for the new federal building will cost the government $160,807.24.

This is the total of the individual sums named by the commission to be paid as a fair valuation for the property and the improvements thereon.

The Mork business property on the corner of Sixth avenue west and First street brought the biggest sum, $24,000 with an allowance of $18,954.54 for improvements. The amounts ran down to $2,601.20, which was the appraisal on a small strip consisting of but twenty-one feet. There are several of these small pieces and they averaged about the same.

The members of the commission think they have set fair prices on the property and it is their opinion that the property owners will be satisfied with the amounts allowed.

MUCH HOPE FOR NELSON

Jury in Beltrami County Murder Case Apparently Hung Up.

Bemidji, Minn., March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—After being out all night wrestling with the evidence in an attempt to reach a verdict, the jury in the case of the state vs. Barnard Nelson, charged with having murdered Morris Fuller at Fowlds, January 3, last, came into court this morning and asked for instructions from Judge Stanton.

O. E. Jackson, foreman of the jury, asked whether the jury had a right to ask for clemency for the defendant and if so to what extent. The court stated that there was no statutory provision to that effect, but it was often done; that any recommendations by the jury could not be binding on the court, which could exercise its own discretion as to life imprisonment or the death penalty. The court also answered questions to the effect that a verdict of manslaughter could not be rendered, as the charge was murder in the first degree, with an alternative of guilty of murder in the first degree, murder in the second degree or acquittal.

Judge Stanton also stated that the jury could not find that the indictment had not been a true indictment for murder in the first or second degree.

The jury then retired for further deliberation. It is generally believed that the jury will either report a verdict of acquittal or one of disagreement. Nelson spent a quiet night and rested well, sleeping all of the latter part of the night. He seems to have no fear of the outcome of the deliberations of the jury. At noon the jury had failed to reach a verdict and had given no sign of desiring to again report.

Henry J. Pease, who during the administration of Mayor Linley was employed by the city as health inspector, is now, at the age of 60, with an aged, crippled wife depending upon him, a pauper in the eyes of the law, and will be taken to the poor farm. The old man protested hotly against being taken from the city before the primary election. "I am a citizen still and I want to use my right to vote," the old man pleaded. His wish was granted, and he was allowed to take a hand in the selection of city officials.

AWAITING SENTENCE

Much Sympathy Is Expressed for William Schreiber's Wife.

But Citizens Generally Believe He Had Fair Trial.

William Schreiber, convicted of murder in the first degree and denied a new trial by Judge Dibell, sits in his cell in the county jail awaiting the sentence of the court. He still asserts his innocence and has not entirely given up hope, but it is believed that the penalty of the law, which must be either death by hanging or life imprisonment, will soon be passed on him.

Sympathy for Schreiber's wife and children, who are in destitute circumstances on account of the incarceration of the husband and father, has impelled a movement to raise sufficient funds for an appeal to the supreme court from the order of Judge Dibell denying the new trial. There is a hope that in the trial or evidence may be discovered by the higher court, which will result in the verdict being set aside and an acquittal secured after the lower long course has been taken once more.

There is little sympathy for Schreiber himself among those who have followed the trial and the proceedings, but plenty for the wife and children, who are thrown dependent upon the world. When the question of Schreiber's guilt or innocence comes up, two questions are asked by attorneys and others who followed the case: "Aren't twelve men and the court, unswayed by prejudice or sentiment, and confined by oath to the consideration of the evidence, better qualified to pass judgment than the sentimental critic?" and, "What was William Schreiber doing with certificates of deposit of Frank Massapust, and why did he try to impersonate Massapust to cash them, if they were left in his charge by the man, who was later murdered?"

Schreiber doesn't act like a guilty man now. Neither does he act like an innocent man. His actions are those of an uncommon human being, the depth of whose intellect cannot be fathomed by man's ordinary insight. He expresses sorrow for his wife and child, but of his own fate, he doesn't seem to care. He says he is suffering patiently, because he is innocent.

Judge Dibell's memorandum attached to the order denying the new trial and published in full last week is a comprehensive resume of the case and the circumstances which, taken together, point to Schreiber's guilt. Any who were doubtful of the verdict of the jury, seem satisfied to take Judge Dibell's explanation of the case, the product of long study and conscientious effort, as the right one, and they are not disposed to upset the verdict of a court of justice by resorting to technicalities, if such there be, to upset the conviction.

That Schreiber had a fair trial, is the general belief.

LONG DEADLOCK IN JURY ROOM

With the deadlock unbroken, the jury in the case of Hilding Gradine against Dr. J. H. Jern is still hard at it this afternoon in an effort to decide the issues in the case.

The jury retired at about 4:35 yesterday afternoon and has now been out nearly twenty-four hours. The twelve men balloted late into last night and then retired for a few hours' sleep. They were up and in conference again early this morning, but thus far they have been unable to reach an agreement.

Mr. Gradine brought suit against Dr. Jern for $25,000 injuries claimed to have been sustained through malpractice. He alleges that about a year ago he became ill and Dr. Jern diagnosed his case as nervous prostration. He claimed he was treated by Dr. Jern on that diagnosis, whereas he was really afflicted with appendicitis, for which disease he was forced to undergo an operation later.

He claimed that had he been treated for appendicitis in the first place his sufferings would have been diminished considerably and he would have recovered much sooner than he did.

POLISH CAN EXPLODED

Mrs. Mary Talarico Thought Herself Black Hand Victim.

Mrs. Mary Talarico of 124 South Sixty-first avenue west, who is well known among her people in the Italian settlement, is suffering from severe burns on her shoulders, arms and face, received by the explosion of a can of stove polish Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Talarico Saturday went to a nearby store to get some blacking with which to shine her stove. The merchant did not have the kind in stock that she was accustomed to using, but advised her to get another kind, which he said was just as good if not better than the kind she called for.

The polish which Mrs. Talarico bought was a preparation containing benzine or gasoline. She had always been able to polish her stove with the old kind of polish even when the stove had a fire in it. She tried to do the same with the new mixture, placing the can on the heated stove. The can became hot, and the mixture burst into a flame. The startled woman's clothes became ignited and she rushed out into the yard screaming.

Mrs. John Fife, who lived nearby, came to the rescue and after some difficulty succeeded in smothering the blaze, but not before it had left painful and ugly burns on the upper part of the woman's body, arms, neck and face.

The injured woman is said to have believed that she was the victim of the Black Hand, and that the members had handed her an infernal machine.

JUVENILE CHICKEN THIEVES.

Boys Raid West Duluth Hen Houses and Steal Chickens.

A number of West Duluth boys, none of whom are over 12 years old, have been apprehended by the police as chicken thieves. On account of their age, the police have withheld their names.

When the parents of the boys learned that their sons had been stealing, they went to the owners of the chickens and settled for the loss caused by their offspring.

Sunday night the chicken coop belonging to Mrs. E. Gomash of 1328 North Fifty-seventh avenue west was entered and a number of hens and pigeons stolen. On the same night the chicken house owned by I. G. Wallinder was likewise entered.

It has been learned by the young culprits that a boy of about 18 years old has been encouraging the stealing by offering 15 cents apiece for all the chickens they would bring him. The youth lives on Sixty-fourth avenue west.

BIG CONVENTION THIS SUMMER

The sixteenth annual convention of the United Commercial Travelers from Minnesota, the Dakotas, Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, will be held in Duluth this year on June 10, 11 and 12.

It will be the largest convention to be held in the city during the summer, and the Duluth lodge has already been assured by letter that the number of traveling men will not fall under 1,500. This number is exclusive of the wives of the members and their families, many of whom will also attend.

The Duluth lodge will spend $4,000 in entertaining the visitors. They plan on showing their brothers such a good time that they will be anxious to come again.

At the recent annual meeting of Zenith council, U. C. T., it was announced that during the past year thirty members have been received into the Duluth lodge, and that there are many applications on file. About 300 members comprise the Duluth organization.

March 27, at 4 o'clock, a special meeting will be held. At this time several new members will be initiated, and the plans for the convention talked over.

Following are the officers of the local council: C. S. Nixon, S. C.; George M. Peterson, J. C.; Clinton Brooke, conductor; W. G. Holcombe, page; Ray W. Starving Won't Cure Rheumatism

Dieting will not help Rheumatism—Indirectly it is harmful. For by taking away the strengthening food you become less able to stand the pain. To diet simply means to "lock the barn door after the horse is stolen." The poisons which cause Rheumatism must be dissolved and removed before the pains will stop or you can expect to be well.

Hill's Rheumatic Pills are made from healing roots and herbs which quickly dissolve the poisons which cause Rheumatism. And then, by strengthening and gently stimulating the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, the poisons are passed from the body and every twinge ache and pain along with them.

These Pills have never been advertised till now—merit alone has introduced and sold them. We have letters from over 18,000 grateful people who have been relieved from pain and made well by the wonderful remedy.

Hill's Rheumatic Pills

have been in use for 73 years without a single change in the formula. They are the only remedy we know which really cures Rheumatism without leaving trouble just as bad in its place. Hill's Rheumatic Pills are purely vegetable. They contain no harmful minerals, such as iodides and salicates, to upset the digestion or weaken the heart. They cure by aiding nature to throw off the poisons which cause Rheumatism. It only takes a short time, and you are free from every ache and pain and feel years younger as the deadly uric acid poison is dissolved and passed off as nature intended.

We have letters from over 18,000 grateful people who have been freed from pain and made well by this wonderful discovery.

Determine to know today what the harmless but wonderful healing herbs and roots used in Hill's Rheumatic Pills will do for you.

TEST THEM FREE

We realize that there are hundreds of worthless nostrums on the market—that you may have been deceived into trying them and derived no benefit. If so, you will have a right to be suspicious. To all such we will give a liberal sized package of Hill's Rheumatic Pills for a letter or postal describing their case. Address the letter to Belden & Copp, the makers, Dept. 108, Minneapolis, Minn. The package will come prepaid. Pay nothing then or at any time. When you find the aches and pains going, and see yourself becoming better and stronger each day—then you will KNOW and BELIEVE, and will be as anxious to continue the remedy and be cured as we are to relieve your suffering.

You can then secure these Pills from your home druggist.

WHEAT HAS GOOD BULGE

The Demand Is Very Firm Throughout an Active Session.

Flax Is Dull Here But the Tone Shows Improvement.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 23.—Wheat was active during the session in the American markets today, and the demand being firm, advanced more than a point over yesterday in Duluth and substantially in the other markets.

Cables were firm and Bradstreet's report of the world's visible supply of wheat was bullish. The world's visible supply increased 327,000 bu. In the United States and Canada there was a decrease of 173,000 bu. and in Europe and afloat an increase of 500,000 bu. The changes on this continent showed small stocks on hand on this side of the Atlantic.

Liverpool closed ⅝d to 1⅜d higher, Budapest 1c higher, Berlin unchanged, and Antwerp ⅜c higher.

The May option closed 1¾c higher in Duluth, ⅞@1c higher in Chicago and Minneapolis, ⅝c higher in New York, ½c higher in St. Louis, ⅝@⅞c higher in Kansas City and 1c higher in Winnipeg. The July option closed 1¾c higher in Duluth, ⅝@⅞c higher in Chicago, 1⅛c higher in Minneapolis, ⅝c higher in New York and St. Louis, ¾c higher in Kansas City and 1c higher in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ¼c higher in Chicago and ½d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed ½c higher in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—The late strength in America yesterday caused lighter offerings here, and at the opening the market was firm and ⅜d to ½d higher. Yesterday's early sellers covered, stimulated by the reported small Australian surplus remaining for shipment, continued light continental stocks and the expected light increase in the European visible this week. Following the opening, the market further advanced ¼d with good speculative buying. Later, however, there was a reaction and values lost part of the advance due to the cheaper La plata offerings. At midday, the market had a firm undertone and values ⅜d to ½d higher than yesterday.

"Corn was steady at the opening, May being ¼d higher and further gained ⅜d during the morning. The scarcity of American offerings offset the cheaper and larger La plata offerings."

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 113 against 118 last year, and at Minneapolis 112 against 197 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 225, gainst 315 last year. Chicago received 92 against 30 last year. Winnipeg received 198 against 66 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 476,000 bu., last year 486,000 bu. Shipments, 189,000 bu., last year 317,000 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour were 210,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 646,000 bu., last year 676,000 bu. Shipments, 599,000 bu., last year 463,000 bu. Clearances of corn were 310,000 bu.

Wheat trading was active in Duluth, May wheat opened ¼c higher at $1.13⅜ and advanced with occasional slight reactions to $1.14¼, closing at $1.14⅜, a gain of 1¾c over yesterday. July wheat opened ¼c higher at $1.13⅜, went to $1.14⅜ and closed there, a gain of 1¾c over yesterday.

Durum wheat closed 1½c higher and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 1¾c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was dull, but the tone showed some improvement. May flax opened unchanged, at $1.60, advanced to $1.61 and closed at $1.60⅞, a gain of ⅞c over yesterday. July flax advanced from $1.59¾ to $1.60¼, and closed at $1.60⅛, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday. September flax advanced from $1.39½ to $1.40 and closed there, a gain of 1c over yesterday. October flax closed 1c higher, at $1.35½.

Oats closed ½c higher, and other coarse grains unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Bullish Conditions Despite Liberal Receipts and Favorable Weather.

Chicago, March 23.—Despite liberal receipts in the Northwest and favorable weather for the fall-sown crop, sentiment in the wheat pit today was rather bullish, and prices were up about ½c compared with the previous close. The European visible supply of wheat was reported to be at a very low mark, and has helped to strengthen the market here. Prices at the start were a shade to ⅛c higher, being at $1.15½ to $1.15¾, and July at $1.03 to $1.03⅛@1.03¼. Later May sold at $1.16. July, after selling at $1.02⅞@1.03, advanced to $1.03⅜.

The market continued firm the entire day, crop damage reports from Missouri and Nebraska contributing some bullish sentiment. The high point for May was reached at $1.16⅜. July advanced to $1.03¾. The close was strong with May up ⅞@1c at $1.16⅛@1.16¼. July was up ¾@⅞c at $1.03⅝.

Liberal receipts of corn offset a feeble revival in export demand and held the market for that grain steady early in the day. May opened a shade to ⅛@⅜c higher at 66¾c to 66⅝c, and sold at 66⅛@66¼c.

Offerings were light all day and the market held strong. The top point for May was 66½c. The market closed firm with May up ¼c at 66⅜@66½c.

Oats were firm on buying of May by cash interests. That option opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 54c to 54⅛@54¼c and advanced to 54⅜@54½c.

A 5c to 10c advance in live hogs caused firmness in provisions, but the volume of trade was small. Prices at the start were 2½c to 3½c higher than the previous close.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Cables Strong, Local Receipts Light, Compared With Last Year.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 23.—Elevator stocks of wheat decreased 125,000 bushels for three days. May opened ⅛@¼c higher and gained a little as the session progressed. Cables were strong and local receipts were light compared with last year. May went as high as $1.14 and closed 1¼ higher than the opening. Minneapolis today received 121 cars against 197; Duluth 113 against 118; Winnipeg 198 against 66. May opened $1.13¾; high, $1.14⅛@1.14¼; low, $1.13¾; close, $1.14. July opened $1.14; high, $1.15; low, $1.13⅜; close, $1.14⅞. Cash wheat was in good demand. Offerings were somewhat limited. Both country and local millers were eager buyers. No. 1 northern sold for 1¾c to 2c over and No. 2 for ¼c under to the even May price. Some extra choice No. 1 went 3c over May. Close: No. 1 northern, $1.15⅜; to arrive, $1.15⅜; No. 2 northern, $1.13⅜; to arrive, $1.13⅜; No. 3 wheat, $1.10@1.12; No. 3 yellow corn, 60⅜@61c; No. 3 white oats, 50⅜@51⅜c; No. 2 rye, 72⅜@75¾c.

Flax receipts 10 cars today against 33; shipments none. Demand was again strong but offerings were too scarce to allow an active market. Prices were the same as Duluth May which was advanced. Close, $1.60½.

Barley receipts 37 cars today against 123; shipments 26. Demand was steady and prices held firm. This market continued to be too high compared with outside markets to allow anything but local trade. Inquiry was for feeding and malting grades. Close, 60⅛@62c.

Millstuff shipments, 906 tons. Demand was firm, but shipments light due to the closing of half of one of the big mills. Prices remained unchanged. Bran in bulk $23.00@23.50.

Flour demand was slow and shipments were light and prices steady. There was no export trade. Country mills reported better business than the local millers. Shipments, 30,396 barrels. First patents, $5.65@5.75; second patents, $5.55@5.65; first clears, $4.35@4.45; second clears, $3.15@3.25.

WITHDRAWS HIS RESIGNATION

New Mexico Governor Acts on Hearing From Taft.

Santa Fe, N. M., March 23.—Governor Curry in response to a telegram from Washington today telegraphed President Taft withdrawing his resignation as governor of New Mexico.

Last Saturday Curry assaulted A. J. Loomis, editor of the Eagle, a Democratic weekly paper, in his private office at the capitol building. Mr. Loomis had printed an article on statehood and the statehood lobby which Governor Curry considered a reflection upon him. The governor immediately telephoned Loomis to call upon him, and when the latter put in an appearance, the governor, according to report, struck him and then threw him from the office.

Loomis and his friends at once started a movement to have Curry removed from office and charges were being prepared against the governor to be filed with President Taft and Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, when Curry resigned yesterday.

REACTION IN STOCKS

Market Was Higher Early, But Heavy Selling Caused Slump.

Break in the New York Tractions Had Depressing Effect.

New York, March 23.—Many stocks opened today at higher prices than last night without effect from the declines in the early London market. Other stocks were depressed a fraction. Changes were small in all cases and dealings were only on a moderate scale. Delaware & Hudson rose 1 and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie ⅝. Reading declined ⅝.

Improved prices were made all around, the market showing a brief period of strength and activity, followed by irregularity.

A break in the New York tractions had its effect and pulled the list downward. The movement was uneven and irregular. The tone of the market was firmer at noon. Bonds were steady.

An interval of quiet brought about a rally of 1½ in Interborough-Metropolitan preferred, but when support was withdrawn, the tractions fell lower than before. Brooklyn Transit showed relative firmness and the general market was also comparatively well held. International Mercantile Marine preferred and Pullman gained a point.

Purchases of Union Pacific, which advanced it to 181⅛, had a sustaining effect on the market for a while, and caused a rally in the tractions. A further outbreak of liquidation in Third Avenue, which lowered it 5¾, in all to 30, undermined the market, after which the tone became heavy.

The market closed irregular. The persistent liquidation in the local tractions was of growing influence on investments, and with the increased selling on advances, prompted a throwing over of stocks by the professionals. Third Avenue slumped 8 and Interborough Metropolitan preferred 3⅝. The reaction was sharp and carried Peoples Gas 2⅝ below last night, Brooklyn Union Gas 2, Chesapeake & Ohio and Amalgamated Copper 1½, Great Northern preferred, American Smelting 1⅝. Short covering caused a number of brisk rallies.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Cass.

PAPER MEN IN PROTEST

Arrive in Washington From Wisconsin to Complain.

Do Not Want Wood Pulp Placed on the Free List.

Washington, March 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The clans representing the print paper manufacturers are gathering to protest against the schedules placing wood pulp on the free list, and reducing the duty on manufactured print paper.

The first delegation to arrive is a committee representing the paper manufacturers of Wisconsin, and they had their first innings before the Wisconsin delegation, which assembled in Congressman Davidson's committee room at 4 yesterday afternoon. The Wolverine paper manufacturers' delegation is composed of George A. Whiting of Menasha, F. J. Sennebrenner of Neenah, George L. Steele of Grand Rapids, John Davis of Eau Claire and S. A. Cook of Oshkosh.

More Are Coming.

Representative Stafford, in discussing the hearing said, that practically all the representatives of leading paper manufacturers from Wisconsin, are here, and will shortly be joined by their brethren from other sections of the country, to protest against the Payne tariff bill schedules, as to wood pulp, and print paper.

Mr. Stafford was one of the leading members of the special committee appointed to investigate conditions surrounding wood pulp and print paper production.

This special committee was headed by Representative Mann of Chicago, and was officially known as the special committee in investigating pulp and print paper. The committee on ways and means in making up its bills practically followed the recommendations of this committee, which resulted in a free wood pulp schedule and material reduction in the tariff on print paper.

The paper manufacturers claim that the reductions are too radical and should be raised. During the meeting yesterday Mr. Stafford gave numerous reasons for the placing of wood pulp on the free list, and the reduction of duty on print papers, to refute claims made by Wisconsin manufacturers. Stafford disputed the claim that the cost of production in Canada is $10 lower than in this country, and showed that wages paid to skilled and unskilled operatives are on the same plane, and in some instances, in the paper industry, higher than in this country.

Must Make Concessions.

The paper manufacturers practically admit the contention of Stafford, that the main thing is to insure the paper mills of this country, an adequate supply of pulpwood, which is not now present here in sufficient quantities. Stafford, claimed that, to obtain the wood from Canada, without placing restrictions on their exportations, it is necessary to make concessions to Canada, in the form of free pulp and lower duties.

Several Wisconsin representatives in congress, it is alleged, are directly concerned, owning shares in paper mills. Stafford said in conclusion that, as a member of the select committee, which investigated the situation last summer, he believed his position to be right and would work for the passage of the schedules, as reported out by the ways and means committee as to wood pulp and print paper. It is his opinion that the lower duties on news print paper afford ample protection.

Resort Keepers on Trial.

The trial of several of the range resort keepers began this afternoon in the district court.

The trial of May Whitney, who is under indictment for selling liquor without a license and for conducting a house of ill fame, was the first.

Suspicions of Fire.

Assistant County Attorney Greene is investigating a recent fire, which is said to have started under suspicious circumstances. The firemen found a lighted candle in a barrel of waste papers soaked in oil when they arrived. No arrests have yet been made in the case, and the county attorney refused to give out any information regarding it.

TAX ON TRANSACTIONS IN GRAIN ON THE BOARDS OF TRADE FAVORED BY HOUSE

Five St. Louis County House Bills Passed by the Senate.

Monday Next Is Last Day for Introduction of Bills.

Senate Committee's Plan of Apportionment Has Been Printed.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house in committee of the whole yesterday afternoon advanced to the calendar two important tax measures.

One, by Representative Burdette Thayer of Spring Valley, provides a state tax of 1 cent for each $1,000 involved in transactions on boards of trade and other grain exchanges, including not only cash trnsactions, but purchases for future delivery.

The proposition is a sort of a state stamp tax, as deniers are required to buy stamps and affix the proper amount to each memorandum of trade which evidences a transaction.

L. H. Johnson of Minneapolis proposed an amendment which would have allowed grain dealers to pay a license fee of $50 a year in lieu of the stamp tax, thus evading the nuisance of handling a multitude of stamps, but still producing a considerable revenue

TAFT PHONETIC; BUT ONLY ONCE

Changes Name of La Salle Forest to La Sal.

Washington, March 24.—President Taft has changed the spelling of the "La Salle" national forest, in Southeastern Utah, to "La Sal," to conform to the local application of the name to the Salt moutains, called by the Spanish "La Sal," evidently with reference to the salt deposits found in the region.

Formerly the spelling of the name of this forest was, through a misunderstanding, made to conform with the name of La Salle, the French explorer.

Boston, Mass., March 24.—Four men connected with the structural steel business who recently were indicted by a grand jury for conspiracy to defraud the city of Boston by collusive bidding for structural contracts surrendered to the police inspectors today and were placed under arrest.

They are Albert S. Miller, Jr., of Worcester; Elmer F. Smith of Marion, Charles M. Pennycuick of Worcester and Frank E. W. White of Malden.

The fraud cases have had Boston agog for some time, it being alleged that the city was to have been mulcted out of immense sums, had the deals contemplated gone through.

AN INQUIRY IS ORDERED

House to Investigate the Spooner State Prison Law.

Bill Creating a Separate State Land Department Is Killed.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nearly a month after the Spooner state prison bill, appropriating $2,250,000 for the new prison and for making possible the manufacture of farm machinery by prison labor, had become a law, the house has begun investigating the bill to find out what it passed and what the results of its action are going to be. After a debate that was always spirited and occasionally bitter, the house adopted, by a vote that was nearly unanimous, the resolution offered by Representative Nolan and eight other house members, calling for the investigation of the law by a committee of five to be appointed by the speaker.

Representative Nolan started the debate by calling up the resolution and moving its adoption, stating that the house had passed the bill without realizing what it provided for, and that since then a feeling has grown that some of the items to which the board of control proposes to devote the

KIDNAPERS CONFESS TO STEALING BILLY WHITLA; SCANDAL IS DEVELOPING

Boy Goes to Cleveland to Identify the Captives.

All But $210 of $10,000 Ransom Is Recovered.

Feminine Culprit Has Money Concealed in Her Skirt.

SCANDAL RUMOR IS CIRCULATED.

Sharon, Pa., March 24. — Secretly and mysteriously practically the entire Whitla family is now en route to Cleveland. Unofficially, however, sensational rumors indicate that the woman suspect at one time has been closely associated with the Whitla family and it is believed a story, other than one of kidnaping, is about to become known. It is said that efforts are to be made to prevent the publication of this story and for this many of the Whitla family departed for Cleveland unexpectedly today. Many rumors are rife this afternoon. It is said that incidents happening a number of years ago have been suddenly brought up by the abduction of the boy.

A divorce suit, which occurred some time ago, is playing an important part in the kidnaping case.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 24.—The man under arrest for complicity in the Whitla kidnaping has admitted to Chief of Police Kohler that he is James Boyle, a plumber, and his home is in Sharon, Pa. He insists that the woman prisoner is his wife.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 24.—After cross questioning a man and woman taken into custody as suspects in connection with the kidnaping of Willie Whitla for over four hours Chief of Police Kohler said today he was confident the people were in possession of the lad all of the time he was absent from home.

"The woman has confessed that she was in charge of the boy," said the chief. "She says she was in Cleveland with Willie for four days. They roomed in the east part of the city.

"I believe she first met the boy and the man outside of Cleveland, probably in Ashtabula and then came here with them. They were in Cleveland with the boy from midnight Thursday until Monday night.

Disguised As a Nurse.

"She admits she disguised herself as a nurse while the boy was in her hands. A short time before the people were picked up by the police we secured her disguise and two grips. The moment she entered my office I threw the nurse's apron over her shoulders and placed the cap on her head. She objected at first, but finally smiled and admitted that the goods belonged to her."

Attempts to make either the man or the woman reveal his or her name were useless. The woman said when her identity became known it would show she was of a good family. The man said his name was John Doe; the woman claimed they were man and wife.

WILL GO AFTER RECORD VOTES

Republicans Who Oppose Free Hides Decide on Action.

Washington, March 24.—An effort is to be made in the house to secure record votes on the schedules of the new tariff bill which affect hides, bituminous coal and lumber. The Republican members who are opposed to the changes which the Payne bill makes in the schedules, have had several meetings. They believe the placing of hides on the free list, the reduction of 50 per cent in the duties on lumber and the reciprocity provision for free bituminous coal are not desired by a majority of the members.

There are probably as many members who want a vote on the proposition to place lumber on the free list as there are members who desire to test the feeling regarding the retention of the present lumber duty. The latter sentiment is particularly strong on the Democratic side. Those who desire the present duty of 67 cents per ton on bituminous coal retained declare that the placing of this article on the free list will not reduce the price to the consumer.

They attack the reciprocity provision in the Payne bill, which declares that bituminous coal shall be admitted free only when imported from any country which imposes no tax or duty on coal imported from the United States.

LOSES HIS LIFE IN FOLLY RACE

Peshtigo, Wis., Man Is Killed Trying to Beat Train to Crossing.

Menominee, Mich., March 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tearing along at a fifty mile an hour pace, the Northwestern passenger train, southbound, carrying Phythian delegates to Green Bay, Wis., crashed into a farmer's rig on a private crossing a mile north of Peshtigo, Wis., about 7:30 last night, instantly killing Thomas Norbert and both horses and tossing the remains of the rig nearly 100 feet. The victim was 31 years of age, a resident of Peshtigo and is survived by a wife and four children. Norbert was bound for Peshtigo and was driving his horses at a furious pace in an effort to cross the tracks ahead of the train, but the locomotive struck the rig, squarely hurling the rig to the right and the horses to the left of the track. Norbert with his neck and nearly every bone in his body broken was found near the wrecked conveyance.

CHAMP CLARK WARNS OF LONG FIGHT ON TARIFF; HE BLAMES REPUBLICANS

Should Have Allowed Time for Committee Discussion.

Minority Leader Delivers First Speech Against the Bill.

Deplores Rapidity in Reporting It Back to House.

Washington, March 23.—Declaring the present is no time for an academic discussion of the tariff, Champ Clark of Missouri, in the house today, said he had gone to Chairman Payne and suggested that so far as he was concerned, he gladly would have waived all general debate on the bill, if assurance could be given that there would be ample time for amendment and debate under the 5-minute rule, of the entire measure, section by section. It was his judgment that the bill could be amended in many respects.

Touching on the failure of the consumer to appear before the committee, Mr. Clark said that there were two reasons for it, one, that in the beginning the public looked upon the hearing as a stupendous confidence game; and second, that the consumer felt that the possibility of having his tariff burden substantially reduced was so remote that he did not think it worth traveling expenses, hotel bills, neglect of business and loss of time. While that applied to the fairly well-to-do

BLAME ON OPERATORS

Anthracite Coal Miners Talk of Curtailment of Supply.

Employers to be Held Responsible If Shortage Results.

Scranton, Pa., March 24.—It is expected that when the tri-district convention of the anthracite mine workers adjourns late today the delegates will have decided what policy to pursue in their efforts to get concessions from their employers.

The principal matters taken up by the convention today were the report of the conference committee which conversed with the coal operators in Philadelphia March 11 and 12, the report of the committee on resolutions and the report of the committee to define the policy of the anthracite mine workers.

Of these reports, that of the policy committee is the most important, as it contains the plan of action to be followed by the United Mine Workers in the efforts to secure recognition of the organization and the other demands made by the men.

The policy committee held a long session last night, at which the plan of action was outlined by President Lewis.

There is a movement among the delegates to continue at work if no agreement is reached with the employers and, if a shutdown occurs, the men say the operators will be held responsible for the curtailment in coal production.

KAISER'S YACHT SINKS STEAMER

Crew of the Norwegian Boat Por Is Rescued.

Hamburg, March 24.—The imperial yacht Hohenzollern, which left Kiel yesterday through the canal, bound for the Mediterranean, for the use of Emperor William, in the event of his desiring to make a cruise to Corfu, was in collision, last night, in a dense fog, near Norderney, in the North sea, with the Norwegian steamer Por, which sank. The crew of the Por was rescued.

The Hohenzollern was only slightly injured, and put into Wilhelmshaven for repairs. The emperor was not on board.

LAY SHOOTING TO BLACK HAND

New York Police Make Arrests Following a Street Murder.

New York, March 24.—Another killing which the police declare should be added to the list of crimes of the Black Hand, was committed on the streets of Brooklyn today when Joseph Genaro, a cigar maker, and supposed to be the father of a vaudeville performer of that name, was shot and killed in a fusillade of bullets that followed a meeting of Genaro and seven Italians.

The police made several arrests and Mrs. Genaro, who stood by and implored her husband's enemies not to shoot him, declared that Antonio Cincotta, a saloon keeper, one of the prisoners, had killed her husband.

McAULEY IS RELEASED

West Duluth Man and West End Woman Are Discharged.

Were Arrested in Superior Lodging House Monday Night.

A. D. McAuley of 102 North Forty-sixth avenue west, and Mrs. Dollie Cain of 13 Twenty-first avenue west, who were arrested Monday night in a Superior lodging house, were held in the Superior police station on a statutory charge until this morning, when they were released without punishment.

McAuley, who has a wife and four children, is said to have been away from his family since last Thursday, and the first his wife knew of his whereabouts was when she was informed of his arrest. Previous to that she had appealed to the authorities to aid her in locating her husband. She said she had no idea where he could be, but claimed to be certain that wherever he was, he would be with the Cain woman, who is married and has four children. Detective Irvine was put on the case and yesterday Mrs. McAuley was notified of her husband's arrest.

At the police station the man and woman gave their names as McCarthy and Mrs. Gordon, when arrested, but yesterday afternoon they were identified by Mrs. McAuley, who went to Superior with the detective.

McAuley, until a week ago, was employed as foreman at the Northwestern Boiler works, but was discharged on account of his intemperate habits.

NO MALPRACTICE, SAYS THE JURY

West Duluth Man Loses His Suit Against Dr. J. H. Jern.

After about twenty-fours hours' deliberation, a jury in district court decided yesterday afternoon that Dr. J. H. Jern of West Duluth was not guilty of malpractice in his treatment of Hilding Gradine, and a verdict for the defendant was returned in the suit brought by Mr. Gradine.

Mr. Gradine sued for $25,000, claiming that he went to Dr. Jern for treatment about a year ago and his case was diagnosed as nervous prostration. Later it was discovered that he had a case of appendicitis, he said, and he was forced to undergo an operation. He claimed that the erroneous diagnosis allowed the disease to reach an advanced stage and on that account he suffered greatly and was permanently injured.

Dr. Jern denied the allegations of Mr. Gradine and much medical testimony was introduced for both sides. The involved medical testimony was responsible for the long deliberation of the jury, but a verdict fully exonerating Dr. Jern was finally returned.

ORDINANCE ENFORCED.

Arrests Made in West Duluth for Allowing Cows Freedom.

Lieut Wilcox of the West Duluth police force has demonstrated to West Duluth cattle owners, that he was in earnest when he gave it out that any person allowing a cow to run the streets, would be arrested.

Yesterday Mrs. Julia Moline of 307 North Fifty-third avenue west, Julius Lalonde of 103 North Fifth-fourth avenue, and Emil Krause of 601 North Fifty-ninth, were summoned to the justice court to explain, if possible, why their cows were roaming at large. They were each fined $2 and costs, amounting to $5 apiece.

Officer Ek was appointed cow detective and was busy most of the day on the case. He finally corralled the animals and gathered evidence against their owners.

Surprise Party.

A number of West Duluth women gave a very pleasant surprise party yesterday afternoon in honor of Mrs. J. N. Knapp of West Duluth. The guests were entertained by a musical program and refreshments were served. Among those present were: Mesdames, T. Thompson, Paul Thompson, John Hormann, Roy Watterson, E. Hagen, Hansen, Dale, Fisher, V. Anderson, Salter, Charles Stevens, Robert Debou, Rose Goselieu and Miss Kielley and Miss Dale.

C. O. F. Meeting.

St. James' court, No. 614, C. O. F., held its regular meeting last evening in Gilley's hall. This court is the second largest in membership in the city, and during the coming year an effort will be made to increase its membership. The state convention of the order will be held in Little Falls in June, and the local court will be represented by delegates. At last evening's meeting matters of general interest to the order weer informally discussed. State Chief Ranger Martin was present and gave an account of the progress the order is making in this state. From reports received by him from the officers throughout the state the outlook for the order is excellent, and the financial standing of the courts was never better. Mr. Martin will leave next week for St. Paul, to attend a state court meeting, and is at present very busy preparing for the state convention of the order, which, he says, will be a most important one.

SUPERIOR NEWS

CITY ELECTION IN SUPERIOR

Only Close Fights Were in Fourth and Ninth Wards.

Little interest, except in the wards, where there were contests, was demonstrated at the Superior primary elections of yesterday, and a light vote of less than 2,300 was cast.

Probably the hottest fight of the day was in the Fourth ward, where Peter Bergman, supervisor of that ward, and Swan Nelson, a member of Sheriff Carlson's force, were opponents for the supervisor nomination. Bergman won by twelve votes.

The closest contest was in the Ninth ward, where Clarence Carroll won the Republican nomination for alderman by the narrow margin of one vote, receiving in all 126 votes, while his opponent R. E. Kennedy got 125 votes.

Alderman John Shafer in the Seventh ward easily won from Fred Ewald. Edward L. Dillan, president of the Longshoremen's union, won the Republican nomination for alderman of the Fourth ward by eight votes over Frank Beckwith.

As a result of yesterday's primaries, the following are candidates:

First ward—Alderman, W. J. Keough, Republican; George Kane, Democrat. Supervisor, William Stone, Democrat.

Second ward—Alderman, W. A. Hagreen, Republican; Ben Casdotte, Democrat. Supervisor, Joseph Morrissette, Republican; T. C. McLean, Democrat.

Third ward—Alderman, J. Anderson, Republican; Maurice McGinnis, Democrat; Jacob Lundeen, Social Democrat. Supervisor, Louis Westlund, Republican.

Fifth ward—Alderman, Fred Tomlinson, Republican; P. J. Skelly, Social Democrat. Supervisor, Herman Hammerbeck, Republican.

Sixth ward—Alderman, W. R. Russell, Democrat, Louis Spangler, Social Democrat. Supervisor, E. Rossiter, Republican. Justice of the peace, J. B. French, Republican.

Seventh ward—Alderman, John Shafer, Republican, Joseph Savage, Social Democrat. Supervisor, Dell See, Republican.

Eighth ward—Alderman, Gust Nelson, Republican; B. Paddock, Democrat. Supervisor, Frank Kenyon, Republican.

Ninth ward—Alderman, C. Carroll, Republican; John Keeley, Social Democrat. Supervisor, Nels Nelson, Republican. Justice of the peace, Robert Bell, Republican.

Tenth ward—Alderman, S. Gill, Republican; William Idler, Democrat. Supervisor, Joseph Megawa, Democrat; V. Gotmler, Independent Republican. City Assessor—William Tiedeman.

CONTRACTS LET FOR NEW SCHOOL

Superior Firms Are the Lowest Bidders on the Job.

The contracts for building and equipping the proposed Superior high school were awarded yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the school board. The general contract went to E. Sedlachek of Superior for $208,864. The American Heating company of Superior was awarded the contract to install the heating and plumbing apparatus and the wiring contract was let to Ekholm Brothers of Superior, who bid $4,449.

According to the terms of the contract the work on the building shall be started as soon as the material can be secured and shall be completed by July 1, 1910. This will permit of school being held in the building in the fall of 1910.

WILL SELL STOCK.

Commercial Club Comes to Rescue of Baseball Fans.

The Superior Commercial club has come to the rescue of the Superior baseball organization, and has appointed a committee of five, with Lieut. Darwin Scoon of the police force as chairman, to dispose of $4,000 worth of stock at $10 per share.

The Commercial club promised its assistance whe nthe club was first organized, but little success was met with in selling shares. The club has now promised to see that the stock is disposed of, even if it has to take it all itself. The baseball club has a capital stock of $5,000.

Will Form Auto Club.

Superior automobile enthusiasts are planning to organize an auto club. A preliminary meeting was held last evening at the Superior Commercial club, at which Wilbur Ross was elected temporary chairman and A. T. Roth temporary secretary.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

TO PLAY SIX GAMES HERE

White Sox Will Come to Duluth on May 7.

Will Meet Regina and Winnipeg Clubs of Canadian League.

A change in the spring training of the Duluth baseball team has been made. The team will be brought to Duluth on May 6, 8 and 9 for games with the Regina club of the newly organized Canadian league. Winnipeg will be in the city the three days following for games with the White Sox, giving the fans a line on what sort of team will represent the city.

The team comes here from Freeport and will, after its Duluth engagement, go back into Wisconsin and Iowa for the remainder of its spring engagements.

Mr. Kuehnow is now dickering with two fast infielders owned by the Milwaukee club of the American association, Wisser, who last year burned things up in the Wisconsin State league and a player named Rutina, who has been doing the same stunt in the Cotton States league. They are both considered very fast men and Mr. Kuehnow has all but landed them.

The ticket books put on sale some time ago by the Duluth management, in order to raise money to start the team this season, are going like hot cakes. They have been placed at a number of the stores about town, and several of the fans have volunteered to peddle them.

The tickets are transferable and can be used at any time. There are twenty-two tickets in a book and they sell for $5.00. They also carry grand stand privileges with them.

The Superior club is coming along at a great rate. It is many years since the people on the other side of the swing bridge have shown so much interest in baseball, and their manager, Andy Porter, reports great success in getting the necessary money. More than enough has already been subscribed and all the players have been signed.

HOW TALL ARE YOU?

Odd Subject Chosen by Speaker for Men's Mass Meeting.

Rev. Edward Babcock, recently of New York city, will be the principal speaker at the men's regular weekly mass meeting, to be held Sunday afternoon in the gymnasium of the Central Y. M. C. A. building.

Mr. Babcock is one of the best speakers secured this year to address the young men of the city, and will take as his subject, "How Tall Are You?"

He will be followed next Sunday by George L. Robinson of Chicago, and the Sunday following will be devoted to a musicale. This, it is expected, will be the big event of the year, so far as the Sunday meetings are concerned.

Following this entertainment, Prof. D. B. Towner, the noted hymn writer, will appear the Sunday following, in what will probably be the most unique service of the year. He will sing a number of his own hymns, accompanying himself on the piano.

WHICH TOLD THE TRUTH?

Jurors Must Decide Between George Nicoll and Mrs. Bellenauve.

Man Claims That Woman Was Drunk and Shot Him.

George Nicoll, charged with an indecent assault on Mrs Lottie Bellenauve, was placed in trial before Judge Cant in district court this morning, and his case was given to the jury shortly before noon.

Nicoll and the woman told entirely different stories of the affair. Mrs. Bellenauve claimed that Nicoll had attempted to commit an assault on her and she had repelled him with a revolver, the bullet entering his leg. He claimed that he had made no attempt to assault her, but that she was intoxicated, was complaining of her treatment by her husband, and was brandishing a revolver, which suddenly exploded, either by accident or intent.

The affair occurred at the old St. Luke's hospital building on the corner of Second avenue east and Fourth street, about noon, March 6. Nicoll was a friend of the family, and called there to see Bellenauve about noon, that day. After Bellenauve left the house to go back to work, Nicoll remained, and of what occurred there, only he and the woman were witnesses.

After Nicoll had been shot, he left the house and went to the Lake avenue Bethel, where his wound was dressed. He refused to give the police any information, and Mrs. Bellenauve did not report the case. The police sought her out and heard her story. Nicoll did not tell his version of it until later.

Nicoll is but 25 years old, and came from Scotland about a year ago. The Bellenauve family has lived in Duluth for about four years.

Don't Diet for Fat

You have no appetite for gruel, have you? By the same token, if you scale in excess of 150 pounds, I know you have no great liking for gymnasium stunts. As a rule fat folks are neither athletic nor ascetic, except under compulsion, and nowadays they are not under compulsion to be either, no matter how necessary it is for them to reduce. There is a third, better, and surer way of getting rid of superfluous flesh.

The trouble with both dieting and exercise is, first, the trouble; second, the danger (fatty heart); third, wrinkles; and, fourth, stomach disgust. You are liable to all four if you exercise or diet. On the other hand, you can sidestep all four, and still reduce as much or little as you please, even up to losing a pound a day if you see fit, by taking a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime of the following simple home receipt: One-half ounce Marmola, ½ ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 3½ ounces Peppermint Water.

Any druggist will fill this prescription for you cheaply, and you may take it with perfect confidence that it will do no manner of harm. Instead it almost invariably improves the health and, likewise, the complexion.

QUALIFIES HIS LETTER

Lester Tilton Confronted With Epistle at Primary Hearing.

Must Support Stephenson and the Liquor Interests.

Madison, Wis., March 24.—C. M. Hambright of Racine was the first witness in the senatorial primary investigation today. He said he first decided to support Stephenson in June, preceding the primary. He paid out $245.50 in behalf of the senator and was given $300 for his services. Most of his expenses were for traveling in the southern and central parts of the state.

Lester Tilton of Neillsville told of a conversation with M. C. Ring, in which Ring asked him if he would consider running for the assembly against Mr. Bradford, and was told that he did not think he would. Mr. Tilton said that no offer of money or otherwise was made to him if he would run for the assembly.

Further questioning brought out the fact that Tilton wrote a letter to John A. Aylward, Democratic candidate for governor, in which he stated that a party came to him and told him that if he would try for the nomination in the primary for the assembly with the understanding that he would support Stephenson and the liquor interests, he could depend on several hundred dollars for campaign purposes. Upon the latter being produced by Senator Husting the witness admitted its authorship.

The reading of the letter caused a sensation, but the witness qualified it later by saying the latter was a "little strong;" that he was not offered money for "campaign expenses," but for his expenses "if I would get out and hustle for Stephenson."

"The money from the liquor interests," he said, "had no connection with the offer of Stephenson money, except that Ring had said he 'thought some money might be gotten from the liquor interests.'" Tilton was put through a gruelling examination. He said he "meant to write in that letter what I'm testifying now."

money, are extravagant. It was found, too, that no part of the money is to be used for machinery plants.

Representative Spooner said that it had never been stated that the money was to go for making machinery; that was provided for in another bill, which allowed part of the twine plant revolving fund to be devoted to that purpose. The figures on which criticism is based, are merely architects' preliminary estimates, and the bill did not provide for them at all. The figures most criticised provide $91,000 for a chapel, $26,000 for a greenhouse, $30,000 for a warden's residence, and $20,000 for his assistant's residence.

Representative Lennon said he had asked the board of control what it was going to do with the money, and the board's report included all these items.

Spooner, who had spoken twice, was going to answer Lennon, when the latter appealed to the rule which prohibits members from speaking more than twice.

Spooner said that came with ill grace from a man who had wasted thousands of the state's money in talking to no purpose. This put Mr. Lennon into a very hostile frame of mind, and he denied heatedly that he had wasted the state's time and money.

Representative Holmberg was surprised that the members had voted for the bill without knowing what they voted for; he knew these items were provided for, but saw no harm in them.

There were only a few negative votes on the adoption of the resolution.

By a vote nearly strictly partisan, the house adopted the majority report of the committee on public accounts on the controversy between the board of control and the public examiner.

Representative Pfaender, Democrat, spoke eloquently for the minority report, but it was rejected. The board accepted the highest bid on some coal for the state and the company paid a rebate to the board. The majority approved this plan, and the minority report said it was illegal and unbusinesslike. One Democrat, Sikirski, voted for the majority report, and one Republican, Washburn, voted for the minority report.

The house committee on appropriations killed the Opsahl-Sulerud bill creating a separate state land department.

HORSE VERDICT TAKES 14 HOURS

Jury Discusses All Night Whether Animal May Live.

Chicago, March 24.—With the life and ownership of a horse at stake, a jury in an Evanston justice court deliberated fourteen hours, returning a verdict today after an all-night discussion.

The horse had been condemned to death because of disease, but, following treatment, had been sold by the poundmaster. The original owner of the animal instituted proceedings when he learned the horse was alive and passed to a new owner. The jury decided that the horse could cling to life under the guidance of its new master.

BEGIN WORK IN THE PARKS

No Very Big Improvements Are In Sight This Year.

Congdon Bill Will Permit Extension of Boulevard System.

The first of the year's work on parks of the city is now being done under supervision of the board of park commissioners. Four men are engaged in cleaning out ditches and pathways in the parks and along the boulevard to assist in draining off the water during the spring and prevent damage being done from this source.

Aside from this, there will be very little work done in the parks until after the frost leaves the ground. No very large park improvements are in prospect this year. Following out the usual custom, these public places of amusement will be cleaned up and put in first class condition as soon as the weather will permit, and they will be kept in that condition throughout the season.

The park board has had no talk with Representative Congdon in regard to the bill he introduced in the legislature, giving municipalities the right to acquire park property and boulevard property outside the city limits, but it is presumed his object is to allow Duluth to extend its boulevard system outside the city limits.

For several years past there has been talk of extending the boulevard towards Two Harbors, and there is a chance that the first steps in this direction will be taken this year. The intention is to ultimately extend the boulevard all the way to Two Harbors. The new bill would give Duluth the privilege of securing a right-of-way for the extension.

It is also expected that at some time in the future the city will want to establish a boulevard between Duluth and Pike Lake, and possibly to other nearby points. The automobile owners are particularly interested in projected improvements of this nature, and are willing to extend whatever help they can to the boulevard extension movement.

LEGISLATURE APPEALED TO

Koochiching County Clubs Want More State Land Sold.

International Falls, Minn., March 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alleging that the present method disposing of state lands in this section is "inefficient, unjust, unmethodical and based upon the poorest of business principles," the Confederation of the Commercial clubs of Koochiching county, at a meeting held here drafted a memorial to the state legislature asking for radical changes in the systems at present followed by the state auditor.

The memorialists sets forth that there are 800,000 acres of state land in Koochiching county, 519,380 acres subject to taxation; that the state land is largely swampy, the balance being timbered, agricultural and that during this year about 5,000 acres left over from last year's sale will be offered for sale. It is contended the offering of such a small proportion of state lands is a menace and "does not make any appreciable inroad upon the hardships borne by the residents of this county by reason of this vast, untaxable non-producing area." The memorialists contend the land should be offered in large consolidated tracts in a populated section, "and in the virgin state with the timber, that the settlers upon such lands may have something to sell and upon which to live while reducing the wild lands to a state of cultivation and productiveness."

It is contended that in the present way it is impossible to induce settlers to come to this section. Doubt is expressed of the wisdom of holding state lands for "speculative purposes."

Continuing, the memorial says:

"In our county, where new towns have been recently placed upon the market, and where the towns have been settled up by actual settlers from one to six years prior to the opening of the towns for filing, in a large number of instances, find that a portion, and in many cases the entire tract settled upon as a homestead, is selected by the state auditor's office as state swamp lands. Such settlers have gone upon thes elands in good faith, are willing to take them in their present condition regardless of the apparent swamp character (which in many cases does not exist at all), and are desirous of making homes and farms of this land, but are face to face with a contest against the state which is bitterly fought by the state of Minnesota. In this way many settlers, already citizens of this state and county, are driven out of the state through the harsh treatment of this state's land department, and the unconscionable method of dealing with well-intentioned settlers.

"The state is maintaining an immigration bureau and appropriating money to advertise the resources of the state to secure an influx of worthy settlers to take up available lands and the land department is driving out settlers already in and destroying the usefulness of the other department. The duplicity of these inconsistent departments is apparent and should be destroyed, and the two made to work in union, to the end that a settler may know that the state has what it offers and will give liberally of what it has. Our various clubs have been trying to secure settlers for this county, but have been handicapped by the tactics of the state land department. Our growth is retarded, our business men are at a disadvantage, our entire territory's path to advancement and progress is blockaded by the niggardly methods of the state land department in disposing of state lands and in fighting settlers, who, in good faith, are settled upon lands selected by the state."

NEW SEWERS ARE PLANNED

The City Engineer Lays Out Six New Systems.

Will be Built This Summer If Property Owners Consent.

The force in the city engineer's office is now at work preparing plans for six separate and distinct sewer systems for Duluth, work on which will be begun this summer, provided the property owners are so inclined.

One set of plans is for a sanitary main trunk sewer for Fifty-fourth avenue east, to drain a part of the Fourth division of Duluth, Lester Park, a portion of the London road territory and all of Crossly park.

The second and third sets of plans are for sewers to drain that part of Woodland, west of Tischer's creek and east of the golf grounds. The fourth set is for a sanitary main trunk sewer to drain the district between Twenty-sixth avenue east and Thirty-second avenue east.

The fifth set of plans is for a sanitary main trunk sewer in the district between Thirty-first and Forty-ninth avenues west, and between St. Louis bay and the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway tracks. The sixth set is for a sanitary main trunk sewer in the Raleigh street district, West Duluth, between the Missabe tracks and the bay, with an outlet in the Forty-first avenue west trunk sewer.

In addition to these plans are now being prepared for a sanitary main trunk sewer along Garfield avenue, the first portion to run from Birch to Lyne avenues, and the second from Lyne to Pine avenues.

The board of public works is now advertising for bids for the extension of the Ninth avenue east storm sewer. The estimated cost of the work is about $8,000.

WEST END

LIVELY FIGHT IN PROSPECT

William Meier Makes Application For a Liquor License.

William Meier has made application for a license to conduct a saloon in Oneota, in the same building which has been occupied by the Carpenter brothers for several years past. The council last Monday evening voted to revoke the Carpenter license.

The matter will not come before the council until two weeks from next Monday. It is understood that active opposition to granting the license will develop, and there probably will be a lively fight in the council.

MAY BUILD CHURCH.

Second Presbyterians Will Consider Project at Next Meeting.

The congregation of the Second Presbyterian church is considering the advisability of erecting a new church on a new site. The matter will be the principal business to come up at a meeting of the congregation to be held in the church Thursday evening, April 1.

It is very probable that if it is decided to erect a new church, the structure will be located farther west than the present church. A building in the neighborhood of Twenty-second or Twenty-third avenues would be more conveniently situated for most of the members.

War Against Refuse.

War against the too large and too odorous manure piles is to be waged in the West end. Some residents are complaining that the barn refuse in the yards of their neighbors who keep cows and horses should be attended to, the winter's accumulation becoming too strong for their nostrils.

West End Shortrails.

Miss Mary Curtiss will leave this afternoon for Milwaukee, where she will visit friends for a month.

The Bema club held its weekly meeting last evening in Dr. Greiss's office.

The West End Hillside Improvement club's committee chosen to secure the rest of the 300 names necessary to the petition for the grading of Piedmont avenue, reports that it is making excellent progress. The names will all be there by the next meeting, they say.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lawrence were the guests of honor at a reception and dancing party given by their friends last evening in Sloan's hall. It was a celebration of the wooden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence.

Rev. W. D. O'Neill of Superior will be the speaker at the revival services this evening in the Central Baptist church. The Jewell-Adams trio will sing.

E. E. Williams of West Second street has returned from Hibbing.

Rev. A. F. Elmquist of Minneapolis is in the city, and will speak this evening in Bethany Swedish Lutheran church.

Alfred Myers is confined to his home in West First street with the grip.

Paul Doltz, the returned Philippine missionary, will give his lecture on "Seeing the Philippines," illustrated with stereopticon views at the Second Presbyterian church this evening at 8 o'clock. There will be no admission charged and no collection.

THREE TO CHOOSE FROM

Hughes, Jaques and Harrison Recommended for Judgeship.

Range Man Is the First Choice of Bar Association.

Martin Hughes of Hibbing will very likely be the fourth judge of the district court of the Eleventh judicial district, when the appointment is put up to Governor Johnson. At a meeting of the St. Louis County Bar association last evening Mr. Hughes was the first choice for the place by a majority vote of the members, with Alfred Jaques of Duluth second and S. T. Harrison third. All these names will be submitted to the governor, and he will probably appoint one of the three men to the office.

The bill providing for a fourth judge for the district and for terms of court at Virginia and Hibbing is designed principally to relieve the ranges of the necessity of bringing their litigation to Duluth. Accordingly, the ranges have demanded as their right that the fourth judge be appointed from among the members of the range bar. Mr. Hughes has the united support of the ranges. He is a staunch Johnson Democrat; he is a good lawyer, and has the necessary poise and temperament for an ideal judge, so that with the indorsement of the bar association behind him, and the cry of the ranges for the appointment of the judge from that section, it is believed Governor Johnson will appoint him.

The meeting of the bar association last night was held at the Commercial club, and was attended by about 100 lawyers. Governor Johnson had requested the association to settle on three men, whose names would be submitted to him for a choice, Martin Hughes, Alfred Jaques, S. T. Harrison, Joseph Reynolds and John Dwan, the latter of Two Harbors, were placed in nomination, and the vote resulted as follows: Martin Hughes, 84; Alfred Jaques, 73; S. T. Harrison, 60; John Dwan, 35; Joseph Reynolds, 19. The names of Messrs. Hughes, Jaques and Harrison will accordingly be submitted to the governor.

Mr. Hughes was nominated by H. H. Phelps and indorsements were made by Robert E. Stratton of Hibbing and John G. Williams, president of the bar association. John Jenswold nominated Mr. Jaques, Judge S. F. White named Mr. Reynolds, and B. F. Fowler of Two Harbors brought John Dwan forward.

Mr. Phelps and Mr. Williams said they believed the ranges were entitled to the fourth judge, and as Martin Hughes seemed to be the choice of the ranges, they would support him.

The bill providing for the fourth judge passed the senate yesterday, but must go back to the house for consideration of some changes in it. The appointee will serve until Jan. 1, 1911, his successor to be elected in the fall of 1910.

The bar association last night complained of the long hours in district court, and, counting on the relief of congestion through the new bill, requested the judges of the district court to make the hour of opening the morning session 9:30 instead of 9 o'clock, as at present, and to adjourn promptly at 5 o'clock in the evening, the afternoon session beginning at 2 o'clock.

The question of the adequacy of the punishment for kidnaping in this state was brought up by E. McManus, but was dropped when it was stated that a bill had been introduced in the legislature fixing the penalty at life imprisonment.

KIDNAPERS CONFESS TO STEALING BILLY WHITLA

Chief of Police Crane of Sharon was communicated with by Chief Kohler today. He promised to start for this city at once and take charge of the suspects. They have signified their willingness to return to Pennsylvania without requisition papers.

Desperate Effort to Escape.

The suspects were landed in the police station late Tuesday night after the man had made a desperate effort to escape from the police. He jerked away from Capt. Shattuck on the street near the police station and ran. Capt. Shattuck fired two shots at the fleeing man and the suspect thoroughly frightened, stopped and surrendered.

"Oh, it's all off now," said the woman as she entered the police station door. "You got us dead right. There will be hell in Sharon when Buhl hears of this."

When the woman was searched at the police station $9,790 in bills of $5, $10 and $20 denominations were found sewed carefully in the inner side of her skirt. All but $40 of the money was done up in $500 packages. This is the shape in which Mr. Whitla withdrew the money which he paid to the kidnapers in this city. A general description of the packages of money was read over a telephone to Mr. Whitla at his home in Sharon, and he said he knew it was the same money he had left as a ransom for the capture of his son. Bills and loose change to the amount of $58.50 were found in the pockets of the man. This brought the total amount of money which the two suspects had up to $9,848.50.

Intoxicated When Arrested.

At first the woman refused to talk to the police. She is said to have been slightly intoxicated when arrested, and hoping that her condition might be better later, the police locked her up for a few hours. Shortly before daybreak Chief Kohler escorted her into his private office and then began a grilling examination of her. She appeared frightened when he threw the nurse's apron over her shoulders. She was angry, too, and attempted to pull the chief's hair. She became reconciled in a few minutes and talked about the kidnaping in a commonplace manner.

"I used to get the newspapers every day," she said. "My, I had a lot of fun reading the prophesies of the different sleuths and near-sleuths. There was a lot of things charged up to the folks who had the boy that weren't true."

Is Well Educated.

That the woman is clever and of good education was proven by her conversation. She carefully evaded every advance that the police made which might cause her to answer questions which she should not answer. She has not confessed that she kidnaped the boy—far from it—she has said she was in charge of him, but that is as far as her story goes.

As she tripped gaily out of the chief's office and encountered a crowd of newspaper men in the hall, she said: "It looks like a parade this morning, doesn't it?" Then she laughed and went back to her cell.

"John Doe," her mysterious man partner, proved a Tartar. He walked into the chief's office cautiously.

Every question that he was asked he answered guardedly. Chief Kohler asked him about himself, his name, how long he had been in Cleveland and a score of other questions.

Tells Him What He Ate.

"You tell me the answers first, and then I will tell you them back to you," answered the suspect. The chief told him of a number of places he had traced him in the last two days, watched him buy goods, drink and eat. He told what he ate Monday night for dinner, and then what he ate Tuesday night, after the ransom money had been paid to the kidnapers. The second meal was of far better quality than the first, said the chief. Instead of trying to explain to the chief how he had raised the money, "Doe" just grinned and kept quiet.

"Listen to what the woman tells you. Whatever she says goes," he remarked once to the police.

The woman herself said during the course of the night:

"I am the kid that framed up this job, all right."

Has Had Smallpox.

The woman is tall and blonde. She appears to be about 25 years old, although she says she is younger. Her face is pitted with smallpox scars. She wore a black silk dress, a gray cloak and a black hat. The man wore a gray suit and a light soft hat. The clothes of both the man and the woman were new. Several sales slips were found in their purses, showing that they had purchased the clothing Tuesday.

Willie Whitla's place of captivity, while he was kept in Cleveland, was an old, abandoned residence on Prospect avenue, S. E., diagonally opposite Plymouth Congregational church. This fact was learned by the police, acting on meager information furnished them by the boy before he was taken to Sharon by his father.

In a Vacant House.

The house hit upon by the kidnapers has been unoccupied for some time. In the rear of the building are stables. While imprisoning the Whitla boy in the old residence the kidnapers, man and woman, ate most of their meals at the restaurant of the Hotel Thorpe, 2113 Prosper avenue, southeast, across the street. This enabled them to return to their captive without leaving him alone long.

"About five days ago," said Thomas E. Thorpe, the proprietor of the hotel today, "a man and woman began coming to the hotel for their meals. I know now that they resembled the descriptions I have read of the kidnapers. Neither offered any information concerning their business. The man wore dark spectacles, the very ones, I suppose, that the boy had on at the time of his return. They never brought the boy here."

The discovery of Billy Whitla's hiding place was made by Detective Bernhard after a talk with Billy. The boy remembered little distinctly, but he recalled that he had been kept in a house from which he could see tall trees, a stone church and the sign "Thorpe's Hotel."

Woman Planned It All.

The woman admits planning the entire plot. The story of the capture is as follows:

Detectives heard that a man and a woman answering the description of the kidnapers had been seen on the outskirts of the city. They came down town and bought numerous articles of clothing tendering $5 and $10 bills in payment. Later a report came that the pair had left a package in a downtown store which proved to contain discarded clothing. Capt. Shattuck and Detective Wood trailed them around the business district for several hours, but delayed taking them into custody. Shortly after nightfall the police learned that the two had gone to the east end of the city. The police walked up behind the pair and Shattuck took the woman by the arm, Detective Wood securing the man. The couple staggered as if intoxicated. They made no protest against going with the officers. Beneath the woman's skirt was found $9,790. All but $40 was in packages with the slips placed on the money when Whitla took it from the bank still around it.

Billy Goes to Cleveland.

Sharon, Pa., March 24.—For the purpose of identifying and getting possession of the man and woman under arrest at Cleveland in connection with the Whitla kidnaping case Chief of Police Crain, Detective Kempler, District Attorney Lininger and Former District Attorney Cochran started for the Ohio city this morning.

Willie Whitla, accompanied by his father, James P. Whitla, and his uncle, Frank H. Buhl, also left here at 11:22 for Cleveland. At first Mrs. Whitla was strongly opposed to the boy going, refusing him to allow him to accompany the officers early today. However, she consented when her husband and Mr. Buhl decided to take the boy themselves.

Previous to his departure for Cleveland today Chief of Police Martin Crain went before Alderman Gilbert and made information against Helen Foulkner and James Boyle charging them with abduction. These are said to be the names of the man and woman under arrest in Cleveland.

Later it was decided to take Janitor Sloss, of the school, to Cleveland in an effort to identify the man suspected. The janitor talked with the man who kidnaped Willie.

Since the day following the abduction, rumors have been rife that a prominent woman, who formerly lived in Sharon, might be implicated in the case. Efforts to locate her after the kidnaping were futile. This woman knows all that could be known concerning the Whitla family. Mr. Whitla's financial standing would be known to the woman within a few dollars, and she is also acquainted with the great love of the parents for their boy. The supposition here is that every point of the case was arranged by the woman. The man stole the boy from the school, but outside of this the woman was the leader.

It is said by detectives today that the kidnaping case has cost Mr. Whitla $20,000.

Thousands Sing Doxology.

The whole borough of Sharon turned out last night and participated in a demonstration over the home-coming of Willie Whitla. A parade was led by the Buhl Independent rifles of the National guard and the Buhl Rifle band, both named for Willie's uncle, and thousands marched behind them through the principal streets to the Whitla home, where 5,000 persons assembled on the lawn, cheering and giving every evidence of joy over the recovery of the little wanderer. The band took a position on the front porch of the Whitla home and played several selections. In a front room were the Whitla family and Detective Ward.

When calls were made for a speech, Mr. Whitla appeared on the porch, accompanied by Rev. Joseph McCartney of First Presbyterian church, who spoke briefly.

Mr. Whitla then addressed the throng, extending his thanks to all the officials and detectives who had assisted in the search for the boy, and expressing the gratitude of his family and himself for the sympathy of the people, which he said, had done so much to help the family bear up during the darkest hours of their sorrow. He suggested that children be taught by their parents to fear strangers, and to make an outcry whenever a stranger should attempt to induce children to accompany them.

With the singing of the Doxology by several thousand voices, the demonstration was ended.

Reward of $15,000.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 24.—Governor Stuart has issued a proclamation offering a reward of $15,000 for the arrest and conviction of the kidnapers of Willie Whitla.

Punishable By Death.

Washington, March 24.—To define the crime of kidnaping and provide punishment therefor, in the District of Columbia." This is the title of a bill that Representative Rodenberg of Illinois introduced and it was suggested by the experiences of little Willie Whitla of Sharon, Pa.

The kidnaping of a person for the purpose of extorting ransom is made punishable by death or imprisonment for not less than five years.

On February 3, Cramer, a traveling salesman was married to Miss Catherine Ames. They went to Mexico on their honeymoon, where he was interested in a rubber plantation.

Cramer became ill on the plantation. They were many miles from a doctor, and it was some time before he could be taken to the City of Mexico. Here he seemed to improve. He was brought to Milwaukee by his young wife last week. He died Monday morning. Cramer was born in Wausau, Wis., in 1874, and was educated there.

BACK FROM BUTTE CAMP

Two Parties of Duluthians Return From the West.

Butte-Montana Formally Transferred to Butte-Alex Scott Company.

The Duluthians who set out for Butte, Mont., about two weeks ago, to look over the copper mining properties there, in which they are interested, returned last night well satisfied with conditions as they found them; and enthusiastic regarding the possibilities of some of the mines.

The officers and stockholders of the Butte-Alex Scott Copper company, who formed one party, also completed the work of formally taking over for that concern the properties of the Butte-Montana company. This was satisfactorily done.

Stockholders of the Butte-Montana company met with the officers of the Butte-Alex Scott company, in the company's office in the State Savings Bank building, Butte. The formal offer made by Thomas A. Merritt of Duluth, to take over Butte-Montana for the Alex Scott company, was accepted.

The taking over of the Butte-Montana by the Butte-Alex Scott company permits of an immediate development of the property. This work is to be pushed vigorously. N. P. Hugo of Duluth, vice president of the company, has been authorized by President Bennett to look after the operations, and he goes at once to Milwaukee to purchase the new engine, which is being built for the Scott company there. The engine is to be shipped at once, and will be installed and in operation within thirty days.

"At the Butte-Alex Scott, they are down 1,245 feet, and they have good ore on every level," said Max Stevens of Ironwood, Mich., one of the party, when seen today.

In the party of Butte-Alex Scott stockholders, who returned last night were: J. G. Bennett of Pittsburg, president; J. R. Chapman of Pittsburg; N. P. Hugo of Duluth, vice president; Max Stevens of Ironwood, Mich.; Frank Beck of Houghton, Mich.; Sheriff Bates of Duluth, J. J. Edson, Jr., of Washington, D. C., and L. L. Culbertson, Robert Patterson, R. A. Kerr and Martin Rosendahl, all of Duluth.

The other section of the Duluth crowd, who were prominent figures in the Butte hotels last week, were M. W. Lee, John A. Percival, W. T. Smith, R. H. Denney of Duluth and H. E. Stansbury of Superior. They also returned last night. This party spent most of its time at the Butte-Ballaklava property, although the members inspected many of the other mines in the camp during their stay.

"The Butte-Ballaklava mine is looking very well indeed," said Mr. Lee this morning. "They have done 3,500 feet of cross-cutting and drifting and have completed a station on the 1,300-foot level and are drifting there. Some good strikes have been made recently and the showing has been so good altogether that it has been decided to put in steel ore bins at once. Just outside the shaft at the 1,300-foot station, rich ore has been found—mostly black sulphide and glance."

Speaking of Butte & Superior, Mr. Lee said:

"If work had been started from the first in the way it is going on now, Butte & Superior would be a shipping mine by this time. The shaft, which is a four-compartment affair and said to be one of the best in the Butte camp, is down 1,400 feet. They are cross-cutting on the 1,200-foot level and have found some nice stringers of copper—but they are still in zinc.

"The greatest chances in Butte & Superior lie in the western part of the property and there the most energy is being exerted. They have drifted 1,250 feet to the west on the 1,200-foot level. The Elma Lou claim of the Clark properties lies at the west of Butte & Superior and it is hoped to catch the Elma Lou vein in Butte & Superior. They are mining rich ore in the Elma Lou and are working close to the Butte & Superior line."

TO LOOK AFTER MINE.

Foreman of Railroad Shops to Inspect Black Hills Property.

Brainerd, Minn., March 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is expected here that H. A Lyddon, general foreman of the Northern Pacific railway shops, will go to the Black Hills to take temporary charge of the American Eagle mine. This mine is owned largely by railroad men, and they have determined to have one of their number on the ground for a time, to look after the affairs of the company. Mr. Lyddon will probably be absent about three months, but will not resign his position here.

CHANGES IN PENN ROAD'S MANAGEMENT.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 24.—Important changes in the Pennsylvania railroad management were made today by the new board of directors. W. W. Atterbury was moved up from general manager to first vice president. W. H. Ward Meyers, general superintendent of the Northern Central railroad and Erie division was made general manager.

Congressman Miller.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I wish to express my thanks for the stand you have taken on our congressman. It is the unanimous sentiment in our locality, and most of us who were staunch Miller supporters are looking forward to a year from next fall, with revenge in view. Yours respectfully, E. S. SCHEIBE,

STATE INSPECTION OF GRAIN MEETS PRAISE

North Dakota Commission's Report on Inquiry at Grain Terminals.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 24.—The Minnesota system of state grain inspection has come off scot free after a searching inquiry by the special board of grain commissioners, appointed in 1907 byGovernor John Burke of North Dakota. The report of this commission has just been issued, and is highly pleasing to the Minnesota officials, who have all along declared the accusations made by Senator McCumber to be unjust. The commission's findings do not bear out the senator's statements, made in his speech on the federal grain inspection bill, though the commission also goes on record for a federal system of inspection.

The North Dakota investigation was made by A. R. Thompson, M. O. Hall and E. D. Washburn, and it was a most searching inquiry, made under instructions which called for careful examination of such questions as the "suction draft" system in terminal elevators, dockage, the disposition of screenings, and their value. The report is thorough on these subjects, and finds no wrong done to the grain shipper which he is not able himself to prevent. The courtesy of the Minnesota officials is acknowledged, also their frankness in giving the visitors access to everything, and the North Dakotans say that their hosts "apparently had nothing to conceal."

Distinction Not Understood.

The report says North Dakotans need to distinguish between the public elevators at the terminals, and the semi-public houses, which handle the bulk of the grain and are not prohibited from mixing different consignments together.

"This," says the report, "is a phase of the terminal grain business that has been quite generally misunderstood by our North Dakota shippers and farmers, who seem to think that all the elevators of Minneapolis and Duluth are public houses, where the identity of the grain must be preserved as received." Some comment is made on the mixing houses or "grain hospitals," which are not condemned. "On the whole," the report says, "the grain hospital system is a business practice whereby inferior and unmarketable grain is improved and made marketable." It is suggested that these places would serve a good public purpose providing the profits they make are indirectly reflected back to the producer of the superior grades which they handle. They are also beneficiaries of the sale of screenings. The report finds that dockage is increasing as grain becomes more foul with other seeds, but in 1908 was only an average of 32.6 ounces to the bushel. Screenings are now sold at from $7 to $15 a ton, and it is estimated that in this way North Dakota grain raisers practically give away $150,000 a year. In addition they pay freight on all this volume of dockage for which they get no money.

Should Keep It at Home.

"It may appear impracticable," the commissioners say, "but nevertheless the waste of this immense amount of stuff, which is suitable for food purposes for stock, would suggest the idea that it should be kept at home, and used by our farmers, instead of being given away and paying frieght on the same besides.

The report explains the Minnesota inspection system in detail. It tells how samples are taken, and in each case saved for inside inspection, and for reinspection when called for. These are taken when possible while en route, samplers being stationed at Willmar, Melrose, Staples, Cass Lake and Sandstone. In this way inspection is generally made before the car arrives at terminal, and appeal may be taken without holding delivery of the car very long. It is explained that in case of appeals a new sample is taken and inspected by a board of three men, appointed by the governor and not under the railroad and warehouse commission. Grain dockage is determined by finely adjusted scales and sieves.

The state weighing system comes in for a chapter, which is also free from criticism. Attention is called to the Minnesota statute, which requires a card giving the outweight to be placed on the door, so if there is a discrepancy it can be looked into immediately. This is recommended as a good practice for North Dakota.

Suction Draft Necessary.

The "suction system," so roundly condemned by the North Dakota Bankers' association, was investigated and found to be a very proper and necessary process. The commissioners found that suction is not applied before weighing, so no light grain is lost.

The process of weighing is described, showing that everything is done under supervision of bonded state weighers. Some loaded cars were found by the Fillsbury "A" mill that had leaked and were unfit to carry grain. "Investigation proved that state employes had made this inspection," says the board, "and had made a complete record of conditions." It is recommended that the railroads be required to stand losses by leakage from such cars. The board finds there is a regular shrinkage of thirty pounds to the thousand from hauling, and also that there is a loss in elevating to hopper scales. Hence it is suggested that all grain be weighed on track scales before unloading.

The report goes into the question of terminal markets, and while it does not favor board of trade methods, the system actually employed is described and not criticized in detail at all.

State Should Lease Terminals.

The report recommends that North Dakota as a state shall lease terminal elevators at Minneapolis and one at the Head of the Lakes, for the marketing of North Dakota grain. It advises building "grain hospitals" in connection with these. It urges a state law for inspection of local elevators, such as Minnesota has, also legal forms for storage receipts, scale inspectors and reports from all grain warehouses.

Federal grain inspection is recommended, first, because it would make a uniform standard of grades over the country; second, because 95 per cent of the grain raised in North Dakota is sold outright at local elevators, where there is no system of inspection or dockage; third, because grades inspected out for export are inferior to grades inspected in, which works a hardship on the producer of the best grades, and fourth, because "federal inspection would tend to restore the confidence of the grain growers of North Dakota, which has been sadly lacking under the present system of dockage and inspecting grains at terminal markets."

There is nothing in the report, however, to give ground for this lack of confidence, and the state inspection and weighing departments feel highly pleased.

"I felt that we would receive justice from the North Dakota commission," said Chief Inspector F. W. Eva yesterday. "I knew they were anxious to get the facts, and they got everything we knew that could be of service. We were satisfied to have them report the truth of conditions here, and they have done so in all their statements of fact."

FIVE RESORT KEEPERS FINED

Raid on Range Disorderly Houses Enriches the County.

Two men and three women, who were gathered in by the sheriff's forces in the raid on the disorderly houses of Hibbing, following the return of a batch of indictments by the March grand jury, decided in district court yesterday to take the punishment of the law without the formality of a trial. Accordingly, the county treasury was enriched by $2,400 in fines, and one sentence is yet to be imposed.

May Fisher of Chisholm and May Whitney of Hibbing were each fined $1,000 for keeping disorderly houses, and May Whitney was fined $100 additional for selling liquor without a license. Bertie Dumford and Mike Dumford pleaded guilty to selling liquor without a license, and Mike drew $100 while Bertie was let down with $200. They were each sentenced to thirty days in the county jail, but sentence was suspended during good behavior. All of the fines were paid, and the prisoners were released.

Fred Powell pleaded guilty to keeping a disorderly house, but he has not yet been sentenced.

Since the arrests were made last week, the people accused have been held in the county jail. May Fisher was the only one able to furnish bail, and she was released pending her appearance in court. The others have enjoyed the hospitality of Sheriff Bates, not having been able to furnish the coin for bail.

Of the eight people arrested last week, only two now remain in the county jail. Fred Powell has pleaded guilty and he is being held pending sentence. Glenn Seville, who was indicted on four counts, has stood by his plea of not guilty and he will stand trial. He is unable to furnish the $2,400 bail asked, and he remains in the county jail.

Besides the four people released yesterday by the payment of fines, George Lehr and May Nordstrom were also released. Lehr was indicted with May Whitney, and the Nordstrom woman with Fred Powell. Neither could be connected with the actual conduct of the house.

MINERS MAY APPEAL TO TAFT

Consider Asking Him to Appoint Another Commission.

Scranton, Pa., March 24.—If the situation warrants, an officer of the miners' union will present a resolution to the miners' convention, asking President Taft to appoint a commission similar to the anthracite coal strike commission, to investigate the conditions at present, as was done in 1905.

The resolution would not be put into effect unless the operators again refused to grant concessions to the miners.

CANADIAN MINERS GET BETTER PAY AND HOURS.

Winnipeg, Man., March 24.—The conference between the coal miners of Southern Alberta and Southeastern British Columbia and the coal mine operators reached an amicable conclusion at MacLeod, Alberta, last night, and there will be no strike. The final settlement was signed today. Both sides are satisfied with the adjustment of the wage schedule. The miners will get higher wages and better hours.

AFTER PERCIVAL IN ANOTHER SUIT

W. O. Clymo Starts Action Against Butte-Ballaklava Promoter.

Butte, Mont., March 24.—John A. Percival of Minneapolis, one of the promoters of the Butte-Ballaklava Copper company and present secretary of the company, is in Butte and his presence has been taken advantage of by several men who have claims against him to institute suits in the district court against him. Last Friday W. H. Nichols sued him for $5,750, which he claims is due him on a stock transaction, which, it is alleged, Percival attempted to repudiate. Now another action has been begun by W. O. Clymo, former superintendent of the company, and one of the venders of the six acres of the Butte-Ballaklava ground on which the company was formed and promoted. Clymo wants $8,000 from Percival on another stock transaction, according to his complaint, Percival made misrepresentations to him and induced him to give up 1,600 shares of stock. He says that he and Percival and Carle Galliger were interested as partners in the sale of the Burke and Ballaklava claims to the Butte-Ballaklava company, and 10,000 shares of the stock were deposited in the First National bank for them. Percival to get 999 shares as his profit. The stock was to be released when the company was financed for $500,000. Thereafter Percival, who was also secretary and a director of the company, represented to Clymo that the directors had assessed him 1,500 shares, which were to be deducted from the 10,000, and, taking Percival's word for it, he gave up the stock and received $37,500 for his share of the stock in escrow from Percival. Clymo says he was sick at the time and unable to give the usual shrewd and businesslike attention to his affairs, a fact known to Percival and of which the latter took advantage. Clymo, according to his complaint, has since discovered that no such assessment was made, and that the statements and representations that were made to him by Percival were false. Therefore Clymo wants $8,000 more from Percival, together with interest at 8 per cent from Jan. 9, 1908.

SHIPMENTS FROM MINES FOR THE SEASON OF 1908

Hull-Rust Was Biggest Producer With 2,926,683 Tons.

The Total Production Showed a Decrease of One-Third.

The total iron ore shipments from the Lake Superior district fell off a little more than one-third in the season 1908 over 1907. This is also true of the tonnage from the Mesaba range, taken separately.

During the season of 1908 a total of 26,014,987 tons of ore was shipped from the iron mines of the Lake Superior district, which is 16,251,681 tons less than was shipped during 1907. Of this total 17,257,350 tons were shipped from the Mesaba range, while in 1907 the Mesaba range shipped 27,495,708 tons. The Oliver Iron Mining company made a total shipment in 1908 of 14,123,957 tons, as compared with 22,710,898 tons in 1907.

For the first time since 1894 the shipments from the Vermilion range dropped below 1,000,000 tons, amounting to only 841,544, against the 1,685,267 of 1907. This was due to curtailment and the abandonment of the historic Chandler mine, whose period of activity extended over twenty years, yielding 10,000,000 tons of ore.

The three mines which made the largest shipments during the past year were the Hull-Rust, with 2,926,683 tons; the Fayal, with 1,439,879 tons, and the Burt, with 1,460,998 tons. The Mountain Iron mine, which in 1907 was the largest producer, with 2,563,111 tons, in 1908 produced only 206,698 tons.

Three mines on the Mesaba are credited with producing for the first time last year. They are the Sliver, Kellogg and Sweeney. Another mine on the Mesaba which had made no shipments for a number of years, is reported to have shipped ore during the past season. This is the Minnewas, which produced 525 tons. The Sliver, Kellogg and Sweeney shipped 49,291 tons, 21,351 tons and 7,579 tons respectively.

From Duluth by rail and water 8,508,168 tons were shipped in 1908, while in 1907 13,448,736 tons were shipped. Two Harbors sent down the lakes 5,702,237 tons last year and 8,188,906 tons in 1907.

The shipments by mines for the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges are as follows:

to the state. This amendment was voted down, however.

W. D. Washburn, Jr., of Minneapolis, said that this proposes an unusual and unjust form of taxation, applying only to one industry, and he did not believe it should be adopted.

L. H. Johnson said that it was as sensible as that to tax the farmer every time he milks his cow.

Representative Duea of Rock county said that he had bought grain in the country, and that every night the grain buyer sells in the city market an equal amount to his purchases, in order to protect himself. This is not gambling, but the very reverse. The buyer on the change is gambling and the buyer who hedges is taking no chances. Besides, the cost would go to the farmer in every case, anyway.

D. A. Stuart of Windom said he could not understand why the tax was proposed. If it was on the ground that the transactions taxed are illegitimate, the legislature should not put the stamp of approval upon them by licensing them. If the transactions are illegitimate, the tax is unjustifiable. If the trades are not legitimate, it would be no better than it would be to tax the chips used by the gambler. "If this bill passes," said L. H. Johnson of Minneapolis, "the cities will take their medicine; but if the cities proposed to impose upon the farmers a measure as outrageous as this, there would be the greatest howl the house chamber ever resounded with."

The Thayer bill was recommended to pass, however, by a vote decidedly enough in its favor to indicate that it will pass the house when it is reached upon the calendar.

The house also advanced to the calendar the Stuart bill, making the mortgage registry tax 10 cents per $100, instead of 50 cents. Mr. Stuart believes that since the borrower always pays the tax, credits should be exempted from taxation; but as the issue of constitutionality was raised, he compromised on the nominal tax proposed in his bill, and let his bill, exempting credits from taxation, drop.

Representative Bicknell said that the plan practically exempts mortgages from taxation, and that should not be done.

Representative Spooner said that all it amounted to is that since the borrower seems doomed to pay the tax, the tax ought to be made as small as possible in the borrower's interest.

Representative Ole Peterson said that the passage of this act would do more to aid the farmer than all the agricultural schools imaginable, even if farmers, like Jim Hill, did talk profoundly about the need of agricultural education.

Representative Thayer moved that the bill be indefinitely postponed, and talked loudly in support of his motion; whereupon Representative Stuart calmly remarked that it seemed to him that Thayer's argument depended more upon its loudness of tone than upon the soundness of its logic.

The motion to indefinitely postpone was lost, 34 for and 54 against, and the bill was recommended to pass.

Five measures largely local to St. Louis county was passed by the senate yesterday afternoon, and as all of them have already passed the house, it is a certainty that they will become laws.

The most important was that creating an additional judge for the Eleventh judicial district, and providing for general terms of district court at Virginia and Hibbing. The senate had adopted two slight amendments to the bill, so it will have to go back to the house in order that that body may concur in these changes. This will be done, and as the act is purely formal, the bill will be repassed by the house and sent to the governor for his signature within a day or two. The bill provides for the immediate appointment of the new judge by the governor.

The senate also passed the Austin bill, designed for the relief of several Mesaba range communities, providing for the addition of territory to cities and villages. By the vote of the people living in the territory affected, territory not more than a mile and a half from the city limits may be taken in and made to pay city and village taxes and to become subject to municipal ordinances and regulations.

The senate has amended this bill also, so it will have to go back to the house for concurrence in these amendments.

Other St. Louis county bills passed by the senate yesterday afternoon were as follows:

By Representative Grant—Allowing cities and counties to register their titles to public property under the Torrens law.

By the St. Louis county delegation—Providing for a county examiner of townships, villages, school districts, cities and charitable and benevolent societies depending upon public subscriptions.

By the St. Louis county delegation—Providing for a commission composed of the chairman of the board of county commissioners, the county auditor and the county treasurer, to have full charge of the new courthouse.

By a vote of 42 to 5 the senate yesterday afternoon passed the bill by the senate judiciary committee regulating trading stamps. The bill requires that dealers that issue stamps must redeem them, instead of having them redeemed by trading stamp companies, that each stamp must show its value upon its face, and that all stamps must be redeemed. The bill is an attempt to wipe out the trading stamp evil which has grafted itself as a parasite upon the business of many communities.

The senate passed the Clague bill proposing and amendment to the Constitution providing for a state tax of a quarter of a mill for road purposes, and that half the amount spent in each county may be paid by the state instead of one-third, the present limit.

Senator Manley L. Fosseen of Minneapolis introduced a bill to prohibit insurance companies organized under the laws of any other state or country from doing business in this state, when by the laws of such other state or country insurance companies of this state are prohibited from doing business there.

Several bills affecting the social evil came into the house yesterday afternoon. Representative Lobeck introduced one providing a penalty of two years in prison or $2,000 fine for anybody bringing women into this state for immoral purposes, or procuring women to enter evil resorts.

Representative Ware offered a bill providing a penalty of one to three years in prison for anybody taking part or all of the earnings of a prostitute.

Representative Ware also introduced a bill providing the same penalty for those who patronize evil resorts or knowingly rent property for that purpose, as the law now prescribes for keepers of houses of ill-fame.

Representative Lobeck introduced a bill making it a felony to hold any woman in an evil resort to compel her to pay debts contracted there.

Representative Conley is the author of a new bill designed to cover the present controversy over the location of proposed Armour packing plant. It prohibits the location of soap factories, tanneries, stockyards, rendering plants, packing plants, or any other offensive business, within four miles of a state educational institution unless the company gives a bond equivalent to 25 per cent of the valuation of its business, conditioned upon the removal of the plant when it is found to be a nuisance.

A drastic measure affecting companies, whose stock is sold in the state, was introduced yesterday afternoon by Representative Carlson. It is intended to protect buyers of stock, and it requires every company, whose stock is sold in this state, to file reports with the secretary of state, along with copies of articles of incorporation, and with abstracts of title showing the property it owns, showing its place of business, the names and addresses of its officers and directors, with the amount of stock held by each and the amount received by the company for such shares, the names of stockholders and the amount of their holdings, lists of promoters, assets liabilities, etc.

Representative Rines of Mora must recently have spent a chilly time waiting for a train in a cold country station. Yesterday afternoon, he introduced a bill requiring railroads to keep their depots heated from October to May, and open for half an hour each side of train time.

Representative Robertson is the author of a bill prohibiting veterinarians at state experiment stations from holding positions on state boards, on the ground that they are paid for putting in all their time at veterinary work.

Representatives Bendixen and Kneeland are the authors of a bill introduced yesterday afternoon which fixes the tax rate for all purposes on credits at 3 mills, the money to be distributed as other taxes are apportioned. Real estate mortgages paying a mortgage registry tax are excepted.

Representative Minnicks introduced his bill, referred to yesterday, fixing the punishment for kidnaping at life imprisonment.

The house bills passed the thousand mark yesterday, the total number up to last night being 1,013.

Monday is the last day for introducing bills without the consent of the governor.

Senator Vail was at the capitol yesterday afternoon, almost completely recovered frim his injury.

While re-apportionment schemes have lost interest because of the belief that no reapportionment will be permitted at this session, the senate committee has had printed a copy of its scheme of an apportionment based on 40,000 people for each senatorial district.

Under it St. Louis, Lake and Cook counties would have three senators, as now, and seven representatives instead of six. Carlton, Aitkin, Itasca and Koochiching counties would have one senator and three representatives. Beltrami, Hubbard and Cass counties would have one senator and three representatives. Marshall, Roseau and Kittson counties would have the same. Pine, Kanabec, Isanti and Mille Lacs would have a senator and four representatives. Polk would have a senator and two representatives. Norman, Mahnomen, Clearwater and Red Lake counties would have one senator and two representatives. Becker, Clay and Wilkin counties would have a senator and three representatives. Otter Tail would have a senator and three representatives, losing one representative. Pope and Douglas counties would have a senator and two representatives. Wadena and Todd counties would have a senator and two representatives. Stearns would have a senator and one representative. Morrison and Crow Wing counties would have a senator and two representatives. Anoka, Sherburne and Benton counties would have a senator and three representatives.

The object is to have one senator for each 40,000 people, as nearly as may be, and one representative for each county—except three or four smaller counties—with one additional representative for each 15,000 additional population. This would make fifty senators instead of sixty-three, and 119 house members, as at present.

consumer, he said, there were millions of ultimate consumers who had not the wherewithal to foot the bills for a trip to Washington, and other millions who could scrape together the expense money, could not afford to use it in that way.

Is Eventually Heard.

"So that," he said, "the ultimate consumer really speaks in these hearings through questions propounded by members of the committee in an honest endeavor to ascertain the truth."

Most of the cross-firing among witnesses, he said, was where one set of manufacturers fell afoul of another because the tariff pie was not evenly distributed, and each one wanted the biggest piece.

"To Mr. Fordney of Michigan, Clark extended assurances of his 'profoundest consideration for a fighter.' He said if Mr. Fordney were given carte blanche to write a tariff bill, 'it would be short, if not sweet, and would be in these words, "if an article can be produced in this country by any process or at any cost whatsoever, nothing like it shall be imported."'"

All through the hearings, he said, Mr. Fordney was on hand with first aids for the wounded. He said the rest of the Republicans, first or last, "came over to our side" on different subjects in various degrees, but that Mr. Fordney never lowered his colors. "Neither Leonidas at the pass nor Horatius at the bridge was a marker to him," he said.

Discussing the situation in which the ways and means committee found itself, it was unprecedented, because both parties had favored reducing the tariff rates of the Dingley bill. "Of course," he said, "the Republican platform was equivocal," but in that connection most of the Republican members of the committee came at last to construe it as a revision downwards. The Democrats so construed it, and he said the better part of wisdom and patriotism would have been for all the members to have collaborated in the work of preparing the bill after the hearings closed. "We are all American citizens, equally interested in the prosperity, glory and happiness of a mighty people," he explained. "Not one of us had the slightest desire to injure in any way or to any extent whatsoever any legitimate American industry."

Stared At Big Deficiency.

In addition to the peculiar coincidence of both parties being under orders to revise the tariff downward, he said, all were stared in the face by a large and increasing deficiency in the revenues. There were, he said, but three ways known among men by which a deficiency may be cured, cut down expenses, increase taxes and issue bonds. To issue bonds, he said, was no remedy at all. It was simply postponing the evil day when they must be paid, principal and interest. Taxes, he contended, never should be increased when possible to avoid it.

Cutting down appropriations, he said, where it could be done, without stinting the government in any of its proper functions, was the most efficient remedy for a deficiency. "But," he added, "our Republican brethren seem utterly incapable of cutting down appropriations. We favor that remedy on the old Jeffersonian principle of 'economy in the public expenses, that labor may be lightly burdened.'"

He argued that as the Republicans cannot economize and as they are in the majority, the committee on ways and means is under compulsion "to somehow increase the revenues by about $150,000,000 per annum." Taking the whole situation into account, he said, the wise thing would be to invite the Democrats to join in preparing the bill. We would gladly have aided them in their investigations, mediations and conclusions," he said.

Greatly Outnumbered.

In such joint work he said, no member could have got into the bill or out of it all that he desired. "There was not any danger of our outwitting them," he remarked, "for they have twelve members to our six, but we might by mutual concessions have agreed on all the items or at least a large part of them. Had we agreed in whole or even in part, it would have greatly expedited the passage of the bill, thereby shortening the business suspension pervading the land."

The idea of collaboration, however, he said, did not occur to the Republicans. "On the contrary they concluded to segregate themselves, and go it alone, as they had a perfect right to do."

He spoke of the rapidity with which the bill was reported back to the house, the time consumed being just twelve minutes, "without a moment's discussion and without even reading the title." He warned the Republicans that if a prolonged debate ensued and if the business agony was continued for weeks or even months, it is well to remember that the blame should rest upon the Republican members of the committee and not upon the Democratic members."

The Payne bill, Clark asserted, contained divers things which should have been omitted and it omitted divers things which it should have contained. "As confessedly its chief purpose is to increase the revenues," he said, it would appear to have been the part of wisdom to have made both the increases and the decreases in rates to that end and that end alone."

There is, he declared, no question of free trade involved in the revision. In the present posture of the affairs he argued, every approximately prohibitive rate ought to be cut to a revenue basis. There were many of them in the Dingley bill, a large portion of which he said, were retained in the Payne bill.

The rate on steel rails had been cut in two, being reduced from $7.84 to $3.92 a ton, but he predicted that the Payne rate would prove just as prohibitive as the higher figure.

He referred to the testimony of Carnegie before the committee on which he said no tariff was needed on steel rails even from a protectionist's viewpoint and the speaker said that on the steel rail question he pinned his faith to the "laird of Skibo."

WILLIAM GUGGENHEIM'S DIVORCE HELD LEGAL.

New York, March 24.—In a referee's report, filed with Supreme Court Justice Gerard, the finding is made that William Guggenheim, well known as a capitalist and business man, was legally divorced in Illinois in January, 1901.

The finding is the result of a suit brought by Mr. Guggenheim's former wife, Grace Brown, whom he married in November, 1900. The testimony adduced before the referee showed that after Guggenheim got his divorce in Illinois, he paid the woman $150,000 in cash, and she executed a general release of whatever claim she had upon him.

The suit to set aside the divorce decree was based on the claim that the woman was never a resident of Illinois and, therefore, the Illinois divorce was invalid.

The many uses of Gold Dust

If you were to use for each kind of washing, cleaning, scouring and scrubbing, one of the so-called special preparations which are made, you would have an imposing and expensive array of chemicals, washing compounds, cleaning pastes, etc.

There is one cleaner that can take the place of them all, and without the need of borax, ammonia, kerosene or naphtha, and that is Gold Dust.

At the end of the morning's session, informal reminiscences of the organization of the society, twenty-one years ago, were enjoyed. Mrs. George M. Smith and Mrs. Coffin of this city, who were present at this year's sessions, were charter members and present when the society was organized, in the early days of Duluth.

The speaker at this morning's session was Mrs. Edwards of St. Paul, the synodical president, and she spoke interestingly of the work in China, which is being carried on by Minnesota workers, and in which the women's societies of this state are especially interested.

Miss Myers, a returned missionary from China and Ceylon, and now field secretary of the Presbyterian board of the northwest, addressed the society at the last session this afternoon. Her subject was "Open Doors, Our Opportunity," and she gave an able and interesting talk. The sessions of the annual meeting closed with a communion service, administered by the Rev. J. C. Farles of the Glen Avon church.

Rogers has secured that number of renewals or new members in the contest now being carried on by the association. It is especially desired that every member become interested in the contest at least to the extent of securing three new members or renewals.

MELDAHL NOW ON THE BOARD

Thomas Dillon, Retiring Member, Honored By His Associates.

A. J. Meldahl, newly-appointed member of the board of public works, to succeed Thomas Dillon, this morning took up the duties of his new office, and Mr. Dillon bade farewell to his friends about the city hall.

The retiring member has been very popular with his associates during his term of office, and members of the board of public works department, this morning, presented him with a handsome gold-headed cane, suitably engraved, as a token of their esteem. President Olson and Secretary Murchison both delivered brief addresses, expressing regret at Mr. Dillon's departure, and Mr. Dillon responded with a few words appropriate to the occasion.

The board will organize for the year at its meeting next Friday.

CLARK LAVISH WITH BOUQUETS

Minority Leader Is Applauded on Both Sides of House.

Washington, March 24.—Interest in today's tariff discussion in the house of representative centered in the speech of Mr. Clark of Missouri, minority leader and ranking Democratic member of the committee on ways and means. From the outset Mr. Clark's remarks commanded attention. At times he injected humor into what he had to say and frequently was interrupted by applause.

As a preliminary to his set speech Mr. Clark provoked the house to great laughter and Mr. Olmstead of Pennsylvania, the chairman, to no little embarrassment by congratulating him upon the advent yesterday of a son. For Mr. Payne the minority leader had only words of praise and his remarks in that connection elicited applause on both sides. Mr. Payne's powers of endurance, he declared, were a marvel, and his nine hours' speech on the tariff had made him a great historical person.

"Indeed," said Mr. Clark, "he has knocked higher than a kite the idiotic theory of Dr. Osler." The speech of the majority leader he characterized as a superb vindication of his physical and mental strength.

Mr. Clark also had a kind word for every member of the committee on ways and means. "We worked like galley slaves in trying to ascertain the truth," he said.

He denied that the committee had bully-ragged any witnesses as he said had been charged and declared that if any witness had received an indecent word in the committee room he had provoked it by his own acts.

FREE FROM JAIL, GET RECEPTION

Woman Suffragists, Including Lady Lytton, Released.

London, March 24.—The woman suffragists, sent to prison for the demonstration in Parliament Square, Feb. 25, were given an enthusiastic reception on release from Holloway jail this morning.

A crowd of women gathered at the gates of the building when the "martyrs" came out. A procession was formed, headed by a band, and made its way to Holborn, where a "welcome breakfast," was given in honor of the former prisoners.

Lady Constance Lytton is among the women released.

CLAIM THEY PAID TOO MUCH

Richard Fagan and Edward Lynch Sue J. F. Killorin.

A suit for $620 brought by Richard H. Fagan and Edward Lynch against John F. Killorin, is on trial today, before Judge Dibell, in district court.

According to the complaint, on June 27, 1908, Mr. Killorin foreclosed a mortgage given to him by the plaintiffs, judgment being enteerd on that date for $16,894.94. Attorney's fees, amounting to $100 and costs of $18.80 were added to that amount, and the whole of the amount, with interest, was paid Sept. 25, 1908, the total payment being $17,263.74.

The suit is based on an additional payment of $640, alleged to have been made to Mr. Killorin by the plaintiffs for abstracts and extensions secured by Mr. Killorin. They claim that he represented to them that the abstracts and extensions had cost him that amount, but they afterwards discovered that he had, in fact, paid no more than $20. They ask for judgment for $620, the idfference.

SOME LITTLE KNOWN FACTS.

The Iron Range Press association, comprising the twelve papers of the two ranges, has addressed a memorial to the state senate, pointing out the injustice which the state is doing the range country in overlooking the fact that it is inevitably the business men of the ranges, big or little, who must suffer if a tonnage tax is enacted, not the "Steel corporation or other rich owners of iron ore living outside of the state."

The memorial declares that there are on the ranges more than 50,000 people entirely outside of those concerned in or engaged in iron mining operations, but nevertheless entirely dependent for their livelihood and prosperity upon the stability of the iron mining industry," and it points out that the tonnage tax, even if it successfully provides for the present ad valorem tax for purposes of local revenue, will make iron ore mining a very unstable and uncertain business and thereby inevitably work great damage to the business and the welfare of those 50,000 people.

These resolutions by the newspapers of the ranges are all the more remarkable when it becomes known that instead of being in harmony with the Steel corporation, these newspapers are considerably at outs with that big concern. The newspapers have long complained, and are now emphatic in their protests, that the Steel corporation does not give them the share of its business which it should give them. The mining companies, not being sellers of merchandise, have few printed blanks in comparison with institutions like a big lumber company or other big manufacturing concern, so that the business which would naturally come to the range printers is smaller than the volume of business done on the ranges would indicate. Yet the newspapers complain that only a fraction of the work which the mining companies have is given them. Their demands for the same methods of taxation which prevail in other parts of the state are therefore dictated by interests of the people of the ranges and not from any love or favor of the Steel corporation.

The memorial of the range newspapers hits at the real danger from the tonnage tax, the danger that it holds for the people who live on the ranges. The tonnage tax is certain to make the mining of iron ore uncertain. The action already taken by the house will cut short this year's shipments by a considerable percentage, and by that much reduce the prosperity of the ranges, and should the bill finally become a law, the shipments this year will be cut down in a degree that will be most harmful to the ranges.

THE WRONG VIEW POINT.

The Minnesota Mascot, one of the most thoughtful of Minnesota's able country newspapers, opposes the plan for the creation of state agricultural schools, similar to the one now in existence at Crookston, on the ground of economy. The Mascot is not inclined to be parsimonious and is not in the habit of shouting economy on the principle that it is the main business of the state to keep down expenses. For once, however, we believe it has made its protest without realizing just the character of the thing against which it protests.

The Mascot opposes the district system of agricultural schools on the ground of economy, believing that our present district schools, our high schools and the state agricultural school should furnish all the agricultural education that is necessary. The district agricultural school, the Mascot thinks, is in competition with the high school. The Mascot would not think this if it had the proper conception of what the district agricultural school proposes to do. The work that is proposed for these schools could never by any possibility be done by the high school. We have got to set it down as an elementary principle of education that the public schools, consisting of the ordinary district schools, the grades in a city or village and the high school, must be schools that will give our children a fair mental training and such an education as will fit them in a general way for living when they reach that time in life known as "entering the world." It is distinctly not the business of the public school system to turn out lawyers, doctors, contractors, engineers, brick layers, bankers or farmers. These are technical matters which technical schools must teach. The work of the public schools must be general; they must lay the broad foundation upon which special schools will raise structures of various kinds.

The district agricultural school, on the contrary, is a special school, just as the college of law is a special school, just as a training school for nurses is a special school. The high school cannot teach law, or nursing, or farming as a business to be followed in life; it may touch upon principles which bear upon special vocations, but its business in our scheme of education is to supply those essentials of general training and general learning upon which the youth may afterward build his particular business in life.

Now one or two colleges of law may be enough in a state, a single college of dentistry may be sufficient, but farming is a calling upon which all other callings depend. Where tens may become editors or lawyers, thousands must become farmers. Where the eye specialist may work in a little room, 10 by 12, the soil specialist must work over miles of upland, through forests and over rolling prairies. The conditions that surround the farmer are such that it is absolutely necessary to bring as closely to him as possible a place where the experiments of scientific farming may be carried on and where he may help in making them. Therefore, the necessity of district agricultural schools.

There is also another important matter which the Mascot overlooks in opposing the district agricultural school and in arguing that the high school and the state agricultural school is sufficient. Lawyers and doctors, nurses and stenographers may be educated in town for the town is the place where they shall work, but farmers must be educated in the country, for the country is the place where they must work. How to keep the boy on the farm is one of our most serious social problems. The district agricultural school solves it.

These are but suggestions. So great a matter cannot be discussed at length in the editorial columns of a newspaper. But if the Mascot will consider these suggestions we believe it will realize that the subject of agricultural development and education is too big a matter to be loaded upon our general school system, groaning as it is under so many new tasks that have been placed upon it in the past twenty-five years.

AUF WIEDERSEHEN.

Theodore Roosevelt yesterday left the shores of his country and set sail for Africa, where he expects to spend a year hunting and collecting specimens of the fauna of the far interior of the Dark Continent.

His departure is especially noteworthy in several ways. He has just retired, voluntarily and in the face of the most tremendous popular demand for him to remain, from the presidency of what we fondly believe to be the great nation on earth. His personal popularity with the people of his country is unexampled in our history. None of our retiring presidents have ever taken so unique a method of occupying their time and energies after retiring from their high office. Such has been the career of Roosevelt, and so extraordinary have ben the many acts of his life, that anything he does compels the most powerful interest, so that it is doubtful if the whole world has ever before been so absorbed in the undertaking of any one man as it is today in this semi-private, semi-public venture of Theodore Roosevelt into the depths of Africa.

That more than the interest of the people of this country goes with him cannot be doubted. He has the love of his countrymen in a peculiar degree, and there are few hearts of all our eighty millions who are not saying, "God be with you till we meet again!" This country has a wonderful confidence in Theodore Roosevelt; it may not need him again as its president, and it may. But in any event it needs him as a citizen, and it lets him go only with the thought that it will soon have him again.

PUBLIC PLAY PLACES.

In the busy concerns of the day a busy city may overlook the most important thing said by Mayor Haven in his message to the council, because that most important thing is not a thing of immediate necessity. We must collect the garbage and increase the police department and build a dog pound today, but we will attend to the matter of public parks and playgrounds for the children at a more convenient season.

In the scramble for wealth, the individual is apt to be very heedless of many of the comforts of life which he can have for the taking. In his effort to amass a fortune, to the end that he may have the comforts and luxuries of life, he spends all his days in heavy toil, when by simply taking thought thereto he might have unnumbered comforts and many peaceful days. But if the individual is heedless and blind to the things that are really worth while, men in the mass are far more thoughtless and improvident. There is no municipality that may not have beautiful public play grounds, but there are few municipalities that do have them, and all because we are too busy building dog pounds.

Duluth has made a beginning in the matter of public parks and play grounds and the suggestion of Mayor Haven is timely that now is the time to utilize the city's natural beauty and to provide parks and public playgrounds and beauty spots and places of rest, before commercialism seizes upon the places which we now have for these things and makes them so valuable from a money standpoint that their acquisition by the city will be a heavy burden to the taxpayer. A few years ago these places might have been had for almost nothing; many of them may still be secured at a comparatively slight expense, but in a few more years they will be put to commercial uses and their value for such purposes will be so great that it may be practically impossible for the city to redeem them.

The city of Duluth could well afford to create a board that should have authority and public funds sufficient to make a systematic study of this matter, to purchase available park grounds, to put them in proper condition and to maintain them as resting places and public playgrounds for children and for their elders. It is nothing short of folly that the city does not do this. Not to do so is to be so busy building dog pounds that we have no time to take the fine, clean, healthful places that nature has given us and to say to our children: "Here is your playground; play in it and be happy," and to say to all our citizens, "Here are beautiful resting places, where you may come for an hour or a day, to sit and be rested and cleansed in mind and soul by communing with Nature."

CHILD STEALING.

Murder is not a more abhorrent crime than child stealing.

A bill has been introduced in the legislature of Pennsylvania making death by hanging the penalty to be imposed upon a convicted kidnaper of children. If the death penalty is to be imposed for any crime it certainly ought to be imposed for the crime of child stealing.

But such penalties alone are not sufficient. The kidnaper should be hunted down with remorseless vigilence. The state of Pennsylvania cannot afford to spare any expense in ferreting out the kidnapers of the Whitla boy and bringing them to punishment. A bill has been passed by the Pennsylvania legislature offering a reward of $15,000 for the capture of the persons guilty of this crime. It should be made $50,000 or $100,000 if necessary, and the guilty persons should be pursued with a relentlessness which knows no stopping. Society cannot endure that fathers and mothers shall be in danger of having their children stolen from them. Such a case as the Whitla case should never be given up by the authorities; even if the chase should extend through years, it should be continued until the guilty wretches are run to earth.

The parents of the kidnaped boy cannot be expected to move against the kidnapers. They have suffered too terribly; they canot be called upon to put themselves in a position where they may be subject to the peculiarly terrible vengeance which a kidnaper can exact. It is society's duty to itself to act in this matter and to pursue the kidnapers with a vigor that no expense and no length of time can tire.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"The proposition to build an automobile road along the south shore of Lake Superior, from Duluth to Bayfield, is a highly commendable one," said F. N. Lang of Bayfield, Wis., at the Spalding. "The thoroughfare would offer one of the most beautiful drives in the United States, and I am sure it would be liberally patronized by Duluthians, especially by those among them who are owners of automobiles.

"Auto owners here are handicapped by the fact that there are no good country roads of any length for them to travel over. Elsewhere in America one of the chief delights in possessing a machine lies in the fact that there are good opportunities for long cross-country runs. At the present time there are no such opportunities here, the way I understand it, except over rough roads, that are impassable during certain seasons of the year, and which are bad at all times, taking all pleasure out of automobiling over them.

"With this road to Bayfield the situation would be different. The character of the land over which the route would run is such that the road, even when new, would be in first-class condition at all times, highly suitable for automobile traffic. There is just enough sand in the soil to allow the water to drain off and at the same time there is not enough sand to make the roadbed unstable. The country is a level one, and there would be no hills. The route would follow close beside the lake, right along the beach, in fact, for the greater part of the distance, and a more beautiful driveway could not be imagined.

"The road would do much to develop that section of Northern Wisconsin and to bring its people in closer touch with the business interests of Duluth and Superior. The territory is one of the richest and most fertile in the entire state. Everyone knows the varied attractions of the Apostle Islands as a summer resort, and they would make an objective point for the automobilists that would be well worth while. The run from Duluth to Bayfield could be made in from two to four hours, depending upon the speed with which the individual machines traveled. There would be great opportunities for speeding along the smooth and level roads, and no men in blue coats would be posted along the way to shake a warning club. The road would, take it all in all, be the best thing that could happen for the pleasure of Duluth automobilists."

Two Letters, Brother to Brother.

Louisville Herald: The City, Ky., March 21, 1909. Dear Brother Bill: I write to invite you to come over to this big city soon. The social season is about closing, but there are still some functions promised which you'd enjoy. The theaters are going full blast. My fellow clubmen are returning from the winter resorts and I can give you a good time. Farm life must be getting humdrum, and I suppose that the work on the old place isn't so very pressing just now.

Love to the folks.

Affectionately,

Your Brother, TOM.

The Farm, Ky., March 26, 1909. Dear Brother Tom: Yours of the 10th arrived O. K. It was sure kind of you to invite me to visit you and take in those social functions, theaters, clubs, etc., etc., but I can't make myself feel as if I wanted to do it at this time.

Say, Tom I was down to the old swimmin' hole in the creek yesterday. The sun was warm and the breeze from the south full of new odors and a new life that made a fellow wish he had four pairs of lungs to fill 'em all with it and get so young he'd fly away like a bird. There's some snow in the corners of the rail fences yit, and there's ice crystals in the moss on the north side of the beeches, but everywhere the grass is shooting up and the mandrakes breaking through in soft spots.

You remember that old half-burnt chestnut stub in the cow lot? A red-headed woodpecker was rapping at the top of it yesterday, and the chipmunks were clearing out the nut-shucks from their holes at its roots. And you ought to have heard the bluebirds whispering as they courted on the warm shingles of the cornerib.

The old swimmin' hole looks pretty nigh the same as ever, only the ice has cut down the bank we used to dive from, and some of the snags the turtles set on have washed out. Remember that little swale up near the sugar bush? It's already full of cowslips in bloom, and the dogwood blossoms paint a ribbon of white clear around the woods.

I tell you, Tom, it's fine to stand out on that knoll in the south pasture watching the new lambs staggerin' about, with the birds beginnin' to whistle, the green things a-coming up 'round you after the terrible hard winter, and with the lungs of you just a-reaching out for the spirit of spring that's coming at you in gentle puffs.

I don't think I will visit your great city now, Tom.

By gosh! I'm going fishin'!

With love, your brother, BILL.

P. S. Folks is well. BILL.

Change of Administration.

Buffalo Enquirer: What's the matter when the government can convince one court that the defendant is guilty of $29,000,000 worth and cannot convince another court that it is guilty a cent's worth? Mr. Everyday Citizen will have to seek refuge from the question in President Taft's famous answer: "God knows."

Meanwhile Mr. Everyday Citizen will wonder whether something happened to the backbone of this and other trust prosecutions on March 4. Does William H. Turnback rule in Washington instead of Theodore Rushahead?

No One Objected.

Oh, Why Should We Grieve?

I.

Oh, why should we grieve when kind spirits around us
Commune with our own at the close of the day,
By faith we foresee—if by faith we obey.
And why should the mystical future confound us?

II.

Oh, why should we censure and chide when we know not
The strong undercurrent of impulse or "Fate,"
And why should we murmur if fortune bestow not
The sweets we so covet, till always "too late?"

III.

Oh, why should we doubt, when to do so will darken
The beautiful vista that hope doth portray,
Make fairer and brighter if only we hearken
To sanctified counsel the angels convey?

IV.

Oh, why should we falter when baffled and weary?
They're waiting to aid if the burden is great.
The path may be rough, the night dark and dreary,
But daylight will dawn if we patiently wait.

V.

Oh, why should we fail, when a comrade forsaken
Repine's without comfort or strength for the fray?
In loving humanity, why not awaken
And bear to the stricken sweet hope while we may?

VI.

Oh, why should we live, if we live not for others,
From sordid and selfish impulses enate,
Retaining the kinship of sisters and brothers
And joining in spirit the loved ones who wait?

VII.

Oh, why should we willfully, wantonly, wander
Too far from their care, and, if tempted to stray,
We appeal to that sympathy greater and grander
Their beautiful presence shall brighten the way.

How To Make a Lawn.

You may have been looking at the fine green turf of some public park and wishing that your little grassplot in front of your house would grow something beside weeds. "The lawn," says Frank A. Waugh, of Amherst Agricultural College, "is the foundation of all good gardening." So why not have one?

No matter if you have never raised anything but a crop of old tin cans and rubbish heretofore. If you go at it the right way you may have a little plot of the smoothest, most delightful green grass. It all depends on the way you begin it. In the April number of the Woman's Home Companion, Mr. Waugh, who is the big authority on all subjects pertaining to gardening, tells how to make a lawn from the very first, how the different soils must be prepared, what seeds to use, and the subsequent care that is required.

The garden is capable of all sorts of good things—sanitary, social and domestic. With the revival of interest in outdoor life, we must make our lawns and door yards attractive places to live in, with a certain and sure gain to our health and happiness.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1889.

Seeding has begun in nearly all sections of the Northwest, except on low ground, on the north sides of the ridges and in some parts of the timber land.

R. J. Pettibone, superintendent of the National Iron works, arrived home yesterday from Hot Springs, Ark. His health was only little benefited by his stay there.

Fred D. W. Smith and Miss Alice F. Hunter were married yesterday at the residence of Henry Smith, 1230 Bench street.

P. J. Richwine, who has been running the largest general store in the Vermilion iron district, came to Duluth yesterday and, after an interview with his creditors, made an assignment to D. H. Bacon of the Minnesota Iron company. He stocked up heavily last fall with winter goods and the unseasonable weather restricted sales. It is expected he will make arrangements with the creditors and resume business.

Charles G. Edwards has been appointed collector of customs at St. Paul. James Tanner of Brooklyn, N. Y., has been made commissioner of pensions

Thus far this month the Duluth real estate transfers have amounted to more than $1,000,000.

Last evening twelve gentlemen sat down to an excellent dinner at the St. Louis ordinary. Those who stretched their legs under the mahogany and sniffed the perfume of the flowers with which the table was loaded were: Wilhelm Boeing, E. Z. Williams, Warren N. Draper, Robert Dowse, M. H. Alworth, M. Y. Bingham, Monroe Nichols, J. A. MacKenzie, E. C. Little, J. H. Upham and J. H. Chandler. The spread was voted one of the finest ever given in the hotel.

Col. Lounsberry, who wanted to be governor or senator of North Dakota, has accepted a position as special agent of the interior department, with salary and traveling extras amounting to $3,100.

At a meeting of those interested in horse racing, Messrs. Batchelor, Hoopes and Haycock were appointed to secure acreage property near Oneota for a half-mile track.

Boyle Bros. have bought for $25,000 the twenty-five feet adjoining their Superior street saloon from John Ware of Maine.

A movement is on foot to secure the establishment of a United States admiralty court in Duluth.

With no vestige of snow here and the mercury at 50 degs. above, it was a peculiar sight yesterday noon when a freight train came in from the South headed by a big snow plow.

Mrs. A. H. Ballard and Miss Ida Madiera of the West end will leave tomorrow for Chicago.

Wheat is being shipped to Buffalo in cars from Duluth via Chicago, an almost unheard of proceeding. Only the very best of the crop of 1887 is being handled in this way.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

St. Peter Herald: What is wanted is the best possible results, and this cannot very well be obtained by trying to maintain inadequately equipped agricultural schools in every county. It would be a useless waste of energy, and prove a disappointment in the end. One or two well-equipped schools in each congressional district would outweigh any number of poorly-equipped schools. It seems that this point should be carefully considered before passing the bill.

Moorhead Independent: Yea, verily, history doth repeat itself. Some centuries ago St. Patrick drove the snakes out of Ireland. Now comes the Minnesota state legislature and endeavors to drive the snakes out of Minnesota by limiting the number of saloons to one to each 500 of population.

Virginia: Most people like publicity, but few like to pay for it, unless it happens to be the kind that they want suppressed.

Two Harbors Iron News: Judge Dibell has refused William Schreiber, the slayer of Massapust, a new trial, as he believes the verdict of guilty was justified by the evidence, and that the trial was fair to the accused in every respect. It is to be hoped that the maudlin sentimentalists of Duluth and elsewhere will now subside, and a vote of thanks will be extended by all fair-minded men to both judge and jury, who have done their duty well and fearlessly in the face of much unjust and totally unfair criticism.

Brainerd Tribune: Mr. Bryan's income, it is stated, will be $125,000 this year, and there is nothing in the Constitution to get it into a tangle. The country rewards Mr Bryan handsomely on condition that he remains a citizen at large.

Foley Independent: Good-bye, Teddy. Teddy, we wish you all kinds of good luck. Come back safely, as we shall need you again.

Paynesville Press: A lot of New York dudes dined recently on roast monkey. Monkey eat monkey, should be their watchword.

Walker Pilot: No man ever made any money trying to corner the wild oats crop.

Aitkin Independent: The conviction is growing that the government has cause to congratulate itself on having escaped from the Standard Oil trial without being fined $29,000,000.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: It's a rare man who can be a hero without being a fool about it afterward.

MEANT TO BE FUNNY.

Chicago News: "That Englishman is a funny chap," remarked the hat salesman in the big hotel; "he hasn't been out of his room today."

"No, he is a victim of circumstances," confided the coffee salesman.

"Victim of circumstances?"

"Oh, no. One man will write a joke and sell it for 50 cents. Another man will write a comic opera around it and draw $20,000 in royalties."

Dr. Abbott's Ideal Woman.

New York World: Dr. Lyman Abbott defines in seven clauses the ideal woman. As the terms may be condensed, they call for a woman who is the slave, not of fashion and the dressmaker, who wears shoes in which she can walk, thereby getting her color from exercise instead of the rouge-box; who develops her love of beauty in her home, who is "industrious, sympathetic, energetic, enthusiastic, motherly and a true friend."

The doctor's specifications demand a great deal, but nothing which should be regarded as super-normal. They contain no references to ability in the art of rhythmic breathing, nor to a yearning for the ballot. Indeed, the required qualities are so homely that they might be the possessions of a woman who had never doubled at an afternoon of bridge, had never considered whether or not she ought to smoke in public, and had never courted the application of the adjective "advanced."

It happens that just as Dr. Abbott's words are before us a free translation is printed of a Berlin paper's tribute to Elena of Italy.

"She is a reincarnation of Esther in her surpassing beauty and her devotion to her people; she is a reproduction of Miriam in her courage, of Sara in her gracious dignity, her moral purity and her loving deference to her husband, and of Rachel in her affection for her children. With all these traits of historic women, she possesses one quality which is the flower of modern social progress—a broad and active humanitarianism, a desire and a will to help her fellow-beings."

We seem to find, therefore, that the doctor's ideal is as little a creature of station as of the woman's club. She is the light of many a democratic American home—and she may be a queen.

"Brewster's Millions."

To be a poor young man and suddenly have $1,000,000 thrust upon one is an experience that anyone would gladly undergo. But to find, on the day one inherits it, that the first million must be spent in one year, in order to obtain seven more millions, is a happy fate that has befallen only the hero of George Barr McCutcheon's quaint story, "Brewster's Millions." From the book, Winchell Smith and Byron Ongley have constructed a dainty comedy, which will be presented here at the Lyceum, tomorrow, Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee by Cohan & Harris, comedians.

The million came from his grandfather who permitted his mother to die in want. His uncle, who hates the grandfather, leaves the much greater fortune to Monty, but with the stipulation that the grandfather's money shall be disposed of first. Monty, remembering his mother, accepts the contract. He must keep the matter a secret.

Thereupon, he enters upon a career of extravagance. There are restrictions that make it hard for him. His friends come to his aid, not to help him squander it, but to try to save it for him. A bank fails, and brings him joy. He finances an opera company, that "has no possible chance of success," and it makes a hit. One of his friends robs him in order to retrieve Monty's falling fortunes, and loses. Brewster, frantically trying to get rid of the money, buys heavily on a falling market, and stocks bound upward at once. He bets on a long shot and wins. He tries Monte Carlo, and breaks the bank. But eventually, the contract is filled, and he is a pauper. He has won the $7,000,000.

The efforts of Brewster to relieve himself of the fortune keeps the audience in a constant state of laughter. Yet it is not without pathos, and there is an undercurrent of human interest that occasionally rises to the surface, and is given with excellent dramatic effects. Messrs. Cohan & Harris have provided for the play with a strong company, headed by Robert Ober.

PHILIP ABBOTT'S FUNERAL.

Unfavorable Weather Did Not Deter Many From Paying Tribute.

Negaunee, Mich., March 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Philip Abbott, who was killed last Saturday evening at the Cambria mine, was held Monday afternoon. Rev. W. R. Coombs conducted the services held in the M. E. church. Interment took place in the Ishpeming cemetery.

Although the weather was very unfavorable, the funeral was very largely attended, the deceased being well known in this city and Ishpeming.

The deceased was an alderman of the first ward and a prominent member of the local branch of the Sons of St George society.

MAY NOT REDUCE PRICE OF COAL

Strike Might Prevent Usual Cut of Fifty Cents Per Ton.

If a strike develops in the anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania, there may be no reduction from the present prices of coal in Duluth an April 1, the date when the spring reluction usually becomes effective.

In ordinary years, a reduction of 50 cents a ton is made on all grades of anthracite in the spring, and the price from that time advances 10 cents a ton per month, until the difference of 50 cents is made up again.

Local dealers say that while there probably will be no reduction in case of a strike, they do not expect to see an increase in price.

JURY ACQUITS NELSON.

After Many Hours' Deliberation, Finds for the Defendant.

Bemidji, Minn., March 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Not guilty," was the announcement made about 8:15 o'clock last night in the district court by the foreman of the jury that for nearly thirty hours had been wrestling with the Nelson murder case when the twelve men filed into court and Judge Stanton asked if they had agreed. The court ordered the accused discharged and dismissed the jury.

The verdict appears to meet public approval as the evidence against Nelson was largely circumstantial while Fuller, the man he killed, was known as a quarrelsome person, especially when drinking.

About 3:15 yesterday afternoon the jury told the court an agreement was impossible, but Judge Stanton declined to discharge them, telling them of the importance of the case and the need for a verdict of some sort. The jury retired and in the evening reported the verdict of acquittal.

Eveleth, Minn., March 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Eveleth Business Men's association, at a special meeting last night of which J. C. Poole was chairman and George A. Perham was secretary, adopted strong resolutions against the tonnage tax bill now before the senate.

Neil McInnis, James P. Boyle and George A. Perham, the committee on resolutions, drafted the following protest, addressed to the senate, which was adopted with a rush, and will be hurried to St. Paul:

"Believing that a tonnage tax on iron ore is an unjust and arbitrary form of taxation, which must act as a discouragement to the iron mining industry in this state, and that such discouragement must vitally affect the material well being and interest of every person dependent in any degree upon the mining of iron ore for a livelihood; and

"Whereas, We represent the people of a city situated upon the Mesaba iron range in St. Louis county, which city and its surrounding community is wholly dependent for existence upon the iron industry; and

"Whereas, It is the sense of this body that the imposition of this tax is thrusting an unfair burden upon this section of the state; therefore

"We, the Eveleth Business Men's association, do most vigorously protest against the enactment into law of the Bjorge bill for a tonnage tax on iron ore, and earnestly request your honorable body to take action to defeat said measure."

It was decided to send a committee to St. Paul if deemed necessary. Hon. Neil McInnis will be in St. Paul and advise the chairman of the meeting whether to send a committee.

Farmers' Meetings in Beltrami and Clearwater Counties Successful.

Gatherings This Week in Red Lake and Marshall Counties.

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supt. Wilson of the state farmers' institutes has arranged a series of meetings for Roseau county and the extreme easterly ends of Marshall and Red Lake counties, reaching a number of the inland settlements that are remote from railway facilities and which never get institutes.

F. B. McLaren of Wrenshall, Minn., is in charge of the meetings and has as assistants C. O. Carlson of Erskine and O. A. Stervick of the state dairy and food commission of Crookston. Special attention will be given to the promotion of dairying, although other lines of farming will also be considered. The territory which the instructors will traverse is one of the richest in grasses in Minnesota, and is largely open prairie, but far removed from railroads. Still, in the eastern part of the counties named, despite that they are from twenty-five to fifty miles from railway facilities, several creameries are in active existence in the setion indicated.

Mr. McLaren has just completed three weeks along these lines in Clearwater and Beltrami counties encouraging the farmers to start creameries. Here he organized nineteen farmers' clubs, held twenty-four meetings and spoke to 12,000 people. Arrangements are completed for meetings at Olga, Lambert, Lilo, Highlanding, Kratka, Germantown, Grygla, Fram, Wannaska, Ross, Roseau and Badger. These meetings began Monday and cover a period of ten days. It is the purpose of the Commercial clubs of the towns on the lines of the Great Northern and the Soo running north from Thief River Falls to have spring meetings held along the railway.

The trustee, L. S. Bristol, states that there will be another dividend, but just when or how much he is unable to say, but hopes that it will be 20 per cent. Mr. Bristol brought action some time ago to deny the real estate exemption claimed by Mr. Cale of the entire business block at the corner of Seventh and Front streets. The decision of the court gives the two corner stores, that occupied by the Black Hawk Mercantile company, and that occupied by Johnson's pharmacy, to the creditors, while Mr. Cale retains the two stores facing on Seventh street and the one formerly occupied by Mr. Cale as a dry goods department. There is a mortgage of $3,600 on the corner building, on which the right of exemption expires on Aug. 31, 1909.

SIX BALLOONISTS SAVE THEMSELVES AFTER FIERCE TIME IN MOUNTAIN STORM

SOARED IN AIR ONLY TWO HOURS

Los Angeles, Cal., March 24.—After one of the most harrowing experiences in the history of ballooning, Capt. A. E. Muller and his five companions, who ascended in the big Ferris racing balloon "America" at Pasadena last Saturday afternoon and became lost in the Sierra Madre mountains, arrived on foot at Switzer's camp on the slopes of Mount Wilson unharmed.

The men passed through a series of hardships. Arriving at Switzer's camp at 3 p. m. yesterday, they were provided with horses and began the descent from there to Pasadena over a tortuous and slippery trail. A single telephone wire across the mountains brought the first word of their arrival at the camp to the relatives in Pasadena. The wire shortly failed and but little information regarding the hazardous trip was obtained until the men reached Pasadena late last night.

In Air Only Short Time.

The balloon was in the air less than two hours. It was carried by the strong north wind over the mile high summit of Mount Lowe, and swept on across the intervening peaks and canyons to the lofty summit of Mount Gabriel. Here ballast was thrown out and the balloon soared away toward Strawberry peak, on the third range.

Crossing this at a low altitude, the balloon encountered a strong current of cold air, which brought it rapidly to earth. A successful landing was affected on the north side of Strawberry peak, in what is known as Little Tejunga canyon, about 5 Saturday afternoon, less than two hours after their ascension at Pasadena. The distance covered is less than fifteen miles in a direct line, but by any possible foot route is many times that distance.

The aeronauts wandered aimlessly over the mountains until 1:30 Sunday afternoon, when they unexpectedly came to Colby's ranch, an isolated habitation, far from any road and without communication with the outside world.

Suffered From Cold.

In the meantime a terrific blizzard had swept over the mountains, and for hours the men suffered from the cold. The meager supply of provisions which they carried was sufficient to guard them against hunger until their arrival at the ranch.

At the ranch the party remained until Monday afternoon, when the storm ceased. They immediately took up the snow-choked trails across the mountains toward Pasadena. The party traveled through Monday night and until yesterday afternoon, when they suddenly came upon Switzer's camp, in the side of the mountains about ten miles from Pasadena. A party of rescuers on horseback was at Switzer's, having just returned after a twenty-four hour search for the missing men.

With Capt. Mueller in the America were L. B. Gilliam, Richard Halstead, Sydney Gray, Harold Parker and Edward Dodchutz, all of Pasadena.

RUSSIAN WHOM ROOT SAVED FROM EXTRADITION CANNOT FIND A JOB

Chicago, March 24.—Christian Rudowitz, who was recently saved from extradition to Russia on a murder charge through the decision of ex-Secretary of State Root, was found wandering through the streets yesterday looking for work to keep himself from starving. He said he was penniless and that he had been discharged from his former job because of the interest he had attracted throughout the country in his fight against extradition. His employers told him, he said, that they were afraid they would get into trouble of some sort if they kept him. He said that everywhere he asked for work he was refused as soon as it was discovered who he was.

PAVING OF THE AVENUE

Mass Meeting of Garfield Avenue Owners is Called.

Will Decide on Kind of Pavement to be Laid.

Owners of property along Garfield avenue, and others interested, will meet this evening at 624 Garfield, to take up the matter of paving the thoroughfare, and consider the question of what will be the best material to use. The two aldermen from the Sixth ward will be present at the meeting.

The question of a sewer for that section of the city will also be discussed, so that, if one is considered necessary, it can be laid before the pavement is put down. It is doubtful if the property owners will favor a sewer, it is said. The subject has been up before, and such strong opposition developed that all idea of the improvement was for the time being abandoned.

The ground for the opposition is that practically all the houses in the district are small and of such construction that there is no place in them for toilet rooms. The argument is also advanced that the railroads will in time probably own all the property along the avenue, and will move what houses there are away, so there will be little use for the sewer. With this prospect, some of the property owners say they do not care to pay for the improvement, for they do not believe the benefits they would receive would be worth while.

It hasn't been decided as yet what proportion of the total cost of paving the avenue the property owners shall bear. They and the business interests benefited will pay a part of the cost, and the city will stand for the remainder. By an act of the legislature the city is empowered to issue bonds to cover the cost of the work.

There probably will be differences of opinion as to the kind of paving material to use. Up to the present time sandstone blocks have been talked of more than anything else. The traffic along Garfield is of a very heavy sort, and nothing but the most substantial kind of pavement will stand up under it for any length of time. Heavily loaded drays and wholesale wagons make up this traffic for the most part.

FAMILY OF PERFORMER.

Fourteen Sons and Daughters, All Born Under Different Flags.

Bridgeport, Conn., March 24.—The application of three brothers—Samuel Konyot, 35 years old, born in Germany; Arthur Konyot, 20, born in Hungary, and Alphonse Konyot, 19, born in Bohemia—for first naturalization papers, has brought to light an interesting fact.

In their family they said there were fourteen brothers and sisters, and each was born in a different country and none in the United States.

The parents were circus performers, and all the children have taken up the same occupation. They were jockeys and acrobats, and six appear in a single act.

UXTRY! UXTRY!

The Hobos' Association Wants to Start a Newspaper.

St. Louis, Mo., March 24.—Plans are under way here by officers of the Brotherhood Welfare association of which James Eads Howe, millionaire tramp, is the moving spirit, for a big daily newspaper to serve as the official mouthpiece of the order, which is a Socialist organization.

A St. Louis capitalist has been approached on the subject of financing the enterprise, and, according to Mrs. Cora Harvey, secretary of the association, the outlook is favorable.

The Socialists and the Brotherhood Welfare association declare they have no representation in the daily press and have been treated unfairly. It is to remedy this that they are anxious for a modern daily newspaper.

TELEPHONE BUSINESS

Now Over Seventy Thousand Shareholders in the Bell System.

Total of $378,472,800 Expended in Nine Years in Enlargement.

Boston, Mass., March 24.—A general statement covering the business of the Bell system is included by President Theodore N. Vail, with the annual report of the American Telephone & Telegraph company.

There was a total of 4,364, 629 telephone stations connected to the Bell system, as against 3,839,000 at the close of the previous year, an increase of 525,629 stations. Of the total, there were 1,103,144 exchange and toll stations connected to the Bell system by toll of long distance lines, but operated by some 7,700 local, co-operative, and rural independent companies or associations having sub-license or connection contracts.

The total wire mileage of the Bell companies for toll and exchange service was 9,830,718, over a million miles being added during the year. The daily average of calls handled by the Bell companies was 18,963,000, or at the rate of about six billions a year. The plant additions were $15,824,000 for exchanges, $8,812,600 for toll lines, and $2,000,600 for land and buildings making a total of $26,637,200. During the past nine years a grand total of $378,472,800 has been expended in enlarging the Bell properties.

During the year $39,736,700 was applied out of revenue to maintenance and reconstruction purposes. The report shows that the maintenance of the property is well provided for, and that the plant itself is assuming a more permanent character, due chiefly to the increased proportion of copper and underground conduits and cables.

Total Value of Plants.

Of the total value of the telephone plants owned by the American Telephone & Telegraph company and associate companies, real estate constitutes 9 per cent, underground conduits and cables 20 per cent, copper wires and aerial cables on poles 18 per cent, pole lines, not including wires, 26 per cent.—$8,000,000 of this represents ownership of rights of way over private property—iron wires 4 per cent, central office equipment 23 per cent.

The associated operating companies show reductions in floating indebtedness and increases in cash on hand, a net improvement of $5,004 000. The Western Electric company shows an equal improvement, so that the current and floating indebtedness of the associated companies is well within the limits of current operations.

The report calls attention to the fact that there are over 70,000 shareholders in the Bell system. The business has shown an increase from year to year, no matter what the prevailing business conditions. In the concluding statement regarding public relations, the report says: "During the year we have had many questions before the courts, state commissions, and other public bodies. We have met them in a spirit of absolute frankness and candor. The results have been on the whole satisfactory, and the treatment we have received has been fair and considerate, and we have found an evident desire to ascertain the real conditions and to meet them fairly."

OF DULUTH.

MICHIGAN SCHOOL BOARD MAN BEAUTIFULLY BUNCOED IN DEAR OLD LUNNON TOWN

London, March 24.—"How anyone can be deceived by such simple tricks is amazing," said Judge Wallace as he passed sentence on three men who had buncoed Dr. Marriott Hutchins, president of the board of education of Lake county, Mich., out of $1,000 in cash and a diamond ring. The police speedily caught the thieves, and the judge sentenced them to twenty-one, fifteen and nine months' imprisonment.

The proceedings amused the spectators, but Dr. Hutchins was greatly embarrassed. The confidence men, according to the testimony, succeeded in getting his valuables as a guarantee of good faith, after they had requested him to assist them in the distribution of $50,000 which, according to their story, a philanthropist had left for charitable purposes.

ILLNESS BALKED CUPID.

Boxmaker Put Note in Box and Romance Resulted.

Boston, Mass., March 24.—Miss Agnes Harland of Indianapolis, came all the way from her home to Orange, Mass., confident that William Sawyer, of that town, would prove to be her ideal. He met her at the station, and the young woman did not appear to be disappointed. But while the young people, who had never before seen each other, were busy getting better acquainted, a telegram was handed to Miss Harland.

The message was from home, and announced the serious illness of the young woman's mother. "Come quickly," the message said. Love making had to be postponed, and Miss Harland hurried back to Indianapolis, promising, however, to return as soon as possible.

Sawyer is employed in a box-making plant. Some months ago he placed a note in one of the boxes. That particular box found its way to Indianapolis and Miss Harland. Then came the correspondence and trip East.

Welcome Words To Women

If, you are an intelligent thinking woman, in need of relief from weakness, nervousness, pain and suffering, then it means much to you that there is one tried and true honest square-deal medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, sold by druggists for the cure of woman's ills. The makers of

for the cure of weak, nervous, run-down, over-worked, debilitated, pain-racked women, knowing this medicine to be made up of ingredients, every one of which has the strongest possible endorsement of the leading and standard authorities of the several schools of practice, are perfectly willing, and in fact, are only too glad to print, as they do, the formula, or list of ingredients, of which it is composed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper. Is this not a significant fact worthy of careful consideration?

Women use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in preference to all other advocated medicines sold by druggists for their peculiar weaknesses and ailments because it is

THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs, is not anything like advertised secret compounds or patent medicines.

THE ONE REMEDY for women devised by a regularly graduated physician of vast experience in woman's ailments and carefully adapted to her delicate organism.

THE ONE REMEDY good enough that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on its outside bottle-wrapper.

It's foolish—often dangerous to be over-persuaded into accepting a secret nostrum in place of this time-proven medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

OPPOSED TO SUFFRAGE.

Vassar Girls' Reasons Why Women Should Not Vote.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., March 24.—Vassar has unjustly been accused of dodging the issue on such vital questions as Socialism and woman suffrage.

A committee has canvassed all the students in the college and collected the following list of reasons from the girls who think that women should not vote:

"Women are unintelligent about political matters and unfit to vote.

"Women have a higher sphere.

"Women ought not to hold office. It takes away dignity. It would make women neglect the home.

"The publicity would be detrimental to women.

"The country is not ready for it.

"Women can get all they need by influencing the men of their families and acquaintance."

AGAINST USE OF CORSET.

Crusade Begun in Earnest by the Queen of Roumania.

Berlin, March 24.—Scientific men and women are busily engaged in the onslaught on the corset. At the head of the list is Carmen Sylva, the gifted Roumanian queen. She says:

"The woman who wears corsets makes a martyr of herself and does everything to hinder her natural development. All that is unnatural offends my sense of beauty, and is hateful. A tight waist I resent as unaesthetic."

So Carmen Sylva has printed a pamphlet on the enormity of the sin of wearing stays, and has had it distributed in the girls' schools throughout her dominions. She has also the teachers informed that at stated times they are to instruct their girl pupils in physiology, pointing out how wearing a corset spoils certain organs and deforms others.

The queen has also had written an open letter to the parents of Roumanian girls, in which the same reasons are set forth and other reasons as well, which cannot well be set before young girls.

The queen of Italy is also a strong antagonist of corset wearing.

Queen Alexandria, it is asserted, never wore a corset.

On the other hand, the pro-corset people have the German empress on their side. She not only wears a very stiff corset herself, but more than once has let her maids of honor understand that they must not appear in her presence without this garment.

TO HAVE FOG SIGNAL.

Government Engineer Recommends It for Ashland Harbor.

Ashland, Wis., March 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Through the direct efforts of Secretary Gilbert and the Advancement association, a $15,000 light and fog signal will be established by the United States government.

The request was only made three months ago. The Gilbert has received the following letter on the subject:

Detroit, Mich., March 19.—Joseph Gilbert, manager of Ashland Advancement association.—Sir: Referring to your letter of Dec. 18, 1908, addressed to this office I have to state that, after investigation, the officers of this lighthouse district have recommended to the light house board, the installation of a beacon and fog signal to the other end of the Ashland breakwater, at an estimated cost of $15,000. A congressional appropriation of this amount will be necessary before the work can be done. Respectfully, Charles Keller, major, corps of engineers, U. S. A. light house engineer."

Mr. Gilbert will at once forward to our senators and congressmen a copy of this letter, and ask them to try to get an appropriation through at the special session this spring.

BASEBALL PITCHER NAMED FOR OFFICE.

Marquette, Mich., March 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Henry Olmstead, conceded to be one of the best baseball pitchers Upper Michigan has ever turned out, and who played with the Denver team last year, will probably forsake the diamond this season. He has been nominated for city clerk at Escanaba, and has excellent prospects of being elected.

Olmstead is under reserve with Denver, and also he is wanted by the Des Moines and Pueblo teams of the Western league, both of which have offered $1,000 for his release, along with a liberal increase over the salary received by him last year.

WOMAN KIDNAPER SAYS A SCANDAL IS TO BE AIRED

Refuses to Give Name; Denies Being Related to Whitla Family.

Mrs. Whitla's Sister-in-Law Cries: "That's the Woman!" Will Say No More.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 24.—Mrs. Harry Forker wife of a brother of Mrs. James P. Whitla of Sharon, was seen at her home in Norwalk, Ohio, near here today, and when the description of the woman under arrest in the kidnaping case was told to her, she exclaimed:

"That's the woman."

Mrs. Forker then broke down and declined to say anything further or explain her remark. She would not name the woman.

Mrs. Forker has been living in Norwalk several years and is separated from her husband.

The woman under arrest still refuses to give her name, but declares she is not a relative of the Whitlas, as was first suspected here. She declared that her identity not only will cause surprise in Sharon, but that it will reveal a scandal involving prominent persons here and in the Pennsylvania town.

The man being held in connection with the kidnaping admitted his identity today to Chief of Police Koulter. He is James Boyle of Sharon, Pa., and is a plumber by trade. He has a widowed mother, four brothers and a sister in the Pennsylvania town and his uncle, the late John Boyle, was he says, proprietor of the Shenango house.

Boyle declines to throw any additional light on the kidnaping, but is firm in his claim that the woman who was arrested with him is his wife. In the meantime, the police are awaiting the arrival of the Whitla family, in the hope of clearing up the mystery surrounding the identity of the woman.

Boyle was in Sharon two weeks ago to attend the funeral of his uncle.

"John Doe and Mary Doe."

Sharon Pa., March 24.—The informations made here today in the Whitla kidnaping case, were destroyed and new informations charging "John Doe and Mary Doe" with abduction, were substituted.

No news was given out from the Whitla office today previous to Mr. Whitla's departure for Cleveland. The utmost secrecy was observed by all concerned in the case.

Little is known of Boyle here. He is said to have been in the United States marine service. He maintained a plumbing shop in the basement of his uncle's hotel, but it is claimed very seldom visited the place or was engaged at the work.

Several days ago Boyle's name was mentioned in connection with the case. At the time it was rumored that he and his wife, whom he is said to have married recently, were missing from their home, said to be located four miles from town, but the detectives investigated the report without success. At least, the officers claimed there was nothing in the report at the time.

One only explanation given for the woman kidnaper stating that "there will be hell in Sharon when Buhl hears of it," is that she is well known and formerly lived here.

Mr. Buhl, millionaire uncle of the boy, whose name is mentioned by the woman, is said to have no idea why she should make such a statement. While it is thought strange that Willie did not recognize the suspected woman the fact that he was kept in a drugged condition is advanced as an explanation.

Judge A. W. Williams arrived here today from Mercer, Pa., and requisition papers are being prepared. As soon as word is received from Cleveland that the two persons under arrest have been identified as the abductors, a special messenger will be rushed to Harrisburg, Pa., and Columbus, Ohio, for the signatures of the governors to the papers. This, however, may not be necessary as it is reported that the two suspects are willing to come to Sharon without requisition papers.

When Boyle appeared here for his uncle's funeral two weeks ago he was accompanied by a woman who is described as being "clever looking." The new informations charging "John Doe and Mary Doe" with abduction, were substituted.

THE EVENING STORY

Make Believe People

By Granville Osborne.

When Carter was 8 years old, his mother found him in the attic, beneath the gable window in the roof, through which the sun streamed warmly, and made upon the dusty floor, a golden patch not unlike the limelight upon a stage.

He sat in a pile of pink and yellow and red scraps of paper, from which he had cut, with unusual cunning, a dozen gayly angular figures of men and women. These Carter had induced, by means of a basic arrangement of pins, to stand upright upon the floor; in a sing-song voice he was droning out a crude, fantastic narrative of childish imagining to which, with swift, deft hand, he suited the movements of his puppets.

"The prince," he cried, "has come to slay the wicked fairy—for—er—evermore." And the scarlet princeling fell mightily upon the crumbling yellow fairy.

Carter's mother paused on the threshold; there was a sick, scared feeling at her heart.

"Oh, he's got it, too," she thought, bitterly. Her lips tightened with decision.

"Jimmie," she said, sharply, "what are you playing there—with those paper—things?"

Carter hung his head shyly. "I—I don't know," he faltered.

He some way hated to tell his mother that he called the game by a name of his own: "The Make-Believe People." Carter had observed in his young life that his mother did not often understand what he meant by a great many "dif'runt" things.

"It's not a nice game for little boys to play. You mustn't ever do it again; you may give me those paper things."

Carter's chin quivered; he did not cry. He wanted to save the red prince terribly. His mother crushed them all sternly in her hands, and led him out of the attic.

Carter's mother was ill on his eleventh birthday. Perhaps it should be said here that the lad's father had died—and he had lived—dreaming, long before Carter could frame an image of him on his baby brain. The boy's birthday was on a Saturday. In the afternoon, his mother called him to her bedroom and kissed him, slipping a shining dollar into his hand.

"You may take old Hannah and go down town to buy whatever you like, provided it is not something foolish," she said, kindly, in the precise tones she always used to children and servants.

At the corner, pasted on the fence around Simpkin's livery stable, they found a villainous, blood-curdling scene in a road, done with splendor of coloring and a scorn of convention, that filled Carter and Hannah with admiration and foreboding. They gasped.

"What is it, Hannah?" whispered Carter, wide-eyed.

"A play-picture," Hannah explained. "It's going to be at the town hall today. It's a make-believe."

"Was it—splendid, Hannah?"

"It was just grand!"

"A make-believe—" The words fascinated Carter. They reminded him of the scarlet prince.

"Hannah, we're going to it," he added conclusively.

The old servant demurred fervously. But in the end Carter stood firm.

"I've got a dollar—and we're going to see it."

Presently they watched breathlessly the curtain rise on the most wonderful thing in the world, so the lad thought. For days afterward he had only to shut his eyes and he saw the beautiful lady who wore lay and night, through all her dreadful trouble, a pale, blue silk gown; in his ears flowed the plaintiff cadences of some song she sang.

It made little difference to Carter that he was kept in his room for two whole days after the play, and was not allowed to speak to anyone for a week—he was so sorry that Hannah had to be sent away. He tried to explain that it was all his fault, but his mother would not let him tell her.

In the night Carter heard her praying:

"O Lord," she said, "take away the curse from him;" and he guessed it meant something about the red prince.

Carter grew up amazingly fast. When he was 17, he entered college. He had never seen another play—save those he fashioned for himself in his dreams—for he had promised his mother that he would not go to the theater until he was 20. Carter loved his mother.

Somehow, he got through the four-year course—neither he nor the faculty were quite sure how he did it. He studied little enough, heaven knows; but he spent endless hours in the college library over Shakespeare and Marlowe, Dumas and Ibsen. And he saw a few good plays during his senior year.

It was all over soon—all but the memories. And Carter went back to his mother. She was growing old and tired, and the place needed a man's eyes, she wrote him. When he told her that he could never bring himself to teach the village school, she was pitifully disappointed.

The summer that Lindsay came to spend a vacation in Carter's town, marked a turning point in his life. Lindsay was an actor—a good one, famous for his sympathetic acting of character parts. Carter sat at his feet and listened—and talked, at first slyly, and then in a flood of excited words.

"There ought to be good stuff in that old town of yours," he said, easily, one day to Carter, "for a first-rate play—a kind of 'Down East'—'Old Homestead' thing, you know. Why don't you write it, Carter? You've nothing else to do, and you really know a lot about stage affairs," laughing carelessly.

Carter caught his breath suddenly.

"Oh, I don't know. Maybe I will some day. Would you play it?"

He thought his voice was quite indifferent in tone.

"Might—if it proved to be what I wanted, and had a good part for me in it. Go ahead," Lindsay added, kindly.

All through the summer Carter's mother had seen him go nightly to Lindsay's. Her thin lips tightened, as on the day she crushed the "Make Believe People;" her eyes grew stern and unyielding.

The next spring Carter went to New York with a roll of manuscript in his bag. In a week's time he was back, his thin face a little keener, and lines of disappointment about his eyes. In the autumn he went away again.

At home his mother waited and prayed, and occasionally wept.

"He's got it in him," she sighed, fearfully.

One night Carter came back. His mother read his face and braced herself for the blow. At the tea table looked up appealingly and said:

"Mother, I have been writing a play, and Lindsay has bought it. He's going to put it on next season."

His mother pulled her shawl about her shoulders and shivered slightly. Her voice was even and colorless when she answered:

"I guessed that this was going on. So you have chosen your life? It is in you—the player's blood. My sister, whom I loved deeply, went on the stage—and her soul was lost—she died—somewhere—miserably; we never knew. Your father had it—and his life was a failure. Perhaps it will be better for you to go away. It will only hurt me and hurt you—your staying now. No, don't answer me yet."

She rose and left him alone.

Carter went away.

Lindsay put his play on, and made a big hit with it. The papers were kind to it. The public accepted it, and laughed, and cried and applauded over its homely pathos and humor. It ran all that winter in New York.

Carter's mother missed him sorely. At first she did not admit it, even to herself; later the conviction was forced upon her. The fiber of her disappointment and shame over her only son released gradually; she never knew how it came about, but one day, quite by accident, she read in a paper a flattering account of James Carter's play. His mother frowned and laid the paper hastily aside. In the evening she cut out the notice and put it between the leaves of the "Life of Bishop Simpson." She cut out another that same week.

The inconsistency of her position at first troubled her ceaselessly. At last she made a deep and stern decision; it come after a night of prayer and struggle. That afternoon she took the train for New York.

Carter chanced to be in the theater that evening in Lindsay's dressing room.

"I say, Carter, there's a little bit of a thin woman down near the front that's worth watching. I've been playing to her all the evening. She's laughing and crying all at once, like a little girl. By Jove! she's really refreshing."

"Show her to me—can't I see her from the wings?" Carter said, when the last act was called.

Carter started. "Why—why—" he began, boyishly, but he broke off into a laugh that was near something deeper.

"I know her," he said, softly. "Lindsay this is the biggest night of my life—that's my mother!"

"Jimmie," said his mother after the play was over, "why didn't you let that nice girl with the yellow hair marry the dark man?"

CASE GOES TO THE JURY

Hibbing Man Wants $3,500 for False Imprisonment.

Defendant Claims There Was Sufficient Ground for Arrest.

The suit of William Williams against the Itasca Mercantile company, D. B. McEachen, and Peter Wring for $3,500 for alleged false imprisonment, was given to the jury in district court shortly before noon today.

On Dec. 14, 1907, the store of the Itasca Mercantile company at Hibbing was burglarized and a quantity of money removed from the cash drawers. Williams was employed in the store and his chum, John Meehan, was suspected of having been connected with the crime. Meehan and Williams were arrested and Williams was held in jail for about forty hours. He was finally released on bonds and was never called upon again, the case being dropped.

He brought suit on the ground that his imprisonment was made by Mr. Wring, chief of police of Hibbing, without a warrant and without justification and it was instituted by the Itasca Mercantile company, through McEachen, the manager of the store. Williams claimed that his reputation had always been good in Hibbing and his arrest cast a stigma on him, which has injured him socially and caused him anguish. He alleged that the arrest was unwarranted and he claimed to be entitled to damages.

The argument made by Martin Hughes for the defense was on the ground that Mr. Wring had reasonable suspicion on which to make the arrest. He claimed that Meehan had a bad reputation at Hibbing and there was much to connect him with the burglary. The manner, in which the crime was committed, pointed to the fact, he claimed, that somebody, who knew the store pretty well, had some hand in the affair. He claimed that there was reasonable ground for the suspicion that Williams might have been directly connected with the burglary, or might have given information to the burglars, which would have facilitated the commission of the crime.

He claimed that there was nothing to connect the Itasca Mercantile company or Mr. McEachen with the case, as he personally and as manager of the store had neither instigated nor ordered the arrest. He asserted that Mr. Wring did what any good officer would have done under the circumstances.

A Butte, Mont., dispatch says: To W. A. Paine of the firm of Paine, Webber & Co., of Boston, has been given an option on 1,700,000 shares of the common stock of the Pittsburg & Montana company, held by James Reid of Pittsburg, at $2.50 a share. WOOD PULP TOWN SUDDENLY CREATED

St. John's, Nfld., March 24.—What was several months ago a tract of virgin wilderness in the central section of Newfoundland has, because of the scarcity of pulpwood in the United States, become the town of Grand Falls, with nearly 2,000 inhabitants.

Within fifty square miles of territory there has been laid out a dam, 1,000 feet wide, capable of storing 100,000,000 feet of logs; two separate railroad lines, a power station of 45,000-horse power capacity, telephone system and nearly 400 houses. It is expected to place several steamboats in commission as soon as manufacturing is begun early next fall. The expenditure of $6,000,000 will be necessary to the fulfillment of the plans. An English newspaper owner is at the head of the project.

WAS WITHIN 111 MILES OF POLE

Shackleton Party Nearer Than Man Ever Went Before.

London, March 24.—The report that Lieut. Shackelton's expedition had found the South Pole proves incorrect, but the explorers got nearer to the pole than any man has previously gone, so far as history records.

They succeeded, after an arduous sledge journey of 1,708 miles, which occupied 126 days, in reaching within 111 miles of the pole.

The main expedition reached latitude 88.23, longitude 162 east, while a second party pushed forward to die southern magnetic pole, reaching latitude 72.25, longitude 154 east.

The British flag was left flying at both points.

LOOKING FOR ANOTHER FIGHT

Tommy Burns Would Meet Jack Johnson a Second Time.

Winnipeg, Man., March 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a letter to a local newspaper man, Tommy Burns, ex-champion of the world, says that his treatment at Sydney was unfair. He says that he is a better man than Jack Johnson ever was, and that he is right after the big negro for another fight.

Burns states in the letter that he had Johnson beaten when the police stopped the fight, that two of Johnson's ribs were broken, and that he was all but under.

Burns seems to be very bitter against Johnson in particular, and every one connected with the fight generally.

UNIFORMS SELECTED.

Adams Baseball Team Will Shine Out in New Attire.

At a meeting held last night in the Sloan hall, the Adams Athletic association decided on their baseball uniforms for the coming year. They are to be light grey with blue trimmings. There were several samples submitted to the association and some difficulty was encountered selecting a uniform that was satisfactory to all. The light suits were finally selected, however.

The association is in a prosperous condition in every way. There is quite a sum of money in the treasury and many new members are being taken into the association. There were more than forty present at the meeting last night and the keenest sort of interest was shown in the affairs of the club.

Prospects look bright for a winning baseball team and as soon as the weather gets warm enough, the candidates will be called out for practice. The association may also go in for track athletics as many of the members do not play baseball and it is only fair that they should receive some consideration.

Several members were taken into the association last night. A "get one" club was organized, every member pledging himself to get one new member by the time of the next meeting. It is the intention of the club to build up the strongest athletic association in the city, and the West end, for it is a West end organization, will be thoroughly canvassed for new members.

SEASON TO END WITH BANQUET

Curlers Will Meet for Dinner and Celebration.

Great preparations are being made by the curlers for their annual banquet which is to be held at the St. Louis hitel next week.

It is expected that more than 200 will gather for a good, old fashioned time. This is always the most enjoyable event of the year and the one most looked forward to by all the curlers as a climax to the curling season. Guy Warren, John Oldham and John Tresise are making the arrangements for the banquet.

Stephen H. Jones, president of the club, will present the trophies won by the several rinks this year, and the skips will respond.

There will be talks by Frank Crassweller, E. P. Towne, W. E. Magner, Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele and Harry Hurdon, who represented the Duluth club in Scotland, will tell of his trip.

There will be an orchestra in attendance. George Suffel and several others will sing, and the curling club's own Harry Lauder, in the person of John Tresise, will entertain the Scots.

The curlers will hold their annual meeting on April 6.

WOLF SHOT EVERY DAY

That Average Has Been Maintained in County This Year.

County Pays Out More Than $500 a Month in Bounties.

The number of wolf bounties awarded by the auditor of St. Louis county since the first of the year has averaged one for each day.

Somewhere in the vast area of St. Louis county each day some hunter, trapper or settler lessens by one the number of vicious marauders.

Certainly wolves do not multiply so fast. Since they do not, the number extant must be on the decrease, and if the ratio should continue, some day the animals will be extinct, or so nearly so that the terror, with which their numbers are now regarded by hunter and settler will be reduced to the minimum.

For January of this year, the county paid out $540 in wolf bounties. For February, $470 was paid out. During the entire year, 1908, the county paid $4,199 in bounties, so that for January and February, the fees of the wolf have gone about the average in bringing down their prey.

Throughout Northern Minnesota there are scores of men always on the lookout for wolves, the slaying of which carries a bounty. They have other game, of course, or they could not live, as wolves are not plentiful enough for a man to subsist wholly on the bounty from them. But a few wolves killed add greatly to the revenue of a season at hunting and trapping lynx, mink, beaver, otter and other animals of the north woods.

Conditions have favored the trappers this year. The snow has been fairly deep, making it difficult for the animals to go about and allow each concealment of traps. Men who make trapping a business have not reaped such a harvest in Northern Minnesota in recent years as they will this season, and they will come out of the woods loaded down with valuable skins, as the fur traders and trappers of the pioneer days in the primeval American forests.

IS OPPOSED TO SPECIAL TAXES

Senator Aldrich Gives Inkling of Finance Committee's Views.

Washington, March 24.—That a determined effort will be made to reduce public expenditures to such an extent that governmental needs may be met by revenues derived from duties on imports, and without resorting to any of the special taxation schemes that have been suggested in connection with tariff revision, is indicated by a remark made today by Senator Aldrich, chairman of the senate committee on finance.

Mr. Aldrich was asked to give his opinion of the plan erroneously accredited to President Taft, to place a tax on dividends declared by corporations. Aldrich replied he had not given thought to it, and added that he would not concern himself with any of the various plans to raise revenue by special taxes until it could be ascertained how much revenue could be produced by levying duties on imports, and whether the running operations of the government could not be decreased, so as to make special taxes unnecessary.

Great significance is attached to the remark made by Aldrich. It is asserted upon what is thought to be accurate information that a majority of the members of the finance committee regard with disfavor the proposed inheritance tax feature, the proposed income tax, levies upon dividends of corporations, taxes on coffee and practically all forms of a stamp tax.

Of an Upward Trend.

It is recognized that in the form in which the Payne bill was reported to the house from the ways and means committee, sufficient revenues to pay the running expenses of the government, at least upon the present basis of annual appropriations, cannot be collected from duties on imports alone. The inference drawn from Mr. Aldrich's expression, therefore, is that the revision of the tariff must be of an upward trend, and that congress must curtail the tendency to expand annual operations at each succeeding session of congress.

No credence is given at the capitol to a story that President Taft and Senator Aldrich have disagreed over any of the features of the tariff bill. It is true Taft has discussed several of the special taxation features, that have been discussed publicly by tariff experts in congress, but it is generally believed the president will welcome any plan to avoid imposing these taxes if they can be averted without revising the existing duties on some articles that he believes are now too high.

At the senate end of the capitol, this is thought to be within the range of possibility, but no satisfactory method of bringing it about has been devised.

TO STATE SCHOOL.

Juvenile Court Commits Three Children of Hibbing Woman.

The juvenile court yesterday committed to the state school at Owatonna the three children of Mrs. Anna Ruper of Hibbing, who were brought down from the range yesterday by an agent of the Humane society. Their ages are 6, 7 and 10 years, respectively. The children were very scantily clad upon their arrival in Duluth, but were soon supplied by the society with complete outfits.

Mrs. Ruper's husband was killed in one of the Oliver Mining company's mines several years ago, and she received about $800 from the company. The money has all been spent in an attempt to keep the large family together. Mrs. Ruper is said to be in very hard circumstances at the present time.

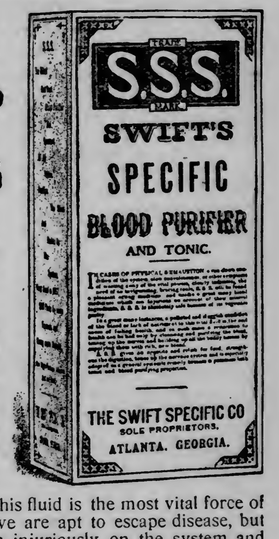
CURES BLOOD TROUBLES

We have never claimed S. S. S. to be a medicine to work wonders, nor one that would cure every ailment of mankind; but we do know it to be a specific for those disorders originating from impure or diseased blood. When we say this medicine cures blood troubles we are stating a fact which is corroborated by the experience of thousands, and doubtless there are persons in your locality who know its value as a blood medicine because they have used it, or heard of its being used, with success.



Our bodies are absolutely dependent on pure blood for health. This fluid is the most vital force of life, and as long as it remains pure we are apt to escape disease, but any impurity, humor or poison acts injuriously on the system and affects some portion of the body.

Pustular eruptions, pimples, rashes, and the various skin affections, show that the blood is in a feverish and diseased condition as the result of some humor, or the presence of a fiery acid which inflames and irritates the delicate fibres and tissues. Rheumatism comes from an excess of uric acid in the circulation, causing soreness and stiffness of the muscles and joints, while Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, and Contagious Blood Poison are all deep-seated blood disorders which will continue to grow worse as long as the cause remains.

Gentlemen:—S. S. S. is a good medicine. It is an excellent tonic to give appetite and energy and make one feel better in every way. I have found it also an excellent blood purifier. For months I was troubled with an itching skin eruption on the face, and tried specialists and many remedies to get a cure, but S. S. S. is the only medicine that would cure. I am now free of this eruption. I think a great deal of your medicine, knowing it to be the best blood purifier and tonic known to the world today.
MRS. FRANK HORNER.
1330 East Seventh St., Canton, O.

From childhood I was afflicted with a terrible blood disease. My parents had me treated by a number of physicians, but the disease was too much for them. Thus I grew into manhood, handicapped by a terrible disease; and having tried so many remedies without relief, a friend urged me to try S. S. S. I had little faith in any medicine. I was happy to find, however, that I had at last gotten the right remedy. S. S. S. did me so much good that I soon had hopes of being cured. I continued the remedy and was cured completely. CHARLES GLENN.
2625 Wash. St., Mt. Jackson, Ind.

S. S. S. is a natural blood purifier and tonic. It is made entirely of the pure juices and extracts of roots, herbs and barks of recognized curative ability, and being absolutely free from all harmful minerals is a safe medicine for young or old. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation and removes every trace of impurity, humor or poison. It purifies and enriches the blood and cures promptly and permanently Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, and all other diseases and disorders due to impurities and poisons in the blood, whether inherited or acquired.

S. S. S. is the most reliable and at the same time the most pleasant acting medicine for those whose blood has become weak and anaemic, or who are suffering from Malaria or other debilitating sickness. It adds strength to the circulation, builds up failing health, and in every way acts as a bracing, healthful tonic to the system. We will be glad to send a general treatise on the blood, and any medical advice necessary to the treatment, free to all who write describing the trouble from which they are suffering. S. S. S. is for sale at all drug stores.

WHEAT HAS GOOD BULGE

Higher Cables and Bullish Crop News Cause a Flurry.

Flax Quiet in Duluth, But Prices Up at Close.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 24.—Bullish cables and bad crop news from Missouri and other winter wheat states sent wheat up a-flying at the opening of the market today. The options lost some of the sensational gain toward the end of the sessions in Duluth and Minneapolis, but, notwithstanding, the closing prices were higher than yesterday's.

Chicago was the most active in the bullish flurry at the opening and showed the most substantial gains over yesterday at the close, the May option there being particularly well bought.

Liverpool closed ⅞d to 1⅛d higher. Paris ¼c lower, Antwerp ⅝c higher, Berlin 1⅝c higher and Budapest ¾c higher.

The May option closed ½c higher than yesterday in Duluth and Winnipeg, 1⅛c higher in Chicago, ⅝@¾c higher in Minneapolis, 1⅛c higher in New York, 1c higher in St. Louis and ⅞@1c higher in Kansas City. The July option closed ⅝c higher in Duluth and Winnipeg, ¾c higher in Chicago, ½@⅝c higher in Minneapolis, 1⅛c higher in New York, ⅞c higher in St. Louis and ⅝@¾c higher in Kansas City.

May corn closed ⅝@⅞c higher in Chicago and ¼d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed ⅛@¼c higher in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Wheat—As a result of the firmness in American cables yesterday, and the good demand for cargoes in near positions, the market here opened firm and ⅝d to ½d higher. Offerings were light, and shorts in March covered freely, which resulted in a further advance of ¾d in this option, which carried the distant months further ¼d higher. Much disappointment is felt regarding the failure of stocks to show an increase, notwithstanding the amount taken out of the amount on passage last week and the continued liberal arrivals here. Further fears are expressed regarding the Balkan situation, and private reports state that a large percentage of coast arrivals are ordered to the continent. Much of the wheat arriving here from Southern Argentina is grading poor. Reports regarding the French growing crop are very pessimistic, and these conditions caused good speculative buying. At Midday the market was strong and from ⅝d to 1¼d higher than yesterday, with principal strength in March.

"Corn was steady and ¼d higher. The market was extremely dull. The undertone was steady as a result of the firmness in America."

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 37 against 31 last year, and at Minneapolis 163 against 165 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 210 last year. Chicago received 64 against 29 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 481,000 bu., last year 423,000 bu. Shipments, 255,000 bu., last year 286,000 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour were 42,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 506,000 bu., last year 620,000 bu. Shipments, 641,000 bu., last year 394,000 bu. Cuearances of corn were 253,000 bu.

Wheat trading was lively in the Duluth market, and the May option shot up a point during the first half hour. May wheat opened ⅝c higher at 1.14½, advanced to $1.15⅝, declined to $1.15, reacted to $1.15⅝, and from that time on gradually eased to $1.14½, closing at $1.14⅝, a gain of ½c over yesterday. July wheat opened ¼c higher at $1.15, went to $1.15⅝ and ranged between that and $1.15⅛ during the rest of the day, closing at $1.15¼, a gain of ½c over yesterday.

Durum wheat closed ¾c higher and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 1¼c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quiet but stronger. May flax opened ¼c lower at $1.60½, went to $1.61⅛ and closed there, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday. July flax closed ⅞c up, at $1.61. September flax advanced from $1.40½ to $1.41 and closed there, a gain of 1c. October flax opened ½c lower at $1.35, advanced to $1.36¾, and closed there, a gain of ¾c.

Oats closed ¼c higher and other coarse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat for May Delivery Advances on Active Demand.

Chicago, March 24.—Wheat for May delivery advanced 2c per bushel here today on active demand, based on foreign bullish news. Other deliveries advanced about 1c, compared with the previous close. The market opened strong, with prices up ⅝c to ¾@⅞c. May being at $1.16⅝ to $1.17, and July at $1.04@1.04¼. Demand was extremely urgent early in the session, and prices continued to advance, until May had reached $1.18¼, and July $1.04½@⅝. The principal bullish influences were pessimistic reports regarding the wheat crop of France and an advance of ⅝d to 1¼d in the price of wheat at Liverpool.

Prices declined considerably from the top on liberal realizing sales, but rallied again late in the day owing to renewed covering by shorts brought out by a report that total exports for the day would amount to 54 boat loads. The market closed strong with May up 1½c at $1.17⅝@1.17¾. July was ⅝c higher at $1.04⅜.

An official forecast of wet weather for the corn belt had a strengthening effect on the corn market, sentiment in the pit being bullish early in the day. The bulge in wheat also brought out demand. Commission houses were active bidders, which induced considerable profit taking. Prices at the start were a shade to ¼@⅜c higher, with May at 66½c to 66¾c. Later May sold at 66¾@⅞c.

The high point for May was reached at 67⅛c. The market closed strong with May up ⅜@½c, at 66⅞c.

Oats were firm at the start, in sympathy with wheat and corn, but an easier tone soon developed on realizing by local holders. May opened ½c higher, at 54¾c, and sold off to 54⅝c.

Provisions were weak, because of realizing sales, based on a 10c decline in the price of live hogs. Prices at the opening were 2½c to 12½c lower than the previous close.

HEARD ON THE FLOOR.

Gossip of the Trading Room and of the Pit.

About a car of mustard seed was sold on the floor of the board this morning. It brought $18 a ton.

It is not a usual thing to see mustard sold here but once in a while a car of it comes in and is disposed of in the cash market.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Prices Started Easy, But Advanced and Closed Quite Steady.

Another Break in Third Avenue Traction Was Leading Feature.

New York, March 24.—The meager opening demand for stocks today allowed prices to sag, fractional declines being shown, with the exception of a few of the more important stocks. Third Avenue continued under severe pressure and declined 2⅛ within a few minutes.

Support was given to the general market when Third Avenue began to show signs of demoralization again, that stock falling rapidly to 25½, a loss of 2⅝. Southern Pacific was bid up a point and the other active railroads and specialties were placed a good fraction above yesterday's closing. Brooklyn Transit and Third Avenue rallied 1¼, respectively, from the lowest, and Interborough-Metropolitan preferred sold 1¼ above last night. The inquiry for stocks diminished before 11 o'clock, and the market became quiet and easier. Great Northern Ore Certificates gained 1, and American Woolen 1½.

The rise of United States Steel above 45 had some strengthening influence, but the market became sympathetic. Interborough-Metropolitan and American Woolen preferred rose 1¼ and Reading. Wabash preferred, American Smelting and Consolidated Gas 1. The market was firm at noon. Bonds were steady.

The market closed steady and quiet. Prices reacted in the final hour, but came up again with the 2¼ points rise in Reading. Generally the earlier high prices were not exceeded. Toledo, St. Louis & Western lost 1. Final transactions showed some evidence of realizing sales.

IMPORTANT VICTORY WON BY CASS LAKE IN FIGHT OVER NORMAL SCHOOL

Opsahl Beaten in Attempt to Kill Any School Legislation.

Commission Plan on Employers' Liability Favored by Committee.

New Hotel Bill Reported by Public Health Committee.

(From a Staff Correspondent.

St. Paul, Minn., March 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cass Lake, in its gallant fight for a normal school, this morning won the most important victory of a long string of close contests, and its thanks are due to Representative Opsahl of Bemidji, and those joined with him in the fight against Cass Lake. Their object was to kill the whole thing, including their own bill, and they had Representative Rosenwald, who was opposed to any normal school whatever, make a motion to indefinitely postpone both the Cass Lake bill and the general bill. The result was that the general bill was killed by an overwhelming vote, but the Cass Lake bill still stands so that the fight has narrowed down to Cass Lake, with its opponents joining in a fight against giving Northern Minnesota any new normal school whatever.

On motion of Representative Zelch, the vote was taken first on the general bill, and there were only one or two votes against its indefinite postponement.

Representative Rosenwald made a comedy speech against any new normal school, and Representative Opsahl joined with him. On the Cass Lake bill, Representative McGarry asked his friends to vote "no," and Representative Opsahl asked his friends to vote "yes."

Representative Dalzell said that fair play should be granted. Those fighting Cass Lake were ready to throw the whole thing overboard in order to beat McGarry and Cass Lake, and it

TAXATION EQUALITY

Two Bills Proposed by State Tax Commission Are killed.

Nearly All the St. Louis County Measures Have Been Passed.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Measures proposed by the state tax commission, looking toward equality of assessment and taxation throughout the state, did not meet with a very cheerful reception in the house yesterday afternoon.

In fact, the house killed two out of three pending measures of that character, and only passed the third by the narrowest possible margin, after a warm fight.

The hardest contest was on the measure that pulled through, which relates to the basis of assessment in this state for purposes of taxation. The outcome was that the bill was passed, 60 for and 51 against, providing that all property shall be valued at its actual worth, and then assessed at 40 per cent of that amount for purposes of taxation.

When this same measure was up before, the house defeated all the amendments that were proposed, and then killed the bill. Then, discovering the dilemma into which it had cast itself, the house reconsidered the defeat of the bill and postponed action upon it until yesterday afternoon. When it was reached as a special order yesterday, the house came very near repeating its absurd fiasco of the previous hearing, defeating all the amendments that were proposed, and getting barely enough votes in the affirmative to pass it.

The problem is simple enough, to

COUNTY OPTION IN CLOSE FIGHT

Two Indiana Cities Are Claimed by Saloon Forces.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 25.—County option elections are being held in Elkhart and Orange counties today. In Elkhart county, the temperance forces face one of the strongest foes attacked under the new law. This county contains Elkhart and Goshen, cities of over 10,000 population each, and both claimed by the saloon forces.

Under the county option law 548 saloons have already been closed in the state.

Blind Mathematician Died.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, March 25.—Prof. George W. Tannehill, 70 years old, the "blind mathematician," is dead. For forty-four years he was teacher of mathematics in Iowa college for the blind at Vinton, Iowa. Prof. Tannehill became blind when a young man.

CASTRO WILL GO HOME; TALKS OF REVOLUTION

Says He Will Fight to Regain His Lost Power.

Again Dons His Celebrated Gold Embroidered Skull Cap.

Paris, March 25.—Cipriano Castro, ex-president of Venezuela, and the members of his party left this city this morning for Bordeaux.

At the railroad station Castro confided to a small group of Venezuelan adherents and admirers, his intention of re-establishing his power in Venezuela by a revolution, should this be necessary. After entering the car, where he donned the celebrated gold embroidered skull cap that has figured in every description of Castro when he was an occupant of the yellow house at Caracas, the deposed president of Venezuela leaned from a window and spoke to his countrymen with an earnestness and passion which left no doubt in their minds that he is convinced he is another Napoleon returning from Elba to reconquer his country.

Castro declared his trip to Europe had been misunderstood at home and abroad. He has come not only because he needed medical treatment, but to serve his country by interesting foreign capital in Venezuelan industries. He spoke bitterly of the treachery of Juan Vincente Gomez, whom he left as vice president and who has since been made president and predicted that those now in control of the state would drive the country into bankruptcy.

"In six months," he asserted, "the present government will be unable to meet the obligations of the republic."

LAGUNA DAM TO OPEN MARCH 30

It Will Provide for Ditches Over 130,000 Acres.

Yuma, Ariz., March 25.—The last carload of rock has been dumped into the apron of Laguna dam and the great diversion weir is being cleared of all its construction equipment preparatory to the opening celebration, March 30.

Laguna dam extends across the Colorado river and is fourteen miles above Yuma. It is built by the United States reclamation service at a cost of more than $1,000,000. The dam allows the water to pass through sluice gates on either side of the river into main channels from which many laterals and ditches will extend over 130,000 acres.

Work on the dam was commenced in July, 1905. The dam is 4,770 feet long

GIRL TICKET SELLERS FLIRT; TO LOSE JOBS.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 25.—That girls as ticket sellers at the elevated and subway stations of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company lose valuable time by flirting with the general public is the opinion of the company, and as a result women employes in these positions will be replaced by men as soon as is practicable.

WHITLA KIDNAPERS ARE INDICTED BY GRAND JURY; WOMAN GETS MOST BLAME

Man's Friends Say That She Caused His Downfall.

Sharon Waits Eagerly for Extradition of the Abductors.

Identification of Pair by Stolen Child Is Complete.

BILLY SPENDS WITNESS FEES FOR MARBLES.

Sharon, Pa., March 25.—"Billy" Whitla is the marble king of Sharon today. He received $7.80 witness fees for appearing before the grand jury in Cleveland. To this amount he added 17 cents that "Jonesey" gave him and now he is investing in marbles.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 25.—The county grand jury today reported an indictment against James H. Boyle and Helen Boyle, alias Faulkner, charging them with blackmail. The charge is based on the payment of $10,000 ransom by J. P. Whitla for the recovery of his son, Willie, last Monday.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 25.—J. P. Whitla of Sharon, Pa., father of Willie, the central figure in the kidnaping case, did not return to Sharon with the other members of his family yesterday. Mr. Whitla declines to say that his continued presence has any-

Mrs. Loos has been separated from her husband some time.

LIQUOR SEARCH WARRANTS EASY

Michigan Senate Passes Bill to Seize on Sight.

Lansing, Mich., March 25.—The senate has passed Senator Dickinson's search and seizure bill, which would permit any person who can state that he has reason to believe that liquor is concealed in a local option county in some certain place, to appear before a magistrate and secure a search warrant, the finding of the liquor being regarded as prima facie evidence of guilt.

Private residences are exempted from the operation of the measure.

MORE HUMANE TO CARVE LETTERS

Packer, Who Did Not Pierce Pigs' Ears, Acquitted.

Chicago, March 25.—Patrick Brennan, president of the Independent Packing company, charged with cruelty to animals in that he allowed branding of hogs with a carving knife, instead of tagging them, was found not guilty today.

Brennan contended that it is more humane to carve letters on a hog's back than to pierce its ears for a tag, as the animal usually lacerated itself in trying to tear out the tag.

Fire Loss is $350,000.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 25.—Fire which broke out at 1 o'clock this morning, in a three-story building on Forsyth street, for a time threatened the entire business district. The loss is estimated at $350,000, partially insured.

WOMAN KILLS MAN AT DOOR

Declares She Thought the Victim Was a Burglar.

Chicago, March 25.—A bullet fired through the rear door of her home by Mrs. Julia Tanovicz, last night, pierced the heart of an unidentified man, believed by the woman to have been a burglar.

After she had discharged her revolver Mrs. Tanovicz opened the door and saw her victim gasping his breath. Her husband and two boarders, who were in the house, rushed out in time to witness the man die.

Much alarmed, the slayer, her husband and the boarders feared to inform the police and watched until daylight, expecting the authorities to arrive. Then Mrs. Tanovicz hastened to the stockyards police station and reported what had occurred. The police do not believe the victim was a burglar. He appears to have been a laborer.

Mrs. Tanovicz, who with her husband and the two boarders, is held by the police, insists she did not know the slain man and that he pounded on her door until she was convinced he sought to break into the house.

TEA DRINKERS OPPOSE TAX; SAY: PUT LEVY ON BEER IN TARIFF BILL

Declare Makers of Alcoholic Beverages Can Stand Increase.

Have Not Reduced Price Since Raise at War Time.

Tea a Necessity to American Families, Is Claim.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, March 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Members of congress are beginning to hear from their constituents as to a great many articles upon which the tariff is to be changed by the Payne bill.

Among the things that hurt the most is the proposed tax on tea, which the framers of the bill confidently assert will not affect the present retail price, but it is difficult to convince the consumers of this.

The tea drinkers are lining up against the beer drinkers.

The tax on beer so far as the Payne bill is concerned, remains the same as under the existing law. The tea drinkers want to shift any taxation that may be assessed to those who drink beer—either for breakfast or at any other time of day.

Free tea is the slogan, and if the government needs revenue, let it obtain it from the drinkers of beer or other alcoholic beverages, tea drinkers say. Beer and other alcoholic beverages, they assert, are luxuries and should be taxed; tea is a necessity to most American families and a staple beverage.

The proposition to place a tax on

SENATORS HEAR IOWANS PROTEST

Business Men Argue Against Constitutional Prohibition.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 25.—Authorized delegations of business men from Sioux City, Burlington, Dubuque, Davenport and a dozen other cities of the state, representing commercial organizations, appeared today before the senate committee, having in charge the amendment for constitutional prohibition, and presented their arguments against the measure.

It is estimated 1,000 business men are here to impress the committee with the force behind the anti-prohibition cause.

The committee will make its report the first of next week and it is understood a majority is against resubmission.

ANOTHER KIND OF WOLF TO BE EXTERMINATED.

SERVIAN CROWN PRINCE YIELDS THRONE RIGHTS

George Renounces Right of Succession, Due to Murder Charge.

Accused of Being Cause of Death of Servant.

Belgrade, March 25.—George, crown prince of Servia, has renounced his right of succession to the Servian throne.

This action is the result of a bitter press campaign, in which the crown prince was accused of being the cause of the recent death of one of his servants, a man named Kolakovitz.

In a letter to Premier Novakovitch this morning the crown prince announces that he has taken this step rather than rest under the suspicion of having murdered his servant, and that, by the renunciation, he foregoes all special privileges and immunities that attach to the person of the heir to the throne.

Continuing, he expresses his willingness to go abroad for a long sojourn.

ALL SALOONS IN ONE OWNERSHIP

Portland, Or., May Adopt the Gothenburg System.

Portland, Or., March 25.—It is stated that the Gothenburg system of placing all saloons under one ownership may be adopted here.

An association is seeking a ten-year franchise, for which it has offered the city $365,000 a year for the first five years and $400,000 for the last five.

It promises to reduce the number of saloons from 440 to 250 and to regulate them. An initiative petition for a law granting them this privilege is being circulated.

FUNNY, BUT TRUE!

Quite an amusing incident occurred at the Merchant Tailors' Banquet at the Astor House in February—according to the New York Herald.

Mr. Herbert Kaufman, who writes the Merchant Tailors' association "ads" that appear in the newspapers of the large cities, was addressing the Banqueting Tailors on the waning popularity of "my tailor"—what he should do to regain his lost prestige, etc., and had just remarked that it was "more classy to wear custom-made clothes" when a delegate asked him who had designed the elegant coat he wore. Mr. Kaufman blushingly admitted that he had bought it ready made for $30. We don't know where Mr. Kaufman buys his clothes, but we do know that we are selling clothes every day that brush elbows with custom makes, without suffering by comparison.

MADE TRIP TO PANAMA

Capt. Ray T. Lewis Describes Progress of the Canal.

Cupid Decimates Ranks of American School Teachers There.

Capt. Ray T. Lewis returned to the city this morning after a six weeks' trip through the South. Mr. Lewis, in company with his son, Fred, visited the scene of operations on the Panama canal, and was much interested in the work.

"We first went to Colon, which is the Atlantic entrance to the canal," said Capt. Lewis. "From here we traveled the entire length of the canal, studying the work at each point as we went along. We ended at Panama, which is the Pacific entrance to the canal. It was at Culebra that we saw the most interesting part of the work. Culebra is twelve miles from Panama and the cut at this point is now down 200 feet, with an additional depth of eighty-five feet still to be attained. This cut, I was told, was the biggest feat of the government in building the canal. It is five miles long.

"At Gatum we were interested in the enormous dam that is being built. This dam will be, when completed, one and a quarter miles long, 1,700 feet on the base, and 120 feet high. This is another of the big things being done by the government.

"They told me that the canal would be completed in 1915, but I think it it is completed in such a short length of time they will have to hustle harder than they have so far. The amount of work still to be done on the canal is almost beyond imagination.

"I was told that there were 44,000 men working on the canal. They consist mostly of Spaniards, Greeks and negroes. There are many other nationalities represented, and they told me that in all there were working on the canal forty-eight different nationalities.

"By carefully studying the climatic conditions and taking every precaution, the United States government has succeeded in eliminating contagious diseases. There are many Americans on the job, holding down clerical positions, and for the most part they have their families with them, and live in houses furnished by the government. Everything possible for the comfort of those employed there has been done. The government has erected school buildings at every point."

"I became acquainted with a man by the name of Smith, who is superintendent of the schools at Panama. He told me that he had received from Duluth school teachers two applications for work there. The pay is $90 a month, and the best board and room comes to $25. He said that the only trouble with engaging women teachers was that they get married so soon after commencing their duties. The men freeze to the American girls as soon as they arrive, and he said it kept him busy writing to the states for more teachers.

"Maj. Gaillard, who at one time was located in Duluth, is head engineer at Culebra, and is doing nicely. He is very popular among the people there, and he says that he enjoys both the work and the country. He asked about Duluth people, and was eager to know of the improvements made in the city since he has been away.

"The hotels all through the canal zone are not of the best, although they are strictly up-to-date when it comes to price. The Y. M. C. A. buildings erected by the government all through the country are very fine places, and I enjoyed my stay at one of these building greatly.

"It is almost impossible to imagine the work already done and the great things that have been accomplished. It is all very wonderful, and it would be easy to write a book about it all. The canal is far from being finished, although the people there already have visions of boats sailing through on their way from one ocean to another. It is a most gigantic task and one that no one but a fellow with the perseverence of Uncle Sam would attempt."

DROP LAMP OR BABY?

West Duluth Woman Dropped Lamp and House Burns.

Receiver Burns From Telephone While Husband Calls Firemen.

Carrying a baby and a lamp at the same time proved too big a task for arms of Mrs. Wilfred La Londe last evening, so she dropped the lamp, setting fire to the La Londe home, at 16 South Sixtieth avenue west.

The lamp broke when it fell, making the entire room a seething furnace in the space of a few seconds. Mrs. La-Londe ran screaming from the apartment, clinging tightly to the baby.

When outside she called to her husband, who was working in the yard. He tried to enter the house to extinguish the flames, but they made too much headway.

The next thing was to give the alarm to the fire department. The house was too hot to enter, so he broke a window and leaned through to the telephone, which hung near the sash.

The upper portion of his body thrust into the burning building, La Londe telephoned for the fire department, and as he spoke, the flames came so near that the cord holding the receiver was burned, and his hair was scorched.

But the alarm had been sounded and the fire companies came. They extinguished the blaze, but not before it had caused $600 damage.

No one was injured.

SALOON KEEPER IS ARRESTED

Claimed That He Sold Liquor to Minors—Pleads Not Guilty.

Charged with selling liquor to minors, S. J. Yankowick, a saloon keeper, whose place of business is at 5620 Raleigh street, was arrested this morning and arraigned in the municipal court. He entered a plea of not guilty and his hearing was set for March 30. Bail was fixed at $100.

THINKS LETTERS ARE A TRAP

West Duluth Woman Suspicious of News of Fortune.

Mrs. Ellen Rahm of 6032 Raleigh street is very much worried and mystified over a number of letters she has recently received from her old home town, Toledo, Ohio. These letters hint mysteriously at a large sum of money which has been left her, and urge her to travel to Toledo to claim it.

The first letter was written on Feb. 5 from Toledo, and was signed by a man, who is unknown to Mrs. Rahm. The writing is singularly feminine. The letter is written in ink. The other letters are written in pencil, and the writing is very much like the first, though they bear the name of her stepmother, Mrs. A. Fernnie.

None of the letters tell how she has become heir to this fortune, or its amount, though they indirectly convey the idea that the money has been left by Mrs. Rahm's divorced husband, whose name was McDonald. Neither do any of the letters state that her former husband is dead, but say that he has realized some money through some invention which he patented.

Mrs. Rahm, who has been happily remarried, and is living with her second husband and child, says that she fears some one is trying to lure her from her home. She claims not to recognize any of the writing in the letters, not even that supposed to be her stepmother's, with whom she has not corresponded for some time. Each letter states that it is necessary for her to come to Toledo to be identified before she can get the money alleged to be coming to her. Mrs. Rahm says she knows no one who would possibly give her money, and the last person she could suspect of such a gift would be her former husband.

The whole affair has so upset the woman that she refuses even to write the addresses given in the letters, although her friends have advised her to, telling her that no harm can possibly come of her writing.

Patton Very Ill.

Norman Patton of 619 North Fifty-sixth avenue west, whose strange disappearance created so much comment during the past week, is said to be very ill at the home of his brother in Portland, Or. His mother, Mrs. W. Langslow, is with him, and will bring him to Duluth as soon as he is able to travel.

Cars Are Stalled.

Street car traffic was blocked this morning just before noon at the corner of Central avenue and Raleigh street, by the breaking of the trolley cable. Before the break could be repaired a number of cars were stalled on both tracks. While the wrecking crew was at work, electric sparks emitted from the end of the cable, attracted a crowd of spectators.

SUPERIOR NEWS

ELECTION CONTESTED

Hints of Improper Methods in Fourth Ward Primaries.

Swan Nelson Will Ask Courts For a Recount.

There is a probability that one contest will develop out of the primary elections held yesterday in Superior.

In the Fourth ward, Peter Bergman received the Republican nomination for supervisor by twelve votes over his opponent, Swan Nelson. Nelson received a majority in the first and second precincts, but in the third he lost so heavily that it counterbalanced the pluralities he received in the other two precincts. It is claimed that fifty-five persons who had not registered cast votes in the third precinct, and it is claimed that a number of these had no right to vote.

Mr. Nelson has appointed R. I. Tipton as his attorney, and Mr. Tipton is now investigating the case to obtain evidence is possible.

Work for Shipyards.

It has been learned, through semi-official reports from Cleveland, that the American Shipbuilding company will construct fourteen vessels this season, and that two of these will be built at the Superior shipyards. The local officers disclaim any knowledge of this report. At present the yards are practically idle.

BRAKEMAN FALLS FROM TRAIN

Badly Mangled Body is Later Found on the Track.

Peter Hoey, a brakeman for a number of years on the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad, was killed this morning by falling from a moving freight train at Iron River.

Just how the accident occurred is not known. He was last seen standing on one of the cars, from which he suddenly disappeared. Later his body was found on the tracks cut in two and frightfully mangled. The body will be shipped to Michigan for burial. Hoey had made Superior his headquarters ever since he started work for the South Shore.

TO BUILD HOME FOR WORKMEN

Plan Is Indorsed at Meeting in Superior Mission.

Much enthusiasm was manifested last evening at the mass meeting held at the Superior Mission for the purpose of discussing "The substitutes for the saloon, the workingman's home; how can we build one in Superior?"

There were more than 200 men present, and anyone who wished, was privileged to talk for ten minutes. At least fifty of those present stated that they were willing to purchase a $10 share of stock to help towards starting a building fund. Many others indorsed the plan of building a place, where workmen can find amusement, without going to the saloons, and offered to donate smaller sums.

Attorney W. B. Kellogg spoke on the subject, and urged the men to start the ball rolling. "Get up a subscription list, then incorporate and sell stock," he said, and stated that $20,000 would build a fine home, and 200 shares of $10 each would be a sufficient sum to begin on.

Repairing Bridge.

Repair work is being done on the Lamborn avenue bridge, across Howard's pocket, and yesterday the bridge was closed temporarily to team and street car traffic. The repairs will not be finished until after tomorrow. Passengers from the cars are transferred to the other side of the bridge.

My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy." Sold by all druggists

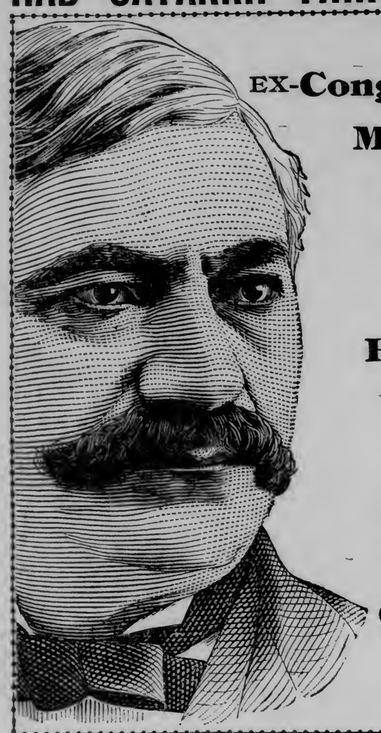
HAD CATARRH THIRTY YEARS.



EX-Congressman Meekison Gives Praise To Pe-ru-na For His Relief From Catarrh.

EX-CONGRESSMAN MEEKISON COMMENDS PE-RU-NA.

"I have used several bottles of Peruna and I feel greatly benefited thereby from my catarrh of the head. I feel encouraged to believe that if I use it a short time longer I will be fully able to eradicate the disease of thirty years' standing."—David Meekison.

OTHER REMARKABLE CASES.

Mr. Jacob L. Davis, Galena, Stone county, Mo., writes: "I have been in bad health for thirty-seven years, and after taking twelve bottles of your Peruna I am cured." Mr. C. N. Peterson, 132 South Main St., Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes: "I cannot tell you how much good Peruna has done me. Constant confinement in my store began to tell on my health, and I felt that I was gradually breaking down. I tried several remedies, but obtained no permanent relief until I took Peruna. I felt better immediately, and five bottles restored me to complete health."

A SINCERE RECOMMENDATION.

Mr. D. C. Prosser, Bravo, Allegan Co., Mich., writes: "Two years ago I was badly afflicted with catarrh of the stomach. I had had a run of typhoid fever, was very depleted. I could find nothing I could eat without causing distress and sour stomach. Finally I came to the conclusion that I had catarrh of the stomach and seeing Peruna advertised, began to take it. It helped me soon, and after taking three or four bottles I was entirely cured of stomach trouble, and can now eat anything."

TO ENLARGE COMMITTEE

Effort to Raise Funds for Anti-Tuberculosis Movement.

Campaign Begun to Secure 1,200 New Members at Once.

B. P. Neff, chairman of the Duluth anti-tuberculosis committee, is sending letters to members asking them to do what they can to add to the membership.

The letter reads as follows:

"The time has arrived for an aggressive campaign for membership.

"We have been authorized to employ a nurse at $75 per month, and the money obtained from our membership fee, will be applied on the expense of the nurse's maintenance.

"The fee is only $1, and we should have no difficulty in disposing of 5,000 of these tickets. Each member of the committee is requested to dispose of twenty-five. As there are fifty members on the committee, this will dispose of 1,250 tickets. These new members in turn will be supplied with twenty-five tickets, and requested to dispose of them, and so the good work will go on. The success of the movement, however, depends on the disposition of the first lot of tickets, and we earnestly request that every effort be put forth to sell the tickets allotted to you, as we need money, and the more members obtained, the greater the enthusiasm will be.

"The salary of the nurse is only a small part of the expense of her maintenance. She will undoubtedly discover many new cases where immediate assistance in the way of milk, eggs, etc, is needed, and while this committee is not a charitable institution, still, if our work is going to be practicable and successful, we must expect to render this first aid and it all costs money.

"The proposition, however, is so humanitarian, so commendable, and so practical, that every one approached should consider it a pleasing opportunity to contribute $1 for so worthy a cause, and it is our belief that no difficulty will be experienced in securing members, providing we, as individuals who have assumed this responsibility, do our part.

"Please keep a record of new members and mail same, together with remittance, to E. A. Silberstein, treasurer."

An Ideal Cough Medicine.

"As an ideal cough medicine I regard Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in a class by itself," says Dr. R. A. Wiltshire of Gwynneville, Ind. "I take great pleasure in testifying to the results of Chamberlain's Cough Medicine. In fact, I know of no other preparation that meets so fully the expectations of the most exacting in cases of croup and coughs of children. As it contains no opium, chloroform or morphine it certainly makes a most safe, pleasant and efficacious remedy for the ills it is intended." For sale by all druggists.

LYCEUM—"Brewster's Millions."

"Brewster's Millions."

In dramatizing and staging George Barr McCutcheon's story of "Brewster's Millions" there has necessarily been some elaboration of this satire on frenzied finance to make the play presentable in dramatic form, though all the salient features of the story are strictly adhered to. It is not an easy thing to spend a $1,000,000 in a year under the restrictions laid down by the uncle of Montgomery Brewster, even with the incentive of inheriting $7,000,000, if all the conditions of spending the first million are fulfilled. This difficulty is enhanced when bad investments turn out to be good and add to the original fortune, instead of reducing it. The irony of it all is accentuated by the fact that Brewster's friends cannot be taken into the secret of the young millionaire's extravagance.

"The cast is a large and capable one headed by Robert Ober, who is said to be one of the best juvenile light comedians on the American stage.

"Brewster's Millions" opens its engagement at the Lyceum tonight and plays tomorrow night and Saturday matinee and night.

WILLING TO PAY A PART

Garfield Avenue Property Owners Will Help, if Wholesalers Dig.

Plans for Paving of Garfield Avenue Are Discussed.

Although they decline to sign any document binding them to do so, the property owners along Garfield avenue are willing to bear a just portion of the expense of paving Garfield, but feel that the greatest amount of the money needed for the work should come from the wholesale houses, and that others, whose teams continually ply the thoroughfare, which is the principal route to Superior.

A meeting of the Garfield avenue property owners was held last evening at 628 Garfield avenue, and the attendance was large. The committee from the West End Republican club, which has been looking up this matter, conferring with the Public Affairs Committee of the Commercial club, was present and explained different phases of the situation to those assembled.

Most of those present at the meeting last evening, own modest homes on the street, and their holdings there constitutes only that. They all seemed to be willing to pay a portion of the expense of paving, provided the larger part of the sum for the work was forthcoming from the business interests, which make the most use of Garfield avenue. The property owners said they never used the street for driving purposes, so that the improvements would not be of great benefit to them.

It was proposed last night to assess every 25-foot lot $72, but those present declined to sign any agreement to such an effect. They urged the promoters of the paving plans to secure first the pledges of the wholesale interests, and said then they would lend what financial support they could to the project.

BOYS' CLUBS POPULAR.

Another Organization to be Formed in West End.

Organizations of boys are the thing in the West end now.

The St. Luke's Cadet corps is growing in membership at every drill; the Haven Marching club is flourishing, and now plans are on foot to form a third society for boys.

Details of the new organization are still lacking, but it is expected that they will be known before the end of the week.

The St. Luke's Cadets held their regular drill last evening, the attendance being very gratifying to Capt. Glover.

Elmquist Will Talk.

Rev. A. F. Elmquist, pastor of St. John's English Lutheran church in Minneapolis, will speak at the social to be given in Bethany Swedish Lutheran church, Twenty-third avenue west and Third street, this evening, under the auspices of the Men's league. Mr. Elmquist was for many years pastor of Bethany church and he has hosts of friends in the city.

ONEOTA IS DISTURBED

William Meier Finds a Strong Opposition to Saloon Plans.

Lively Fight Is Developing, for Climax at Council.

One of the hottest liquor fights the council has ever seen promises to develop from the application of William Meier for a saloon license in the building formerly occupied by Carpenter brothers.

The license of the Carpenter brothers was revoked last Monday night at the council meeting, after a fight lasting several weeks. The sale of liquor to minors was the reason of the revocation of the license. For years the Oneota people have been fighting the Carpenter brothers, trying to get the license revoked, and trying to prevent its renewal every time it comes up. They don't want a saloon in that part of the city, which they claim is a residence district, without proper police protection, and they have used every means to close up the one licensed place. Now that they have at last succeeded, they are not likely to permit it to be opened without a fight.

Want a Gymnasium.

The Adams Athletic association is enlarging its membership, and plans to secure clubrooms somewhere in the West end and fit them up as a lounging place and gymnasium for the members. It has been decided to purchase blue and grap suits for the baseball team, which, it is expected, will be one of the fastest amateur teams in Duluth during the coming season.

MANY ACRES TO BE RECLAIMED

Between Farris and Heart Lake Will Prove Boon.

Cass Lake, Minn., March 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Arrangements have been practically completed for the digging of a drainage ditch between Farris and Heart lake. State Drainage Engineer George A. Ralph has been working on the matter for some time past, and is now making active preparations to begin work. The ditch will mean much to the settlers in that vicinity, inasmuch as it will drain over 5,000 acres of land, and over six miles in length.

In the neighborhood of 2,000 acres of state land is included in this tract. It is the intention to make a state road along the course of the ditch.

STOLEN BILLS ARE SHIPPED IN BARREL.

Minot, N. D., March 25.—One of the cleverest attempt to defraud a railroad company that has ever come to light in the annals of Western railroads, was unearthed in the case against Charles Reed, the Soo agent at Drake, who claimed that he was robbed of $1,400 while asleep in a hotel. Reed was checked up by the auditor and found to be about $1,100 short.

The money could not be found around the hotel, and the authorities for some time were completely baffled. One of the detectives, however, discovered that a barrel had been shipped out of Drake by freight the day of the alleged robbery, and was consigned to the approximate locality of Reed's claim in Canada. Following this clue, he overtook the barrel, opened it and found, neatly packed with stolen railroad property, $1,200 in bills. The officials believe that this accounts for freight that has been missing from that line, and now have a new avenue to watch.

BISMARCK TO VOTE ON THE COMMISSION PLAN.

Bismarck, N. D., March 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a public meeting just held, April 19 was fixed as the date for the election to choose commissioners under the commission system, and after a protracted discussion of the issues the old-time politicians present volunteered to step out of the way and allow new men to be named for the members of the commission.

E. G. Patterson, long a prominent political figure in this city, said he would get out of the race if nonpolitical candidates were chosen.

A committee was named to select five candidates and Dr. E. P. Quain was nominated as president of the commission and C. M. Dahl, P. C. Remington, A. P. Lenhart and G. F. Dullam were named as members. Other candidates will probably be named in a few days.

PREMIUM FOR BONDS

County Gets More Than $4,000 Above Par Value.

Money For New Courthouse Has All Been Raised.

St. Louis county disposed of its short-term courthouse bonds at a premium that amounts to over $4,000.

The bids for the issue of $400,000 were opened by the county auditor this morning. The bonds draw 5 per cent interest, which was made necessary owing to the fact that the bonds mature in such a short time. The issue is divided into three installments. One installment of $125,000 falls due in one and a half years. The second installment of $125,000 falls due in two and half years and the balance in three and a half years.

T. J. Bolger & Co. of Chicago were the highest bidders. They offered a premium of $601. They will also furnish the blank bonds, and will take ...al save the county $2,500 in interest.

The furnishing of the lithographed bonds is no small item, as they would cost the county over $500 to secure. If the county avails itself of the terms of delivery offered—and it undoubtedly will—the interest for a month or so will be saved and the entire premium will amount to over $4,000.

T. J. Bolger & Co. are the same concern which took the $600,000 in courthouse bonds, issued by the county last fall. The premium and terms offered at that time were also advantageous, but the award of bonds today was probably on the most satisfactory terms the county has ever obtained for a bond issue.

There were eight bidders for the bonds placed today, Duluth banks bidding for parts of the issue at par, and Chicago concerns offering premiums. The bidders, the amount of bonds asked, and the terms are as follows: City National Bank of Duluth, $90,000, par; American Exchange Bank of Duluth, $125,000, par; First National Bank of Duluth, $140,000, par; Northern National Bank of Duluth, $45,000, par; Commercial Investment Company of Duluth, $400,000, $375; A. B. Leach & Co. of Chicago, $400,000, $560; Harris Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago, $400,000, $880; T. J. Bolger & Co., $400,000, $601, and other terms.

The bond issue will be floated by May 1, but the delivery of some of the bonds will be delayed under the conditions in the bid of the successful company. The amount of the bond issue is expected to complete and furnish the new courthouse and the work has now been entirely financed.

SPRING OPENING AND SOUVENIRS FOR ALL.

The signs of spring are everywhere in evidence. The long, dark, cold days of winter are gone and in their stead comes spring with its sunshine and cheer. The days are lengthening, song birds are appearing, and spring openings are at hand.

All these are pleasant harbingers of the most delightful period of the year. The forces of spring are at work renewing all of the beauties of nature and prompting each and every one of us to follow nature's example, don new dress and enjoy the happy order of things.

The spring opening at Menter & Rosenbloom company's store, 201 West Superior street, upstairs, will be held on Saturday morning, afternoon and evening. This opening is one of the notable events which will take place this season. The new spring suits, hats, waists and other dress needs are featured in a very beautiful and comprehensive manner—fashioned from the very latest and best models and the choicest materials. Men's, youths' and children's clothing also form a prominent part of the display, but the chief interest will naturally center around the new garments for women.

The Menter & Rosenbloom company has the largest credit organization in this country. The company's store has been appropriately trimmed for the opening, and souvenirs will be given to all who attend on Saturday.

He expects to be gone about three weeks.

MAY END GAS WAR.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 25.—The long drawn-out controversy between the city of Grand Forks and the Grand Forks Gas & Electric company is believed to be near an end. As a result of the action of the city council fixing the rate for gas at $1.40, with a meter charge of 20 cents a month, the matter is up to the gas company, and those in touch with its officials say it is altogether probable the proposition will be agreed to and the reduction made.

HE BOOSTS FREE LIST

Crumpacker Urges Placing Raw Materials on It.

Says Business Revival Will Foreshadow Prosperity Era.

Washington, March 25.—Declaring the chief commendatory feature of the Payne tariff bill is the placing of certain crude and raw materials used in manufacture on the free list, Representative Crumpacker of Indiana, the most pronounced downward revisionist among the Republican members of the ways and means committee in a speech in the house today discussed the protection idea and some of the important schedules in the new bill. He said that tariff bills are peculiarly the result of compromises and said that he had no doubt that the Payne bill is a great improvement over the Dingley act.

"The objects of protection," said Crumpacker, "is to stimulate domestic industries along natural lines, where the resources of the country are capable of supplying the domestic demand, thereby creating home competition and securing to the people the comforts and accessories of life at stable and reasonable prices. Customs duties that are levied in harmony with this principle are not logical protective duties. It is not the policy of protection to simply surround special interests with conditions under which they may make increased profits. Neither should it be the object to simply increase the price of commodities.

An Ideal Principle.

Mr. Crumpacker said that the tariff plank of the national Republican platform of 1908, which declared the duties ought to be sufficient only to cover the difference in cost of production in the United States and in foreign countries, securing a reasonable profit to the producer, is an ideal principle. He stated, however, that the difficulty is in making a practicable application of the principle, because of the constant fluctuations in the cost of production in America and abroad.

"Protective duties should not be unnecessarily high," continued Mr. Crumpacker. "It is often charged that a protective tariff creates trusts. Trusts are combinations growing out of the passion of avarice, and they are created to stifle competition and increase profits. All combinations are not trusts. Trusts exist in free trade countries as well as in countries that maintain protective tariff. The chief difference is that in a free trade country there is no tariff behind which a combination can find shelter in increasing prices unjustly and imposing upon the people while in a protection country, if the tariff is higher than is necessary to cover the difference in the cost of production, combinations may degenerate into trusts and raise prices clear to the top of the protection wall with entire safety."

Crumpacker said the vital purpose of a protective tariff is to increase opportunities for the employment of capital and labor in the development of the natural resources. If there were no protection to American labor, he said, the level of wages in this country would gravitate to the level of wages in foreign countries, and he declared that the present tariff policy tends to keep up a high standard of wages and living.

Notwithstanding the high scale of wages in this country, he said, the United States can successfully compete with the entire civilized world in many lines of production, because it has the greatest market of any country and because its 90,000,000 people have a consuming capacity of almost half of the entire population of the globe. Its natural resources are not excelled by any country and conditions are such here, he contended, that the capacity and efficiency of labor can be increased in a greater degree by machinery.

Manufacturers Handicapped.

"The theory of free raw material," said Mr. Crumpacker, "is that it promotes the greatest development of industries and gives the greatest opportunities for the employment of capital and labor. Duties on raw materials are a handicap upon the American manufacturer's export trade. They operate to protect his competitor in the neutral markets by seriously increasing his cost of production. There is no great producing country in the world, except the United States, that does not give its manufacturers the benefit of free raw materials."

Mr. Crumpacker made a lengthy argument in favor of free hides, asserting that the duty on hides had increased the cost of shoes for the wage earner, but has not created any demand for additional capital nor created employment for a single additional laborer.

He said the average farmer will derive more direct benefit in the decreased cost of boots, shoes, harnesses and other leather products than he now derives from the tariff on cattle hides.

Mr. Crumpacker declared that many industries, if placed upon an equal footing with foreign competitors with respect to materials, could well afford to pay the high scale of American wages and still become important factors in the open markets. He proposed, as a means of expanding our trade with South America, that raw material from that continent be admitted free, to be made into finished products in the United States, and sold back to the South American countries. He said that the drawback provision of the Payne bill will tend largely to increase export trade.

Attacking the "tariff for revenue" policy of the Democratic party, Crumpacker declared it is a sham. He discussed the maximum and minimum provisions and declared it to be a wise provision.

"I predict for this bill," said he, "if it shall be enacted into law, the sincere approval of all the people of the country who are interested only in promoting general welfare. Following its enactment, I confidently look for such a revival of industrial activity as will foreshadow another era of prosperity more splendid, if possible, than that which followed the enactment of the Dingley law, in 1897."

WOODSMEN RETURNING FROM THEIR WINTER'S WORK IN LUMBER CAMPS NOT THE EVENT IT USED TO BE

BACK FROM THE WOODS AND READY FOR RAILROAD WORK.

Back in the old days when "Hans, the Dane," and "The Terrible Swede" fought it out with tooth, nail and calked boots in the old "Bucket of Blood" saloon to settle the question as to who was the "bully boy" of the North woods, the return of the woodsmen from the spring drive meant something.

But this year, more than any other, the fact is brought home to old-time Duluthians, that Duluth is no longer a border town. The days of the old time woodsmen are not passing, they are passed, and the return of the woodsmen in the spring is no longer an event; it is merely an incident in the life of the city. The old-time lumberjack spent the winter in the woods, and made but two or three trips to town a year. These were wild, lurid trips, and the most important one of all was the return in the spring. In they came, this army of husky, full-blooded giants, with a winter's wages in their pockets, and ready to fight or drink at the drop of the hat. Down on the Bowery the lights glittered, glasses clinked merrily, the saloon keepers reaped a harvest, and life was a wild carnival.

But things are changed, and never was it more noticeable than this spring. The woodsmen are returning, it is true, but the return is scarcely noticeable. In the first place, the type of men who work in the woods has changed. The old woodsmen have moved along. They are in the West, in Alaska, in Canada, out on the borders of civilization. They are following the frontier as it moves steadily backward. The men who have taken their places are either steady, hard working men, who have families dependent upon them, and carefully save the money they earn in the woods, or they are the poorer classes of laborers from Southern Europe, whose spirit has been broken by centuries of poverty. Sodden dissipation has replaced the old-time revelry. Their dissipation is not the dissipation of the old-time lumberjack, who had to find some vent for his pent up energy and animal spirits. Few woodsmen in these days spend a winter in the woods Some claim it is the fault of the employment agent and the foreman and the old story of collusion to keep the lumberjack moving for their mutual benefit. Others claim the men have changed, and are no longer content to spend the winter in the woods, returning only in the spring with a "roll," whatever the cause, the fact remains, that but few men remain in the woods for more than six weeks of two months at a time." The spring breakup only means that a few more men are seen sunning themselves in front of the employment offices and the saloons along the Bowery; a little more poor whisky is sold in the Bowery grog-shops; and a few more names appear on the police blotter, under the head of "drunks." The personal equation is lost; "Hans, the Dane," and "The Terrible Swede" are forgotten; and the woodsman has become merely a cog in the industrial machinery of Northern Minnesota.

MAKE PLANS FOR FIGHT AGAINST TONNAGE TAX

First Step Is to Get Hearing for St. Louis County.

Public Affairs Committee Will Send Delegates to St. Paul.

"First make sure that St. Louis county gets an opportunity to be heard on the tonnage tax, and then see that the people of the county are fully informed of this opportunity and leave no doubt in the minds of the senate of our attitude on the question."

That, in a nutshell, is the attitude of the members of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club, as expressed at the meeting held last evening for the purpose of discussing the line of action that should be taken on the tonnage tax bill now before the senate.

The bill comes before the senate committee next Wednesday evening and the members of the committee believed that it was their first duty to secure a proper hearing for the county, and all of the counties in the northern part of the state. With that idea in view, a motion was passed unanimously, instructing the executive sub-committee to name a delegation to go to St. Paul next Wednesday, appear before the committee, and ask for a hearing. This delegation will not necessarily be composed of members of the Commercial club. The executive sub-committee was empowered to name as many delegates as they see fit, and to select these delegates from any part of the county that they see fit. The instructions were that the executive sub-committe should spare no labor or expense in seeing that a proper delegation went to St. Paul, and one sufficiently strong to secure a date for a hearing, when Northern Minnesota can present her case. The delegation may be composed of five members or fifty, or 100, as the sub-committe deems advisable. It may include prominent citizens and officials from the range towns.

The executive sub-committee was also empowered to hire a clerk to attend to the office work in connection with the matter. "Get us a hearing," was the order given to the sub-committee, "and we will see that the county makes its sentiment known."

The plans for the demonstration of public sentiment in Northern Minnesota are still vague, and will not take definite shape until the date for the hearing has been set. When the date has been set, it was the opinion of the public affairs committee that Duluth and Northern Minnesota should descend on St. Paul 1,000 or 2,000 strong, if necessary, and deluge the senate with petitions from every public body, church, school and organization of every kind, to prove beyond a doubt that it is the people who are fighting the tonnage tax, and not the Steel corporation, or any private interest.

Incidentally the public affairs committee went on record as opposing the bill most strenuously, and instructed the sub-committee to draw up a set of resolutions condemning the proposed tax as a blow from which Northern Minnesota would never recover. There was no question about the attitude of the members of the committee. The only fear seemed to be that the resolutions would not be made strong enough. They will be drawn up and, if necessary, a special meeting of the committee will be called to ratify them.

Mayor Haven was also requested to prepare to call a mass meeting of the citizens of Duluth to protest against the bill, just as soon as the date for the hearing has been set.

BELIEVED MAN'S STORY

Jury Acquits George Nicoll of Charge of Assault.

He and Woman Making Charge Were Only Witnesses.

George Nicoll was acquitted by a jury in the district court yesterday afternoon of a charge of indecent assault on Mrs. Lottie Bellenauve. Limping from a bullet wound made by Mrs. Bellenauve at the time of the alleged assault, Nicoll went from the court room a free man. The jury didn't believe that he made an attempt to assault the woman.

Mrs. Bellenauve and Nicoll were the only witnesses of the affair, which ended when a revolver in the hands of the woman went off and Nicoll received a bullet in the left leg. He was a friend of the Bellenauve family, and had called at their home in the old St. Luke's hospital building on the corner of Second avenue east and Fourth street, March 6. After Mr. Bellenauve had left for work, the woman and Nicoll were left alone in the house.

Of what transpired then Mrs. Bellenauve and Nicoll told exactly opposite stories. The woman claimed that Nicoll attempted to assault her and she shot at him in self-defense. Nicoll claimed that the woman was brandishing the gun in denunciation of her husband when it was discharged, presumably accidentally.

IS COUSIN OF TEDDY'S GUIDE

Duluth Man Has Visited Country Roosevelt Will Explore.

W. G. Harrison, bookkeeper at the Commercial club, is a cousin of R. J. Cunningham, who will meet Theodore Roosevelt's hunting party at Mombasa, and will be the chief guide in charge of the native porters. Cunningham has spent most of his life in the wilds of Africa hunting elephants for ivory and trading with the natives, and Mr. Harrison, himself, has accompanied the man on some of his trips.

The Duluth man says he has been over much of the territory that Roosevelt will cover. He does not believe the American people need worry over Prof. Starr's statement that Mr. Roosevelt will not return from Africa alive. With proper care, he says the ex-president will be able to preserve his health

Mr. Harrison professes to be well informed as to the country and the habits of game in the districts the Roosevelt party will traverse. He says the party will strike the African veldt at a time when they will get the benefit of the dry season. At his former home in England, Mr. Harrison has many trophies of his big game hunts in Africa. He spent the greater part of two years on the east coast of Africa and in the interior. He was much of the time a member of hunting and trading parties.

CELEBRATE 8-HOUR DAY

Lewis Calls on Miners to Observe First of April.

Anthracite Workers Decide to Remain in the Collieries.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 25.—President T. L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America has issued a proclamation asking miners to celebrate April 1, the inauguration of the eight-hour working day. He declares that "no dispute is permanently settled until it is settled right." He says: "You are aware that April 1 is the anniversary of the establishment of the eight-hour workday in the mining industry of this country. It is true that the eight-hour day has not been established in all the mining states, but this is due to the failure of the mine workers to become thoroughly organized."

Demands Are Reaffirmed.

Scranton, Pa., March 25.—Reaffirming the demands already presented to the operators, the anthracite miners have voted to remain at work after April 1, allowing the district executive boards of the hard coal fields of Pennsylvania to continue their efforts to get an agreement satisfactory to the men. The miners were instructed by the convention to continue at work until such time as they are otherwise notified by the official representatives of the three anthracite districts, and the executive boards were instructed to negotiate an agreement upon such basis as the boards in their judgment believe the conditions warrant.

The report of the policy committee as presented, was adopted by the convention. Following is the text:

"We reaffirm the demands formulate and agreed to at the special convention of districts 1, 7 and 9, United Mine Workers of America, held here, Oct. 12, 1908.

"We confer upon the members of the executive board of districts 1, 7 and 9 of the United Mine Workers of America authority to meet the operators of the anthracite coal region and to negotiate with the anthracite operators an agreement upon such basis and for such a period of time as they, the members of the executive boards, in their judgment believe industrial and other conditions surrounding the anthracite mine workers may warrant."

Stiff Neck.

Stiff neck is caused by rheumatism of the muscles of the neck. It is usually confined to one side or to the back of the neck and one side. While it is often quite painful, quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlains' Liniment. Not one case of rheumatism in ten requires internal treatment. When there is no fever and no swelling as in muscular and chronic rheumatism, Chamberlain's Liniment will accomplish more than any internal treatment. For sale by all druggists.

EARTHQUAKE FELT WHERE ROOSEVELT WILL HUNT

Mombasa, March 25.—The heavy heavy rains have begun in the protectorate, and Tuesday there was a precipitation of four inches in three hours. The grass fires, which lately had been destroying the prairies and driving the game in close to the railroad line, were extinguished by the downpour.

There was an earthquake in the Kilimilini district Saturday lasting thirty seconds.

The popular shooting season is at an end. The record for four months shows the killing of 110 lions, including two man-eaters and 3,000 head of other game. During the season nine natives and four white men were mauled by lions.

George McMillan, nephew of the late Senator McMillan of Michigan, has returned to the protectorate from a tiger hunting trip in India. He left Mombasa Tuesday for Juju ranch, his property north of Vaiobi to make preparations for the reception of Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. McMillan's residence on the ranch is in the midst of the bush country, but he has installed there an electric lighting plant and an ice making machine.

A complete taxidermatic laboratory is being established here for the treatment and preservation of trophies for the Smithsonian institution.

TAFT DECIDES UPON BROWN.

May Appoint Him to Succeed Purdy Unless Plans Are Changed.

Washington, March 25.—Calvin L. Brown of the Minnesota supreme court will be named to succeed Milton D. Purdy as a judge on the federal bench in Minnesota, unless President Taft changes the plans that he has made in this regard.

A decision to appoint Judge Brown to the place now temporarily filled by Mr. Purdy is understood to have been reached at a conference between President Taft and Senator Nelson yesterday.

The announcement of the appointment is expected almost any moment.

PADEREWSKI DECLINED.

Refused to be Stung by Bees to Cure Rheumatism.

New York, March 25.—In an attempt to cure Ignace Jan Paderewski, the famous pianist, of the rheumatism which has crippled his hands, Miss Grace McConnell, representative of a bee company, went to the Hotel Manhattan with two dozen bees yesterday to persuade the musician to let the insects sting him.

Miss McConnell's idea of stinging Mr. Paderewski originated from the introduction of bees into the Roosevelt hospital Tuesday, where they are to be used to treat rheumatic patients. It has long been a theory that the sting of a bee is a cure for rheumatism, and the Roosevelt doctors have determined to test it.

Paderewski refused to be stung.

COLORADO AS SUMMER HOME

Bill in Congress to Provide Home for President.

Washington, March 25.—Because Colorado is the "nation's playground," according to ex-President Roosevelt, Representative Taylor of that state has introduced a bill appropriating $250,000 for the erection of an executive mansion at Glenwood Springs, Col.

This building would be for the use of the president and his family during the summer. Glenwood is near the scene of Roosevelt's hunt in 1907.

Taylor, who is a new member in the house, is liberal with bills that seek to provide public buildings for his district. He wants a postoffice, land office, forestry service and other federal offices provided with buildings at Glenwood Springs and in addition, wants a monument erected to the memory of Gen. Denver, and an agricultural experiment station.

ICE FIELDS ARE DECREASING

But the Continued Cold Weather Retards the Spring Breakup.

The reports from the regular and display stations of the weather bureau indicate that the ice field over Western Superior has decreased in size, although the ice has not changed in thickness. Some fields are reported over the central portion, but are not extensive. Over the eastern portion the northerly winds have moved the fields to the south shore, and they extend beyond vision. In Whitefish bay the ice is solid and has not changed during the week. No change is reported in the ice in the St. Mary's river. In Green bay the ice ranges from ten to twenty-two inches and is firm.

In Michigan a small field is reported over the extreme southeast portion, elsewhere no fields are reported as far north as Harbor Springs. At the straits the ice remains firm and unchanged and about twenty inches in thickness.

In Huron the fields over the northern portion are reported only north of Presque Isle; from the islands southward to Saginaw bay no ice is reported. Over the extreme southern portion the field has decreased in extent and is about four miles wide at the mouth of the lake.

The St. Clair river is free of ice to below Marine City; at Algonac the ice is soft and broken. Over half of the ice has run out of Lake St. Clair; the field being confined to the eastern portion. Ice has been running freely in the Detroit river during the week. No ice fields are reported over the western portion of Erie, except about the islands. From Ashtabula harbor eastward to Buffalo the northerly winds have moved the fields to the south shore and the ice extends beyond vision. In Ontario some ice is reported over the central portion, the harbors are opening more. In comparison with same period last season, there is less ice in all lakes. The ice in Green bay is more solid; at the straits the ice is about eight inches heavier. The continued cold weather of the past week has held the ice firm at these points.

The motion to refer the bill was lost, 41 for and 44 against, so it goes to general orders.

TEARS OF NO AVAIL

Judge Stanton Believes That Jury in Lee Case Did Right.

Court Brushes Aside Innocent Plea and Passes Sentence.

Bemidji, Minn., March 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—In district court, William Lee, convicted of grand larceny in the second degree, was sentenced to serve an indeterminate term in the reformatory at St. Cloud.

Frank Jackson, attorney for Lee, asked the court for clemency for his client, and Lee, in answering if he had anything to say, cried and said that the court was sentencing an innocent man.

Judge Stanton replied that he had no doubt of his guilt and he was surprised at the defense Lee had made.

Lee is 27 years old and his parents live in Washington county, Wis. He was married, but his wife died. He has a child, 5 years old, who is living with his parents. He has been a common laborer and has worked as a lumberjack in the logging camps near Deer River, and during the past winter has worked near Fowlds.

Wes Wright, George Gunderson and Joseph Wagner were arraigned to plead to indictments returned by the grand jury, charging them with "willfully omitting to pay over to the county of Beltrami money received by them as public officers."

The indictment charges, more specifically, that on Aug. 15, 1907, they failed to pay over $10, the proceeds of a sale of a horse sold to W. A. Cassler by them. Each of them pleaded not guilty to the charge, and it was ordered by the court that defendants might change their plea and, if they so desired, demur to the indictment.

Archie Brown, who has been held in the county jail as a witness for the state in the Nelson case, was ordered discharged from custody.

There are several court cases which have been tried and there is something of a lull following the strenuous work of the past ten days in court.

DRAKE "STUNG" BY A PRETTY BLONDE

Rich Colorado Ranchman Alleged Victim of Clever Society Editress.

Menominee, Mich., March 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Determined, he says, to spend $45,000 in bringing to justice the young woman who so heartlessly lacerated his generosity, as to decamp with his $275, F. C. Drake, said to be a wealthy Colorado ranchman, is here searching for Miss Mattie Taylor, supposed to be working hard here to support an invalid mother.

The woman is not to be found in the vicinity, and although the angered Westerner declares he intends to camp here until he gets trail of her, the indications are that his proposed sojourn in Menominee will be a lengthy one.

Six months ago, Drake met Miss Taylor, a rather pretty little blonde, then employed as society editor on a Colorado paper. Nobody knew the young woman very well, save that she came from the East and made good in her profession. Drake became interested and then enamored.

About three months ago Miss Taylor told him that her mother was seriously ill in Menominee, he claims, and that unless she got the money to make the trip she would be unable to reach her mother's bedside. Drake gave her $100 and Miss Taylor came to Menominee. Not long after she arrived here he received a letter stating that a local doctor advised an operation, which would cost $175. Drake sent that amount along. Both letters were received at the postoffice here by a woman, who Drake claims was Miss Taylor from the description furnished him, but a few days after the $175-letter was received she dropped out of sight. Drake reached town yesterday, but absolutely no clue as to her whereabouts has been secured.

HILL TO GRADUATES.

Railroad Magnate Urges Using Better Seed in Planting Grain.

St. Paul, Minn., March 25.—Speaking to the graduating class of the Minnesota agricultural college, J. J. Hill said among other things, that the agricultural school "should stand in th ereation of a wise parent. It can help the farmer by furnishing him good seed or testing his own seed grain. Now he often sends his best grain to market, uses careless chosen lots for seed or even relies, with incredible folly, upon the stuff that a paternal government furnishes him free under a congressional frank, obtained from some dealer who gets a good price for an indifferent article, and peddled about the country on the assumption that it is good on its face in exchange for votes. To root out this hoary old abuse will be as helpful as to banish the Russian thistle and the wild mustard from our fields."

Marquette—Mayor John Robertson has bought the lot on the southeast corner of Hewitt avenue and High street from William Foard, and expects to build a fine residence thereon within the next few months.

Hancock—The injunction suit of the Michigan State Telephone company and the city of Hancock has gone over for another term of court, though it had been confidently expected that it would go to trial at the term which is about to close.

"THE TINGLE OF ACHIEVEMENT"

The Power to Do Things in the World Depends on Physical and Mental Stamina. How to Keep Well and Strong.

This is a strenuous age. Strong nerves, a clear brain and healthy body are needed to win success. Ambitious men, engrossed in business or professional life, frequently find themselves subject to head aches, nervousness, dyspepsia and insomnia, which greatly lessen the ability to accomplish the tasks they set out to perform.

Beecham's Pills are a most valuable medicine for busy men. Their timely use will keep the organs in good trim. They tone the stomach, increase the vitality, purify the blood, regulate the bowels and give clearness to the brain. While Beecham's Pills contain no narcotic nor sedative, they are a boon to the man who finds himself unable to sleep because he cannot relax the mental faculties. A pill or two taken a short time before retiring will equalize the circulation, withdraw the blood from the brain and bring restful and refreshing sleep.

The prices of Beecham's Pills are 10c. and 25c. a box. All druggists sell them.

DIVIDED WE FALL.

The action of the Minnesota house of representatives in adopting the tonnage tax measure is one which will result in evil for Minnesota for many years to come, no matter what may be the final disposition of the bill. Southern Minnesota is today laughing in its sleeve with right good reason, for not only has it gained a victory in its campaign to make others pay its taxes, but it has diverted the forces of Northern Minnesota. In consequence political power will remain with the southern half of the state, and sorely needed development in Northern Minnesota will be achieved, if achieved at all, only in the face of the greatest difficulties.

In the vote upon the tonnage tax bill every member of the house from the Ninth congressional district voted for the bill and against the interests of Northeastern Minnesota. A more deliberate turning of one's back upon those who have helped it in times past would be impossible.

The Ninth congressional district is composed of the counties of Ottertail, Wilkin, Clay, Becker, Norman, Mahnomen, Polk, Clearwater, Beltrami, Red Lake, Marshall, Kittson and Roseau. It was from these counties that came the original demand for state drainage work. With the Ninth district, the Sixth and the Eighth, the three districts forming more than one-half of the territory of the state, joined loyal hands and the most vigorous fight was waged by a united Northern Minnesota for a liberal policy of state drainage. Being united, Northern Minnesota triumphantly accomplished her purposes and state drainage is today an established policy of the state. The result has been a wonderful development in all parts of Northern Minnesota, but more particularly in the counties named above, the counties of the Ninth congressional district. It was in these counties that the greatest need for drainage existed; it is in these counties that the policy of state drainage has done the most good.

In every other demand which has been put forth by Northwestern and North Central Minnesota, Northeastern Minnesota has stood loyally shoulder to shoulder with its fellows of the north half of the state. This union of all interests in the northern half of the state was fast making for its political deliverance from the grasp of Southern Minnesota, and the development of the tremendous and infinitely diversified possibilities of the great territory of Northern Minnesota was coming on apace. The fight for reapportionment is a notable instance. St. Louis county has nothing to gain in this fight, yet nowhere has the demand for reapportionment been so strong as from St. Louis county. So, too, with the demand for agricultural schools and better agricultural methods. The demand for help in these things comes from the Ninth congressional district. Northeastern Minnesota has given it the most enthusiastic support, even if the greater portion of this section is, as the ardent advocates of the tonnage tax from the Ninth district declare, nothing but a place which in a few years will be a country of nothing but a series of unsightly holes in the ground.

In the hour of Northeastern Minnesota's need, however, the Ninth congressional district falls away from it, turns against it and stamps upon the hand that helped it. The Eighth district and most of the Sixth stood solidly by the interests of Northern Minnesota, but the Ninth district went over to he enemy in a solid phalanx.

No good can come of such disunion. United we were fast developing the greatest country on the continent of North America; divided we shall surely make progress with difficulty and with a vast waste of time.

RESPECT FOR THE COURTS.

It has been frequently charged of late that there is a waning respect for the courts in this country. If it be true, it is cause for the gravest alarm. When justice fails, what is the good of government?

The American people have implicit faith in the soundness of their judiciary. Few, very few of us all have ever gone so far as to entertain any serious belief that our judges are dishonest; that they are moved by any but the highest motives in their decisions. The confidence of the people of this country in this regard is remarkable. Even when decisions have been handed down by which the popular feelings of justice have been outraged, there has been scarcely a murmur from the people, scarcely so much as a thought that the decision was not honestly arrived at. The American people have also, for the most part, had confidence in the learning of the bench. The law has been faithfully and learnedly expounded. Whence then comes this growing distrust of the courts, for we can hardly deny that we do not look to the courts with implicit confidence in the justice we shall receive from them.

What distrust there is of the courts arises from the growing belief that the decisions of the bench are being in great part based, not upon the broad, true merits of a case, but upon the refinement of legal reasoning, the niceties of the rules of legal interpretation, and the confusion of technicalities which tend to multiply themselves in our judicial procedure each year in increasing ratio.

From the standpoint of justice it is monstrous that one federal court should find a defendant guilty and fine it millions while another court of equal rank should upon the same showing of fact, declare the defendant entirely guiltless. There is something seriously wrong with our courts when such things can happen. It is the business of the judiciary to do justice, not uphold technicalities. When known facts prove a defendant guilty and that defendant nevertheless is declared innocent by the courts upon some technical point or through some established rule of legal interpretation, the courts are perverting justice instead of establishing it, and it is to this very pass that we have been coming for many years. There is urgent need for the reforming of our methods of doing justice. Our courts are sound, but our methods of using them are wrong.

Right here is where the Taft administration has the opportunity to do the country an inestimable service. It is not so much a lack of law that enables great business enterprises that have done wrong to escape punishment and continue in their wrong doing, but lack of effectiveness on the part of the courts. The law is plain but the ways of the courts in interpreting it are devious and uncertain. Again and again have the guilty escaped when the facts of their guilt were plain and the law ample to reach them, until in such cases the country has come to believe that the probabilities are that the guilty will escape. President Taft is a lawyer of great ability and he has called to his cabinet an unusual number of the best lawyers in the country. Surely such an administration ought to be able to suggest changes in our judicial procedure which will simplify it and make justice fairly certain, instead of for the most part uncertain, as it now is in matters of the highest importance. Such a service will be the greatest service which the Taft administration can render the country.

ASHAMED OF IT.

There are more than 700 newspapers published in Minnesota. Although the house vote upon the tonnage tax bill came last week in time for the country press to comment upon it, very few of the newspapers of the state have availed themselves of the opportunity. In the southwestern and western parts of the state, where sentiment for the tonnage tax is inspired by unthinking prejudice against the "steel trust," a very few papers have commented briefly upon the passage of the bill, but out of over 700 papers in the state less than a dozen have thus far voiced any approval of the passage of the bill by the house. Doutless there will be others, yet the silence is remarkable and is pretty good indication that at heart those who have given any thought to what the tonnage tax bill really is are heartily ashamed of the measure.

Almost the only country paper in the state to give voice thus far to any real joy over the passage of the Bjorge bill is the Northfield News, which has been insistent in season and out of season, as it joyously confesses, "taking advantage of every occasion to popularize the cause" by false arguments and by slapping at the "steel trust." In the midst of its rejoicing last week the News declared that the "steel trust escapes with 10 mills tax while the farmers pay 25 mills." This is a sample of its arguments in favor of the tonnage tax, a statement that is flagrantly false, for the tax rate upon the iron ranges varies from two to four times that named by the News.

There are many advocating the tonnage tax who honestly believe that it is desirable and the Northfield News may be of this number, but like all the others it bases its arguments upon ignorance of the facts. It takes for granted something that it has heard, and upon such an unstable foundation bases its arguments in favor of a policy which means ruin to thousands of its fellow citizens.

The silence of the state press upon the tonnage tax vote is evidence that thinking people are ashamed of the bald greed and rank injustice of the tonnage tax movement.

CUNNING MR. KEALING.

Joseph B. Kealing, United States district attorney for Indiana, is a hero. We have the word of the New York World and the Indianapolis News for it, and Mr. Kealing is undoubtedly of that opinion himself, although he ostentatiously refrains from saying so in his letter announcing his resignation rather than prosecute the newspapers referred to.

Mr. Kealing did not lose much time in climbing upon a pedestal of virtue and making a noise so that the world would see him there. The libel suits instituted by Mr. Roosevelt and others were not right, and rather than do a wrong he elected to give up the honors and emoluments of the office of district attorney for Indiana.

Mr. Kealing's noble self sacrifice in the cause of virtue was not unnoticed. The New York World doubled the width of its editorial columns and vindicated itself over Mr. Kealing's resignation in bold, black type. The Indianapolis News promptly told us that Mr. Kealing was a man of high ideals and a patriot, and others who were more or less interested came in strong on the chorus. They certainly made it look fine for Mr. Kealing—and themselves.

It now develops, however, that there was considerable of cunning in Mr. Kealing's patriotic resignation. Mr. Kealing, it seems, was not lacking in that strategy sometimes displayed by men who resign to save themselves from being fired. He had not been in favor with the administration for some months previous to the beginning of the libel suits, and it had been fully determined by Mr. Roosevelt that Mr. Kealing should have nothing to do with the suits. Some time ago charges were preferred against him by William Dudley Foulke and it is alleged that Mr. Roosevelt debated the advisability of asking him to resign but did not do so, as the end of his administration and of Mr. Kealing's term of office was close at hand. Previous to the bringing the libel suits also, Mr. Kealing had offered to resign on the condition that he be allowed to name his successor, a proposition which the president promptly declined.

So it appears that Mr. Kealing's resignation, heralded far and wide as the virtuous protest of a high-minded public servant against an action of tyranny, was only a cunning move to cover up his own unpleasant position and to create sympathy for his newspaper friends, who refuse to defend their actions but seek to protect themselves from the consequences of them by appealing to the right of free speech.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Mayor A. J. Scott of Hancock Mich., was at the Lenox yesterday. He is chief executive of one of the liveliest towns in the lake copper region, and is naturally interested in all things relative to the red metal industry, which is ever a live issue in Duluth.

"The Copper Country isn't booming as well as it was when copper was selling around 22 cents, but we old-timers, who have seen it at every stage, aren't complaining," said Mr. Scott.

"The Copper Country towns are built on copper, and naturally, when stocks slump and the metal sells down, there is a check in business activity. During the boom times a few years ago, new industries and commercial enterprises came in to keep up with the general prosperity, and now that things aren't what they were, some of those new industries are suffering from a falling off in trade. There is a general quietness in sympathy with the condition of the copper market.

"But it is only temporary. It's impossible to tell a lake copper man that this is anything but a reaction, and when it is over, coppers will advance to a safe and sane basis. The metal is below its normal selling point now, and when it goes over the 15-cent mark again, there will be a picking up in the mining communities and business tributary to the copper industry. Copper mining is a staple industry and a little shock doesn't send it off its foundations. We, of the Copper Country, have just as much faith in our mines as you have in your iron mines, and our cities will boom on just as long as there is red metal in the ground."

The announcement in The Herald Tuesday night that the convention of United Commercial Travelers of the Northwest, to be held in Duluth June 10, 11 and 12, would be attended by 1,500 to 2,000 men, brought residents of the city to a realization of the fact that the order, since its inception in Duluth in 1893, has had a remarkable growth.

It isn't generally known, outside of the organization, that Duluth bears the distinction of being the first city in the Northwest to have a United Commercial Travelers' council. To A. Q. Millar is due the planting of a seed that resulted in the growth of so healthy and promising a plant. In the spring of 1893, he moved to Duluth from Southern Ohio, where he had been a member of the River City council, No. 11.

Early the same year several meetings of the more prominent salesmen of Duluth were held, pursuant to a call issued by Mr. Millar, in the parlors of the Spalding and St. Louis hotels. The objects of the order and the advantages of organization were duly explained to those who appeared, and in most cases there was no trouble whatever in enlisting their hearty support. The formation of a council in Duluth followed.

With the start made in Duluth, the spread of the order to St. Paul followed rapidly, and at a meeting held on a Saturday night at the Merchants' hotel, Mr Millar and two other salesmen from Duluth were on hand to explain to the then benighted brethren of the Saintly City, the beauties of the order. The organization of a council in St. Paul followed.

Minneapolis fell into line very soon after, and then Grand Forks and Fargo organized councils. Soon the whole Northwest was included in the fold. Then the obvious thing was a grand council, and this, like the first council, had its beginning in Duluth. The eligible membership was brought together, and with Zenith Council No. 40, as the host of the occasion, the grand council was organized and its first meeting held.

All this being true, Duluth should naturally have a very warm spot in her heart for the organization, and it goes without saying, that the city will do everything that possibly can be done to make the stay of her very welcome guests next June a pleasant one.

A Terrible Price.

Fargo Forum: The recent disgrace and scandal at Valley City has vindicated the position taken by Mayor Elliott and others of Fargo who favored segregation of the social evil. When the matter was under official discussion in Fargo—Mayor Elliott announced that his personal investigations and official experience had convinced him that the segregation of the social evil was the proper method—but that if the city council wanted the houses suppressed—he would see that the orders were obeyed. It appears that he has fully kept his word.

At Valley City—The Forum is informed that for some time the officials have driven out women of notoriously bad character and the city had the reputation of being one of the cleanest in that respect in the state. This record has been gained at a terrible cost.

Recent sensational developments, involving the young boys of Valley City, and numerous young girls who were in school—some from other parts of the state—has caused some of the former opponents of the segregation plan to change their views.

While it is a great thing to have a city clean and on a high moral plane—is the effort worth the terrible price paid by those school girls at Valley City? Are women of notorious character to be driven from cities that lecherous youths may prey on innocent girlhood?

THE WEATHER.

Perhaps in the dim romantic past there may have been a finer morning than this morning, and again perhaps there was not. Nothing seemed to matter very much this morning, and it made a grownup wish he were a schoolboy so he could play truant.

The weather man says it will grow cloudy tonight.

A year ago today it was snowing and quite cold.

The sun rose this morning at 6:01 o'clock and will set this afternoon at 6:27, making twelve hours and twenty-six minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The disturbance central Wednesday morning over Lake Superior and Kansas have joined forces in a storm of decided intensity, the center of which now overlies the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia. During the past twenty-four hours this storm caused widespread snow or rain from the Mississippi Valley eastward to the Atlantic coast, as well as higher temperature in the Atlantic coast states. The barometer has risen and the temperature has fallen over the Lake region, Central valleys and the Southwest with highest pressures centered over Texas and Nevada. Another disturbance developing over Saskatchewan is attended by warmer weather in the extreme Northwest. Generally fair weather and moderate temperatures may be expected at the Head of the Lakes tonight and Friday."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The trouble with intellect is how little it seems to have to do with happiness.

There's no fool like an old husband of a young wife except an old wife of a young husband.

The reason a man is not a hideous disappointment to himself is he is to everybody else.

When it storms very hard the most irritating man on earth is the fellow who tells you the year it was worse.

Some men are so lucky about money matters that it they found a roll of bank bills they would spend it before they got home and tell their wives about it.

Gun Shoots 18 Miles.

London Chronicle: The new twelve-inch wire breech-loading gun (Mark XI), which is to have the highest velocity of any gun yet made, has (says our Woolwich correspondent) emerged with credit from its test, and has given complete satisfaction in official quarters.

It is understood that orders will shortly be placed for the manufacture of a number of these weapons, and that they will form part of the armament of battleships of the Dreadnought type. Shells have already been made in Woolwich arsenal.

Compared with the present twelve-inch gun (Mark X), which has a range of, roughly, sixteen miles, the new gun has many points of superiority, the most important of which is its greater range. It is said to be effective at eighteen miles, and those who have seen it tested declare it to be the finest weapon in the world.

There are indications that some orders for the new gun will be placed with the Royal arsenal at Woolwich, where shrinking pits of enormous size are in process of construction.

It is hinted, too, that we have not yet reached finality, and that in the course of the next year, we may see a 13.5-inch gun, with an even higher velocity, put to the test.

Harder Task Ahead.

New York Sun: Diogenes was searching for an honest man.

"After that I shall try to find a manufacturer, who thinks the duty on his goods too low," he cried.

Herewith he resumed the simpler quest.

Dress Reform.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Collarless coats are threatened and we trust the summer will see the restoration of cuffless trousers.

Resting.

Indianapolis News: It is said that Mr. Loeb, who is now busily engaged making collections at the port of New York, is enjoying his vacation immensely.

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Virginia Enterprise: Down at Duluth they are having a hard time to elect a president of the city council, having agreed to disagree on a choice at two meetings, and the momentous question was again postponed at the Monday evening session for two weeks. It's a cold day on Superior street when they cannot warm up something in the shape of a political scrap or frame up a house-cleaning crusade to let the world know that Duluth's waterlapped points and rock-ribbed hills still form a dot on the earth's fair surface.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: The house passed the tonnage tax which is something of a surprise. It is intimated that the county option members took this revenge on the Duluth delegation for voting against their pet measure. If there is any danger of it passing the senate, some kind friend will probably raise the question of constitutionality, and put it to sleep.

Two Harbors Iror Port: Woman suffrage was defeated in the state legislature by a majority of ten votes last week. That the women of the state are awakening, however, to an issue of vital interest to them, is evidenced in the fact that since then woman suffrage societies have been organized in Winona and Duluth. The women of the former city sent to Minneapolis for a representative of the movement to explain the idea to them.

Stillwater Gazette: A Duluth boy has invented a gearless automobile, which is said to be a great thing by those who pretend to know what it is. If some one could invent or discover a costless auto that was gasolineless and bullless and wouldn't run away, he would then be doing mankind some kind of a stunt; and us fellows who stand close to the buildings when the models of 1909 go flying by, could then come out into the open just as if we were city broke.

Floodwood Broadaxe: Duluth is agitating the question of "how much a horse should pull." That question seems to be akin to that unsolved enigma of "How old is Ann?" and yet to all of us who have witnessed the heavy burdens which the poor dumb animals of Duluth are often compelled to bear, would be willing to declare "how much a horse should not pull."

Princeton Union. An early spring is predicted, and the inhabitants of Duluth are taking advantage of the prevailing balmy weather to erect their scaffolding preparatory to engaging in hillside gardening.

Waverly Star: The Duluth Herald is assisting in the uplift of the Zenith City in many ways, and its efforts in trying to rid the city of alleged pugilists and so-called wrestlers should meet with the approval of all citizens who wish to clear the community of those "disreputable and lawless creatures" who are a sore spot to any respectable place.

Clay Six Times Speaker.

Letter to the New York Tribune: Sir: Your Washington correspondent is mistaken in his assertion, which appears in your columns, that Andrew Stevenson and Joseph G. Cannon are the only men that have been elected four times speaker of our national house of representatives. Henry Clay was elected speaker of that body six times, by the Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Eighteenth congresses. Everybody is entitled to his dues; nobody is entitled to any more.

MEANT TO BE FUNNY.

Cleveland Leader: "What makes you so nervous?"

"Liquor."

"I didn't know you drank."

"I don't but I have a friend who has been on the water wagon for two weeks, and he tells me all his symptoms."

Punch: Customer (after vainly trying for some time to pick up his change—a threepenny bit)—"Ere, gimme a cigar."

Kansas City Journal: "I don't know that Napoleon was so much."

"How now?"

"I believe I use as much strategy to get a night out as he expended in the Austerlitz campaign."

Harper's Weekly: Judge—Why did you strike this man?

Prisoner—What would you do, judge, if you kept a grocery store and a man came in and asked if he could take a moving picture of your cheese?

Yonkers Statesman: "Do you ever see that umbrella of yours?" asked the maiden.

"No, I don't" replied the man, sternly; "the person who takes that umbrella will have to take me."

"Do I understand that to be a proposal of marriage or a threat?"

The Bystander: She—What do you want?

He—A pennorth o' pudden.

She—Plain or plum?

He—Plain.

She—Hot or cold.

He—Hot.

She—Have it 'ere, or tike it wiv yer?

He—'Ere.

She—Fork or fingers?

He (wearily)—O, blow your puddent! Gimme 'am.

Cleveland Leader: Hirum—Was yer house damaged by that there cyclone?

Ike—Dunno. I hain't found it yet.

Harper's Weekly: "Have you ever seen the prisoner at the bar?"

"Yes, judge, and he can drink like a fish."

London Opinion: She—Don't you think it will be delightful when we all have flying machines?

He—I don't know. Our creditors will have them, too.

New York Sun: Charon was flabbergasted. "That shade wanted to take the boat for a joy ride," he cried. "Plainly there is no limit."

An Item of Leadership.

Cleveland Leader: Undoubtedly America leads the world. What do they know about burning men at the stake in any other country?

C. P. R. STEAMERS MAY RUN HERE

Company Asks to Make Duluth Its Western Terminus.

Duluth may be the western lake terminus for the two new Canadian Pacific steamers which have been brought to this country from England or lake traffic.

Capt. Alexander McDougall, at the meeting of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club last evening, suggested that the company be communicated with and asked to have the boats make Duluth. The committee promptly acted on the suggestion and, owing to the activity of the Soo and the Wisconsin Central railroads at the Head of the Lakes, it is believed that the company can be induced to make Duluth their western port.

DYNAMITE IN MASONRY

Stone Containing Heavy Charge in Foundation of House.

Escape From a Disastrous Explosion Was Almost Miraculous.

It is nothing short of a miracle that the foundation of Whitney Wall's new residence on East Third street was not shattered to a thousand pieces and perhaps half a dozen workmen killed by a dynamite explosion.

Yesterday one of the workmen employed in constructing the house discovered a large stick of dynamite imbedded in one of the stones in the foundation. The dynamite had been placed there in the quarry. The charge had failed to explode and the stone containing it was shipped to Duluth. The workmen had handled the stone in the usual careless manner, and the stone masons had attacked it with their hammers and chisels. Being almost the same color as the stone they had not noticed the dynamite, and had worked all around it, chipping off pieces of the stone and making a smooth face on it. If one of them had happened to hit the dynamite, the explosion would doubtless have killed him and any of his companions who happened to be near, in addition to wrecking the house.

Mr. Wall was given a scare he will not soon forget. "Imagine," he said, "what would have happened if the house had been finished and some boy happened to throw a stone against that spot. There wouldn't have been much left of either the house or the Wall family, I guess."

"My 3-year-old boy was badly constipated, had a high fever and was in an awful condition. I gave him two doses of Foley's Orino Laxative and the next morning the fever was gone and he was entirely well. Foley's Orino Laxative saved his life." A. Wolkush, Casimer, Wis. Sold by all druggists.

TOO MUCH PIG IRON IS MADE

Weekly Review Says Metal Is Accumulating —Prices Weak.

New York, March 25.—The Iron Age today says:

Too much pig iron is being made, and metal is accumulating in nearly all the principal producing districts. Prices are weak, but the market has not been seriously tested in any of the leading distributing centers. It is acknowledged that large Birmingham interests have endeavored to secure orders for good tonnages on a basis of $11 per ton for No. 2 foundry, but have not met with success. Eastern pig iron makers are conferring on means of reducing cost of production. Efforts are being made to secure a reduction of railroad freights on coke and ore and to bring about a readjustment of wages.

Low prices continue to be made on structural metal, and 1.00 at an Eastern mill is reported on a recent large contract. During the past week there was placed 11,000 tons for track elevation work for the Chicago & Northwestern at Chicago and 12,000 tons for the Gimbel building in this city. In addition to the different larger contracts referred to previously as pending, we may note that there are calls for 9,000 tons for the Erie, between 33,000 and 34,000 tons for the New York Central and 12,000 tons for 206 bridges on the Florida East Coast line.

The steel rail trade remains very quiet and there are intimations of a coming lowering in the price. Chicago mills booked during last week a total of 19,500 tons, including 6,000 tons for the Soo line, while Pittsburg took 3,000 tons for the Norfolk & Western railroad.

The inquiry for 10,000 steel cars for the Baltimore & Ohio is again in the market, and it is believed at least a part of it may be placed.

In the bar trade the chief item of interest is that the agricultural implement markets have begun negotiations for material for delivery over a whole year, but apparently their expectations of low prices are far beyond anything which the mills will be likely to meet. The same interests are also feeling the pig iron markets for large tonnages for delivery over a long period.

GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION

Public Affairs Committee Asked to Indorse the Plan.

A suggestion that Duluth adopt the system of government by commission was presented to the public affairs committee of the Commercial club for indorsement last evening in a communication from Arthur Krieger.

The members of the committee were not prpared to take action on the matter without more time for consideration, and it was laid over until the new committee is organized after the annual election of the club.

St. Cloud, Minn., March 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Weinand Zinken, who was arrested on the charge of assaulting Mrs. Lena Gross, his mother-in-law, pleaded guilty to the charge before Justice Alden. He was fined $75 and costs. Zinken could not pay so was sentenced to eighty days in the county jail.

Train Kills Seven Horses.

Spiritwood, N. D., March 25.—No. 1 on the Northern Pacific, while traveling at a rapid rate Friday night, March 19, struck seven head of horses and killed them all. The animals belonged to Mr. Creighton, who lives near Spiritwood. The remarkable feature of the incident is that the train held the rails after encountering such an obstruction.

FREE MUSIC IN THE PARKS

Plan to Have Open Air Band Concerts This Summer.

The Public Affairs Committee Indorses the Movement.

Duluth may have free band concerts in the parks of the city this summer.

A number of Duluth's most prominent citizens have petitioned the park board to provide weekly band concerts in the city parks during the coming summer. The matter was brought up at the meeting of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club last evening, and was heartily indorsed. The committee urged the park board to provide the band concerts if the money is available. The council has no funds for the purpose, and no request will be made of that body for the necessary money, but it is believed that the park board may be able to make such provision. If so, the citizens of Duluth will have the opportunity of listening to free open air concerts either in the parks or on the canal piers during the warm summer evenings.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: MARCH 28. Proverbs, xxiii., 29-35; A Temperance Lesson.

By Rev. J. S. Kirtley, D. D.

THE CONNECTION.

Proverbs are the wise sayings of wise men about the great duties and moralities. Solomon wrote many and collected more into a book, and gave his name to the whole collection. There are seven sections and our lesson belongs to the fourth section, distinguished as "the words of the wise." Here the writer assumes the attitude of a father counseling his son against three forms of fascinating wickedness—excessive feasting, licentiousness and wine drinking. The latter is our lesson today. And there was need of such warning, for, from of old, Palestine was a producer of grapes with more or less resulting drunkenness.

THE LESSON.

I.

The Folly of Drinking, 29-30.

"Who hath woe? Who hath sorrow? Who hath contentions? Who hath complaining? Who hath wounds without cause? Who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry long at the wine. They that go to seek out mixed wine."

1. The Drunkard's Pain.

Physical, or mental, or moral, that expresses itself in the outcry. "Oh," or "Ah," which the word here translated "woe" really means. It is an outcry of the drunkard's pain. The word translated sorrow is really another outcry, "alas." It comes from a root which means poverty, and it expresses a sense of loss. These two interjections were used by Orientals to describe the drunkard, for they are the actual involuntary sounds which he makes. The first is the simple sound of his discomfort, the sound of his deep distress, when he feels that he has lost all. "The Arabs among themselves seldom say a man was drunk. If they wish to convey the meaning that he was drunk, they make a guttural sound, like the first interjection, but if they wish to show that the man was very drunk, they put their hands sympathetically to their stomachs, and bending forward, spasmodically utter an inarticulate sound like the second interjection." These simple expressions of the drunkard may indicate woes and privations of all kinds—loss of intelligence, will power, heart power, friends, family, fortune, health, conscience.

2. His Contentiousness.

Peaceable by nature, men are often quarrelsome when drunk. It destroys his wisdom, self-control, respect for others and for himself, inflames the passions, deadens the conscience. For there are "complainings" or babblings. The drunkard has no discretion. He tells secrets, speaks out his vile thoughts in vile language, boasts or complains as the mood takes him, or as he perceives his own condition. There are two results of all this viciousness—indiscretion and misuse of body, causeless wounds received in drunken brawls or by accidents that might have been avoided if he had not been drunk; a bodily and moral degradation seen in the dim, lusterless eye. It is here called "redness," but it means the dimness that shows the eye of the soul is being blinded. It is not a mere sip now and then, but the habit grows upon the man till he does two things—drinks much of it, "tarries long at the wine;" exercises his ingenuity in getting more stimulus out of it by mixing it, either with some other kind of wine or with spices and drugs. The effect of the drinking is to take much time and engage the mind's ingenuity.

II.

The Fascination of Drink, 31.

"Look not thou upon the wine when
It is red;
When it giveth its color in the cup,
When it goeth down smoothly."

Its seductive power is so great that one should both abstain from its use and banish it from sight and thought. No one can tamper with it at all and feel reasonably secure from becoming its victim. It appeals to the sense of sight with a triple attractiveness. It "reddeneth itself," like the dark, red wine of Lebanon and of Helbum, as if it were blushing a welcome to the eye; it "giveth his color," or rather "giveth his eye," the beaded bubbles winking on the surface merrily and saucily bantering the beholder; it attracts by its "pellucid stream flowing pleasantly from the wine skin or jug into the goblet or through a funnel," "goeth down smoothly." Thus through the eye it appeals to the taste and awakens the drunkard's evil passion, the temperate man's desire for pleasant sensations, the troubled man's longing for sweet oblivion of his sorrow, and the youth's fondness for new and exciting experience. To look upon the attractive thing appreciatingly is to yield to its spell, to take the first step in the mad dance of death. Therefore "look not upon the wine in any friendly way."

III.

The Result of Drinking. 32-35.

"At the last it biteth like a serpent
And stingeth like an adder.
Thine eyes shall behold strange things
And thine heart shall utter forward things.
Yea, thou shalt be as he that lieth down in the midst of the sea,
Or he that lieth upon the top of a mast.
They have stricken me, shalt thou say,
and I was not hurt;
They have beaten me, and I felt it not;
When shall I awake? I will seek it yet again."

It is a serpent that, though beautiful and attractive with its brilliant colors, its fascinating eyes and its graceful, gliding motion, yet stings and bites, bringing degradation and death. There is no bite so deadly as that of a serpent in general, and no serpent's sting so venomous as that of an adder in particular. The deadly result of drunkenness cannot be set forth in human speech more powerfully. The venom comes suddenly, unexpectedly, and is instantaneously diffused through the whole system. Suddenly the drunkard finds himself hopelessly a victim of deadly drink. "At the last," expresses not time, but consequence, not the last days of life, but the final effects of drunkenness, even though it be in the young man's morning that ought to be glorious, or in the matured man's noon that ought to be "high noon" of manhood's noble achievements. We have seen that "at the last" comes sometimes sadly early to be followed by many years of a hopelessly poisoned life.

When once the serpent's sting has fully poisoned the drunkard, he passes through three stages that are here described:

1. A stage of abnormal excitement, which we see in verse 33. He has hallucinations. He sees things that no one else sees—"strange things"—from double vision, from the diseased imagination that creates a world all his own, in which he reels and staggers as if it were real. He sees motives and actions in others that do not exist; he sees physical objects in distorted relations; he sees objects that have no existence at all outside of his own mind. This latter is true in the stage of delirium tremens, when he is driven to paroxysms of terror by the horrible objects that haunt his vision. He not only has hallucinations; he talks horribe and disgusting things—"utters froward things." Because he loses self-control and wisdom, his tongue speaks the sentiments of his maudlin and imbruted heart and mind. He pours out a stream of filth, profanity and contentiousness. Drunkenness powerfully stimulates the fountain of evil in the heart and makes it yield "evil treasures" in abnormal and shocking abundance. By disuse and repression, with God's daily help, we may crowd out and kill out the natural vileness of human nature. By throwing conscience and self-control to the winds, and laying the reins on the neck of passion, we are carried on to destruction by the forces of evil.

2. A stage of degrading stupor, verse 34. In that stupor he knows no more of his relation to truth and duty, and of the conditions of physical safety, than if a man should lie down "in the midst of the sea," or atttempt to make his bed on the sharp top of the towering mast of the ship. The drunkard is as foolish as that. He is just as insensible as that to physical danger as he flings himself around any where. As to the danger of his soul, what cares he whether God condemns or not? It is sad to sin and know and regret it; it is sadder to sin and neither care nor know. It is as stupid and unsuitable to be drunk as to go to sleep on the top of the mast, or on the waves of the sea.

3. The last stage of the drunkard is his awful awakening, verse 35. The first thing he usually does is to lay it on others—"they have stricken me and beaten me." Drunkenness produces lying. It leads him to lie to others about how he got his wounds and bruises. It leads him to blame others for tempting him or providing him with drink. He usually underestimates the effects of it. "I was not hurt; I felt it not." He calls his spree a mere frolic or, at worst, a little indiscretion. He thinks he will soon be over it, though for the moment, he does feel as if someone had been striking and beating him, especially on his head. He is foolish enough to think that his head will soon be well; he is insane enough to think there is very little injury to his mind and to his heart. Thus we see the marks of the virus, with which the adder has made him insane bodily and every way.

And the most marked sign of his moral insanity and slavery is that he wants to try it "yet again." He forgets his own honor, the honor and happiness of others, the hellish experiences he has had and the doom that awaits him, and returns to die debauch under the power of a habit that has destroyed all power of choosing or even wishing freedom from it. Worst of all, others suffer with him.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

We spend as follows: Bread, $505,000,000; sugar and molasses, $155,000,000; public schools, $96,000,000; cotton and woolen goods, $452,000,000; iron and steel, $286,000,000; ministers' salaries, $25,000,000; strong drink, $900,000,000.—Schauffler.

In return for this (expenditure for drink) the nation receives 500 murders, 500 suicides, 100,000 criminals, 200,000 paupers, 60,000 deaths from drunkenness, 600,000 besotted drunkards, 600,000 moderate drinkers, who will be sots ten years hence, 500,000 homes destroyed, 1,000,000 children worse than orphaned.—T. F. Parker.

Two million boys are required as a sacrifice of every generation to keep up this supply. Is it not appalling? Without these 2,000,000 boys the saloon business would soon die out.

During the days of the open Sunday saloon we went to work every Monday morning short of hands. Since Sunday closing, our men show up ready for work on Mondays, just as on other days. The "kid" is all right.—St. Louis Manufacturer.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

1. If we had no saloons how long would it take our merchants to collect their old bills?
2. What would men do with the money that the saloons now get?
3. How fast would bank accounts grow and how many more men would own their homes?
4. How many paupers would be avoided the first year?
5. How would we ever support our jailors?
6. What effect would it have on homes now wrecked by drink?
7. How rapidly would suicide decrease?

Good Cough Medicine for Children.

The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. F. F. Starcher of Ripley, W. Va., says: "I have never used anything other than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for my children, and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

WORSE EVERY YEAR

Plenty of Duluth Readers Have the Same Experience.

Don't neglect an aching back.
It will get worse every year.
Backache is really kidney ache.

To cure the back you must cure the kidneys.

If you don't, other kidney ills follow—

Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease.

A Duluth citizen tells you how—the cure is easy.

J. M. Zywicki, 1910 W. Michigan St., Duluth, Minn., says: "For eight years I suffered from pains in the small of my back. I also had dizzy spells and on arising in the morning felt very lame. The least cold I contracted, settled in my kidneys and at such times I noticed a sediment in the secretions. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me relief from the first and one box effected a cure, that has remained permanent. I will recommend this excellent remedy at every opportunity."

VALUABLE COAL DEPOSIT UNDERLIES SHALLOW LAKE

Turtle Lake, N. D., March 25.—A shallow lake about ten miles north of town is said to be entirely underlaid with lignite coal and could the lake be drained, wagons could be filled with No. 1 coal with as little labor as would be required to load from a coal shed. Coal was first discovered on the bank nearby and this discovery led to the investigation of the lake bed. The lake covers about 160 acres.

A JOURNALISTIC REVENGE

By T. T. Grimshaw.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

T. Murray Hill, city editor, sporting editor, railroad editor, society editor and reporter on the Ellerton Morning News, was deeply grieved. His hard work in the various capacities assigned to him had failed to appeal to the editor, and his request for an increase in salary from $10 to $12 a week had been refused.

Consequently, T. Murray Hill, with a line of polarity acquired by two years' experience on a newspaper, had sworn with much fervency that he would let the editor of the News have the opportunity of regretting the fact that his value had not been fully appreciated. And thus laying his plans for a handsome revenge, he succeeded, without intention, in accomplishing the most brilliant journalistic feat in the history of Ellerton newspapers, and at the same time in advancing the interests of Ellerton to an amazing degree.

When Mr. Hill conceived the idea of revenge upon his editor, Ellerton was an overgrown country town of 5,000 population. Ten miles away was Cassville, of near the same size and with ambitions. Ellerton was the county seat. Cassville wanted to be. A suitable courthouse had never been erected, so Cassville was raising heaven and earth to secure the county seat. Ellerton was directing its attention to the county commissioners and was endeavoring to force them to order an election to issue bonds for a new courthouse. With a courthouse built, it was certain that Ellerton would remain the county seat. The commissioners were stubborn and would not act, and so the matter hung.

In addition to the rivalry for the county seat, Ellerton and Cassville were rivals for a new railroad. Cassville was being built toward them. Ellerton citizens wanted the road, but the subscription for a bonus lacked a few thousand dollars, and, try as they would, the necessary amount could not be raised.

So stood the situation when the editor of the Morning News was called suddenly from Ellerton. He hastily put the editorial affairs into the hands of T. Murray Hill and departed.

Mr. Hill had been in the editorial chair many times before, but never when he was longing for revenge. He promptly commenced to write a series of startling stories for the next morning's paper, and smiled pleasantly to himself as he wrote.

He announced in glaring headlines on the front page of the News that the county commissioners had ordered an election for April 2 to vote bonds with which a new courthouse was to be built. This, he wrote, assured Ellerton's future as the county seat.

The second story was in regard to the railroad. The News announced that James Smith, the enterprising banker and capitalist, had decided to contribute the money necessary to fill out the subscription for the railroad bonus. As James Smith had, on several occasions, refused to give even one dollar toward the fund, he knew this announcement would cause astonishment.

Satisfied that the paper would be interesting, but not fully satisfied as to his revenge, Acting Editor Hill composed another story, swinging from business to romance. He picked for his subject a bachelor lawyer of the town who had been bestowing his attentions for years upon a maiden of many winters, but who had so far failed to bestow anything else. With an elaborateness of detail that would have done credit to the wedding of a princess, the acting editor told of preparations for the coming marriage of Miss Martha Bell and Judge Sam W. Gates. He even named the day and selected the best man and gave the names of the bridesmaids.

The special edition issued under the guidance of Acting Editor T. Murray Hill was undoubtedly successful from a sensational point of view. It surprised everyone. The early readers of the paper gasped with surprise after surprise, and then passed the word to neighbors. Mr. Hill waited until he saw people avidly buying copies of the paper from the one lone newsboy, when, fully satisfied that he had been amply revenged, he betook himself to a resort where drink was dispensed and started a little private celebration, expecting to catch an early train for points unknown.

Three county commissioners read the Ellerton Morning News, and three county commissioners got no further in their reading than the story concerning themselves. Three county commissioners were indignant, for each suspected that two other county commissioners had got together and had planned to call the bond election. If such were the case, the odd one wanted to be counted in, for to have the news go out that one of them was opposed while two were for the election meant the odd one's certain defeat at the next election. So it happened that three county commissioners started early for their ramshackle office. They were greeted along their several routes by delighted citizens, who thanked them for their action in the courthouse matter.

When the three commissioners had assembled they regarded each other with suspicion, for each considered that the others had left him out of the deal. The presiding commissioner carefully closed the door and announced that they would get into executive session. Clearing his throat and trying to look as non-committal as possible, he mentioned the election, and remarked that there had evidently been an understanding between certain members of the commission. He left the impression with both of the others that he had been one of the members in the understanding. Without delay both of the commissioners moved that an election be called. Within three minutes the county was assured of a suitable courthouse.

James Smith, banker and capitalist, picked up the Morning News at his breakfast table and read of the election to vote bonds for a courthouse. That pleased him immensely. He chuckled over the announcement of Judge Gates' wedding, and then glanced over at a glaring headline in which there seemed to be something vaguely familiar. With growing indignation he read how he had separated himself from $2,000 in cash. How the editor of the News, beholden to him for much patronage and sundry loans at good interest, dared print such a barefaced lie was past his comprehension. Stopping only long enough to gulp down a cup of coffee, he left his mansion and started for the News office. He was stopped before he had gone a block and a business man shook him heartily by the hand, while he was assured that he was a citizen of whom Ellerton was proud. In the next block there were two to shake his hand, and before he reached the business district his walk had become a triumphal march. He was given no opportunity to explain. Being the observed of all observers, he did not think it prudent to go at once to the News office, but went to the bank instead.

So enthusiastic had been his reception by the people of the town that James Smith's heart became warm as he sat in his chair and thought of the matter. "If that fool had made it one thousand," he thought, "I'd have stood by it, but two thousand—" A few minutes later, when the mayor, the councilmen and several other citizens equally prominent called in a body to publicly express the town's thanks, James Smith accepted the inevitable.

By noon his check for $2,000 was in the hands of the railroad committee.

Judge Sam W. Gates walked leisurely down the steps of the hotel from his room, borrowed the morning paper from the grinning clerk and ambled toward the dining room to partake of his loney breakfast. While the waiter was gone with his order he looked over the paper. Suddenly he jumped up from his chair, almost overturned the table, and rushed from the room. He snatched his hat from the rack and bolted out of the door without removing the napkin which was tucked neatly in the top of his vest.

Ten minutes later a carriage arrived at the home of Miss Bell, and the judge, still wearing the flapping napkin, sailed in. Silently he handed the paper to Miss Bell and stood nervously while she read the story. The color mounted high on her face as she perused the paper, but as she read she decided that it was time for the judge to say something if he ever did. Looking calmly at him when she had finished reading, she remarked:

"Judge, it's a nice write-up."

"But—but—but—" stammered Judge Gates, and then he gained courage. "Say," he said, "I don't know how that confounded thing got in there, but let's make it so," said the judge, who had many times rehearsed a carefully prepared proposal, carefully wiped his perspiring face with the napkin, and put the napkin in his pocket.

A half hour later Judge Sam W. Gates left the house with the measure of a ring in his vest pocket.

"Buck" Agnew, the reporter for the Ellerton Evening Sentinel, left the office with the laudable intention of proving the Morning News a liar thrice over. By the time he had got round to Judge Gates he was wording his resignation, and after he had interviewed the judge he put the words on paper.

And T. Murray Hill!

The editor of the Ellerton Morning News spent four days sobering him and then attached him to the staff at the longed-for increase in salary. A reporter with a nose for news like that possessed by T. Murray Hill was not to be found every day.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The seedy-looking young man of about 30 rang the door bell.

The busy housewife answered it.

"Good morning," said the seedy-looking young man. "I have here a little contrivance which, if you have the time, I would like to show you. With the wonderful progress which is being made in every field of thought and endeavor, man is not neglecting the woman in the home. Indeed he's not," said the young man. "Housekeeping is coming to be more and more a matter that may be accomplished with ease and little worry, simply through the efforts which man has made to bring mechanical perfection upon even the smallest and seemingly most insignificant household utensils. It is indeed," said the young man.

"I don't want it," said the busy housewife.

"This little invention," said the seedy-looking young man, "is indispensable around house-cleaning time. There are many purposes for which it is adapted. It will beat carpets, open cans, this end may be used as a hammer, and—"

"I don't want is," said the housewife.

"I'm sorry," said the young man, "but I'm a little deaf. I didn't quite get what you said. To me the most admirable thing about this little household helper is the part for removing tacks. It is magnetized, you see, and holds the removed tack right there until you can place it in a dish. Now at housecleaning time there is nothing liable to cause so much discomfort and bad temper as the tacks that are left on the floor, and you know yourself it is impossible to lift them all up. If your husband happens to be walking to the telephone in the dark, without his usual covering on his feet, you can see yourself the blue blazes that, like forked lightning, is likely to result even in the darkness if—"

"I don't want it," said the housewife.

"I'm sure he has," said the young man, "but there are so many who haven't good tempers that really it was a kindness to American wives to invent this little helper."

"I said," said the woman, "that I didn't want it."

"It's embarrassing, I know," said the seedy-looking young man, "but I really can't quite hear what you say. But the lady next door just ordered two. She said that she never had seen—"

"I said," said the woman, "that I didn't want it."

"Yes, she is," said the young man. "I could tell at once that she was a woman of thought and progress by the quick way she recognized the usefulness of this little combination article. She said that she had never had anything shown her that quite came up to her ideas of a ready helper like this. She did indeed," said the young man.

"It's funny you could hear what she said," said the housewife, who was getting some peeved.

"Yes, it is cheap," said the young man. "Fifty cents, just half a dollar. And who would be without it for that paltry sum?"

"I would," said the housewife. "I don't want it," she added, while looking over the young man's head to the blue sky beyond.

"Compared to the time and nervous exhaustion which it will save, it is worth many times that small outlay," said the young man.

"I don't want it," said the woman.

"No, you don't pay me," said the young man. "Keep your money until it is delivered next week and pay for it then, I hope," he said, with a winning smile, "that you will enjoy using it."

"I don't want it," said the housewife.

"Yes, I will," said the young man. "I'll tell our distributer to especially hurry your order. It will simplify things so for you," said the young man.

"I said I didn't want it," said the housewife.

"Not later than Thursday, I think," said the young man, "and earlier if we can possibly manage it." He finished writing the order in his book.

"I said I didn't want it," said the housewife.

"It is, indeed," said the young man in response, "a beautiful morning." And he lifted his hat in farewell.

He rang the next door bell. "A great stunt, that deafness," said the seedy-looking young man to himself, and then another builder of American homes stood before him, and in just a few minutes he wrote another order for the American housewife's household helper.

MASS MEETING.

West End W. C. T. U. Plans Public Gathering.

The members of the West End Women's Christian Temperance union have planned for a public mass meeting, to be held Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, at the Swedish Baptist church, at the corner of Nineteenth avenue west and First street. Rev. S. Treistad of Superior will be the speaker, and there will be a musical program. Any one interested is invited to be present.

SPRING MILLINERY.

Y. W. C. A. Classes Solve Problem of Easter Hat.

"How does it look?" asks the home milliner, balancing her work of art on her head.

"Like the dickens," says the frank member of the family.

"It might do until you get a new one," says a more kindly one, "if you get the new one right away and wear your winter hat until that happens."

"I don't think it's bad," says the home milliner on the defensive.

"No!" says the frank member. "Not exactly bad, but rather motheaten like."

"What can you expect? It's all old things fixed over," says the home milliner, so discouraged.

"It looks it," says the frank member.

"Oh, shucks," says the home milliner, in a woe-begone tone. "There's no use in trying to save money. Anyhow, I don't think it looks so very bad."

"Don't save money on your hats, my dear," begs the frank member of the family. "Save it on chocolate nut sundaes and rubbish like that, but, I implore you, buy your hats."

Then, it is the Young Women's Christian association to the rescue. Millinery classes are thriving at the association like the yeast plant, when it comes in conjunction with warm water. One class will gets its diploma next Monday evening. The diploma, is the finished hat, one of which every member of the family will approve. Another class will be organized tomorrow afternoon; and a third will hold its first meeting Friday evening of next week. The teacher is Mrs. A. D. Jacobs, and the spring millinery class is always one of the most popular in the educational departments, for there are no women but adore utilizing all of their outworn hats in making one brand new one.

The millinery opening, which will be held at the association rooms when the last class has completed its course, will be one of the delightful events of spring.

Adopt Constitution.

The Duluth Political Equality club has accepted a constitution which says that its object shall be "The adoption of all legitimate means to secure to women citizens of this state the right of suffrage, on an equal footing with men." The formal organization was completed at the meeting which was held last evening in the council chamber of the city hall.

The speaker of the evening was the Rev. Bortel of Superior, who spoke on the benefits which would follow the enfranchisement of women. Miss Anna Knauff read a paper on the condition of the suffrage movement in New York.

The next meeting of the club will be held Wednesday, April 7.

Palestine Assembly.

The members of the Palestine assembly entertained at a dancing party last evening at the ballroom of the Masonic temple. La Brosso's orchestra played the program of dancing music and a large number of the members and their friends enjoyed the affair, which was one in a series given during the season.

Bridge Party.

Miss Fanny Calverly entertained informally at cards yesterday afternoon at her home, on East First street. Bridge was played at three tables and the favors were won by Mrs. Fred West and Miss Mary Gardiner.

IN SOUTH AMERICA

No Questions Are Asked: There Are No Divorces.

"There are no divorces in South America," Senorita Huldobro of Chili said at a recent meeting before the Peace Circle and reported by the New York Tribune, "but the condition whereby that idyllic state is attained would seem to be unattainable in this less fortunate land. The women ask no questions.

"If a man comes in at 3 o'clock in the morning his wife meets him at breakfast as if nothing had happened, and you may be sure after that there isn't anything he wouldn't do for her. If he says to her after a while, 'Marie, you didn't ask where I was the other night,' she says, 'No, it isn't any of my business.' And neither it is. Some of you don't agree with me'—the senorita noticed signs of American independence in her audience—"but a man must have his liberty. If he goes to dinner with some friends after business and gets into his cups, and we until he knows his own doorstep before going home, he doesn't want to be asked to explain."

Senorita Huldobro is not married, but is quite sure that if she were she could manage a husband perfectly on the South American plan.

"South American women," she said, "have that diplomacy and duplicity, I might almost say that deceit, which enables them to make a man think they don't know things. And that is the only way to bring happiness."

Still another beautiful thing about the South American wife is her happy faculty of forgetting that she has a husband.

"Till you marry a man you don't know what you are getting, but South America is a Roman Catholic country, and there is this advantage about the Roman Catholic religion—and am not a Roman Catholic myself—that it teaches a woman to be content in whatever position she finds herself. And the South American wife, after she has had eight, nine or twelve children, forgets in a certain measure that there is such a thing as a husband.

"South American mothers are nothing if not maternal. In South America a woman is pitied if she has no children. Here she is congratulated. And what is a woman without maternity? She is nothing but a rag and a bone and a hank of hair. South Americans are proud of a family of eighteen, twenty-five, twenty-seven and thirty-three—even thirty-six. I don't mean"—for the Peace Circle looked aghast—"that these are all children. There are married sons and daughters, with their children, in the family."

When the senorita had finished this pleasing picture the president, Mrs. R. C. Benedict took the floor.

"I disagree entirely with Senorita Huldobro," she said. "I was born in the South and educated in the North, and I have traveled in the West. So I think I know the country, and I have no hesitation in saying that American mothers are the best in the world. It is not true that American women don't want children. In Cranford, where I live, fifty couples were married a year ago and forty-three of them now have children. Physical motherhood is not everything, and God didn't intend every woman to be a physical mother."

In spite of her extreme domesticity, Senorita Huldobro wants to vote. She mentioned this incidentally, and said she derived great amusement from reading the "antis'" letters in the papers. Her reason appears to be that men being so hopelessly bad, the body politic can be redeemed only by female intervention, and she thinks, furthermore, that the docile wives of South America will vote before their more emancipated sisters of the North.

DON'T WORRY!

It Is the Cause of Nervous Exhaustion.

Many a mother fritters away more energy in useless frets and fears for her children, in nervous strain over this or that, than she uses for her daily routine of domestic work. She wonders why she is so exhausted at the close of the day, and never dreams that she has thrown away the greater part of her force, says Success Magazine.

Is it not strange that people will persist in allowing little worries, petty vexations and unnecessary frictions to grind life away at such a fearful rate that old age stares them in the face in middle life? Look at the women who are shriveled and shrunken and aged at 30, not because of the hard work they have done, or the real troubles they have had, but because of habitual fretting which has helped nobody, but has brought discord and unhappiness to their homes.

Somewhere I read of a worrying woman who made a list of the unfortunate events and happenings which she felt sure would come to pass and be disastrous to her happiness and welfare. The list was lost, and to her amazement, when she recovered it, a long time afterwards, she found that not a single unfortunate experience in the whole catalogue of disastrous predictions had taken place.

Is not this a good suggestion for worriers? Write down everything which you think is going to turn out badly, and then put the list aside. You will be surprised to see what a small percentage of the doleful things ever come to pass.

It is a pitiable thing to see vigorous men and women, who have inherited godlike qualities and bear the impress of divinity, wearing anxious faces and filled with all sorts of fear and uncertainty, worrying about yesterday, today, tomorrow—everything imaginable.

Work kills no one, but worry has killed multitudes. It is not the doing of things which injures us so much as the dreading of them—not only performing them mentally over and over again, but anticipating something disagreeable in that performance.

Clean the Sink.

A kitchen sink that is neglected soon gets into a distressing condition, while with a little care it can be kept as cleanly and inviting as any other part of the kitchen.

The best way to clean a galvanized iron sink that has been thus neglected is to rub soap powder well into it, over every particle of surface.

Let the powder remain on for ten or fifteen minutes.

Then go over the whole with a stout brush, using boiling water.

When the sink has been thoroughly scrubbed, polish it with kerosene, rubbing the oil well in and leaving no grease behind.

The reason for the kerosene is that it keeps the sink from rusting after the strong soap powder.

Do not let the powder touch the woodwork around the sink, as it will be likely to eat the paint off.

The sink should be cleansed as thoroughly as this once or cwice a week.

Every day it should be rinsed out with hot soap suds.

HIS EIGHTY-FIFTH BIRTHDAY

J. J. Rakowsky Has Lived in Duluth Since 1855.

Yesterday was the 85th birthday of John J. Rakowsky, 15 Fourth avenue east, a pioneer resident of Duluth, and in the evening his six children, among them City Assessor C. L. Rakowsky, gave him a surprise party. There are six children, three daughters and three sons, and all are married and live in Duluth, with the exception of Miss Gertrude Rakowsky, who lives with her parent. Mr. Rakowsky has been a resident of Duluth since 1855, with the exception of a period when he fought in the Civil war.

ONE LESS MOUTH FOR WIFE TO FILL

Jacob Jacobson Will Live on County Instead of Wife.

Through the arrest of Jacob Jacobson on a vagrancy charge, the fact was brought out that the man, his wife, and one child, have been living on lower St. Croix avenue for many weeks past, on the earnings of the woman, which most of the time have amounted to only $2 a week.

Jacob looks plenty strong enough to work, but he claims he hasn't been able to find anything to do. The family has not paid any rent for a long time, and yesterday their landlord ordered them out of the house. It looked as if the man would really have to work at moving his few pieces of furniture, but the police stepped in and arrested him for vagrancy. He drew a ten-days' jail sentence this morning, so his wife will have only two mouths to feed until he is released.

Railroad Men Here.

Several railroad men from out of town are in the city today. Among them are: C. E. Lytle, general superintendent of the South Shore road, with headquarters at Marquette, Mich.; Thomas Hughes, traveling freight agent of the Burlington, of St. Paul; H. L. Wyand of St. Paul, traveling passenger agent of the Burlington; E. R. Porch of St. Paul, traveling passenger agent of the Erie; and R. B. Wilson of St. Paul, Northwestern freight agent of the Missouri Pacific.

CARELESSNESS FATAL.

Mandan, N. D., March 25.—A stranger was killed by a passenger train in the yards here Tuesday. A timebook such as laborers carry was found by the coroner upon the body. It gave the victim's name as James E. Elliott of White Earth, N. D. A coroner's jury found that Elliott met his death either by carelessness or accident.

INVITATION TO D. D. MANN

Vice President of Canadian Northern Asked to Speak Here.

Business Men of City May Tender Him a Banquet.

D. D. Mann, vice president of the Canadian Northern road, may visit Duluth in the near future and be the guest of honor at a banquet given in his honor, addressing the business men of the city on the railroad situation in the Northwest and especially on Duluth's new relation to Northwestern Canada.

At the meeting of the public affairs committee last evening, a prominent Duluthian stated that he understood that Mr. Mann could be induced to come and give a talk to Duluth business men if the invitation were extended to him. The members of the committee promptly acted on the suggestion, and Mr. Mann will be invited to come to Duluth. If he accepts the invitation a dinner of some kind will be arranged, and Duluth business men will be given an opportunity to hear one of the most energetic and picturesque figures in the railroad world.

THREAT TO KILL PRESIDENT TAFT

Menacing Letter Also Names Cannon and Brand Whitlock.

Toledo, Ohio, March 25.—Threats to kill William H. Taft,. Mayor Brand Whitlock, Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the house of representatives and Pat McCarren, state senator from Brooklyn, are contained in a letter sent to Mr. Cannon in Washington from Toledo March 19 and signed "Polish Voter."

The letter was returned to Toledo yesterday to the mayor by L. White Busby, secretary to Cannon, a friend of Whitlock.

"The writer may be a harmless crank," says Busby, "or he may be something worse. The speaker does not care to turn the letter over to the secret service or to the postoffice authorities. You will know better how to handle it than any one here."

TEA DRINKERS OPPOSE TAX

tea is puzzling practically every member of the house, and it is the belief here that it will be early stricken from the bill and if it is found necessary for purposes of revenue, an additional tax on beer will be substituted.

There is a movement on foot to force an amendment to place an additional tax on beer and leave tea on the free list. Representative Haugen of Iowa, voicing a rather general sentiment on this subject, said today he was unalterably opposed to even a suggestion of a tariff on tea or coffee.

"I shall vote for a nincrease of the tax of beer if I get the chance," said Mr. Haugen. "I find there is much sentiment against a tax on tea or coffee among the house members," he continued. "It is based on the idea that it is not wise or just to put a tax on the supper table. An additional tax could be put on beer without working a hardship to anyone. At the time of the Spanish war, the brewers raised prices in consequence of the increased tax and they have never lowered them, though the tax was reduced again. They have made millions of dollars in consequence."

Senate Tariff Bill.

The tariff bill to be recommended by the senate committee on finance will be ready to be reported on the day the Payne bill passes the house, according to the present intention of the Republican members of the committee, who are holding daily sessions.

Ideas presented by Senator Aldrich in favor of reducing public expenditures so as to fit the normal revenues of the government rather than expanding the income, to growing extravagances, are receiving support among senators. It is believed it will be possible to avoid all forms of special taxes, especially as government officials are counting confidently upon better industrial conditions throughout the country as soon as disposition is made of tariff legislation.

Few controversies between Republican members of the finance committee are anticipated. The tariff experts in the employ of the committee regard such questions as those of free lumber and free hides as purely sentimental and that the importations would be so infinitesimal as to not appreciably enter into competition with American lumber and American hides.

The Fitzgerald amendments to the house rules were put to their first test yesterday. Being "calendar Wednesday," Mr. Gardner of Massachusetts, one of the Republican insurgents made it a point that the tariff bill could not be considered until there was a call of committees and that no other business could be transacted without a two-thirds vote of the house.

The speaker, however, ruled that the only bill on the calendar is the tariff measure and therefore the only business that can be considered. He overruled the point and the tariff bill was taken up for consideration.

Insurgents Not Subdued.

The insurrection in the Republican ranks in the house refuses to be subdued. While there is no apparent indication of any movement on the part of the insurgents to reopen their fight, it is known that no rule to limit amendments to the tariff bill has been brought in because of the uncertainty of the intentions of Murdock of Kansas and the other insurgents. It is understood the rules committee is merely awaiting a favorable opportunity to bring in a rule which will limit the changes in the Payne bill to committee amendments.

This rule, which probably will be presented before next week, will not shut off the reading of the tariff bill under the five-minute rule, but is proposed as a means of preventing unnecessary delay in hurrying about its passage. As several Republican members have announced their intention of forcing record votes on certain proposed amendments, it may also be the purpose of the rule to prevent such votes being taken.

The proposed rule would be opposed by a large number of Republicans and Democrats alike.

Champ Clark and the minority members of the ways and means committee have announced their intention of opposing any rule which will tend to limit the offering of amendments. The Democratic leaders would in that case expect the insurgents to stand by them. The consideration of the rule also would require the Democratic bolters to go on record again. The insurgents believe all the Southern Democrats who voted for the Fitzgerald amendments would vote with their fellow Democrats.

TRY STATEHOOD BILL ONCE MORE

Hamilton Will Reintroduce Measure—Taft Believed in Favor.

Washington, March 24.—Congress will be given an opportunity to vote on the statehood bill when it convenes in regular session next December. Representative Hamilton of Michigan, who will continue in the Sixty-first congress as chairman of the house committee on territories, after conferring with President Taft, has announced he will at that time reintroduce the bill which was passed by the house at the last session. The measure provides for separate statehood for Arizona and New Mexico, and in accordance with the last platform of the Republican party.

It is assumed, from the fact that Hamilton announces he will reintroduce his bill at the beginning of the next session, that the president favors the passage of a statehood bill at the earliest opportunity.

JUDGE DISMISSES THE INDICTMENTS

GEORGE W. PERKINS.

New York, March 25.—Supreme Court Justice Blanchard has dismissed the indictments found by the grand jury in December, 1906, against George W. Perkins and Charles S. Fairchilds, as officials of the New York Life Insurance company.

anybody but a legislature. The law now requires that all property shall be assessed at its full value in money. For many years the taxing officials have combined to disregard this law, and there have been assessments ranging from 15 per cent to 150 per cent, depending upon the character of the property and its location.

The tax commission, however, has declared that it is going to obey the law. To raise all property to full value would bring about equality of taxation It makes no difference, so far as that is concerned, whether property is assessed at 5 per cent of its actual work or 100 per cent. The result of an equal valuation is an equal distribution of taxes.

But salaries, in many cases, and the limit of bonded indebtedness, in many other cases, depend upon valuation. A sudden increase from present figures to 100 per cent would revolutionize these matters, and bring about unnecessary complications.

So the tax commission suggested that the legislature provide for assessments upon a 50 per cent basis. The tax commission cut this to 40 per cent, and sent the bill into the house.

When it was reached yesterday afternoon Representative D. A. Stuart of Windom renewed his amendment, which he offered at the last hearing and which was defeated, fixing the assessment of farm property at 40 per cent, city and personal property at 50 per cent, and mining property at 60 per cent. Representative Sawyer raised the point of order that this amendment, having been voted down before, was not a proper matter for the house to consider, but Representative Burnquist, who was temporarily in the chair, did not sustain the point.

Representative Thayer of Spring Valley offered an amendment to the amendment, cutting farm property down to 33 1-3 per cent, which he justified on the ground that that was about the proportion in which farm property has been assessed in the past.

Representative Grant protested against the Thayer amendment. Because the law which requires assessment at full value has been more grossly violated in the country was no reason, in his opinion, why the legislature should by law continue that discrimination. There are some rich men in the cities, it is true, but there are many poor people, too, struggling to make both ends meet, and the average conditions of humanity is better in the country than it is in the city. A dollar invested in property in the city is the same as a dollar invested in the country, and it ought to be taxed the same. Property should stand upon the same basis, so far as state taxes are concerned, in both city and country. The man with a dollar invested in city property or mining property should pay on the same basis as the man whose dollars is invested in farm property. There should be equality in taxation throughout the state.

Representative Dalzell, author of the bill, wanted to make the basis a flat 50 per cent as the tax commission suggested, instead of 40 per cent or a graduated basis. Every man is willing to pay his fair share of taxation, providing he doesn't think somebody else is getting the best of it, whether he is a farmer, a city fellow or a miner. The need is for equality; and the 50 per cent basis is better because much property, like that of banks and of city dwellers, is now assessed at 50 per cent.

Representative F. B Wright of Minneapolis said that it was unjust to assess property in different sections on a different basis, and it would lead to hard feelings if property in one section is assessed at 33 1-3 per cent, property in other sections at 50 per cent, and property in St. Louis county at 60 per cent.

Representative Stuart said that the farming community is asking for fair play, and if it didn't get it in this matter, its representatives would apply the pruning hook to the big appropriations demanded by the cities, as, for instance, for the state university and the state fair.

Representative F. B. Wright of Minneapolis said the state fair is for the country.

Mr. Stuart retorted that it is for the benefit of the Twin City merchants, which Wright denied.

Mr. Grant of Duluth asked Mr. Stuart if it wasn't true that most of the agricultural counties get back from the state more than they pay in state taxes.

Mr. Stuart said it wasn't true. If it was, where do the taxes come from? "I can tell you where most of them come from," responded Mr. Grant, sharply; "57½ per cent of them come from St. Louis county."

The Thayer amendment, cutting the farm rate to 33 1-3 per cent, was defeated rather overwhelmingly.

The Stuart amendment was lost, 24 to 74. Representative Dalzell offered an amendment making the basis 50 per cent instead of 40 per cent, and that failed of adoption, 46 for and 55 against.

Representative Ware wanted to make it 45 per cent as a compromise, but that, too, was rejected.

Mr. Stuart proposed to make is 50 per cent for city property, personal property and mineral lands, and 40 per cent for farm property, and the house rejected that as well.

Disgusted with the action of the house, Mr. Dalzell wanted to indefinitely postpone his own bill, but that didn't suit. Mr. Stuart wanted to continue the measure and see it the house couldn't get together, but that proposal wasn't popular. The vote was then taken on the final passage of the bill, and it received the 60 votes needed to pass it, with 51 votes against.

The second measure proposed by the tax commission and introduced by Mr. Dalzell, that making the exemption of household goods and wearing apparel $200 for each head, of a family, was then taken up and defeated. At present the exemption is $100 for each individual, applying to all personal property. Representative Rines of Mora offered an amendment making the exemption apply to all personal property instead of to household goods and wearing apparel only, and it was adopted. His second amendment, reducing the exemption to $100, was lost. Though Mr. Dalzell showed that the adoption of the measure would add millions of dollars to the assessed valuation of the state, while giving additional relief to those really deserving it, the bill failed to pass, getting 56 votes in its favor, four less than enough to pass it, with 38 votes against it.

Then the house, to finish its day's work, killed the county assessor bill, which had been recommended not only by the tax commission but by Governor Johnson in his message to the legislature.

The commission believes that one great source of mischief in present tax conditions is the inequality of assessments under the system of local assessments now prevailing. There is an assessor in every political subdivision of the state, and local assessments depend upon the whims or personal views of a multitude of assessors. Most of them are elected for almost any reason than that of qualification. Two farms of similar value, lying on either side of a township line, may vary 50 per cent in assessed valuation because of the differing views of the town assessors.

Since equality of taxation is the object of tax reform, and since there can be no equality of taxation without equality of assessments, the commission thought it would be better to have a county assessor with deputies under his direction, instead of the present hodge podge of assessments by a horde of local wiseacres. Hence the bill.

But the house couldn't see it that way. The country members were against it, almost to a man. They said it was creating a new office and a new salary," though it was shown that assessment would be cheaper by this method than by the proposed method. They said it violated the principle of home rule, too; and they said other things intended to be arguments against the measure. Also, they voted against it, and killed it. The vote was 51 for and 56 against.

Representative Dalzell, in the course of the heated debate over the bill, said that it was clear to him that the house was ready to slaughter any measure looking toward tax reform or uniformity of assessment.

Representative Lennon of Minneapolis, who has a habit of using some very good sense in his arguments, said that the tax commission is costing the state $27,000 a year, and that its requests looking toward tax reform ought to have some consideration. 'They want this bill," he said, "and they show good reasons for passing it. We are paying for their advice, and we ought to take it."

Representative Swendsen said he had talked about the bill with his county auditor, who told him that it was the the best bill the legislature could pass. Representative Gates said he had taken it up in his district at the recent town meetings, and the vote for t was almost unanimous.

However, the bill was killed, and the present variegated assessment by some thousands of assessors with as many thousand of different view will continue.

Representative Doyle yesterday afternoon offered a resolution asking congress to keep the present duty on granite, but Representative Holmberg sent it over until today by a notice of debate.

The house yesterday afternoon refused to reconsider the vote by which it killed the Adams bill amending the "jag farm" law. W. A. Nolan's motion to that affect being defeated 49 to 47. Furthermore, there was applause when the adverse vote was announced.

This is a very good bill, too, and the only reason it was defeated, apparently, was that the personal popularity of Elmer E. Adams, its author, has reached its usual acute stage, to be expected about this time in the session, when his advocacy of a bill is sufficient to kill it unless it has enormous strength of its own.

The present law providing for a state farm for inebriates puts no limit whatever upon the expenditure for that purpose. It provides that the money shall come out of a 2 per cent tax upon liquor license fees, but for all the law says the board of control can spend a million upon the "jag farm" if it pleases. Obviously, it is a pretty good idea for the legislature, if that body has any concern whatever about what becomes of the state's money, to set a limit upon the amount to be spent for this purpose. And the object of the Adams bill was just that. Incidentally, it provided that the site might be bought from the state, so that the drunkards seeking the state cure could be put at wholesome work grubbing stumps. The bill is dead beyond recall now, however, the motion to reconsider having been voted down.

Representative Holmberg is the author of a bill introduced yesterday afternoon which authorizes dairies and creameries which pasterize their milk and cream to brand their products as pasteurized, providing they conform to the requirements of the dairy and food commission. Branding goods as pasteurized which do not conform is made a misdemeanor.

A state supervisor of poor relief, to be appointed by the state board of visitors of state institutions, is provided for by a bill which Representative Christensen put into the house yesterday afternoon. The duty of this official is to supervise generally all relief work, and particularly in cases where great calamities befall the state and contributions are sent in for the relief of the sufferers. The salary of the supervison is to be fixed by the board which appoints him.

A state license for real estate brokers is required by a bill which J. N. Johnson offered in the house yesterday afternoon. Each real estate dealer must pay the secretary of state $25 and give a bond of $5,000, and it is made a misdemeanor to do a real estate business without such license and bond.

The first rough draft of the omnibus appropriation bill was introduced in the house yesterday afternoon by Chairman W. H. Putnam of the appropriations committee, and it was referred to that committee. It will be made the basis for the completed omnibus bill which the senate committee on finance and the house committee on appropriations will shortly introduce.

The bill continued an item of $50,000 a year, instead of the $100,000 asked for by the commercial clubs of the state, for encouraging immigration, but the amount had been stricken out altogether before the bill was introduced. This indicates a need of pressure being brought to bear in behalf of a liberal immigration appropriation by those parts of the state which are interested in putting forth an effort to attract to Minnesota some of the flood of migration which has been passing over the state and going to poorer places where greater efforts have been put forth to attract settlers.

The senate yesterday afternoon passed nearly thirty bills, without making any great fuss about it. Most of them were minor matters. Among them were the following measures:

By Representative Ferguson—Prescribing the terms, limitations and conditions on which lands granted to the state by congress shall be sold.

By Representative Rines—Reserving to the state water powers on state lands.

By Representative Hinds—Relating to the minimum price for which state lands shall be sold.

By Senator Wilson—Declaring void all common law marriages hereafter contracted in this state.

By the St. Louis county delegation—Providing that where county depositories furnish surety bonds, they shall be for the maximum amount of deposits permitted, instead of for twice that amount.

By Senator Vall—Exempting charitable bequests from the inheritance tax law.

By Senator Fosseen—Declaring automobile owners liable for injuries to persons or property caused by their machines.

By Senator Witherstine—A joint memorial to congress asking for an amendment to the Constitution prohibiting polygamy.

By Representative Grant—Requiring that notices shall be served upon interested counties in judicial ditch proceedings.

The St. Louis county measures are nearly all out of the way. Most of them were introduced in the house by the delegation, but all the members of the delegation in both house and senate have put their shoulder to the wheel in the work of putting them through. The prospects now are that none of them will fail of passage.

Capt. Ray T. Lewis of Duluth, formerly a popular house member was in St. Paul yesterday renewing old acquaintances. He is on his way back to Duluth after an absence of six weeks, during which he visited the Panama canal, over much of which gigantic work he was piloted by Maj. D. D. Gaillard, formerly the army engineer officer at Duluth but now one of the three government engineers in charge of the canal work.

Capt. Lewis made a thorough survey of the canal and its progress, including the Gatum dam and the Culebra cut.

"I was somewhat disappointed," said Capt. Lewis, "with the amount of work done up to date, as it was less than I had expected to see, though I am informed that in view of the difficulties encountered the progress is most creditable. Forty-five thousand men are employed, but the brand of common labor secured is very poor. The best workmen are the Spaniards, and the poorest are the Jamaica negroes. Many unexpected obstucles have been encountered. They have been bothered by slides into the Culebra cut, and steam shovels are kept working constantly clearing the cut. Much of this dirt has to be hauled twelve to fifteen miles.

"Sanitary conditions on the canal zone are excellent, and there is very little sickness. The white men seem contented, though far from home. Many have their wives and families with them.

"The canal is going to cost a lot of money. Taking in $260,000,000 that De Lesseps spent for the French people —though he estimated that it could be built for $100,000,000—I think that before they get through the total expense is going to crowd a $1,000,000,000, pretty closely. It will be at least $7,000,000,000.

"There has been talk that when the canal is built the ten-mile canal zone will be used for agricultural purposes. I can't see it. Much of the land is swampy and boggy, and besides the people down there positively will not work. The natives have an abhorrence for work, and will not take a job as long as the bananas and plantains on which they live hold out."

NOBLE CONVICTED OF LAW-BREAKING

Complaining Witness in Illegal Hunting Case Is Sentenced.

Grand Rapids, Minn., March 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—William F. Noble, who lives in Third River township, Itasca county, not far from Blackduck, who was a witness in Judge Huson's court here last week against E. M. Kaster of the Blackduck neighborhood, who was charged with killing two moose calves nearly two years ago, finds himself in the predicament he sought to place Kaster.

The latter was acquitted, and during the trial Noble was arrested, along with a man named Parker. Noble has since been in jail, in default of bonds, but early in the week he was tried before Justice of the Peace Kearney of this place on the charge of violating the game laws. He was convicted and fined $75 and costs, the fine and costs amounting to $159. Being unable to pay the fine, he was given the alternative of seventy-five days in the county jail, and he is now serving that sentence.

It is said that Noble is an old offender against the game laws, and he has always managed to escape punishment, it being alleged that he was always given the assistance of people living in Blackduck to whom he sold venison and moose meat. He has lived for several years on Third river, about seventeen miles southeast of Blackduck, and has always hunted big game, in and out of season, using two or three dogs, and selling the meat at Blackduck and other points. He had a system of protection that insured his safety, although several of the best wardens in the employ of the state game and fish commission were sent to cause his arrest and conviction.

Of late Jesse Harry, a Grand Rapids warden of the state commission, has been working in the Third River country and has secured several convictions of reckless hunters and game dealers there, and he has been waiting for a favorable opportunity to "grab" Noble.

The opportunity to convict Noble came a few days ago, during Kaster's trial, when Mr. Harry was able to get positive, undisputable evidence that Noble had killed a cow moose on July 6, 1907, and he caused the arrest of the Third river pot hunter, as stated.

STUDENTS MADE HIT WITH PLAY

"The Merchant of Venice Up to Date" Pleases Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., March 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The high school students presented a very pretty little play last night at the Lincoln school auditorium entitled "The Merchant of Venice Up-to-Date." The play was not an Shakespearian, but rather a comedy to introduce a football game. The auditorium was crowded to the doors and too much cannot be said in praise of the participants, the school orchestra and the manner in which the play was handled by the students. The proceeds will go toward the purchasing of the Lincoln bust, which was presented some time ago to the school by the sophomore class.

The caste was as follows: The duke of Venice, Gerhard Mehl; Antonia, a senior, Ralph Adams; Bassanio, Will McLeod; Gratinio, Will Allard; Shylock (a wealthy gambler), Will Hooker; Tubai (captain of the Virginia team), Will Dwyer; Launcelot Goblo (Shylock's servant), Archie McLeod; the professor (an X-ray photographer), Herbert Rosenbloom; policeman, Albert Kampes; Portia, Miss Ether Pierce; Narrisse, Portia's friend, Miss Sophia Kitz, Jessica, Miss Dorothy Cohen; Miss S. Threedice (a teacher), Miss Marie Killorin; Polly, servant to Portia, Miss Winnifred Reynolds; Antonia's mother, Miss Alice Killorin; Miss Golbo, Miss Anna Rosenbloom; football players, sophomore boys, etc.

Archie McLeod as Golbo proved to be a comedian of merit, his playing being particularly good, as was that of the young women in the caste.

Hibbing, Minn., March 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—George King of Hibbing and Jess Palmer fought a fast and rather scientific fifteen round draw the other night at Buhl. Both men were on their feet at the end and the decision pleased the crowd. King is shaping himself for a match with Whitehead and if successful in getting into the ring with the Duluth heavyweight will carry a lot of range money on him to win.

HIBBING TEACHERS HAPPY.

Hibbing, Minn., March 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local teachers were very much pleased to learn the other day that in the future they will receive a $5 increase in pay. Most of the present force will be back again, unless Cupid interferes to take them away. Hibbing is one of the most liberal towns in the state in the matter of paying teachers' salaries.

VIRGINIA LID CLAMPED DOWN

Gambling and Keeping Saloons Open After Hours Are Stopped.

Virginia, Minn., March 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Since the edict of Mayor Hawkinson Saturday, closing all gambling places, things have been quiet in that line. A number of complaints have been filed with him since that time, and were of such a nature that the mayor has taken a decided stand against the gamblers. He says that no more games will be allowed to run under his administration.

Mayor Hawkinson has been lenient with saloon keepers in the past, but such complaints have been presented to him the past few weeks, that he is of the opinion that gambling should be stopped. He has given strict orders to Chief of Police Walsh to arrest all parties found gambling in any shape or manner, and has ordered the game cut out entirely in Virginia. Complaints have also been entered against a number of saloon keepers in regard to keeping their places of business open after hours, and if sufficient proof can be introduced against the violators of the law, prosecution will follow. In accordance with the law Mayor Hawkinson last summer ordered all saloons closed at 11 p. m., but it is said that a large number have violated this law and have thrown away the keys to their front doors.

The new part of the location is in a beautiful spot and makes a fine residence district.

The Adams pit is being materially increased in length by the stripping over the old No. 1 and No. 4 ground. Stripping there has been going on now for some time. The No. 4 shaft house is being dismantled. A new shaft will be put in at the Adams during the year, and possibly two of them. The loss in the underground mining at the Adams Spruce mines is much less now than ever before, as a new system of mining has been used which gives a larger per cent of ore than before.

YOUNG INDIAN HURT BY DYNAMITE CAPS.

Ely, Minn., March 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—A young Indian whose name is not known is being treated at a local hospital for injuries he sustained a few days ago while handling a box of dynamite caps he picked up in the Stony river country, about forty miles southeast of here. One arm was shattered, while the Indian lost an eye.

WHITLA KIDNAPERS ARE INDICTED

thing to do with the kidnaping case. He asserts he is in Cleveland to clear up private law affairs.

Charges against James H. Boyle and the woman who claims to be his wife, who are held in connection with the kidnaping of Willie Whitla, are expected to be handed to the Cuyahoga county grand jury at once, as a result of the story told to the jury yesterday by Willie and other members of the family.

Further efforts to secure a satisfactory identification of the woman will be made. Thomas Boyle of Sharon, a brother of the man under arrest, has arrived in Cleveland and has asked permission to see the woman detained in central police station.

Whitla says he and Mrs. Whitla have the highest appreciation for the constant activity of the police all over the country, and especially Chief Kohler of the Cleveland department and his assistants. No understanding as to the prosecution has yet been made, says Whitla.

"But," he continued, "we want justice administered, and since the crime was committed in Pennsylvania we believe that is the proper tribunal in which to bring the criminals to trial."

"That Is the Man."

The identification by the child of the two prisoners as the kidnapers who had held him in bondage for $10,000 ransom, which was eventually paid by his father, was complete. The man was taken before Willie and a faint smile hovered about his lips as he was led into the office of the chief, where the Whitla party was waiting. He was pale and a trifle nervous. There was no sign of recognition at first. Chief Kohler then asked Willie if he had ever seen the man before.

"Sure," said Willie, brightly, "that is the man I left Sharon with. He took me to Cleveland, then to Ashtabula and back to Cleveland."

The boy was asked the same question again to make certain of his memory, and again the lad declared he was positive.

"He had a mustache when I first saw him at the schoolhouse," Willie supplemented, "but he must have cut it off later. This is the way he looked when I last saw him in Cleveland."

Boyle smiled sarcastically, but said not a word. He eyed his accusers defiantly. The woman was next brought in.

She was defiant and haughty. Blankly she stared at Whitla and the others. Her only relapse from the indignant manner was when she first saw Willie. Then she smiled. Immediately Willie walked up to her and, extending his hands, said:

"How do you do?"

"Hello, Willie," the woman replied as she placed her hand upon his head and caressed him for an instant.

The boy then stepped back to his father and was asked several questions by the chief of police.

"Yes I know her," he said. "She was the nurse who took care of me in Cleveland. She told me I was sick and in a hospital. I saw her a whole lot as she was with me most all the time."

No Sign of Recognition.

Notwithstanding the woman's former assertion that there would be a sensation when she was identified or when Whitla saw her, she and the boy's father looked at each other without any outward evidence of recognition. They did not speak to each other. Whitla would make no comments regarding the woman under suspicion.

A woman known as Mary Dener, who the police say may have been an associate of the kidnapers, or was implicated in the plot, committed suicide yesterday by drinking morphine. She drank the drug while standing in front of a drug store, not far from the house in which Willie Whitla was detained and she died in an ambulance on the way to a hospital.

Visited By Uncle.

The last doubt in the minds of the local police officers as to the exact identity of the man held for the kidnaping of Willie Whitla was removed today when Thomas F. Boyle of Sharon, visited the prisoner. He said the prisoner is his brother James. It was expected by the police that the brother would complete the identification as they were practically certain of the information received Wednesday concerning the alleged kidnaper.

Thomas Boyle was allowed to see his brother. They had a long conversation in the presence of Chief of Police Kohler. Arrangements were made between the brothers to obtain an attorney for the prisoner and prepare his defense. Up to then the prisoner had not seen a lawyer. The prisoners brother also saw Mrs. Boyle, but could not say nothing regarding her other than that she is the wife of James Boyle. He said he knew nothing of her and that she is unknown in Sharon. The police are not making an effort to learn the woman's history or identity.

Try Her In Pennsylvania.

"We are not concerned as to who the woman was," Chief of Police Kohler said today, "as she will be placed on trial in Pennsylvania. All we wanted to know is whether she was implicated in the kidnaping of Willie Whitla. We have captured her, have identified her as the nurse who cared for Willie, have made a prima facie case and when we have delivered her and Boyle to the Pennsylvania authorities our connection with the case is at an end."

J. P. Whitla, father of Willie, accompanied by Chief of Police Crain of Sharon, called on Chief Kohler today to arrange the details for prosecuting Boyle and his wife. Whitla said he would lend every effort to this end and expressed his desire to work in harmony with the officials.

Whitla also checked up the $9,848, taken from Mrs. Boyle. He identified the bills and their wrappings as those he prepared for the kidnapers and which he paid over in the little East end candy store last Monday.

It was stated at police headquarters, that the prisoners would be released to the Pennsylvania authorities as soon as the extradition papers were signed. This is not expected until tomorrow.

Chief of Police Crain of Sharon will remain here and return with Boyle and his wife.

Chief of Police Kohler said today, that there was absolutely nothing in the report that a second man was involved in the kidnaping.

"Boyle and his wife are the only ones implicated," he said. "There is no doubt about this."

"What Might Have Happened."

Sharon, Pa., March 25.—An air of "what might have happened" permeates the Whitla kidnaping case in this city and vicinity today. Yesterday and last night sensational disclosures were expected in Cleveland. It is apparent today, however, that none of these anticipated developments is going to materialize. Therefore Sharon is rapidly approaching the normal tenor of its way. The kidnaping case was exciting, but the developments, hinted at yesterday, would have been startling.

The woman under arrest is not the one whose identification would have caused a great sensation in the abduction case. It is believed now that she is some Western woman who married Boyle and is unknown to members of the Whitla family. Her remarks at the time of her arrest in Cleveland that "there will be hell in Sharon when Buhl hears of 'it' has, it is generally said no special significance. All are inclined to think it was a chance remark wherein the woman referred only to her subsequent punishment for kidnaping. In the early stages of the child stealing case many stories were published concerning the wealth of Frank H. Buhl, the uncle of the boy, and the large sum of money he would willingly spend to recover the boy and capture the kidnapers. It is believed these stories impressed the woman and that when she was arrested she pictured the pleasure Buhl would take in prosecuting her, hence the remark.

Mr. Whitla is still in Cleveland but the other members of the family arrived home last night, and all refuse to be interviewed. They are tired of the great publicity given them since last Thursday.

Little Known of Boyle.

Few persons in Sharon know much about James Boyle. His widowed mother, sisters and four brothers are all respected, but the man under arrest has been a wanderer for years. It is established without doubt that the woman held in Cleveland is the same who accompanied Boyle to this city recently to attend the funeral of John Boyle, an uncle. At that time Boyle introduced the woman as his wife.

Attempts were made this morning to establish a relationship between the woman and a prominent family here. The family owns a large department store, but when a member of it was asked if the woman was a relative, he denied it very emphatically.

The legal principles of the case are occupying the attention of the detectives and attorneys now. One claim is that the woman cannot be brought to Pennsylvania to answer to charge of kidnaping as it is said she was not in the state when the commission of the crime occurred. The man will be brought to Mercer county and tried for abduction, and the woman, it is said, can be tried as conspiracy and used as a witness against the man.

It is admitted that the legal end of the case is complicated, but what can or cannot be done will not be known until several points of law are looked up. There is a reward of $5,000 from the state of Pennsylvania for the captor of the abductors, and several thousands additional from newspapers about the country. When Detective Perkins of Pittsburg, whose agency has been prominent in the case, was asked for his views, he said:

"I believe the Cleveland police authorities are entitled to the reward. Capt. Shattuck and Detective Wood certainly made the arrests, and I don't care a rap where they got their information. They did a clever piece of work."

Sharon Watches Trains.

Every train from Cleveland is watched in the hope that Sheriff Chess of Mercer county will decide to return the suspects to Sharon for arraignment. When the first train arrived from Cleveland, shortly after daybreak today, a crowd had gathered at the depot. A rumor was current that an attempt would be made to quietly slip Boyle and his wife into Sharon on an early train and lock them up before any one but the police were aware they were here. Later it was reported that the couple would be returned to Mercer, the county seat, fourteen miles northeast of Sharon.

Although there is a snowstorm and blizzard raging in this section, and no direct railroad connection between Sharon and Mercer, several persons drove across the country to be present if the sheriff took the suspects there.

Boyle might be returned to Sharon with all safety. There is a feeling here against the kidnapers of Willie Whitla, but Sharon people do not believe Boyle is the brains of the scheme which was executed in carrying away the boy. Residents who have known him since he was a little boy insist that either his wife or a third party planned the kidnaping. Boyle is regarded as a shiftless sort of a fellow who might have been influenced by the cunning of his wife, or carried out the kidnaping for a third party, but it would be difficult to convince many persons that he originally planned the crime.

Interest centers in Boyle's wife. The slender blond woman whom, as Helen Faulkner or Helen McDonough, Boyle married in Denver a year ago, is an unsolvable problem to Sharon residents.

Blame the Woman.

East St. Louis, Ill., March 25.—Local friends of James H. Boyle, held in Cleveland for complicity in the Whitla kidnaping, blame Helen Faulkner for his downfall. They assert that before he met her here he was industrious and steady in his habits, but that he later started "going down hill."

The Faulkner woman appeared here about two years ago with a burlesque show. She gave evidences of having received a good education, and especially in music.

"I'm an artist, a singer and a moneygetter," was a frequent expression from her. The two left here about a year ago and were next heard from when they were arrested in Springfield, Ill.

CLEAN SWEEP OF RESORT KEEPERS

Last of Range Prisoners Changes Plea to Guilty.

Glenn Seville, the last of the Hibbing resort keepers to hold out against the indictments returned by the grand jury, yesterday changed his plea of not guilty to guilty. He was obdurate for some time, claiming that he could be acquitted on trial, but he wilted under the strain of waiting in jail for his trial, and yesterday he decided to forego the placing of his case before a jury of his peers.

Seville will very likely be let down with a fine of $1,000, which he has not yet been able to gather. He expects to secure the money today and he will then be released. He was given the right to furnish a bond of $1,500 for his appearance for sentence. He has been in the county jail for over a week under $3,400 bonds, which he couldn't furnish. Four indictments were returned against him, two for selling liquor without a license, one for conducting a disorderly house, and one was a joint indictment with Cora Taylor for the same charge.

Fred Powell, who changed his plea to guilty Tuesday, was yesterday released from custody on a bond of $1,500 and sentence was deferred for ten days. During that time he will raise $1,000, which will probably be the fine imposed. All of the cases have now been disposed of and the "social evil" at Hibbing has been given an awful jolt.

DAMAGES FOR FALSE ARREST

Hibbing Man Given $400 Balm for Injured Feelings.

A jury in district court yesterday afternoon held that William Williams was falsely imprisoned by Chief of Police Peter Wring of Hibbing in December, 1907, and Williams was awarded $400 damages in his suit against Wring, the Itasca Mercantile company and D. B. McEachen.

Williams sued for $3,500, claiming that his feelings and reputation had been damaged by the arrest and the alleged false accusation. The store of the Itasca Mercantile company, in which he was employed, had been burglarized and a chum of Williams was suspected of the burglary. Williams was also taken into custody on the suspicion of being implicated by giving information as to the lay of the store.

Williams was held in jail for forty hours and was finally released on bonds. The case never went any farther, the charge being dropped. Williams contended that there was never any grounds for believing him implicated and its arrest was wholly unwarranted. On that account, he asked damages.

DAMAGES ARE HELD EXCESSIVE

New Trial Granted Railroad in Personal Injury Suit.

An order granting the motion of the Wisconsin Central Railroad company for a new trial of the personal injury action brought by Harry Thomas and tried at the January term of court, was filed by Judge Dibell in district court yesterday.

Excessive damages formed the grounds for granting the new trial. Thomas sued for $25,000 for injuries sustained by a boiler explosion at South Superior Nov. 9, near a construction camp of the Wisconsin Central. The boiler was owned by a sub-contractor drilling a well for the railroad company, but negligence was charged against the company in allowing the boiler on the premises, as it was in a defective condition. Thomas was awarded $7,725.

In his memorandum, Judge Dibell says that both counsel concede that the verdict is excessive and cannot be sustained by the court. A new trial, he says, would be better for Thomas than a reduction of the verdict, as the reduction would probably be a considerable amount.

Judgment Overpaid.

A sealed verdict of $600 was returned this morning in the district court in the case of Edward Lynch and Richard H. Fagan against John F. Killorin. The plaintiffs claimed that they had overpaid a judgment secured against them, and brought suit to recover $620, which they claimed was the amount due them. The jury gave them $600.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

HANCOCK IS WINNER

Hockey Champions in Copper Country Retain Honors.

Close of Successful Season Finds Hancock Far in Lead.

Hancock, Mich., March 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Hancock team has once more won the championship of the Copper Country Amateur Hockey league after a hard race for a stretch and a runaway at the finish. The five teams finished as follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Hancock	12	2	.857
Red Jacket	9	7	.563
Laurium	7	8	.466
Houghton	7	9	.438
Mohawk	3	12	.200

All during the season Hancock and Red Jacket were the only serious contenders for the leadership. In the first two games between the two teams they tied, but Hancock took a brace, and from early in February until the end of the season there was no stopping the Hancock team, the closing weeks virtually being a walkaway for the leaders.

The championship team was composed of: Monette, goal; Linder (Capt.), point; Rompf, cover point; Bangsund, rover; Stroud, center; Soloman, right wing; Carrigan, left wing.

The team that won the championship is composed almost entirely of the same men, who have won the championship for Hancock time after time. Ever since hockey broke into the Copper country, through the forming of a professional team, which afterwards became the Portage Lake team, thrice champions of the International league, Hancock has led in amateur hockey and the amateurs have never once failed to come back winners at the end of the league season.

The standard of hockey in the Copper Country league this season was higher than ever before in the amateur class. The players are all home boys, who picked up the game in close touch to the high-grade hockey formerly played by the professional teams of the International league. The games this season were played at the Amphidrome at Houghton, the Palestra at Calumet, and Chiladom at Mohawk. The crowds for the season averaged over 1,000 people to each game and several times when leading teams met, the big rinks were packed to the roofs, with over 3,000 people. There were over 2,800 paid admissions to one game between Red Jacket and Hancock.

Professional hockey will probably never again break into the Copper country. John McNamara, manager of the Amphidrome and former manager of the Portage Lake team of the International league, is said to be interested in the organization of the proposed big International league to take in Chicago, St. Louis, Houghton and other American cities with some of the big cities across the border. But the people of the Copper country are satisfied to see the kind of amateur hockey they have enjoyed this year. Few will deny it is as good as the professionals of the International league played in the average of their games.

It is doubtful if the Hancock team will try to secure any games outside of the Copper country, on account of the lateness of the season. A proposition has been made by a Cleveland team for a game to be played there for the amateur championship of the United States and it may yet be accepted. Supporters of the Hancock team would have no hesitancy in backing their seven against any team Cleveland could put forward and the claims being made by the Crescents of that city to the amateur championship of America may yet cause the Hancock team to move for a settlement of the question. Certain it is that before the Cleveland team reckons with the Copper country amateurs any claims to championship of the United States will be marred by a weak spot.

WHY COURIER WAS DISQUALIFIED

Committee Claims Boat Failed to Show Her True Speed.

New York, March 25.—Now that the Buffalo Courier has been officially disqualified after winning the ninety-mile motor boat endurance contest at the recent Palm Beach carnival, it is of interest to learn the details and true cause for the decision.

The disqualification was due to the fact that the owner, W. J. Connors, had withdrawn the boat without evident cause from one of the events in which she had been entered; also, the regatta committee claims that the boat failed to show her true speed in the speed trials during the early part of the meet. The honors were consequently carried off by the boat Messenger, the second to finish.

The race, which was for the Beach Club trophy and the Reed & Barton cup, was a hard, gruelling contest from start to finish, testing to the utmost the endurance capacity of the engines.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Courier was disqualified in this event, it carried off the laurels for the meet. Its work was unquestionably the most consistent of the different contestants, and it was more times a winner than any of the other craft.

GOOD ROAD TO TWIN CITIES

That Is the Aim of Duluth Automobile Owners.

Duluth automobile owners will combine with the automobile clubs of St. Paul and Minneapolis and with the Commercial clubs of the three cities to improve the highway between Duluth and the Twin Cities.

It is the wish of these auto owners of all three cities to perfect a highway between the Twin Cities and the Head of the Lakes. The present road is in fair condition, but there are sections of it which are badly in need of repair. With the expenditure of a comparatively small sum the road could be put in such shape that the run between the Twin Cities and the Head of the Lakes could be made in twelve hours. This is the aim of the automobile clubs of three cities, and they will be backed up by the Commercial clubs of St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth. The matter will be presented to the state highway commission with the backing of all these organizations and it is believed that some favorable action can be secured.

ROLLER RACE ENDS IN RIOT

Salt Lake and Butte Teams Were on Even Footing.

Butte, Mont., March 25.—The six-day roller skating race ended last night in a small riot, in which two persons were arrested. Through a misunderstanding, the racers failed to note the signal of the end of the race, and sped on. While endeavoring to make a sharp turn, Schotz of Salt Lake City swerved too acutely and barely saved himself from a fall by grabbing Bradford of Butte. Bradford shook Schotz off, sending him sprawling on the floor. At this, Scholtz' partner, Hardy, jumped into the mixup and sent Bradford tumbling over the floor. The crowd apparently thought some one was being wronged and a mob surged on the course. The race ended with the Salt Lake City and Butte teams on even footing.

CRESCENTS WIN THE PENNANT

"Coddy" Winters Played on the Winning Cleveland Team.

The hockey season is now over in Cleveland and a Duluth boy, "Coddy" Winters, played on the winning team, the team that not only won the pennant in the city league, but the team that met the best of the hockey teams of the country, and for which the management now claims the amateur championship of the United States, which is disputed by Hancock.

Tuesday evening the Crescents, for this is the team that did things, won the beautiful cup donated by A. G. Spalding & Co., by defeating the Clevelands. Each member of the team will this summer wear a bit of jewelry that will bear the inscription, "Amateur Champions of the United States."

On the Clevelands two other Duluth boys played, Al Cummings, who is well known in all branches of sport at the Head of the Lakes, and George McLaughlin of Park Point. Both men played excellent hockey all winter, and were on the team that finished second.

The Crescents have met many of the Canadian teams and have had no trouble in defeating each one of them in turn. A picked team from the Cleveland league played a number of the Eastern college teams, and while the contests were usually hard fought, the boys from Cleveland won a majority of the games.

"Winters played on every all-Star team that was picked during the year, and has made the biggest kind of a hit with the Cleveland fans, who consider him the best player in the league. Cummings and McLaughlin have also done well, and are well established in the hearts of the followers of the game in the Eastern city. All three boys, according to a letter received today, will be in Duluth soon to play baseball. Winters will play with the Fitwells, as he did last year, and Cummings is slated for a pitching position on the staff of Al Kuehnow's White Sox.

TO VISIT WITH JONES.

Comiskey Will Try to Win Over Former White Sox Manager.

San Francisco, March 25.—President Comiskey of the White Sox left last night for Portland to try to wean Fielder Jones from the timber business by offers of sordid cash. Comiskey will arrive in the Oregon city today, and have seven hours between trains for argument with his recalcitrant manager before he takes a train for Seattle.

"I have no reason to think I can change Jones' mind," said Comiskey before departing, "but I hope to show him that the time when the team starts training is not the moment for him to say he has quit the game. I still hope to see Fielder in center field on the South Side this year."

GOPHERS TAKE OUTDOOR WORK

University Candidates Will Practice in Open Air This Week.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 25.—Outdoor practice every day in the week, and at all hours of the day, is what Coach Walter Wilmot of the University of Minnesota baseball squad has scheduled for the campus ball tossers. This program will go into force, either at the end of this week, or early next week. Such a change will give the varsity diamond candidates the opportunity for which they have been waiting for many weeks.

The present practice schedule, inside the big cage on the armory floor, limits the players to about one hour's practice a day, and is entirely inadequate. As the first game of the season will come on April 10, less than three weeks away, the university nine will have to get into running rather fast, Coach Wilmot, who has been managing the Minneapolis Automobile show, and was unable to be on the campus last week, is back again and making his numerous eligibles hustle.

The baseball diamond on Northrop field is almost entirely dry. All that hinders the men from getting out at once is the stretch of water along the running track, which cuts off the outfield, and a few puddles in the outfield. It is believed that only a few days are necessary to fix the field up right.

SOPHOMORES WIN EXCITING GAME

Cooper Alumni Basket Ball Team Leads Locals a Merry Chase.

In one of the best basket ball games ever played at the Y. M. C. A., the sophomore basket ball team of the Central high school trimmed the Cooper Alumni team of Superior by a score of 34 to 30, last evening.

The contest was played in the gymnasium of the Central Y. M. C. A.

As the score would indicate, the game was fast and hard fought from start to finish. Both teams showed the best kind of team work, and it was anybody's game up until the final moment of play.

The sophomore team is the same that won the pennant in the high school basket ball league. They have not sustained a defeat this year.

Harris and Taylor were the forwards, Waldron played center, and Johnson and Solhelm were the guards.

BIG SUM OFFERED FOR SINGLE WORD

Jeffries to Receive $1,000 Bill for a "Yes" or "No."

Chicago, March 25.—On Monday afternoon in New York city, Jim Jeffries will receive an offer of $1,000 for one word. If that word is "Yes," he will receive a $1,000 bill, and if he says "No," the money will be his just the same.

The donor in this remarkable offer will be Abe Arends of Chicago, and he will represent Champion Jack Johnson in the transaction. The idea of Johnson and his manager is to know whether or not the former king of pugilists is serious in his implied threat to return to the ring and give battle to the first colored heavyweight champion of the world.

Challenges are flying thick and fast in the direction of the black fighter. He is beset with theatrical propositions, and while he is just as eager to make easy money as any other celebrity, he feels in duty bound to have some sort of an understanding with the most likely contender for his fistic title before he plunges into the field of easy money.

In talking over his plans Tuesday, Johnson said he had no desire to hurry Jeffries into the ring. "What I want to know," said the champion, "is this: Will Jeffries fight me for the championship? If he does, I want to know it, and the sooner he makes a declaration the better I will be pleased."

Willie Wins Again.

St. Louis, Mo., March 25.—Willie Hoppe defeated Charles Peterson in the semi-final game of 18.2 billiard match yesterday by a score of 400 to 85. Hoppe's high run was 155. His average was 50.

FIGHTING FOR HOMES

Settlers in Linden Grove May be Driven From Claims.

Terrible Hardships and Privations Caused by Lack of Road.

A tale of hardship and privation that was pathetic in its simplicity was unfolded to the members of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club last evening in a petition from the settlers in Lincoln Grove township for a new road.

Up in Lincoln Grove township, which comprises townships 62-20 and 62-21, there are some forty or fifty families who are fighting with their backs to the wall in an effort to hold their claims and establish homes in Northern Minnesota. Privations such as even the Pilgrim Fathers were not called upon to endure are almost more than they can bear, and unless they get relief in the shape of a road, they will be forced to relinquish their claims and give up the fight against the wilderness. There is no road of any description from Cook, the nearest station. The only means of reaching the settlement is by way of the Little Fork river, over twelve rapids, which have to be portaged. One settler's wife, about to be confined, tramped two miles to the river, made the twelve portages, and then walked to the town of Cook. Her husband accompanied her, carrying a pack on his back and one baby, while the woman led another child by the hand. They came back, the woman carrying her new born infant, over the same route.

One settler was drowned running the dangerous rapids of the river, and the undertaker was unable to get in to the river to reach the body, which was buried in a lonely grave on the bank of the stream.

One sick woman was carried in her husband's arms to the river, carried over the portages and taken to Cook to receive medical attention.

About the only cash crop which the settlers raise is potatoes, and these can only be marketed in the winter time when there is sleighing. In the winter the potatoes freeze when the settlers attempt to take them to the market, and a year's work goes for naught.

Half of the children cannot attend the two little schools in the township because the woods are simply impassable.

This is the condition that was presented to the members of the public affairs committee and the committee's assistance was asked in securing a road. The committee referred the matter ot the county board with the request that a member of the board visit the township at once and see if something could not be done to relieve the situation this spring.

The Six-cylinder Franklin

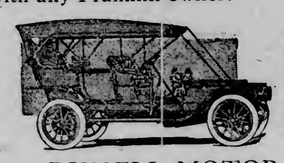
The average six-cylinder automobile is ponderous and heavy—the whole advantage of six-cylinder construction is missed.

High power with light weight is the main thing to gain by the use of six cylinders.

A six-cylinder engine gives a steady torque—an explosion every one-third of a revolution, while in the four- the torque is intermittent, an explosion every one-half revolution. Steady torque allows lighter construction throughout the automobile, and because of this it is possible to increase the power and keep the weight down. Power gained without increasing weight means increased speed and ability. And that is what you want.

The six-cylinder Franklin is the only light-weight large automobile. It is luxurious without the disadvantages of ponderousness and bulk. In it you can tour all day without fatigue. There is a complete absence of jarring and jolting You feel no vibration. There is none of the burden and none of the anxiety that goes with a heavy automobile. It rides like the finest carriage. It answers any tests on hills or levels.

Talk this six-cylinder and weight question over with any Franklin owner.



Franklin Model H, seven-passenger, six-cylinder, 42 horse-power touring-car, $3750. Bosch high-tension magneto, 36-inch wheels, 127-inch wheel base. Other four- and six-cylinder models from $1750 to $5000.

ARMOUR PLANT BILL IS KILLED

Rowe Bill Indefinitely Postponed on St. Paul Member's Motion.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the Rowe bill, a St. Paul measure directed against the location of the Armour packing plant within five miles of the state university, came up for consideration by the house today, Representative Cal Stone of St. Paul moved that the bill be indefinitely postponed. The vote was unanimous. The galleries of the house were packed with a throng which expected to see some fireworks. The crowd went away disappointed.

It is reported that the St. Paul delegation will substitute for this bill one making it necessary to secure the consent of the state board of health before a packing plant can be built within two and a half miles of the state institution.

COURT HAS A HARD PUZZLE

Who Owns This Money Claimed By Several Persons?

The case of E. P. Hoel vs. John Olson and Anna Olson, his wife, and Charles Hill, intervenor, is on trial before Judge Dibell and a jury in district court. It will go to the jury some time this afternoon. Thereby hands a much involved tale. The basis of the action is $233.05 in the hands of L. R. Martin, and Hoel and Hill each claim ownership.

The tale runs thusly:

Some time in 1908, Hoel sold to Olson and wife a quantity of goods, on which a balance of $316.80 remained due. Hoel brought suit in the municipal court of Eveleth for the amount and was given judgment for $340.27. The sum of $233.05 in the hands of L. R. Martin was made the subject of garnishment to cover such part of the judgment as it would pay off.

Olson appealed to district court and the judgment was affirmed. Then Hill stepped in and claimed the money in Martin's hands on an assignment from Olson prior to the garnishment. At the last term of court the case was tried before a jury and Hoel was declared to be entitled to the $233.05 as garnisher. But Hill applied for a new trial on an error in the proceedings and the new trial was granted. The trial is on today.

Who owns the money?

WOMAN WHO SWORE AT MARRIAGE SHE WOULD KILL BRIDE, MURDERS

Plaster of Paris Skull and Crossbones Left in Victim's Pocket.

Friends of Mrs. Culbertson Say She Had Been Hounded Since Wedding.

Vincennes, Ind., March 25.—That Mrs. Russell Culbertson, who died today from the effects of carbolic acid, and in whose pocket was found a note with the word "Goodby" and a plaster of paris skull and crossbones, was poisoned by a jealous rival, who swore at the victim's wedding that she would kill Culbertson and then herself if Culbertson did not abandon his bride, is the belief of friends and relatives of the dead woman. They say the wife was hounded since her wedding by a mysterious man and woman who were plotting to kill her.

Mrs. Culbertson was found in the shed at the rear of the home of her husband's father and mother, Joseph Hulbrazleton and wife, late yesterday, having been bound and gagged. Her arm and head were bruised as if she had struggled with assailants. After being carried into the house she said:

"A man and woman dragged me out of the closet into the shed and forced me to swallow something."

Then she became unconscious and continued so until her death.

Says He Knows Slayer.

The woman's husband, Russell Culbertson, is a bookkeeper for the Kiemeyer Lumber company in Lawrenceville. He declares his wife was murdered by persons whose identity he knows but he will give no further information except to the police. Mrs. Culbertson had received several letters threatening that if she did not give up her husband she would be killed.

The handwriting has been identified as that of a woman who was a friend of Culbertson before he was married. In the pocket of Mrs. Culbertson's apron the last of the letters was found. It bore only the word "goodby" and contained a small plaster of paris skull and crossbones.

The Culbertsons were married last January. Mrs. Culbertson formerly was Jessie Overton, and came here from Texas seven years ago as a trained nurse. She had no communication with her relatives. It had been thought that the woman whose jealousy of Mrs Culbertson inspired her to write the threatening letters, had not been in Vincennes for several years. Last Monday, however, when Mrs. Culbertson went to the station to buy a ticket for Lawrenceville, Ill., where she visited her husband, she discovered she was being watched by a short, heavy man of middle age, who hurried to a telephone as soon as he learned her destination.

House Was Watched.

Members of the Hulbrazleton family say they knew the house was being watched and that they notified the police, and took every care not to leave Mrs. Culbertson alone. Her husband's parents supposed she was in the kitchen, while the tragedy was being enacted in the shed.

Several laborers report to the police that they saw a man and woman loitering about the home of Joshua Hulbrazelton and wife, the parents of Mrs. Culbertson's husband, with whom she lived.

Mrs. Edna Culbertson, asked if she thought there was a possibility of her sister-in-law having committed suicide, said:

"My God, how can you suggest that? If you had been with her during the last week as I have, you would know as well as I that she was murdered. If you will find the woman I accuse, you will be convinced that it was murder.

"This woman followed Mr. Culbertson everywhere he went. In my house one night, before Jessie and Russell were married, the woman I accuse swore in my presence that unless Russell married her and not Jessie she would kill him and then herself. He received from her many letters, the handwriting of which is the same as on the letters Jessie received. Since these letters came we could not let Jessie be alone a moment. She has not slept. All her anxiety was that Russell and not she would be killed. While I am not positive, I believe that I saw this woman and a man pass the house yesterday morning. The woman was veiled."

So far the search of the police has not resulted in discovering any trace of the man and woman.

THREE GATES ON NEW CARS

They Will Also Bring Joy to Hearts of Fat Men.

Can Readily be Converted Into "Pay-as-You-Enter" Cars.

There will be joy for the fat man on the back platform, and the irritable gentleman with the newly lighted cigar in the cars which the Duluth Street Railway company contemplates purchasing, if a purchase of new cars is made this spring. In addition, if the company ever decides to inaugurate the "pay-as-you-enter" system, the new cars will facilitate the experiment.

No definite decision as to whether or not the cars will be purchased has yet been made, but a few, at least, will probably be secured. The cars are not of the regular "pay-as-you-enter" type used in the Eastern cities and experimented with in Minneapolis, but they have three gates at the rear instead of two, as on the present car.

The vestibule in the rear is six inches longer than the vestibule of the big cars now in use by the company. Therein lies the joy of the fat man and the smoker, for six inches additional length in the vestibule of the car is no inconsiderable amount. Instead of the bumpers being exposed at the rear of the car, as they are now, the floor of the vestibule extends over the bumpers, giving a more neat appearance to the back.

The three gates are arranged substantially as are the two gates on the cars now. There are two rods instead of one dividing the open side of the vestibule and three sets of gates. The middle one is wider than the other two and wide enough for the most corpulent of fat men to enter and leave the car without discomfort. At times he has a pretty tight squeeze on the cars now in use.

"I don't know that we will purchase any of the new cars this spring," said Manager Herbert Warren of the street railway company this morning. "We have several improvements in contemplation, but just how much will be done, where it will be done and how it will be done, I don't know. We have only a certain amount of money available for extension and improvement this year, and we will try to use it to the best possible advantage.

"The council has repeatedly ordered us to put a double track on the West Fourth street line and if that order is adhered to, it will handicap us considerable in our work on other parts of the system. The laying of a second track on West Fourth street will be an extensive undertaking and if such a large amount of money goes there, we will have to economize on our expenditures in other quarters."

There is no danger of the "pay as you enter" system being inaugurated in Duluth at present, according to Mr. Warren.

"I have considered the matter personally and have watched the results in other cities, but the company has not yet considered it seriously," said Mr. Warren. "Personally, I favor it, but there isn't any likelihood of our trying to educate Duluth people to it for some time to come.

"Ultimately, I believe the 'pay as you enter' system will become general in the United States, for I believe it is more satisfactory for both the company and the patrons.

"The new cars, when we secure them will be such, that they may more readily be converted into 'pay as you enter' cars, but any of the large cars at present in use on our system, may be converted into 'pay as you enter' cars by use of a railing and some slight changes in the door and gate arrangements."

IMPORTANT LEGAL POINT

Are the Narrow Gauge Roads in Mines, "Railroads?"

Companies Liable When Men Work More Than Sixteen Hours.

Judge Dibell's order construing the state statute declaring that railroad companies requiring their employes to work more than sixteen consecutive hours without eight hours' rest, shall be liable to an employe injured, to be applicable to roads operated by mining companies in open pit mining, will be carried to the supreme court for a decision.

The attorneys for Butler Bros. have filed notice of an appeal to the supreme court from the order of Judge Dibell, filed last week, denying the motion of the defendant for judgment, notwithstanding the verdict, or a new trial in the case of Pete Desaman, who was awarded $3,000 by a jury in district court Feb. 25, 1908. He sued for $25,000 for injuries sustained while in the employ of the Butler Bros. as a brakeman on an open pit road near Hibbing, Aug. 21, 1907. He claimed to have been at work for thirty-six hours without sleep. While resting beside the track for a moment, he fell asleep, rolled on to the track, and his left foot was crushed just above the ankle.

Judge Dibell's memorandum accompanying his decision denying the new trial, is interesting. The act of 1907, supplementing former statutes relative to the hours of service of railroad men, uses the term "railroad company" and refers to hours of service of "any employe engaged in or connected with the movement of any rolling stock, engine or train."

"The term railroad company or railway company is not necessarily limited to such corporations as are organized to use railroads for the purpose of carrying passengers and freight for hire," says Judge Dibell. "It may signify a corporation operating a line not a public service road or may signify an individual or co-partnership operating such road."

Judge Dibell then cites cases applying the term "railroad corporation owning or operating a railroad" to a lumber company operating a logging road, a narrow gauge road engaged in stripping and using dump cars, and a dinky engine, a commercial road operated by a receiver, or a co-partnership engaged in grading the main track of a railroad. He points out that if the act applies only to railroads carrying passengers for hire, the men working on logging and mining roads are not protected as it would appear the legislature intended they should be. The hazards of men engaged in railroad work in yards, where passengers are in no danger, are no greater than those of men engaged in working on roads not public service roads, he says, and yet the statute is construed to apply to men working in freight yards of public service railroads.

Judge Dibell says there is no doubt of the constitutionality of the act and the act being constitutional and applicable to the case in hand, the jury was justified in finding the verdict it did. The man himself assumed no risks in working the excessive hours, he says.

No Choice For Senator.

Springfield, Ill., March 25.—On the sixty-first joint ballot for Senator A. J. Hopkins with 74 votes, led. There was no choice and the joint session then arose to resume the balloting next Tuesday noon with the understanding that the quorum of the joint session is to be broken tomorrow.

COMMITTEE IS AT ODDS

Senatorial Primary Probers Are Getting Farther Apart.

There Is Talk of a Split—Riordan Continues.

Madison, Wis., March 25.—"Where are the rest of those insurgents?" inquired Assemblyman Ingalls when he appeared in the senatorial primary investigation room today and found all his assembly colleagues there and Senator Husting, (a Democrat) was the sole senatorial representative. The prospect that "something was going to happen" seemed uppermost in the minds of the committee, but with D. E. Riordan, a Stephenson witness still on the stand, there was no telling just what would happen after Riordan should be excused.

The committee by a vote of 5 to 3 has decided to call other than Stephenson witnesses to inquire into the expenditures of the other senatorial candidates. The senate members of the committee voted against the resolution and there is talk of a split in the committee.

Riordan said his statement of expenditures, which was to be made entirely from memory was not yet finished. Witness stated late yesterday afternoon that he expended between $2,700 and $2,800 in six counties in behalf of Stephenson.

Later in the forenoon Chairman Marsh added his presence to the committee. Mr. Riordan said he could present a list of names aggregating over 1,200 to show who received money for campaign work. Out of a total of $3,200, which he received, he accounted in detail for all but $1,500, which latter amount witness said was spent while traveling about the state. In answer to questions, Mr. Riordan said large expenditures of money are not conducive of good public policy and should never have been used.

The committee decided to certify to the legislature the names of L. H. Stevens, L. E. Gill, Richard Level and T. Hanson as having ignored subpoenas. They were called upon for the Stephenson investigation. Kingsley of La Crosse, the game warden to whom Warden Stone had testified he gave money, wanted to go on the stand to deny receiving anything from Stone. Two other wardens, Senator Morris stated, wanted to make similar statements.

A resolution was introduced in the senate today providing for the appointment of a committee of senators to continue the investigation of the senatorial campaign of Isaac Stephenson, and to inquire into the election of Isaac Stephenson by members of the legislature.

The resolution provides that this investigation shall take up the work where the committee leaves off, on April 10.

WALKED AROUND BEHIND CAR

And Now Asks $7,000 for What Happened to Him.

Before Judge Cant in district court the suit of Charles Swanson against the Duluth Street Railway company for $7,000 damages for injuries sustained by being struck by a street, is being heard.

Swanson claims that one night last fall he left a car at Thirtieth avenue west on Third street and went around the rear of the car. As he stepped from behind the car, he claims, he was struck by a car going in the opposite direction.

He claims his leg was broken and he received severe injuries to his back. Negligence of the motorman of the car which struck him is charged, as the car failed to stop to avoid passengers alighting from the other car. The company claims Swanson rushed across the track without using due caution, and he was himself responsible for the injury.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

AMATEUR WRESTLERS

Tournament For City Championship in Three Classes.

Best Grapplers in the City Will Come Together.

An amateur wrestling tournament will be held Saturday, April 2, at the Y. M. C. A.

The men will wrestle for the championship of the city in three classes, lightweight, welter weight and middle weight. On Monday night the preliminary matches will be held, getting the men down to the finals, and on April 2 the finals will take place and the championship of the association in the three classes decided.

The middle weight match is expected to be a good one. George Johnson will meet Cheve Caro, a Greek who knows something about the game. Johnson has a reputation about the building as being a hard nut to crack, and Mr. Frey says that when the men come together for the championship there will be witnessed one of the best matches ever pulled off in the city. The man getting two out of three falls will be declared the winner.

Salom and Swerdloff will probably be the men to contest in the lightweight class, and in the welter weight class there are entered the following men: George Bailey, L. F. Ames, Frank Peterson, John Zaiser, Minor Beals, G. Johnson, C. A. Johnson, H. Barmann and Fred Strum.

While wrestling is not as popular as boxing, there is plenty of interest in the tournament, and there is much rivalry as to who is the best man in the several classes.

Will Meet Gotch.

Kansas City, Mo., March 25.—A great crowd is expected to witness the championship match between Frank Gotch of America and Raoul de Rouen of France in Convention hall tonight Dave Portous will referee. The match will be catch-as-catch-can. Gotch weighed in last night, scaling 212 pounds. De Rouen weighed 261 pounds. At the time of his bout with Hackenschmidt in Chicago, Gotch weighed 190 pounds in his wrestling togs.

HANDBALL TOURNAMENT

Forty Entries for Big Event at the Y. M. C. A.

First Meet of the Kind Ever Held in Duluth.

The first handball tournament ever attempted in the city is being planned by August J. Frey, physical director at the Y. M. C. A.

There are some forty entries in the singles. Partners for the doubles will be drawn the same as rinks are selected at the curling rink, and both the doubles and the singles will be run off in bonspiel style. That is, when one man is defeated in the singles, or two men are defeated in the doubles, they are out of it. As long as a team wins, it is still in the race, and as soon as it loses, it is out.

As soon as the draws are made, the teams will be posted in the lobby of the building, so that the men may know with whom they are to play. Saturday evening the entry list will be closed and the officials of the tournament wish all those who intend to enter to do so before that time.

The singles will begin April 1 and continue until April 20. The doubles will begin April 20 and finish ten days later.

There will be as a prize for the winner of the singles a gold watch fob, and for the team that wins the doubles there will be a stick pin for each man.

There is a great deal of interest being displayed in the event and it promises to be successful in every way. There has been more interest inthe game this year than ever before and some remarkably good players have been developed from among many men who at the beginning of the season had never played the game.

The list of men who have entered in the singles up to date follows:

W. Johnson, A. J. Larson, Ed Walker, William Wendlandt, W. Kilchli, A. W. Withrow, Ward Ames, Jr., G. H. Spencer, D. Deighten, Louis Whitehead, F. C. Colman, W. S. Telford, J. L. Strong, W. G. Hall, A. S. Ames, Parker Paine, John Ball, O. L. Mather, C. F. Sheldon, W. Lippold, W. Wegman, C. Driesback, F. Pease, G. Helmer, W. Matteson, Arthur Barnes, Bert Wheeler, E. Harbison, Arvod Johnson, W. H. Pryor, E. J. Kenny, L. H. Jones, Clarence Olson.

SELECTED BY THE GOVERNOR

Hughes, Vasaly and Armson Are Reported to be Chosen.

St. Paul, Minn., March 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Dispatch says today: Within the next month, Governor Johnson will have three important vacancies to fill, and the following are said to be selected:

Martin Hughes, Hibbing, judge of the judicial district created for the benefit of the Iron ranges.

Charles Vasaly, Little Falls, member of the board of control, to succeed S. W. Leavitt, retired.

Mayor Armson, Stillwater, member of the tax commission, to succeed F. L. McVey, resigned.

The reported selection of Justice Brown for a federal judgeship may add another plum to the list, but there is nothing definite about this.

FIREWORKS IN DISTRICT COURT

Four Attorneys and Book Agent Have Lively Tilt.

There is sulphur in the air in Judge Ensign's room in district court, and the smell of brimstone greets the spectator who wanders in. Four lawyers and a law-book agent are the cause of it all, and the court and jury sit by and wonder just where they are at. If any of the principals knows just what it's all about, it may come out later.

It seems the L. L. Powell company, through an agent, sold Joseph De La Motte a set of lawbooks, on which there is about $54 due. At the same time, a deal was arranged between Mr. De La Motte and the agent, whereby the agent took a number of books from Mr. DeLaMotte and agreed to furnish some other secondhand books in their place.

To the claim of the book company for the balance on the set of books purchased, Mr. De LaMotte interposed a counter claim for about $200, which he claimed was due on account of the non-fulfillment of the other contract. The agent says the contract for exchange was a personal matter with him, and he wasn't acting for the company. Mr. De LaMotte says it was all a transaction with the company. All of this is being put up to the jury in a fire-eating manner by the attorneys concerned, with the book agent as a witness furnishing a goodly quantity of the fireworks.

A War Ship Garage.

So sure is Germany that the dirigible air-ship will be of great value in times of war that she is not only preparing to build a number of airships of the type invented by Count Zeppelin, that plans have been made for a great garage or house in which are to be kept the Imperial German aerial fleet. This is to be erected at Freidrichshof. It will also be remembered that the part of ruling Golden Grain Belt beer, now so popular in America, owes its origin to Germany. Get a case for your cellar and use it regularly. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth Branch Minneapolis Brewing Co.

PIG IRON MEN ENTER PROTEST

They Oppose Putting Iron Ore Upon the Free List.

Youngstown, Ohio, March 25.—Independent pig iron manufacturers who met in Cleveland yesterday adopted a formal protest against the free admission of iron ore, and reduction or iron and steel crap duty from $4 to 50c.

A memorial to this effect is being prepared to send to congress. Practically all the independent blast furnace men west of the Allegheny mountains are behind the movement.

BODY DANGLES BETWEEN CARS

It Is Not Known How Man Met His Death.

La Crosse, Wis., March 25.—With the body of a man dangling between two cars the passenger train on the Burlington road passed through this city today. The passengers on the train were unaware of the meaning of the shouts of the people who saw the body.

Letters in the man's pockets gave his name as Charles Zattel of New York city. He was about 28 years old.

It is not known when or how the accident happened.

NATIONAL EQUITY OFFICERS TO G

WHEAT HAS A DECLINE

Selling by Pit Traders Causes Weakness at the Close.

Flax Is In Firm Demand During Session in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 25.—Wheat was fairly steady during the first half of the session today, but during the second half, selling by pit traders caused a decline, the close showing fractional losses from yesterday. The market was rather devoid of news to sway values either up or down. Broomhall estimates the Argentine shipments of wheat this week at 3,600 bu.

Liverpool closed ½d to ¼d lower, Berlin ⅜c lower.

The May option closed ¾c lower in Duluth, ⅝c lower in Chicago, 1c lower in Minneapolis, ½c lower in New York, St. Louis and Winnipeg, and ⅜@½c lower in Kansas City. The July option closed ¾c lower in Duluth, ⅝c lower in Chicago, New York and Kansas City, ⅞@1c lower in Minneapolis, ⅝@¾c lower in St. Louis, and ½c lower in Winnipeg.

May corn closed a shade higher in Chicago, and ⅛d lower in Liverpool. May oats closed ½c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Wheat—There was a firm undertone to the speculative wheat market at the opening here, and values were ⅛d higher. The strength in America yesterday and the continued unfavorable reports regarding the American winter wheat outlook caused shorts to cover. Following the opening, the market further gained ¼d. Support at this time was attributed to the forecast of lighter shipments this week both from Argentina and Australia and the uncertainty regarding the Balkan situation. Later some easiness developed and part of the advance was lost. Arrivals here are heavy and the demand was less urgent. Berlin at the opening showed a decline, and consols were steadier in view of the fact that the stock market at Vienna was firmer and less disposed to be alarmed over the war talk. At midday, the market was firm and unchanged to ⅛d higher than yesterday."

Corn was steady and ⅛d higher. The market was dull with a firm undertone, due to the strength in America and the growing scarcity of spots."

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 58 against 48 last year, and at Minneapolis 174 against 137 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 232 against 185 last year. Chicago received 59 against 22 last year. Winnipeg received 171 against 122 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 472,000 bu., last year 372,000 bu. Shipments 508,000 bu., last year 258,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 391,000 bus., last year 521,000 bu. Shipments 536,000 bu., last year 392,000 bu.

Wheat was fairly active during the latter part of the session in the Duluth market. May wheat opened ¼c lower at $1.14⅝, eased off to $1.14¼, rallied to $1.14⅜, declined to $1.13⅞, and closed there, a loss of ¾c from yesterday. July wheat opened ⅝c lower at $1.14⅝, advanced to $1.15⅛, declined to $1.14½ and closed there, a loss of ¾c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed unchanged and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 1¾c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was in good demand today and closed higher. May flax opened unchanged at $1.61½; advanced to $1.62½ and closed there, a gain of 1c over yesterday. July flax advanced from $1.61 to $1.62 and closed at $1.61¾, a gain of ¾c over yesterday. September flax opened unchanged at $1.41, advanced to $1.41¼, a gain of ¼c over yesterday. October flax opened unchanged at $1.36¾, advanced to $1.36⅞ and closed there, a gain of ½c over yesterday.

Oats closed ½c lower and other coarse grains unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Traders in the Pit Generally Inclined to be Bearish.

Chicago, March 25.—Traders in the wheat pit were generally bearishly inclined today, and the market was rather weak early in the day. The advance of the last three days drove a large number of shorts to cover, which left the market in position to react on any show of selling. The Liverpool market was not so firm as expected, following the sharp advance here yesterday, and this had a weakening influence. Prices at the start were ⅛@¼c to ⅜@½c lower, May being at $1.17¼ to $1.17½, and July at $1.04 to $1.04⅛. For a time May held within the opening range, but July eased off to $1.03⅞ to $1.04.

The market rallied a little toward the middle of the session, May advancing to $1.17¾ and July to $1.04½. Prices declined again during the final hour on selling by pit traders and commission houses, May dropping to $1.17 and July to $1.03⅜. The close was weak with May off ⅝c at $1.17@⅛. July was down ⅝c at $1.03⅜.

The weather bureau prediction of fair weather throughout the corn belt prompted moderate selling of corn, which caused considerable weakness early in the session. May opened a shade lower to ⅛c higher at 66⅜@66⅞c to 67c and sold off to 65½@65⅝c.

The market rallied with wheat, May advancing to 67½c, but eased off again late in the session. The close was easy with May a shade higher at 66⅞@67c. Oats were subjected to heavy selling pressure at the start, resulting in sharp declines. Much of the selling was based on favorable conditions for seeding in the southwest. May opened unchanged to a shade higher at 54⅝@54¾c to 54¾c, and declined to 54¼c.

Provisions were quiet and steady. A 5c decline in live hogs offset, for a time, the weakness of coarse grain.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Break Toward End of Session, When May Wheat Lowers.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 25.—Minneapolis elevator stocks of wheat decreased 200,000 bushels for five days. The early session was very quiet and uneventful, but toward the end there was a break. May went as low as $1.12⅝, and closed at $1.13⅜@¾c lower than yesterday's closing price. Minneapolis got 174 cars, against 173; Duluth, 58, against 48; Winnipeg, 170, against 122. May opened at $1.14½; high, $1.14⅝; low, $1.13⅝; close, $1.13⅝@¾. July opened $1.15¼; high, $1.15⅜; low, $1.14½; close, $1.14½. Cash wheat was in strong demand. Local millers were the best buyers, and elevator interests and country millers were in the market. Offerings were light, and some wheat to arrive was sold. No. 1 northern went for 2¾c over May, and No. 2 for ¼c over May price. Close—No. 1 northern, $1.15⅜@⅝; to arrive, $1.15⅜@⅝; No. 2 northern, $1.13⅜@⅝; to arrive, $1.13⅜@⅝. No. 3 wheat, $1.09⅜@⅝; No. 3 yellow corn, 60⅜@61½c; No. 3 white oats, 50⅝@51⅞c; No. 2 rye, 72⅜@75¾c.

Flax—Receipts, 10 cars against 37; shipments none. Again today the lack of offerings made the market inactive. Demand was strong and prices held firm with the Duluth May quotations. Close, $1.62¼.

Barley—Receipts 39 cars today against 20; shipments 24. The market was steady. Demand only fair and prices were the same. Inquiry was about equal for both the feeding and malting grades. Close 60½@62c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,567 tons. Demand was strong and in excess of the supply. Shipments were heavy and prices held firm. Bran in bulk $23.00@23.50.

Flour was in only fair demand at the best. There was no foreign inquiry. Country millers are doing a better business than the local market. Shipments increased and prices held firm. Shipments, 47,873 barrels. First patents, $5.45@5.55; second patents, $5.35@5.45; first clears, $4.35@4.45; second clears, $3.15@3.25.

HEARD ON THE FLOOR.

Gossip of the Trading Room and the Pit.

The foreign demand for durum and Manitoba wheat continues, local exporters working parcels about every day.

Durum wheat closed firm in Duluth, although the spring wheat options were soft. Durum was unchanged from yesterday.

Argentine shipments of wheat last week were 4,848,000 bu. The estimate of this week's shipments is 3,500,000 bu. This, from Broomhill, furnished about the only bullish news of the session.

Minneapolis puts were $1.12⅞, and calls $1.14¼.

Chicago July ups were $1.01⅜@⅛@¼, and $1.04¼, and downs were $1.03.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., March 25.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: Horses of all classes found ready buyers at today's big sale, and the demand for big mules exceeded the supply. Three loads of farm farmes and horses arrived on the market just in time to get them into the ring and, although they were shrunk out and tired from the long shipment, they, nevertheless, met with easy clearance to bidders from the Dakotas and Canada. The market is a disappointment to shippers and dealers, as values fail to make the usual spring advance and dealers who bought expecting to make their profit on the higher spring prices will have to stand a loss. Horses are selling cheaper on the market today than they are out at the country crossroads among the farmers.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Market Opened Higher and Moved Within a Narrow Range.

Drifted Downward Toward the Close, Which Was Steady.

New York, March 25.—Prices of stocks advanced quite uniformly throughout the list in the opening transactions today. The dealings, however, were on a moderate scale. Utah Copper rose 1, Consolidated Gas ¾, and Reading ⅝. Wabash preferred sold at a decline of ¾.

Weakness in Reading and the Hill and Harriman stocks caused the list to fall below yesterday's final prices. Offerings were small and when several specialties began to show strength the general market became steady.

Prices backed and filled within a narrow range without any very consistent tone. A scattered demand for some of the low priced railroad stocks stiffened the list. Bonds were steady.

The Erie stocks and bonds sold higher, the buying being stimulated by a report that the public service commission would make some modifications in the terms of the proposed bond issue. The gain in Erie reached 1½. The rest of the list was unaltered and semi-stagnant. Metropolitan Street Railway sold at a decline of seven points.

The market closed steady. The market drifted downward again and then became practically motionless. Allis-Chalmers preferred rose 1 and Wabash preferred 1⅜.

TAXATION OF RAILROADS WILL NOT BE INCREASED BY STATE LEGISLATURE

Spooner Bill Increasing Gross Earnings Tax Killed by Committee.

Eleventh District Judgeship Bill Now Goes to the Governor.

Killing of Armour Packing Plant Bill Was Big Surprise.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Taxation of railroads will not be increased at this session.

The house committee on taxes and tax laws yesterday afternoon voted to recommend for indefinite postponement the Spooner bill increasing the gross earnings tax upon railroads from 4 per cent to 6 per cent.

This means the defeat of the bill, as no fight will be made for it in the house, in all probability.

Other interests may be subjected to special taxes, but the railroads, in triumphant control of the legislative situation as usual, will go scot free.

This in spite of the fact that if railroad property were assessed and taxed upon an ad valorem basis, they would pay very much more than 6 per cent tax upon their gross earnings.

This in spite of the fact that the ordinary city real estate owner pays from 10 to 15 per cent upon the gross earnings of his property in taxes.

This in spite of the fact that the author of the bill, L. C. Spooner of Morris, showed the tax committee that in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, the net earnings of the Minnesota railroads were more than twice as much as was needed to pay a 6 per cent dividend upon the entire capital stock of the railroad property in Minnesota, water and all.

The figures show that in 1908 the gross earnings of the railroads amounted to $88,674,277.44, and operating expenses to $48,247,178.29. This left net earnings of $40,427,099.35, and

SENATOR G. R. LAYBOURN
Of Duluth, Who Forced the Senate Committee to Report Reapportionment Bill.

JUSTICE REFUSED

Senate Kills Reapportionment Bill Reported by Committee.

Opshahl of Bemidji Beautifully Sat Upon by House.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Reapportionment had short shrift in the senate. That body immediately postponed the committee bill, described elsewhere, almost immediately upon its appearance in the house this morning, by a vote of 38 to 17. Thus bears out The Herald's prediction that there had been no intention of permitting reapportionment at this session. When the committee reported the bill, its chairman moved that the bill be made a special order for April 5.

Senators Putnam and Moonan, as a minority of the committee, moved as a substitute that the bill be indefinitely postponed.

Senator Laybourn of Duluth made a gallant fight for the measure, pointing out the gross injustice of the present representation, but the motion to kill the bill carried by the following vote: To kill the bill—Ahmann, Anderson, Bedford, Briggs, Campbell, Canfield, Carpenter, Cashman, Cotter, Dale, Donaldson, Duttoit, Elwell, Farrington,

INDICT CASHIER OF RUINED BANK

Iowa Grand Jurors Act in the Case of Coburn.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 26.—The federal grand jury has returned an indictment against R. E. Coburn, cashier of the defunct First National bank of Carroll, Iowa, for irregularities in connection with the national banking act.

Coburn was arrested today and his bonds fixed at $3,000.

The First National bank of Carroll failed last October when the news that its president, W. F. Culbertson had committed suicide.

CAPITAL IS DUMFOUNDED

Suicide of Mrs. Pierre Lorillard Stuns Washington Society.

Died With Diamonds She Wore at Reception Still On.

Washington, March 26. — Nothing so sensational as the suicide by asphyxiation of Mrs. Pierre Lorillard Jr., wife of the tobacco magnate, has occurred in the capital for years. The prominence of the family and the mystery surrounding the affair lends peculiar interest. Washington was dumfounded when the news became known. Coroner Nevitt has a sealed envelope which Mrs. Lorillard left pinned to her clothing and which reads: "To be buried with me unopened," as well as another envelope in the room, containing a note. He says he will not make public the contents of either, because he has been requested not to.

The death was made more dramatic by occurring only a few hours after Mr. and Mrs. Lorillard had been guests of Mrs. Townsend, on Massachusetts avenue at a dinner given in honor of Lady Paget. As soon as Mrs. Lorillard arrived at her home, 2030 Hillyer street, shortly after midnight, she began to prepare for her death.

The butler detected an odor of gas, and with little difficulty the origin was traced to Mrs. Lorillard's apartments. Opening the door of the bath room, just off her suite, the butler was horrified to behold the body of the mistress of the house stretched out lifeless on the floor.

The last person to see Mrs. Lorillard alive was Mr. Lorillard, when he bade her good night as they separated to go to their apartments. Mrs. Lorillard was then seemingly in the best of spirits. She had disrobed, and when found her body was clothed in a dressing gown. The dog collar of diamonds she wore at the dinner had been removed before she went to the bath room, but a costly ornament of diamonds in her hair had not been displaced.

REPORT ON STATE FAIR

Criticisms Made by Special Investigating Committee of House.

Books Not Kept Properly, But No Dishonesty Shown.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representatives J. T. Johnson, E. A. Kling, Thomas Kneeland and J. R. Phillips, the special committee appointed to investigate the condition of the Minnesota State Agricultural society made a report to the house this morning. The report states that owing to the society's books, records and accounts not having been kept in a systematic and orderly manner, much time was consumed by witnesses in searching for information necessary to answer the committee's questions. The management of the society is vested in a board of six managers, who at their last annual meeting elected the following officers: B. F. Nelson, president; J. J. Furlong, first vice president; J. H. Beebe, second vice president; C. M. Cosgrove, secretary; E. L. Mattson, treasurer. The only bylaws of the society were alleged to have been adopted at the annual meeting in 1885, and there is no record of any amendments. The original draft could not be found. The laws of 1905 make it the secretary's duty to file with the governor before Dec. 10 of each year a detailed report of all receipts and expenditures for the preced-

WORK UPON JURY WEARS HIM OUT

Illinoisan, Aged 60, Falls in Faint—Probed Packers.

Chicago, March 26.—Worn out by constant service for the last three months on the federal grand jury, which has been investigating the case of the Chicago packers, John Cook, 60 years old, of Plano, Ill., fell in a faint on Clark street today while on his way to the federal building.

The aged juror was taken into the United States marshal's office, where he was soon restored to consciousness.

Cook has had several fainting spells while serving on the jury, which has been in session since Dec. 23.

FARGO MAY SECURE VEGETABLE CANNERY.

Fargo, N. D.—(Special to The Herald.)—A vegetable cannery seems assured for Fargo as a result of recent agitation of the subject by the local press. F. F. Reynolds, a former Iowan and who is familiar with the business is the promoter. He has secured a sufficent pledges from the farmers immediately around Fargo to plant the kind of vegetables required in sufficient quantities for a cannery and says that if a suitable site is secured he will establish a plant in time to handle the 1909 crop.

CANADA WOULD START A NAVY

Dominion Ministers Favor Having One or Two Dreadnoughts.

Ottawa, Ont., March 26.—The Canadian government will make an offer of naval assistance. Since the announcement of the British naval budget there has been a feeling in Canada that the dominion should take a share in carrying the naval burden of the British empire.

The sentiment among the Canadian ministers is that the Dominion should build a Dreadnought or possibly two of them and control their movements, probably using them in the training of a naval militia. Should war break out these vessels would be placed at the disposal of the British naval authorities.

TO BID HUSBAND A FINAL GOODBY

Mrs. Farmer May See Him Before Being Electrocuted.

Albany, N. Y., March 26.—Before Mrs. Mary Farmer meets death in the electric chair in Auburn prison next Monday morning, she will be permitted to bid goodby to her husband, James D. Farmer, who occupies a cell in the death house of the prison, condemned to die for complicity in the murder of Mrs. Sarah Brennan, for which Mrs. Farmer is to be executed.

Supt. Collins of the prison said today that he had advised Warden Benham in Auburn, that the comdemned couple be permitted to see each other before the parting if either expressed a desire to do so.

Preuarations for the execution are complete, and it will be devoid of sensationalism and quickly carried out. A woman attendant will accompany Mrs. Farmer to the chair.

TURN TIDE TO PEACE

Servian Crown Prince's Action May Clear Balkan Situation.

He Is Willing to Go Away for Long Time.

Belgrade, March 26.—As soon as Crown Prince George informs his father, King Peter, that it is his irrevocable wish to renounce his right of succession to the Servian throne, the king will assent and will ask parliament to sanction a proclamation declaring his second son, Alexander, to be heir to the throne.

Alexander spent some time in St. Petersburg as a student and is an intelligent and serious-minded young man.

The cabinet has issued a statement that the servant Kolakovitz, for whose death the crown prince was said to be responsible, asserted when he was brought to the hospital that his injury had been caused by falling downstairs in the dark.

The body showed no external injuries, and consequently the authorities had no reason to pursue the matter further. In the event of new facts being discovered there will be a fresh investigation.

The prince declares that before leaving the country he will await the final result of the pending political situation, and will join the volunteers as a private in the event of war. His letter says: "Driven by unjustified insinuations, based on an unfortunate occurrence, I beg in defense of my honor, as well as my conscience, to declare that I renounce all claim to the throne, as well as any other privileges to which I am entitled. I beg you to take the necessary steps that this action may receive sanction. I place my services as a soldier and a citizen at the disposal of the king and the

KIDNAPERS PROTECTED

Trip Made in Daylight as Mob Violence Is Feared.

Father of the Woman Is Discovered in Chicago.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 26.—A conference was held today in the office of Detective Perkins and Chief of Police Crain of Sharon and Sheriff Cress of Mercer county, as to the next move in the Whitla kidnaping case. James Boyle and his wife, the abductors, who were brought to the Allegheny county jail from Cleveland, Ohio, last night, had a good night's rest. Mrs. Boyle seemed greatly pleased with her quarters, and said this morning:

"Really, it is pleasant here."

Unlike his vivacious wife, Boyle is morose.

To avoid any unpleasantness, the Boyles will not be taken to Sharon, but will go direct to the jail in Mercer, Pa. The abductors were brought to this city last night, so the trip to Mercer could be made in daylight. It is admitted the officers feared violence at Sharon or Mercer, should the prisoners arrive at night.

"Please say that I do not get up on tables and dance, won't you?" said Mrs James Boyle to a newspaper man in the parlor car, which brought her and her husband from Cleveland to Pittsburg. "And say also that I never made the remarks attributed to me."

"You mean about there being hell in Sharon?"

"Yes. I guess that's what Sharon had, wasn't it, but I never blasphemed. And I never was a burlesque actress nor have I ever been on the stage at all."

"Did you know any of the Whitla family or the relatives before you saw them in Cleveland?"

"I never saw any of them except the boy before yesterday."

Most of the questions asked were

WRIGHTS RETURN HOME VERY SOON

Orville Hopes to Take Part in Government Tests.

Washington, March 26.—Aerial flights at Fort Myer, where the government aeronautical tests were held last summer, will be resumed in May. The Wright brothers are expected to arrive with their aeroplane before June 1. Orville Wright, who was seriously injured in the wreck of his aeroplane at Fort Myer last September, hopes to complete the official trials of the aeroplane himself. In a letter received here today from France he says:

"If I am sufficiently recovered I will complete the demonstrations myself." The Wrights have a contract to fulfill in Rome, where they have gone from Pau, France. Orville expresses in his letter his disappointment at not having been able to make a flight before leaving Pau.

The Wrights, accompanied by their sister, Miss Catherine Wright expect to return to America about May 1.

GRAIN MEN CONCERNED

Canadians Foresee Rate War With United States Carriers.

Reduction Expected When Lake Navigation Season Opens.

Winnipeg, Man., March 26.—Local grain men are concerned over the prospect of a rate war in the carrying of grain between Port Arthur, Fort William and the Atlantic seaboard. It appears likely there will be a drop of from 15 to 25 per cent in grain rates from Port Arthur to Montreal at the opening of navigation, occasioned by the cutting of rates by United States carriers, in an effort to keep the trade in the United States channels. This cut is calculated to divert trade from Montreal back to United States routes, and to offset this Canadian vessel owners will likely cut their rates from Port Arthur and Fort William to Montreal. Carrying rates of last year averaged about 6 cents per bushel between the Head of the Lakes and Montreal. It is expected that in the early part of the coming summer rates will drop down to 5 cents, and possibly 4½. So rush of grain to the East at the opening of navigation is looked for. There are 2,000,000 less bushels of grain at the Head of the Lakes now than at this time last year.

STUDENT SHOOTS HIMSELF FATALLY

F. A. Russell of Buchanan, N. D., Attempts to Commit Suicide.

Fargo, N. D., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—F. Agee Russell, 19 years old, a student at the agricultural college, atempted suicide this morning by shooting himself three times in the head with a small caliber revolver. The physicians say he cannot recover.

Russell was a clever student, boy of exemplary habits and in his third year at college. His father, S. R. Russell, resides at Buchanan, Stutsman county

OBERLIN CARTER SERIOUSLY ILL

Former Captain, Who Was Tried, Threatened by Pneumonia.

Chicago, March 26.—Oberlin M. Carter, former captain of the United States army, is seriously ill of pneumonia at the home of his brother in this city. He recently contracted a cold and symptoms of pneumonia developed soon after.

Culbertson at Vincennes Seeks to Unravel Wife's Past.

Theory That Jealous Rival Poisened Her Is Disproved.

Plaster of Paris Skull and Crossbones Were Her Own.

Vincennes, Ind., March 26.—Jessie Lee Overton Culbertson's life ended in the same mystery that had enshrouded it for years. The bride of three months who was believed to have been murdered, the police are now convinced killed herself, and those who knew her intimately assert that the mysterious circumstances attending her taking off were in keeping with her character.

Her husband today is seeking to trace her antecedents. He has telephoned to physicians with whom Mrs. Culbertson had been associated as a nurse and to her personal friends, asking for information concerning her family. Chief of Police Evans, after a conference with Coroner Beckes this morning, declared he is no longer seeking evidence that the woman was murdered. Coroner Beckes, when he learned that the woman suspected of implication in the crime had been

RANSOM LETTER BELIEVED JOKE

Pittsburg Bricklayer Gets One After His Boy Vanishes.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 26.—Lawrence Gibson, 14 years old, of Tioga street this city, disappeared last night and about midnight his father received a special delivery letter demanding a ransom of $15,000 for his son's return.

The police were immediately notified and after investigating the case are inclined to believe the lad, with the aid of boy friends, is trying to play a joke on his father, who is a bricklayer.

Mrs. Gibson, the boy's mother, is greatly worried, but admits the handwriting in the letter resembles her son's.

Steamer Runs Aground.

New York, March 26.—The El Rio, a large freight steamer of the Southern Pacific company bound in for Galveston, ran aground just north of Sandy Hook, early. It is supposed the high wind and low tide drove the steamer onto the shoals. She managed to back off the sandbar late, and proceeded up the bay without apparent damage from the grounding. The El Rio carried no passengers.

EAGER FOR DEPUTIES

"Why Don't They Testify?" Is Asked at Hearing.

C. M. Perry of Oshkosh Before the Primary Probers.

Madison, Wis., March 26.—When the senatorial primary investigation opened today Senator Morris reminded the committee that State Game Warden Stone had promised to appear again and, "at least some of the deputies," have intimated that they wish to refute Stone's testimony and asked why the assembly members refused to continue the examination of Stone and the deputies.

"I'll tell you why," promptly responded Mr. Bray. "The reason has been given a thousand times. First, it is because the majority of the committee voted to go into the examination of other candidates."

Mr. Bray added that he did not expect to find anything rotten in the Cook and Hatton quiz, and he did not believe the examination into the other candidates would occupy until April 10.

Mr. Hambrecht declared Stone is still sick and unable to appear. After more wrangling, C. M. Perry of Oshkosh was called. He said he had done little work for Hatton and had spent his own money, $10 and $15, and did not expect to be reimbursed. He received $50 from John Strange, which he gave to his father, William Perry, to be spent in Hatton's behalf. He was too busy to do any work himself.

Mr. Perry said his father told him he had not kept an itemized account. Questioning developed that witness was paid $25 or $30 a day when Stephenson was seeking election to the [illegible] expired term of Spooner. Witness favored Stephenson then, believed Stephenson would promise not to run a

ROOF FALLS IN; DUE TO THE THAW

Small Part of the Wisconsin Central Tunnel Gives Way.

Due to the warm weather of late and the frost going out of the ground so rapidly, a part of the roof of the bore in the Wisconsin Central tunnel between Ninth and Tenth avenues west fell in yesterday afternoon, and the men are this morning busy bolstering up the rest of the tunnel and filling in the hole.

The street car tracks over the mouth of the tunnel at Eleventh avenue have been underlaid with heavy timbers and even though the whole street should cave in at this point, it would not interfere with street car traffic.

Construction men are glad to see the frost going out of the ground so rapidly, as it makes excavation so much easier.

TWO NEW BUILDINGS.

West End Shows Activity in the Building Line.

The West end will have two new business blocks.

Dr. L. O. Greeley and E. A. Smith have bought, through the offices of P. George Hanson, two 25-foot lots at 1922 and 1924 West Superior street. They will construct two buildings on the property, to be used for business purposes. John Eckman has already leased the first floor in one of the buildings and he will, as soon as it is completed, conduct a book and stationery store there.

Several other West end merchants are after the other store, but as yet it has not been let.

THROWN FROM HORSE.

Miss Myrtle Perry Has Narrow Escape From Serious Injuries.

Miss Myrtle Perry of 1031 West Third street was thrown from her horse yesterday afternoon, at the corner of Ninth avenue west and Third street, and if she had not landed in a pile of soft clay, which workmen had thrown from an excavation, she undoubtedly would have been seriously injured, for she fell on her neck and shoulders.

As it was, she escaped with a lame shoulder, although she was momentarily stunned. George M. Jensen happened to witness the fall, and he assisted Miss Perry home. The horse was caught later. Its fright was caused by a large dog, which ran into the street barking, and jumped at its head. The horse reared up on its hind legs, unseating its rider.

Miss Perry says she does not know who owns the dog, but that she has been bothered by it before, and that it frequently comes out into the street to bark at passing horses.

ATTORNEY GETS JUDGMENT.

J. De LaMotte Wins Suit Against Book Company.

A jury in district court yesterday afternoon decided that J. De LaMotte was entitled to $250 damages against the L. D. Powell company, which brought suit against him, alleging a default in the payment of $54 due on a set of books which Mr. De LaMotte purchased.

Mr. De LaMotte met the book company with a counter claim, alleging that he had made a collateral agreement with the book agent to deliver a set of books from his office, in exchange for which the agent was to furnish him with books of equal value. Mr. De LaMotte claimed the agent took his books, but never furnished the others.

The agent claimed that the Powell company had nothing to do with the agreement between him and Mr De LaMotte, as he made it personally. The jury thought differently, and decided that the company was liable to Mr. De LaMotte for the value of the books taken from his office by the agent.

$22,186,543.55, a little more than half that, would have paid a 6 per cent dividend upon the entire capitalization of the Minnesota railroad property.

The chief argument against the increase in the gross earnings tax was that it would affect the pending suits in the federal courts to lower freight rates in Minnesota. As to this, Mr. Spooner showed that the measure, even if passed by the legislature, could not become effective until the people had passed upon it in November, 1910, and by that time the pending suits ought to be settled. While the railroad attorneys might point to the passage of the bill and attempt to make it an argument against freight reduction, Mr. Spooner said that no court would admit such evidence, as its value would depend upon the wholly speculative question of whether or not the people would approve the increase.

Representative Dalzell said that Attorney General Simpson had stated that the passage of such a law might affect the pending freight rate suits, and Mr. Spooner suggested that if the bill was killed, the responsibility ought to be thrown upon the attorney general by a public statement of his opinion. This, the committee failed to do, however.

Representative Bendixen moved that the bill be amended to make the rate 5 per cent instead of the proposed 6 per cent, but that amendment was lost.

Then the committee, by a viva voce vote, recommended the bill for indefinite postponement.

Senator George H. Layhourn's determined fight for a reapportionment bill bore fruit yesterday afternoon, when, on his motion, the senate committee on reapportionment voted, 9 to 6, to report out to the senate with a recommendation that it pass the bill that has been prepared by the clerk of the committee, O. L. Dornberg.

This is the measure which has already been described in The Herald, with a few changes, which the committee made in it. As it is reported out, it provides for fifty-one senators, a reduction of twelve from the present number, and 129 house members, an increase of one.

The St. Louis county districts retain the same number of senators, and the Forty-ninth district gains one house member, so that it would have one senator and three representatives. The Fiftieth district would remain just as it is, and the only change in the Fifty-first district would be, that one of the two house members would come from Lake and Cook counties, and the other from St. Louis county.

As it stands, the bill provides for the following districts, eachof which has one senator, and the number of representatives named:

First—Houston and Fillmore counties, two representatives.

Second—Winona county, two representatives.

Third—Olmsted and Wabasha counties, two representatives.

Fourth—Mower and Dodge counties, two representatives.

Fifth—Steele and Rice counties, two representatives.

Sixth—Freeborn and Waseca counties, two representatives.

Seventh—Faribault and Martin counties, two representatives.

Eighth—Blue Earth county, two representatives, and Watonwan county, one representative.

Ninth—Jackson, Cottonwood and Murray counties, three representatives.

Tenth—Nobles, Rock and Pipestone counties, three representatives.

Eleventh—Lyon, Lincoln and Yellow Medicine counties, three representatives.

Twelfth—Lac Qui Parle, Chippewa and Swift counties, two representatives.

Thirteenth—Redwood and Brown counties, two representatives.

Fourteenth—Nicollet and Le Sueur counties, two representatives.

Fifteenth—Sibley and Renville counties, two representatives.

Sixteenth—Scott and Dakota counties, two representatives.

Seventeenth—McLeod and Carver counties, two representatives.

Eighteenth—Washington county, one representative.

Twentieth to Twenty-fourth, inclusive, Ramsey county, five senators and eleventh representatives.

Twenty-fifth to Thirty-first, inclusive, Hennepin county, seven senators and sixteen representatives.

Thirty-second—Pine, Kanabec and Chisago counties, three representatives.

Thirty-third—Anoka, Sherburne and Isanti counties, three representatives.

Thirty-fourth—Mille Lacs and Benton counties and St. Cloud city, two representatives.

Thirty-fifth—Wright county, one representative.

Thirty-sixth—Mecker and Kandiyohi counties, two representatives.

Thirty-seventh—Big Stone, Traverse, Grant and Stevens counties, four representatives.

Thirty-eighth—Pope and Douglas counties, two representatives.

Thirty-ninth—Stearns county, two representatives.

Fortieth—Morrison and Crow Wing counties, two representatives.

Forty-first—Wadena and Todd counties, two representatives.

Forty-second—Otter Tail county, three representatives.

Forty-third—Becker, Clay and Wilkin counties, three representatives.

Forty-fourth — Norman, Mahnomen and Clearwater counties, two representatives, and Red Lake county, one representative.

Forty-fifth—Polk county, two representatives.

Forty-sixth—Marshall, Roseau and Kittson, three representatives.

Forty-seventh—Beltrami, Hubbard and Cass counties, three representatives.

Forty-eighth—Carlton, Aitkin, Itasca and Koochiching counties, four representatives.

Forty-ninth, Fiftieth and Fifty-first, St. Louis, Lake and Cook counties, three senators and seven representatives.

This doesn't represent exact justice, but it is the best that can be hoped for, and it is a step toward equal representation.

There has been some question—very little, but still a question—whether the legislature has a right to reapportion except at the first session following a census. In order to get around that for all time to come, the committee also recommends the passage of a proposed constitutional amendment definitely stating that the legislature may apportion whenever it sees fit.

The senate yesterday afternoon killed the Cashman distance tariff bill, which was up as a special order, by a vote of 23 for and 28 against.

Senator Frank Clague, who led the fight against the bill, said that its passage would not only disturb conditions throughout the state, but would jeopardize the state's chances in the suits now pending in the federal courts to lower freight rates. He quoted T. D. O'Brien and E. T. Young, the state's counsel in these cases, to that effect, and said that the author of the bill had admitted the fact. To this Mr. Cashman replied that the rate cases are the biggest farces going.

The vote on the bill was as follows:

For—Ahmann, Bedford, Canestorp, Cashman, Canfield, Farrington, Gloitzbach, Gunderson, A. L. Hanson, C. A. Johnson, Moonan, Naeseth, Robinson, Sageng, Schaller, Seward, Sundberg, Wels, White, Witherstine, Works, Wright—23.

Against—Alderman, Anderson, Briggs, Calhoun, Clague, Dale, Dunn, Durment, DuToit, Elwell, Fosseen, French, Gunn, Hackney, Hall, H. E. Hanson, Hardy, Hinton, V. L. Johnson, Laybourn, McColl, Peterson, Pugh, Smith, Stephens, Swanson, Thorpe, Wilson—28.

Absent and not voting—Campbell, Carpenter, Cooke, Donaldson, Johnson, McGowan, Nelson, Pauly, Poehler, Putnam, Sullivan, Vall—12.

The house yesterday afternoon passed the Thayer bill putting a stamp tax of 1 cent for each $100 upon sales of "products or merchandise at any exchange or board of trade or similar place in the state of Minnesota," 74 to 43. Representative Kneeland of Minneapolis, in opposing the bill, said that no stamp tax on sales had been proposed since the Boston Tea party, except in war times. This bill passed the house two years ago, and was defeated in the senate.

The house also passed the Stuart bill, reducing the mortgage registry tax from 50 cents per $100 to 10 cents per $100. Mr. Stuart believes that as the borrower always pays the tax, credits should be exempted from taxation altogether, but as there was a question whether it is constitutional to exempt anything from taxation, he compromised on this measure. The vote was 63 for and 25 against. There is talk of an attempt to reconsider the passage of the bill.

Speaker Rockne yesterday afternoon appointed the following committee to investigate the Spooner state prison bill passed a month ago, the committee being appointed in pursuance to a resolution adopted by the house calling for an investigation as to whether the $2,250,000 appropriated by the bill is to be wisely spent: Nolan, Spooner, Thayer, Fitzpatrick and White.

The house killed the Christensen bill providing that owners of property included in forfeited tax sales may, if there is no sale at the regular forfeited tax sale in November, bid in the property any time later at the minimum amount allowed for bids. The vote was 42 for and 46 against, and an attempt will probably be made to reconsider the defeat of the bill.

The house also passed the senate bill proposing a constitutional amendment to encourage private owners to make reforestration experiments by exempting growing timber from taxation until its girth is twelve inches. The Wells' bill amending the barber's license law to require licenses to be taken out annually at 50 cents a year was passed by the house, and so was the White bill putting sheriffs in smaller counties on a salary basis, so far as work for the county is concerned, but leaving them their fees for doing work for private individuals.

The sensation of the week was the action of the Ramsey county delegation moving the indefinite postponement of the Rowe bill prohibiting the establishment of packing plants within five miles of the state university or the state fair grounds, which disposed of yesterday afternoon's special order on the bill in quick time.

Outside of the delegation from St. Paul, this was a surprise, not only to Henpin county, but to St. Paul. The galleries were packed with interested spectators, and it was all over long before these witnesses realized what had happened.

When the hour for the special order was reached, Representative John Lennon of Minneapolis, representing a county that was braced for a hard fight, moved a call of the house to get the members in the chamber. It had not gone far before Representative Cal Stone of St. Paul moved that further proceedings under the call be dispensed with, and when Representative Lennon rose to protest, Mr. Stone calmly announced that he proposed to move the indefinite postponement of the bill.

Taken by surprise, Mr. Lennon raised the point of order that, as the bill was up for a vote on its final passage, it would take a suspension of the rules and a two-thirds vote to dispose of it this way, but Speaker Rockne did not sustain the point.

Mr. Stone said that in the past twenty-four hours influence had been brought to bear to settle the dispute, which has been a very live one for a month or more, and that one of them was the passage of the bill creating a commission to consolidate the two cities. He made his motion to kill the bill, and as the galleries sat stunned and silent, the motion was carried unanimously.

Then Mr. Lennon of Minneapolis, to clinch the fate of the bill, moved a reconsideration of the vote by which it was killed, and asked that his motion be voted down, as that would prevent another attempt being made to revive the measure. His motion was adopted, only a few votes being cast against it, and these were cast in a sportive manner.

So far as the business of the day was concerned, this settled the Armour packing plant controversy. However, St. Paul isn't through yet. Yesterday's unexpected action was due to the fact that St. Paul was convinced that the Rowe bill could not possibly pass, and in that conviction the Ramsey county delegation was in complete harmony with the facts.

Another attempt to head off the objectionable plant, in a form not yet made public, and possibly not yet devised, will be made, providing the approval of the country members can be secured. The country was against the Rowe bill, largely because it is for the packing plant, and its consent to any bill that will defeat the location of the plant may be difficult.

The St. Louis county delegation, having no interest in the matter whatever, and having "friends in both places," would probably have divided its votes equally for and against the Rowe bill.

The bill giving the Eleventh judicial district a fourth judge, and providing general terms of court at Virginia and Hibbing, repassed the house yesterday afternoon, which was made necessary by the adoption of a few minor amendments in the senate. After the bill is engrossed, it will go to the governor for his signature. It should reach him by tomorrow, and as it requires him to appoint the new judge immediately, an appointment may be looked for promptly. There seems to be no doubt whatever tha tthe position will go to Martin Hughes of Hibbing.

The bill by Representative Joseph Austin of Chisholm, allowing range communities to take in outside territory, was repassed by the house yesterday afternoon, after that body had concurred in the senate amendment extending the area that may be taken in to a mile and a half. This action makes it a law as soon as the governor signs it.

The senate railroad committee yesterday afternoon voted, after a fight, to recommend for passage the house bill, exempting from the operation of the anti-pass law, firemen, policemen, members of salvage corp and health officers in uniform, as well as railroad employes holding non-salaried public positions.

Senator T. M. Pugh of Duluth yesterday introduced in the senate a bill allowing counties to establish tuberculosis sanatoria. County boards are to appoint commissions of three, one to be a doctor, to have charge of these institutions. The commission is to appoint a superintendent and necessary help. Two or more counties may go together. Counties may appropriate $20,000 for this purpose, and levy taxes limited to four-tenths of a mill for maintenance. The commission is to fix charges for patients, and in the case of poor people it may reduce them or forego them altogether.

BRAKEMAN GIVEN ANOTHER CHANCE

Judge Cant Releases Joseph Crozier Under Suspended Sentence.

Judge W. A. Cant showed faith in a man who had made his first slip after nineteen years of good citizenship when he paroled Joseph W. Crozier after Crozier had pleaded guilty to entering a store building with the intent to steal.

Crozier was arraigned before the court yesterday afternoon and he made a plea for another chance. He said he had lived in Duluth for nineteen years and had never committed a crime. He was employed as a brakeman on the Missabe road and while so employed earning good wages, he lived a sober upright life.

Reverses came and he was out of work for several months. He took to drink and to drink he attributed his downfall. He said he was under the influence of liquor when he entered the store, and the week in jail had made him come to his senses. He made extravagant promises of reformation.

Judge Cant severely reprimanded the prisoner, pointed out to what extent punishment might be inflicted on him and then deferred sentence pending good behavior. Crozier has two children.

WOMAN OF MYSTERY A SUICIDE, SAYS CORONER

found in Chicago, said he was ready to proceed with the inquest.

That Mrs. Culbertson attempted on a previous occasion to take her life has been reported to the police. Before her marriage to Culbertson she cut an artery in her left arm. Dr. H. W. Held, who knew her as a nurse, was summoned to attend her.

"What did you do that for?" the doctor asked, when he saw the patient.

"Oh, it was an accident," she replied, "I did it with the scissors."

After Dr. Held had dressed the wound, Mrs. Culbertson pulled off the bandages, and several times he was summoned to redress the wound.

A Peculiar Woman.

"She was a peculiar woman," says Dr. Held. "When I heard she was dead, I was convinced that she killed herself, and the way she did it was just like Jessie Overton. She certainly would have chosen a mysterious way to do it. I never heard her talk about her antecedents. She said her father and brother lived in Texas, but never told me where. Both, she said, were physicians. I know that there was some mystery in her life that troubled her. She was often despondent. Her husband has been trying to locate her blood relatives."

Discovery early today in the home of the dead woman of a torn piece of cloth, which resembles the bandage tied around her mouth when she was found yesterday in a shed near her home, leads the police to believe the Mrs. Culbertson was her own slayer. The locating in Chicago of a woman suspected of implication in a plot to murder Mrs. Culbertson, and the declaration from this woman that she had not been away from Chicago since last July; that she could prove an alibi, and would be willing to come to Vincennes to allay suspicion aroused against her, also served to indicate that the tragic end of Mrs. Culbertson's life came by self-destruction.

"A man and a woman dragged me there and made me swallow poison," were the last words of the woman before she died, yesterday afternoon, but no trace has been found that any strangers were in the neighborhood of the Culbertson home Wednesday afternoon, when the tragedy occurred. Neither is there any definite trace where the carbolic acid, Mrs. Culbertson's death potion, was purchased. A canvass of drug stores in Vincennes has failed to shed any light on the mystery.

Poison in Lawrenceville.

If Mrs. Culbertson purchased the poison herself, the police believe, she may have secured it in Lawrenceville, Ill., where her husband is employed.

She visited him there a few days before her death, and the authorities here have heard that a Lawrenceville druggist recalls that Mrs. Culbertson made some purchases in his store. Officers will go to Lawrenceville to thoroughly investigate this report.

The plaster-of-paris skull and crossbones found, with the threatening letter, in Mrs. Culbertson's possession when she was discovered in the shed, the police have been informed, was her own. It is said to have been identified by a woman who had seen the grewsome trinket in Mrs. Culbertson's possession, some time before the tragedy.

Relatives Say Murder.

Though circumstances point to the suicide theory, the fact that threats had been made against Mrs. Culbertson by a jealous woman, her husband's former sweetheart, is convincing evidence to the bereaved husband and other relatives that murder was committed.

It was mid-afternoon when Mrs. Culbertson was found gasping on the floor of the shed, in the rear of Joshua Brazelton's home, where she resided. The shed is seventy-five feet from the house. Mr. and Mrs. Brazelton were in the house at the time. Mrs. Enoch Williams, a neighbor, was in her yard. She had been there for some time and saw no strangers, or heard no outcry, until she heard the moans which led to the finding of Mrs. Culbertson.

"I heard the moans," said Mrs. Williams, "and thought something had happened to Mrs. Culbertson. I ran into the Brazleton home and shouted 'something has happened to Jessie.' Mr. and Mrs Brazleton and I ran to the shed. There we saw Jessie lying on the floor. A piece of muslin was tied around her mouth. It was fastened under her chin and over her head. One sleeve of her waist had been torn and there was a bruise on her arm. A small vial lay on the floor. This we afterwards learned had contained carbolic acid. There were burns about Jessie's mouth caused by the poison. We picked her up and carried her into the house. She appeared unconscious, but a few minutes later she revived and gasped 'a man and woman dragged me and made me swallow poison.' After that she never spoke again and the doctors could not revive her. We found the threatening letter in her pocket and a piece of paper on which the words 'goodbye' were written."

Mystery In Her Life.

Mrs. Williams saw no strangers and no one has been found who saw any one near the shed either before or after the tragedy. It is possible that persons might have been lying in wait in the shed for Mrs. Culbertson to appear. But no trace of their flight has been discovered. Train crews have been canvassed and recall no one leaving Vincennes that afternoon who excited suspicion. No livery rig or automobile was engaged here by any strangers. If Mrs. Culbertson was murdered, her slayers eluded every one in making their escape. Murder it may have been.

There has been much mystery connected with Jessie Culbertson's life ever since she married three months ago. Because of the anonymous threats, police have been watching the house, and no threatening letters have been received since the vigil began about a week ago. Mrs. Virgil Culbertson, a sister-in-law of the dead woman, insists that Jessie was murdered. When she learned of the tragedy she exclaimed: "Those people at last have caught Jessie." She referred to the woman suspected of sending the threatening letters, whom the authorities have located in Chicago.

The Chicago woman sought in connection with the death of Mrs. Culbertson is Mrs. Etta Longwell. She lives at 708 West Madison street, Chicago. She communicated by telephone today with the Vincennes authorities, and she regarded the search for her as a joke. She is willing to come to Vincennes if wanted.

ing fiscal year. Such report has not been filed. The published reports of the society do not contain the detailed statement required by law. The boards of audit for 1906, 1907 and 1908 have made their reports to the governor and not to the legislature, as required by law.

The Officers' Salaries.

The annual salaries of the officers of the society are: President, $1,000; vice presidents, $650 each; members of the board of managers, $600 each; secretary, $5,000, house rent, light, heat and keep of two cows and a team; treasurer, $800. In 1907 and 1908 the salary of the president was $500; vice presidents, $350 each; secretary, $3,600 and the perquisites above enumerated; treasurer, $600; board of managers, $350 each. After detailing the number of paid and complimentary admission tickets to the fair, the committee says: "There are good reasons for refusing to issue or allow anything but paid admissions to the grandstand, and we recommend that the board of managers hereafter refuse to allow anything but paid admissions thereto."

The reports show that after holding the state fair, a surplus accumulated each year, varying from $25,000 to $46,000, the latter being the surplus for 1908, which amounts were deposited with the treasurer of the society. It has been the custom of the board of managers soon after the different annual fairs were held to order, by resolution, the depositing of the larger part of this surplus in different banks of the state on demand certificates of deposit bearing 3 per cent interest per annum and in which banks, members of the board of managers or their friends, controlled or were interested. The committee says:

"We submit, as a proposition of law, that the depositing in said banks as aforesaid, releases the treasurer and sureties of the bond and that no recovery could be had thereon, in case of failure by any one or all of these banks."

Purchase Without Bids.

In the division of amusements the boards employed one B. F. Gregory at a salary of $2,500 a year, which did not include the devoting of his entire time to the society, but only so much thereof as was necessary. Gregory was and is interested in the Gregory Fireworks company of Chicago, and made the entire purchase of the fireworks used by the society in the year 1908 of said fireworks company. The evidence does not disclose that any bids were received for the purchasing of the fireworks, but it does show that Gregory represented both the society and the Gregory Fireworks company in this transaction.

Theoretically, the privileges have been sold or granted to the highest bidder, but the evidence shows that the sale of privileges was left entirely to the superintendent of privileges, who in many instances, sold the same without receiving bids for them in some instances refusing bids for a larger amount and selling the privilege for a smaller amount, the character of the party receiving the privilege being taken into consideration.

Poor Bookkeeping.

The evidence shows that, during the times when some of the buildings have been needed for exhibition purposes, they have been leased to outside parties for different use, without permits being secured from the insurance companies for such use. A change in this policy is recommended. The evidence of the public examiner shows that a proper method of bookkeeping has not been followed. He suggests and the committee recommends, that a complete set of books be opened and kept for each division or department, and that a general ledger summarizing all accounts of each department be also opened and kept. The committee also recommends that a competent bookkeeper be employed during the entire year.

HELPED HIMSELF TO MONEY NEEDED

Carl Dahtinen Carried His Socialistic Ideas Too Far.

Carl Lahtinen believes in an equal distribution of wealth, and he accordingly took it upon himself to divide the wealth of Herman Kakkala of Chisholm. He didn't take the trouble to ask Kakkala to divide, but appropriated $155 of Kakkala's money forthwith.

Lahtinen was arraigned before Judge Cant in district court yesterday afternoon and pleaded guilty. He explained to the court that he had a wife and child in Finland and he wanted to make them a visit. He did not have the money, but Kakkala had more than he needed, so Lahtinen thought he had a right to take enough to make the trip.

Judge Cant explained the economic system of the nation to Lahtinen and urged upon him the necessity of observing the laws, no matter what his own views may be on those subjects. He said he might give him the maximum sentence of five years in the state penitentiary, but as he was ignorant and laboring under mistaken ideas of the rights of property, he would sentence him to sixty days in the county jail to bring him around to the right way of thinking.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

ARE ARRESTED ON SUSPICION

Superior Men Had Too Much Copper Wire to Sell.

Two men giving their names as Harry Barrelstein and Samuel Milovich were arrested yesterday afternoon with 625 pounds of No. 12 copper wire in their possession. The police think the wire was stolen.

The pair came over from Superior and made an attempt to dispose of the wire here. Their having it looked suspicious, and the police thought it would be a wise move to hold them until an investigation was carried on. Accordingly they were arrested.

Neither Sam nor Harry can give a satisfactory account of how they came by the coils. The possibility of it having been cut from poles is removed by the fact that it is neatly coiled, just as it left the factory. It is of the size generally used by telephone companies, and this led the police to believe that one of the local companies might have been the loser.

Inquiries were made of both the Zenith and Duluth companies, but in neither case had any been stolen, and the same results were met with when inquiries were made of the Superior telephone companies. Neither had the telegraph companies missed any wire, so if it was stolen the probabilities are that it was either brought here from outside by the men who took it, or else it was taken from some box car in transit. The men will be held a few days as suspicious characters, until the police have time to look further into the matter.

fatherland. I am ready to give my life for them."

Presents New Aspect.

London, March 26.—The Balkan difficulty has assumed a new aspect, owing to the sensational news of the abdication of the Servian crown prince. The prince hitherto has been considered leader of the war party at Belgrade, and his firebrand speeches have done much to inflame the feelings of the Servian people. They are not wanting those both here and at Vienna, who believe that a political move underlies his denunciation. It is certain the removal of the crown prince from the scene is a step making for peace. It will be easier, under present conditions, for Servia to retreat from a difficult situation.

addressed to Mrs. Boyle and all eyes in the small circle of listeners gazed at the attractive woman.

"Why don't some of them look at Mr. Boyle?" asked the police chief.

"He is not so charming," came the quick reply from Mrs. Boyle.

Then the man prisoner caused a general laugh by paying his wife this compliment:

"Mrs. Boyle has three leather medals from tan shoes for being charming."

After the Woman.

Sharon, Pa., March 26.—With James Boyle and his wife locked up at Pittsburg and Willie Whitla safe at home, the Mercer county authorities are now bending every effort to unearth all possible evidence in the case with the design of showing that Mrs. Boyle acted as a principal with her husband in Pennsylvania in kidnping the boy, and as such would be equally guilty as her husband of kidnaping under the state laws.

So far Mrs. Boyle appears only to have appeared in the plot in Cleveland, and whether she can be held for kidnaping under the Pennsylvania laws is a question the county officials are trying to determine. Some years ago Boyle escaped from the jail at Mercer, and an odd feature of that incident was his subsequent capture at Cleveland, Ohio. It is not known definitely whether his escape from the jail at Mercer has any bearing on the decision to detain him at Pittsburg. The Mercer county grand jury meets the third Monday in April. It is probable the case will be tried May 10. Mr. Whitla, father of the kidnaped child, has recovered $9,850 of the $10,000 paid over to the Boyles to recover the child. Suit cases containing the effects of the Boyles, which may be used as evidence in the trial, have been brought here.

The Blackmail Charge.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 26.—The local authorities are of the opinion they will see more of Mrs. James H. Boyle, alias Anna McDermott, who, with her husband, was taken to Pennsylvania Thursday to be tried on the charge of kidnaping Willie Whitla of Sharon, Pa.

Chief Kohler and County Prosecutor Cline believe the authorities of Mercer county, in which Sharon is located, may fail to properly connect the woman with the main charge. Conspiracy, they think, would be the greatest possible charge they can make against her, and in this, it is said, there is abundant opportunity for a miscarriage of justice.

In that event, the Cleveland authorities declare she can be arrested and brought back here for trial under Thursday's indictment, jointly charging her and Boyle with blackmail.

A copy of the indictment was served upon Boyle and his wife just before they were taken away. The formality of an arrest was dispensed with as the county officials waived their rights under the indictment, until the pair has been given a trial in Pennsylvania.

The woman told the chief she is 22 years old, and was born and reared in Chicago. She said she left home three years ago. She also asserted that her family is prominent and that her father is a brother of a Chicago banker. Mrs. Boyle seems well educated.

Woman's Father Is Found.

Chicago, March 26.—That William McDermott, a retired member of the Chicago fire department, is father of "Mrs. James H. Boyle," who with her husband, is charged with the kidnaping of Willie Whitla, was confirmed by the father today.

Information from Cleveland indicating strongly that the prisoner arrested there was the girl who, before her marriage was Anna McDermott, was brought to William McDermott and his son of the same name, who is a bank clerk, last night. Although the information seemed conclusive, neither father nor son would admit that the imprisoned woman was their daughter and sister. There was little sleep in their home, 590 Cleveland avenue last night, the long hours being spent in hoping against hope that there had been some mistake in the identification.

Today, however, reporters presented every known details of the identification as telegraphed from Cleveland, and the old man broke down and declared that there could be no doubt that Mrs. Boyle is his daughter.

Anna McDermott, according to her father, was one of the prettiest and brightest children in the neighborhood when a child. She was given every advantage of education and careful moral training, but as she approached womanhood, she fell into company of which the old fireman did not approve. Quarrels were frequent and about three years ago Anna eloped. Since that time her history has been a blank to her Chicago kin and even the name of the man whom she married was unknown to them.

They carefully read, from day to day, the story of the kidnaping of Willie Whitla, of his return to his parents, and the arrest of the Boyles, but they never dreamed of connecting Mrs. Boyle with winsome, headstrong Anna, who had deserted her home to follow unknown paths.

"They say she is pock-marked now," said Mr. McDermott. "She must have suffered from the disease since she left us, for then her skin was as fair as an angel's."

Slayer of Husband Freed.

Virginia City, Mont., March 26.—Bereft of all reason during a violent quarrel with her husband, following her discovery of improper relations existing between him and her sister was the ground upon which Mrs. Mary Metzel was exonerated of all blame for shooting and killing Thomas A. Metzel, one of the best known stockmen of the state.

Grand Forks Tailors Strike.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.) — Grand Forks has a tailors' strike. Fifteen men are out and demand an advance of from 7 per cent to 10 per cent, according to the scale in effect in the shops in which they are employed. The strike was ordered by Grand Forks Journeymen Tailors' union, No. 302. Several shops have met the demand of the union for an increase in wages.

McMillan Funeral Saturday.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of James McMillan, who died Wednesday, will be held from the family home, 1728 Nicollet avenue, at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Interment will be at Lakewood. Rev. Henry Holmes, former pastor of Lowry Hill Congregational church, a warm personal friend of Mr. McMillan, will officiate at the services at the house, if it is possible for him to come to Minneapolis from Big Lake, Minn., where he is resting.

FISHERMEN BREAK LAW.

Some Said to be Already Trouting in Northern Wisconsin.

Ashland, Wis., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The brook trout fishing season will not open until the 15th of April, but it is stated that fishermen are already busy. Reports from the head of the bay are to the effect that there has been considerable fishing, both in Fish creek and in Whittlesey creek, and that the fish are biting fine.

For four and a half months, the law allows brook trout fishing, and that ought to be time enough for the most enthusiastic fishermen. Parties who should happen to get caught fishing out of season, will pay dearly for their sport.

DECREASE IN FOREIGN TRADE

Lower Record in Nearly All Principal Commercial Countries.

Washington, March 26—International commerce made a lower record in 1908 than in 1907 in practically all the commercial countries of the world.

The bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor publishes in each issue of its monthly summary of commerce and finance, a table showing the imports and exports of the principal commercial countries of the world down to the latest available month of the current year. The table shows the trade of more than a dozen of the leading countries during the full calendar year 1908 and compares the same with the immediately preceding year, while, in those cases in which statistics for the full year are not yet available, the figures cover that part of the year for which official reports have been received.

These figures of the imports and exports of the principal countries of the world in 1908, compared with 1907, show, as above indicated, in nearly every case a falling off in both imports and exports. In the commerce of the United Kingdom, for example, imports show a fall of $256,000,000 and exports a fall of $238,000,000 in the calendar year 1908, compared with the calendar year 1907. In the case of Germany, the imports show a fall of $102,000,000 and the exports a fall of $27,000,000; these figures being for the full calendar year 1908 compared with the calendar year 1907. In the case of France, the imports show a fall of $25,500,000 and the exports a fall of $62,000,000. In the case of Belgium, the imports show a fall of $32,000,000 and the exports a fall of $23,000,000. Canada's imports show a fall of $35,000,000 and her exports an increase of $95,000,000, while most of the other countries in the list show a similar falling off, the chief exception being Argentina, which shows but a slight decrease in imports and a material increase in exports. The average monthly importations of the twenty-three countries shown by the table was $997,000,000 in that portion of 1908 which they respectively represent against $1,069,500,000 in the corresponding year of 1907; and the average monthly exports $901,000,000 against $973,000,000 for the corresponding period of 1907.

WERE PAINTING THEIR SALOON

Tony Azzo and Sylvester Manilla Sold No Liquor.

Tony Azzo and Sylvester Manilla, charged with selling liquor on Sunday, were discharged in municipal court yesterday afternoon. M. H. McMahon, who acted as their attorney, showed through his witnesses that the men had only purchased the saloon, located at Seventh avenue west and Superior street, a few days before the arrest, and that on the Sunday in question they were in the place with a gang of workmen to paint and decorate the interior. There were the two proprietors, their bartender and the four workmen. It was not shown that any liquor was sold.

TELEPHONES IN THE ARMY.

Equipment for Field Service in the Austrian Artillery.

Vienna, March 26.—A military novelty reported yesterday has caused some interest. On the occasion of the equipment of the Austrian artillery with new guns, each battery has been provided with a telephone patrol and a telephone wagon. Each patrol has ten miles of wire and a telephone station. The entire telephonic material for each artillery regiment amounts to about seventy-five miles of wire and five stations. The telephone patrols will transmit orders and reports to the artillery in the field. Up to the present Japan has been the only power to possess this innovation.

ASKS GOVERNMENT TO SUSPEND LIQUOR SALE.

St. Petersburg, March 26.—The duma today adopted the budget of the colonization department, with a resolution asking the government to suspend the sale of liquor in all regions open to colonization.

Dr. James E. Gilbert Dies.

Washington, March 26.—Dr. James E. Gilbert, secretary of the Society of Religious Education, died here early today, aged 69. Dr. Gilbert was a wide contributor on religious topics in the secular press. He is survived by a widow and a daughter, Mrs. Grace D. Woodburn.

Many Will Raise Pickles.

North Branch, Minn., March 26.—Special to The Herald.)—According to the present outlook it is expected more farmers in this section of the country are going into the pickle raising business this year than ever before, notwithstanding the fact, that last year was not a particularly favorable one for this industry. Already 150 acres have been contracted for the North Branch factory, and it is expected that the acreage will go over 200 before the time for planting is over.

SIXTH ANNUAL BANQUET OF BUILDERS' EXCHANGE

Better Feeling Between Capital and Labor Is Theme.

"What Are We Fighting About?" Asks W. E. McEwen.

The present Duluth, the "Greater Duluth," the tonnage tax and the relations between employe and employer were the subjects up for discussion at the sixth annual banquet of the Duluth Builders' exchange, which was held at the St. Louis hotel last evening.

All of the speakers spread themselves on the beauty and prosperity of the present Duluth, and the brilliant prospects for the future. But as a whole, the "feast of reason and flow of soul" resolved itself into a discussion of pending legislation in the state body at St. Paul, affecting Duluth and that relating to the relations between the employers and employes of the state.

George M. Gillette, president of the Minneapolis Machinery & Steel company and a prominent worker in the ranks of the State Employers' association, was an unexpected speaker, and he was followed by William E. McEwen, state labor commissioner and secretary of the State Federation of Labor, who was discovered in the audience and who was called upon by Toastmaster L. D. Campbell.

The remarkable unanimity of views expressed by Mr. Gillette and Mr. McEwen in regard to employers' liability and compensation for workmen injured in the course of their employment, was indicative of the manner in which the employing and employed classes have joined forces in Minnesota to secure a workingmen's compensation law, which will relieve the present unsatisfactory system of settling for injuries sustained by employes in the course of performing their duties.

Both agreed that the present system is unsatisfactory. Both Mr. Gillette and Mr. McEwen offered statistics to show that but a small percentage of the amount of money paid out by employers in settlement of claims goes into the pocket of the injured workman. Both agreed that under a uniform system of compensation, which would do away with contributory negligence, the fellow servant rule and the rule as to assumption of risk, the employer would pay out no more for protection than he does now and better results would be obtained by all concerned.

Mr. Gillette, who was one of those instrumental in bringing the question of workingmen's compensation for injuries before the legislature told the history of the movement. He told of the different moves made by employers, employes and the State Bar association in working toward the right kind of legislation, and then urged upon the meeting the necessity of defeating the Stewart bill, a special order in the house today, and adopting the commission bill. He said the Stewart bill is all wrong, unsatisfactory to employer, employe and lawyers, and he urged upon the builders' exchange the advisability of every man sending a telegram this morning to the St. Louis county delegation in the legislature, urging them to work against the Stewart bill.

The Commission Plan.

The commission plan, as explained by Mr. Gillette, calls for the appointment of a committee of one each from the State Employers' association, the Minnesota Federation of Labor, and the State Bar association to investigate the subject thoroughly during the next two years, and to report to the next session of the legislature.

Before entering upon the question of legislation affecting employer and employe, Mr. Gillette took occasion to pay a glowing tribute to Duluth. He is an eloquent speaker, with a fine command of language, and he soared to oratorical heights in dilating upon the beauty of the "Zenith City of the Unsalted Seas" and predicting great things for the future.

"The greatness of Duluth, which will surpass the dreams and hopes of you and I, will be the greatness of a city of Minnesota, and I, with every other loyal Minnesotan, will rejoice in the glory of Duluth," said Mr. Gillette.

Mr. McEwen was called upon unexpectedly, but he arose to the occasion, and for fifteen minutes expounded the doctrine of fraternity between employing and employed.

"For thirty years, at one time the people of the Scandinavian peninsula and Northern Europe fought over the question of religion," he said. "At the end of the thirty years the opposing forces turned to each other and asked, 'what have we been fighting about?' For several years now, labor and capital have been engaged in industrial warfare, which has at times been acrimonious. It will not be long before the employer and his employe will face each other and ask, 'what have we been fighting about?'"

Mr. McEwen said the employers' liability law and the workingmen's compensation act is only the first step, but that should be the center of all attention for the present. The other great industrial questions may be taken up later, he said, but the beauty of it all is that employer and employe are both learning that they can accomplish more for their common good by united action than they can by strife, which keeps them in chaos and has no results.

The banquet was the most successful in the history of the exchange. The big cafe of the St. Louis was crowded to the doors with a happy throng. Contractors, architects, real estate men, city officials—all having the upbuilding of the great city at the Head of the Lakes at heart—gathered for the feast—material and intellectual—and they had both. There was a large delegation of members of the St. Paul and Minneapolis exchanges, and warm words of greeting were exchanged.

President R. A. Webster of the Duluth exchange introduced L. D. Campbell, the toastmaster, after the tables had been cleared. Mr. Campbell was very brief in his speech, and he immediately turned over the floor to Mayor R. D. Haven. Mr. Haven took but a few minutes. He told a few stories, said he was glad to be there and was glad everybody else was there, and remarked that since the alderman from the First ward was present, he would allow him to speak on the glories of Duluth.

The banqueters, standing, sang "America," after which William Rhodes, president of the St. Paul Builders' exchange, was introduced. In a happy speech Mr. Rhodes expressed thanks for the welcome received by the Twin City delegation, and brought the greetings of his association to their brother builders of Duluth.

"Greater Duluth."

The Temple quartet sang and A. G. McKnight was announced as a substitute for Joseph R. Cotton, who could not be present. With a subject as expansive as "Greater Duluth," Mr. McKnight covered a variety of lesser subjects. He spoke on real estate values and building, the system of taxation and finances of the city, the commission form of government and the subject of compensation for employes injured in the course of their employment.

Mr. McKnight was in a "rapping" mood. He rapped the tendency toward inflated real estate values in times of prosperity and urged the necessity of keeping real estate values down that the workman on small wages may be able to buy a lot of his own and build his home that Duluth may be a "City of Homes." He took a fall out of the present system of taxation in the city and the whole method of finances. He urged the taking of city government out of politics and placing it in a "commission form." "The present governing body of the city as in any city under the aldermanic system is a conglomerate body of men from different walks of life with no previous training in government," he said. "Let us bring men trained in that line to the government of the city. Let us pay them a salary large enough to allow them to put their whole time to the work. Let us systematize and solidify our government and we will get the right results."

George M. Gillette was substituted on the program for Eugene Young, secretary of the Minneapolis Builders' exchange and he was followed by J. W. L. Corning, president of the state exchange, who said he was to have spoken on the subjects covered by Mr. Gillette, William E. McEwen followed Mr. Corning and James R. Quigley closed with a few characteristic "Observations." The gathering broke up with "Auld Lang Syne."

FARMERS' BIG MEET

About 100 Tillers of Soil Attended the Carlton County Institute.

L. A. Sweet of Fairmont Tells Agriculturalists a Few Things.

Moose Lake, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Carlton County Farmers' Institute held here Wednesday, brought together one of the largest gatherings of men of the soil ever held in this section, about 100 farmers and their families being present.

L. A. Sweet of Fairmont was the principal speaker. Mr. Sweet is a farmer and has had twenty-five years' experience and knows whereof he speaks.

The morning session was taken up with the discussion of clover. Mr. Sweet said clover should be sown to keep up the fertility of the soil, before seeding. The ground should be plowed deep and thoroughly cultivated and should be harrowed once or twice after seeding but that this was not necessary. He said that eight pounds of red clover, two pounds of alsike and two pounds of timothy was about the right proportion to be sown per acre. Rye should be sown with clover as a nurse crop, as it makes a heavy stubble and protects the young plants from the hot weather, when it is cut, and stated that one should not allow the stock to run in the field after taking off the crop as it would damage the catch of clover more than it would do the cows good. Clover is the great cow feed and should be properly taken care of. Clover can be put into the barn very green but must not be wet from rain or dew, but the moisture that was in clover was just what was needed in order to cure it properly and that it was the best feed for the cow.

As to Alfalfa.

Upon being questioned as to the value of alfalfa, Mr. Sweet said it contained 212 pounds protien to 150 for clover, but that alfalfa required a dry climate, in fact dryer than anything we have in Minnesota.

The question of the silo was taken up and he recommended corn as the best feed and that it can be grown here there was no doubt of. Corn for ensilage should not be left until it is ripe or it will not be as good. In feeding corn on the ear there is too much waste and by putting the corn in the silo the entire stalk is used and there is no waste whatever.

In preparing land for potatoes it should be plowed in the fall, then manure it and disc it in the spring after which plow it again and deeper than the first time. Use lots of manure. A good plan is to make a row about four inches deep and if you are not planting with a potato planter or a drill, is to step on the potato so as to get it fast in the ground. This will prevent it from being pulled out by the harrow. The field should be harrowed at least twice after setting.

INTERURBAN AUTO LINE IN MARQUETTE COUNTY.

Negaunee, Mich., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—It has been definitely settled that an interurban auto line between Marquette, Negaunee, Ishpeming, Presque Isle, the prison, C. O. Heights, Teal Lake and other points of interest in the vicinity of the three cities named, will be operated this summer.

A stock company has been organized, with local capital and four large passenger cars, that will carry from sixteen to twenty persons have already been ordered from the Grabowsky Power Wagon company of Detroit, and the cars are expected to arrive in Marquette by the first boat.

An automobile service of this kind will be very convenient to residents of this country. A public garage will be established at Marquette, and also at Negaunee or Ishpeming. A similar service was established between Calumet and Laurium in the Copper country last summer and proved a great success.

ANAESTHETIC IS BLAMED FOR DEATH

Chloroform Administered by Burglars Hastened St. Cloud Man's End.

St. Cloud, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chloroform administered by burglars at Phoenix, Ariz., a month ago, greatly hastened the death of the late Frank X. Lorinser, who passed away in the West a week ago.

Mrs. Lorinser, who accompanied the body to this city, tells the story of how her husband was robbed. The deceased had gone to Phoenix in the hope of benefiting his health, and was staying at a hotel. He stayed about the place for some time and men about the place took him for a person of means. Some time during the night burglars entered his room and chloroformed him while he lay asleep. They then made away with a gold watch and a small amount of money.

When Mr. Lorinser recovered from the effects of the drug, he was in a serious condition. A physician was called, who stated that his heart had been affected, and that there was no hope for his recovery. Mr. Lorinser became worse rapidly and his weakness caused by tuberculosis, brought on his death a month later. Although the man could not possibly be cured from the disease, which had secured a grip on him, he would have lived several months longer.

The robbery was reported to the police the next morning, but no clue to the burglars was ever found.

CRAZED BY FATALITY.

Soo Motorman, Who Killed Man, Loses His Mind.

Newberry, March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—As the aftermath of a shocking fatality in which he was a central figure, Angus Matheson has been received at the Newberry insane asylum from Chippewa county. Some two years ago, while Matheson was employed as a motorman on the electric railway at Sault Ste. Marie, his car ran over and killed a man named "Paddy" Taylor, a printer, who had toured the country from end to end and who was known in newspaper offices in many of the leading cities. Taylor was beheaded and in addition, his body was badly mangled.

Matheson never recovered from the shock of this distressing accident, and recently his mind gave way. He was the only support of a widowed and invalid mother.

HE LOOKS LIKE TAFT.

Pickford, Mich., Man Bears Strong Resemblance to President.

Trout Lake, Mich., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The small town of Pickford, in Chippewa county, has the distinction of possessing a resident, who is a double of President Taft. The man is Henry Garbe, a pioneer settler in the eastern portion of Upper Michigan. Mr. Garbe was in Washington when the president was inaugurated, and so marked was his resemblance to Mr. Taft that the fact excited considerable comment at the capital. The president and his Michigan double met prior to Mr. Garbe's return home, and the two compared weight and height. It was found that Mr. Taft weighed one pound more than the Pickford man and was one and one-half inches taller.

LONE SALOON COMES HIGH.

Isanti Village Council to Charge $2,500 for Privilege.

Isanti, Minn., March 26.—The members of the new village council met on Monday for a conference regarding the questions of fixing the amount of license to be charged this year, and to whom the one license allowed by law shall be granted.

The meeting was informal and has no binding effect on the regular meeting, to be held this evening. After discussing the matter a majority of the council decided in favor of placing the license at $2,500 per year, and a majority of the members then voted to grant the license to G. W. Carlson and F. E. Olson, as Carlson & Olson, to conduct a saloon in the Norelius building, on the north side of Main street.

It is also understood that the council has under consideration rules to require the saloon to close at 10 p. m., that there shall be no tables or chairs for the use of patrons, and that the scrubbing may be done between the hours of 10 and 11 o'clock Saturday nights, instead of the former custom of doing this work on Sunday mornings. It seems to be the desire of all parties concerned that the saloon shall be conducted in a manner to give the least possible cause for complaint.

MARRIED FIFTY YEARS.

St. Cloud Couple Celebrated Golden Wedding on Wednesday.

St. Cloud, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Surrounded by relatives and friends of fifty years, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Clark celebrated the golden anniversary of their marriage at their home here Wednesday.

The only formal observance of the occasion was a noon-day dinner, at which about thirty relatives and intimate friends were seated. During the entire day Mr. and Mrs. Clark were kept busy receiving the large number of friends and fellow old settlers who called inofrmally to offer their congratulations and good wishes.

Both Mr. and Mrs. McCord are territorial pioneers of Minnesota and both have lived over fifty years in St. Claud. They were married on March 24, 1859, by the Rev. David Lowry, and immediately moved into the house on Third avenue which they occupied during the next thirty years of their married life. It was there that their three children, John Lewis Clark, died 1865; Mary Elizabeth Clark, 1870, and Mrs. Hattie Frances Gilman, died 1907, were born. One of the most interesting of the Easter sales will be the bazaar to be held at the Bethel Rescue home early in April for which preparations have been going on for several weeks. The young women who are at the home as a temporary shelter and protection, have been much interested in preparing for the sale and some beautiful samples of handiwork will be shown. The needs at the home are many and the money resulting from the sale will be put to good use. Among the articles which will be shown will be hardanger work, sofa pillows, balsam pillows, Easter cards, hemstitched sheets and pillow cases, bedroom slippers, log cabin rugs, lace trimmed pettieoats, fancy and gingham aprons, knitted shawls, beautiful dolls, children's dresses, many fancy articles, home made candy and home made jelly and pickles.

During the past two months ten young women have been received by the Bethel workers to remain at the home for several months and four others were given temporary shelter. Five were dismissed, good homes and work being found for them. The family at the institution now numbers forty.

The workers are earnestly hoping that many Duluthians will remember the Easter sale and bazaar which will be held at the home early in April, and that this work may be a source of encouragement and profit to the women who have provided it.

HOME WOMEN

Should Grow in Efforts to Help Others.

A faculty that is not used dies. That is the law of nature. It is a law exemplified by many women's lives. The faculty of social work, of co-operation in the best interest of the community, is born in woman as in man. She is a social creature by nature. But as she settles down into a home of her own, in most cases her visions and desires narrow. The only outlook many a prosperous and happy woman keeps into the social world, is on the aimless and distorted "society" side, says Harper's Bazar. The true social functions—those of co-operation, inspiration, helpfulness, reconstruction—are closed to her. She is shut in within her four walls to think and talk only about her children, her servants, her dress, and her card parties. That this is not an exaggerated statement may be tested by anyone who tries to talk to an average housewife on community topics. The social faculty has died within her; the larger life is outside her closed gates. She is not heartless or mean; but she has no relation to the real altruism of community life.

A few women in every town and neighborhood use their social faculties, and grow thereby. But they are handicapped by having it all to do. The same faces are seen on every board of managers, in every league and guild. The home women do not come up to their help. Yet the home woman can find, in every effort to help other people, a development of her own nature—reaction as well as action—and can also find the thing she is meant to do. Who, better than a domestic woman devoted to husband and family, can understand, for example, the need in every large town for a home for aged couples where Darby and Joan can rest after the bitter storms of life? This is a charity which many towns lack, just because the home women have never thought of providing homes for others. It is a beautiful and helpful work, too often forgotten in the community. Who, so well as a sheltered mother, again, can appreciate the need of a dry nursery for the toiling widow with her orphan brood, of the necessity of "school scholarship" for the laboring child.

Out of her abundance should come their help; out of her leisure should come their joy. But the result is not confined to them. It is her benefit, as well as theirs, that follows. Her social instincts awake; her sympathies broaden; her wider outlook commences. She becomes a part of her community—a true part, a useful part. She begins to recognize the interrelations of her home to the whole social organism. Just as individual selfishness and sympathy develop the character, so social unselfishness and sympathy bring a deep reward. A social outlook is the home woman's duty—and her privilege.

DWORSHAK

Brocade in Fashion.

Some of the handsomest gowns worn by matrons this year at the Metropolitan opera have been of brocades as rich as those worn by elegantes of the eighteenth century.

Brocades are in growing vogue and the next season is sure to see them back. It has been suggested that the stiff old weaves of boasted self-supporting quality are to be here again.

But such a day will have to wait for the gradual disappearance of the supple fabrics which carry everything before them now.

A gown worn by a matron recently reminded one of family portraits of daguerreotype days. It was a splendid brocade with a design of purple and yellow irises and their sword-shaped leaves on a pale gray ground. The gown was draped with gray tulle.

Another gown of similar kind was embroidered in copper and gold on flame-colored satin and was veiled with burnt umber tulle.

Black tulle is a great deal used in this way. It toned down an otherwise garish gown of banana colored satin embroidered richly in pale gold and topaz silk.

Yellow Popular.

Paris turned emerald green a month ago, and then, after poking round among her metallic fabrics for another color scheme, she worked up a perfect craze for yellow. Her green satin empire evening gown slipped into the background when its place was usurped by corn color and canary in clinging fabrics. The topaz satins fairly melted into the golden gauzes so much affected as tunics and trimmings during this whole period of empire fashions. We have had the chamois color, and now among the more useful materials we find the browns shading toward "chevelure"—hair brown—with always a touch of gold in it. "Abeille," or bee, is the golden yellow its name implies. The "beige" color of the present season is a yellowish sand color. Costume linen is brought to us in burnt orange and in the very light, creamy yellows, which we are told to trim with black.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Maple sugar, 20 cents a pound.
Grape fruit 10 to 15 cents each.
Fresh pineapples, 40 cents each.
Fresh cocoanuts, 10 cents each.
Fresh turnips, carrots and beets.
Tomatoes, 25 cents a pound.
Cucumbers, 25 cents each.
Roast beef, 25 cents a pound.
Broilers, $1 each.

The pure maple sugar which may be purchased at the market is the nicest thing to be had. Those who remember maple sugar from their youth and the whole process from the time the trees were tapped and buckets filled with the sap until it was boiled and molded into little cakes, can find nothing good in the sugar that comes from the market. The farm house, and the whiter woods, and the sugar camp, and the appetite of youth, all work together in memory to make a combination that nothing this side of Paradise could realize. But for those who didn't even Know that maple sugar is made from maple sap, the kind that the market offers seems like the most appetizing and delectable thing you know.

HARRY MITCHELL'S EDITORIAL

About That Easter Suit!

Don't buy a hand-me-down. You owe it to yourself to wear a suit made for you—a suit with the individuality of style, fit and workmanship which belongs to clothes made to order. Why not? My prices are as low as the ready-made merchants'.

But, don't go to the other extreme. Don't pay a high price to any other tailor. It's unnecessary. My prices are low enough to insure as fine quality, and as perfect a fit as the high-priced tailor, and yet, they are low enough to make it nonsense to buy ready-made clothes at any price.

This is the reason why I am advertising. I want you to know that I can make to order a suit for $15 that will equal any other tailor's at $30, and for $20 I'll make a suit and guarantee as good a cloth, fit, finish and trimmings as you will pay $40 for to any other tailor. For $25, I'll make you a suit to order as good as any other tailor will offer to make at $50.

I carry more stock and more styles than anybody else in town, and my guarantee is as good as money in the bank. No fit, no pay. It's up to you now.

Yours truly,

HARRY MITCHELL,

Store, 18 East Superior St.

If you will write me a letter and tell me the kind of clothes you are thinking of getting, and how much yuo wish to pay for them, I will send you samples, measurement blanks, and a tape line. I'll guarantee to make your clothes and please you in every respect or you don't have to take them. Now, write me today and see what I can do for you. THE VALUE OF COMMAS

Proof Sheets of Tariff Bill Explanation Not Well Read.

How Maj. McKinley Took Responsibility of Correcting an Error.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the Payne tariff bill was introduced in the house it was accompanied by a printed explanation which shows the increase and reductions in the various schedules. It also shows the importance of a comma. The bill itself provides for a tariff of 35 cents per dozen as well as an ad valorem duty on cotton "shirt collars and cuffs." The proof slips of the explanation were evidently not carefully read, for that document explains that the duty on cotton "shirts, collars and cuffs," is reduced to 35 cents.

This fact, called from John Berg, an old employe of the government printing office, an interesting incident connected with the passage of the McKinley tariff bill, by which it was shown that a single letter omitted from a word may at times change the entire meaning of a proposition.

"When the McKinley bill was sent to the printing office, after it had passed the house," said the narrator, "I found that Kirch Wasser was made dutiable at 90 cents a gallon. Now, kirch is the German word for church and I knew that church was not the word that congress intended to use. I hastened over to the capitol and found Maj. McKinley in the committee room, although the hour was very late. I told him that apparently the house had decided to put a tariff upon 'church water' or 'holy water.' The major laughed heartily and told me that as he understood it the article in question was cherry water. Then I explained that a letter 'S' should be inserted before the 'C' and he promptly took the manuscript copy and inserted that small letter, thereby upon his own responsibility placing holy water on the free list and by the same act imposing a duty of 90 cents per gallon on 'kirschwasser.'"

President Joseph E. Ransdell of the national rivers and harbors congress and a member of congress from the Pelican state, has reintroduced in the house the bill providing for an issue of $50,000,000 bonds per annum for the next ten years, aggregating $500,000,000, for the improvement of the waterways of the country. This bill is the result of the joint labor of four members of congress, Ransdell of Louisiana, Moore of Pennsylvania, Bartholdt of Missouri and Sherley of Kentucky. President Ransdell was authorized to appoint such a committee, and during the last session of congress the bill was introduced with these four gentlemen as sponsors. There being a good deal of criticism over a resolution which the insurgents, so-called, signed in a body, Mr. Ransdell thought best to introduce the bill without his associates of the committee being parties to it.

President Taft is committed to a bond issue for waterway improvements, believing that the coming generation should bear their proportion of the burdens of taxation in view of the fact that they will be beneficiaries of the movement to improve the country's waterway courses.

Senator Depew's proposition to change the inauguration from March 4 to the last Wednesday in April has been very generally commended, and there is scarce a shadow of doubt that it will eventually be reported, as similar propositions have been reported during the last twenty years.

The trouble, however, is found in the fact that there is widespread fear that when the measure is called up in the house it will bring about complications, because attempts undoubtedly would be made to attach to the general proposition clauses providing for nation-wide prohibition and women's suffrage.

March 4 in Washington is the most unfit date so far as the weather is concerned in the entire calendar. Hayes and Garfield were inaugurated in snowstorms, Cleveland was inducted into office on an ideal day. In 1889 Harrison took the oath practically in a blizzard, and four years later a severe storm raged when Cleveland once more swore to support the Constitution. The first McKinley inauguration day was an ideal one, but when he was reinaugurated the weather was as bad as it could be. Again the fates were propitious, and the weather on March 4 was like a summer day four years ago.

This year there was every indication of fair weather up to 2 o'clock in the morning, when the chief of the weather bureau telephoned to Mr. Taft and to the newspapers that the indications were favorable to a "clear day, but somewhat cooler," and within a half hour the snow started, and by noon the semi-congealed moisture lay a foot thick on all the streets.

The end of April is always fair weather in Washington, and inasmuch as the American people have come to believe that it is absolutely necessary that their president should be inaugurated with a great deal of pomp and a big parade, it is likely that the legislators will adopt the Depew resolution and provide that the next inauguration shall occur during the last week in April instead of in the first week of March.

Willis Moore, chief of the weather bureau, would have lost his reputation this year if he had not pledged it and sacrificed it eight years ago. The day before McKinley was inaugurated the last time, Mr. Moore sent forth the assertion that he would "pledge his professional reputation that the day would be a fine one." He failed to redeem his pledge, and in consequence he had no reputation to lose when, on March 4, 1909, he sent forth the statement that the day would be "clear and cool."

RECEIVER FOR OPIUM FARM.

Chinese Government Demands $460,000, Which Farmers Cannot Pay.

Singapore, March 26.—A remarkable situation has arisen here. The government has placed a receiver in charge of an opium farm in consequence of arrears, amounting to $460,000, which the farmers say they can not pay. In a recent petition to the government the farmers said that the sudden revival of the discussed law against the sale of opium in Chinese brothels, which are very numerous owing to the great excess of males over females, has reduced the effects on the antiopium agitation and of the Straits Opium commission, are an increased consumption of morphine and cocaine, and cleim that on grounds of equity they should not be forced to fulfill their contract in view of the government's change of policy. The government replied that they are carrying out the law existing at the time when the contract was made; that they are doing their utmost to prevent the importation of morphine and cocaine, and that they decline to grant remission from the obligations of the contract.

The government holds securities equal to a quarter's revenue and may not suffer immediate loss, but the whole preventive work against opium smugglers has been hitherto done by the farmers, and it will take a considerable time to organize a public preventive service. In the meanwhile smuggling is likely to become rampant. More than half the revenue of the colony is derived from opium rents.

FORMER CALUMET MAN KILLED IN CALIFORNIA.

Calumet, Mich., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word has been received that Garnet Rickard, a former resident, was accidentally killed in California. No details are forthcoming. The remains will be brought here for interment. He was 28 years old and had only been married a short time. He is survived by a mother, and a brother and sister, residents of Calumet.

AWAY WIZ ZEE HORRID FAT, CRY THE LADIES OF PARIS.

Paris, March 26.—Dr. Labbe, a well-known physician, states that nine-tenths of the ladies who consult him betray great concern lest with advancing years their figures should lose the graceful lines of youth. They have a horror of growing stout and are willing to submit to any martyrdom if only they can remain slender and elegant.

Dr. Labbe's answer to his patients is that, although French cooking is agreeable to the palate, it is neither hygienic nor beneficial, and, further, it is very fattening. Instead, he strongly recommends for breakfast porridge, fish, eggs, preserves and tea, instead of the customary coffee and rolls. Lunch should consist of plain dishes and fresh fruit. Five o'clock tea he considers a capital institution, with sparing quantities of toast and cakes. For dinner he would have roast beef, mutton or lamb, devoid of sauce and "kickshaws."

He also advocates bathing, walking and outdoor recreations. "If," he says, "the French would only follow this regime there would be less illness and disease." The physician advises the French to drink beer and cider, and especially to avoid ices. Fruit, he says, should be eaten raw after being well washed, but it should not be peeled, since salts, essential to health, lie under the skin. Dr. Labbe also warns patients against dressing too warmly, and he is strongly opposed to corsets and collars, which he calls "the two great enemies of health and good digestion."

BRAINS ARE NOW AHEAD OF BEAUTY

London Filled With Women Fair, But Cleverness Sought.

London, March 26.—Scarcely a day passes that the papers do not contain the record of a speech by the talented wife of one or another of the politicians of the moment. Today it is Mrs. Winston Churchill, the charming young woman who recently became the wife of that ambitious son of an American woman; yesterday it was Mrs. Reginald McKenna, the better half of the secretary of the navy in the present cabinet; and yet further back we listened to the well-chosen words of Mrs. Lloyd George, the consort of the harrassed chancellor of the exchequer. Before these ladies made their initial appearance in public, few suspected they are but shining exponents of a new craze which has attacked the wives of all the men who aspire to public life in England. A candidate for parliamentary honors here is lost indeed without the active support of his wife on the platform.

There was a time when these women worked in the background. Like "Maggie Shand" in Barrie's play, "What Every Woman Knows," they were content to inject into the oratorical efforts of their husbands, by subtle suggestion all unsuspected by their stronger half, the little, light touches that made all the difference between a good speech and a great one. Today they save their quips and jests and Shawian epigrams for their own appearances on the public platforms.

Desire for Social Triumph.

Strong as it may seem, this new departure by English society women can be traced to their desire for social triumph. Not far back in the dim past beauty alone opened the door to social pre-eminence. Nowadays mere beauty is a drug on the social market. Every woman is beautiful, if not by nature, then by art. The figure of a Venus de Milo and the face of a Raphael Madonna can be purchased at so much per inch from the Swedish masseur or the French beauty doctor of Bond street. Thus it is that the modern society woman appeals to intellect to help her separate the chaff from the wheat and to political speech-making as a new and unique method of demonstrating her fitness for inclsion in the most exclusive of hostesses' invitation lists.

Mrs. Winston Churchill has shown that she is a past master in the art of delivering a bright, witty, entertaining speech that leaves everybody pleased with themselves, the world in general and with Mrs. Churchill in particular. Her efforts have all the earmarks of being impromptu, but nevertheless are carefully prepared and polished beforehand.

As a consequence she is generally regraded as the most successful young married woman in town at the present moment, she is the best advertisement for her husband that he has ever had, and that is saying a great deal, for Winston is an adept at the business of self-advertising. Even that clever mother of his, Mrs. George Cornwallis West, has been thrown into the background by her new daughter-in-law.

It is freely hinted in political circles that Mrs. Winston Churchill did not acquire her mastery of the short speech without hard work. Indeed, it is said that ever since her marriage she has been in daily attendance at an academy of elocution, studying as hard as any school girl for an examination.

MOVEMENT STARTED TO ABOLISH ALL FOOLS' DAY; HAVE AN OPTIMISTS' DAY

New York, March 26.—A campaign for the abolishment of All Fools' day and the establishment in its stead of a national Optimists' day on April 1, has been started by the Optimists' club. A bill putting this design into effect has been sent to Senator Taylor of Tennessee for introduction in congress.

From the headquarters of the Optimists' club here a circular letter is being sent to governors of states, presidents of colleges and public men of various degrees urging the new plan.

"April 1," the letter says, "ought to be a day of good will. As at present observed it is a relic of a barbaric age. The Optimists' club plans to change its character so that every man, instead of playing practical jokes on his neighbors, will devote the day to doing some good."

TARIFF BILL MAY PASS IN TWO WEEKS

SENATE COMMITTEE TO BE PROMPT

Washington, March 26.—Members of the senate committee on finance say they will be ready to report a tariff bill whenever the house passes the Payne bill. They are informed that time will not be more than ten days or two weeks distant in all probability, and Senator Aldrich replied that the senate committee can be ready in three days if necessary.

With every day's consideration of the Payne bill, the senate committee is impressed with the fact that it hails very close to the line of the Dingley bill and that as a result the work of the committee is much simplified. The changes to be made in the measure will be far fewer in number than was at first anticipated. The closest attention is being paid to the administrative features of the bill and an especial effort will be made to avoid the possibility of undervaluations of imports such as caused disturbance a few years ago over the importation of fine potteries from France.

Another question which is concerning the finance committee is the rearrangement of schedules on related articles. Among these is pig iron and the manufactured products of pig iron. Under the Payne bill some fear is expressed that there is too great a similarity in the reductions of these related articles, and that instead of the desired importation of iron in pigs the manufactured products may be imported in too great competition with American manufactures. While no agreement has been reached by the senate committee the indication is that the rate of manufactured articles may be somewhat increased.

Lumber Compromise.

A proposition has been submitted to the finance committee on the subject of lumber, which was received with some favor. It provides for the free importation of dimensioned lumber, but with the continuance of the duty on cull from which lumber of an inferior grade is manufactured.

From some of the figures submitted to the committee, it is asserted that the difference between the cost of producing dimensioned lumber in Canada and the United States is not sufficient to make up for the difference in freight rates between American mills and Canadian mills to the American market. The deduction reached from this is that even if the duty on this class of lumber should be removed entirely, the American lumber producer would not be injured, but at the same time the retention of the duty on cull would compel the manufacture of these into lumber for packing boxes instead of permitting it to be burned as is now the case at large mills. The only effect, according to these arguments of adopting such a schedule on lumber would be to prevent waste in the United States and aid in the conservation of the forests.

Many complaints have reached the finance committee concerning the schedule in the Payne bill on watches and the various parts imported from abroad for watch manufacture. The duty has been increased on the finished product and on all parts of watches with the exception of dials. Information has been gathered which shows that practically all the American manufacturers have been driven out of business because of cheaper manufacture abroad.

These schedules have not been reached by the senate committee. Complaint also has been filed with the committee against the more than 100 per cent increase in duty on cocoa and chocolate. Statements have been submitted showing that cocoa and chocolate are being used more and more every year as breakfast beverages, and that the increased duty will compel the consumer to pay much more for these articles.

While no agreement has been reached regarding the wool schedule, the general opinion seems to be in favor of retaining the Dingley rates. The Payne bill does not change the duties on first and second-class wool, but makes a slight reduction in the duty imposed on third-class or carpet woolens, and the duty on shoddy and waste is slightly decreased; but the duty on tops is made higher than that on shoddy and waste. There was considerable controversy over the question of a duty on tops when the Dingley bill was under consideration in the senate, and a like situation is expected with regard to the Payne bill.

Calls Bill Betrayal.

Charging that the Payne tariff bill "is a deliberate betrayal of the American people," and "that is a fresh illustration of the perfidy of the Republican party," Mr. Sheppard of Texas bitterly attacked the measure in the house. He said that the Payne bill was in no way a sincere and equitable revision of the tariff, and asserted that it was a declaration of commercial war with all the world. "The enactment of the Payne bill," he said, "would paralyze what little progress we have made under the extension of our foreign trade." He discussed the maximum and minimum provisions of the bill and said that rumors of trade agreements in every corner of the earth would keep the American markets in a continual state of unrest.

A directly opposite view of the effect of the operation of the maximum and minimum provisions of the bill was taken by Mr. Cole of Ohio. He charged that it always had been the cry of the Democrats that the markets of the United States shall be opened to the products of the world and it was now contended that to invite a commercial war would be disastrous to American industries. That, he said, was contrary to the whole history of the nation. Never, he declared, had its standard been lowered beneath that of any competing nation. The particular provisions refered to, he said, would compel fair treatment from the commercial nations of the earth, which, he asserted, was not now enjoyed.

The burden of Mr. Cole's remarks, however, was a plea for better protection for the wool industry of the United States than is provided in the Payne bill.

In his maiden speech as a member of the house, Mr. Dies of Texas, opposed the protective tariff policy of the Republican party. He maintained that the levying of any tax not for the purpose of raising revenues to maintain the government, or for a temporary encouragement of the interests of the country, was an exploitation of the taxpayers. Mr. Dies in particular attacked the provisions of the bill referring to farm implements.

While declaring himself not in sympathy with the criticism directed against the bill, Mr. Knapp of New York, said there were some features of it with which he was not in entire accord. He opposed especially the wood pulp and print paper schedule.

Opposes Oil Duty.

Following an academic discussion of the tariff, Mr. Kustermann of Wisconsin, opposed the countervailing duty on oil which, he argued, had enabled the Standard Oil company to sell oil in England at from 3 to 4 cents a gallon less than in the United States. He declared that he had received postive assurance that that feature of the Dingley bill would be omitted from the Payne bill. "But," he said, holding up a copy of the measure, "Here is the little Joker standing before you in all its wickedness, ready to take from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 out of the pockets of our people and adding it to the vast profits of the greatest trust on earth.

The people, he said, were thus left "at the mercy of that ever-hungry monopoly."

Replying to Mr. Randell of Texas, Mr. Kustermann said he was not prepared to state that the position of John D. Rockefeller in the last election had something to do with the oil schedule. If, he asserted, any one expected to find a soul in the Standard Oil company, he would make a serious mistake.

Asked by Mr. Stephens of Texas if he had come across any other joker in the bill, Mr. Kustermann amid applause and laughter said he had been so occupied "in discovering this little joker, that he had not found time to hunt for others." That no one for some time knew of the presence in the Dingley bill of the oil joker, was the statement of Mr. Cooper of Wisconsin.

How it was put in, he said, he did not know, "but it was put in with the knowledge of but a very few members of either the house or the senate." To the surprise of everybody, however, he declared some one discovered it long after the Dingley bill became a law.

Has no Advantage.

While asserting that he was not defending the Standard Oil company, Mr. Smith of California said it had no advantage over others in the refining of oil. The trouble, he said was in the transportation of the oil. He contended that if others could get the same price as the Standard as to transportation, they could distribute oil, and, in fact, were distributing. He argued that the production of crude oil in the United States was the business of comparatively small capitalists. Those producers, he declared needed the duty in order that they might realize a fair profit. Indeed, said he, if the Standard Oil company were represented on the floor of the house and had the decision of the question, it would strike out the provision with reference to the countervailing duty. Not Russia, but Mexico, he said, was the competitor of the United States and Mexico was the place where the Standard would go to buy oil if the duty were taken off and leave the American oil producer with his wells shut down. He insisted that the duty in no sense was in the interest of the Standard Oil company as a refiner and transporter of oil, but was in the interest of the producer.

A voluntary admission by Mr. Vreeland of New York, that he was to some extent responsible for the retention of the countervailing duty on oil in the Payne tariff bill, was the climax of the discussion of the tariff.

Vreeland had sat for some time and heard various insinuations that that duty which some have characterized as a "joker," that to be levied solely in the interest of Standard Oil. This he denied, and explained that his action was in response to requests from thousands of his oil producing constituents, and in behalf of 500,000 others engaged in the same business. The debate on the oil schedule called forth some bitter criticism of the Standard Oil company by Mr. Kustermann of Wisconsin and others.

He was considerably shaken up by the fall, but no bones were broken.

CURE FOLLOWED YEAR OF AGONY

Intense Itching Eczema Drove Him Nearly to Despair—Chief Surgeon of a London Hospital Called It Worst Case He Had Ever Seen—Got Little or No Relief Until

CUTICURA STOPPED HIS UNBEARABLE TORTURE

"About four years ago, in London, I was troubled by a severe itching and dry, scurfy skin on my ankles and feet. The same, in a few days, was the case with my arms and scalp. I could hardly keep from scratching, which, I need hardly say, made it worse. Then large red patches appeared, with inflammation and soreness. After ten days, thousands of small red pimples formed. On becoming dry, these caused intense itching. I was advised to go to the hospital for diseases of the skin. I did so and was an out-patient for a month or more, the chief surgeon saying: 'I never saw such a bad case of eczema.' But I got little or no relief. Then I tried many so-called remedies, but I became so bad that I almost gave up in despair. On coming to this country I heard so many accounts of cures by Cuticura Remedies that I resolved, as a last resource, to give them a trial. This was after suffering agonies for twelve months, and right glad am I that I did so, for I was relieved of the almost unbearable itching after two or three applications of Cuticura Ointment. I continued its use, combined with a liberal use of Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Resolvent Pills and am more than thankful to say that after using three sets of the Remedies, I was completely cured. I can only add that, should any one be suffering as I did, I hope that they will do as I did, and I am sure of the results. Henry Searle, 2022 Cross St., Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 8 and 10, '07.'

HOOTS AND YELLS FOR ARCHDEACON'S DAUGHTER WHO WILL MARRY A JAP

San Francisco, Cal., March 26.—Amid hoots and yells, banging of tin cans and an ironical shower of rice and flowers, Mrs. John Emery, wife of Archdeacon Emery of the Episcopal church, and her daughter, Miss Helen Gladys Emery, whose engagement to Gunjiro Aoki, a Japanese, has aroused public sentiment against them, left their home at Corte Madella.

They came to this city, but almost immediately departed for Tacoma. Aoki was not with them when they left here, but it is supposed he has arranged to join his fiancee and her mother before reaching Sacramento. The mother and daughter were met at the ferry depot here by the secretary of Bishop Nichols.

May Be Arrested.

Portland, Or., March 26.—Should Miss Gladys Emery and her Japanese fiance attempt to obtain a marriage license in Oregon, they will find that the state law forbids the marriage of whites with Orientals. The district attorney announces that should they appear on the streets of Portland, arm in arm, they would be arrested.

PLAN NEW MILL FOR NEW DULUTH

Cass Lake Man Looking For Site For New Industry.

New Duluth, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Frank of Cass Lake has been in New Duluth this week looking up a site for a grist mill and elevator which he expects to erect.

William Kulisavitz of Bessemer, Mich., is spending the week in New Duluth inspecting his building here and figuring on repairs. Mr. Kulisavitz has decided to have a new foundation put in and the building fully repaired from top to bottom. The cost will be about $3,000.

The building in question is two stories high and built of brick. It has the lower floor divided into two parts for stores. The upper rooms are to be used as offices and lodge rooms.

CARLTON COUNTY IRON.

Ore of Good Quality Said to Have Been Discovered.

Moose Lake, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Nikkall returned this week from Duluth, where he went to have a sample of hard iron ore tested. He went to one of the best chemists in Duluth and on examination it proved to be 57.5 per cent iron. Iron is being found in Carlton county and there is no question about the quality. Some years ago parties were drilling north of town and went down several hundred feet, later it was abandoned but upon being interviewed they would give no information. However, it is the belief that they found something and do not wish to divulge what it is. That there is iron and copper ore in this immediate vicinity is known to be a fact, but in what quantities is yet to be ascertained.

CONVICT'S SUDDEN END.

Joseph White Found Dead in Bed in Marquette Penitentiary.

Marquette, Mich., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joseph White, who was recently sentenced to the Marquette prison for larceny, committed in this city, was found dead in his bed at that institution by the guard Wednesday morning.

White was 69 years of age, and since his arrival at the prison, March 13, he has done no active work. Apoplexy is supposed to have been the cause of death. The deceased has spent a good part of his later life in jail and prison. His last offense was to steal some jewels from the living rooms above the Colonial Inn. He had completed a term in jail for vagrancy that morning, and stole the jewels a few hours after Justice Byrne had refused to again commit him to the county jail for vagrancy.

NEGROES SLAIN FIGHTING POSSE

Quest for Cattle Thieves Causes Riot in Oklahoma.

Guthrie, Okla., March 26.—On the scene of the famous Creek Indian uprising of last year at Hickory settlement, two negroes were killed, many wounded and forty captured in a battle between twenty deputy sheriffs and 100 negroes. The fighting began late Wednesday afternoon and continued until 10 a. m. yesterday.

Five deputies went from Henrietta, eighteen miles north, to the negro settlement to arrest cattle thieves thought to be concealed in the house of one of the negroes. They were met by armed negroes, who refused to allow them to enter. The deputies persisted and were fired upon. Outnumbered, they fled.

A few hours after a larger posse, heavily armed, reached the settlement. Someone fired a shot and the rioting was on. When night fell the excitement increased, and negroes roamed through the woods, firing and yelling.

The fight continued as a series of duels throughout the night, the negroes retreating gradually from tree to tree as the deputies advanced, firing steadily. Reaching the settlement, the negroes barricaded themselves in the huts and could not be dislodged until daybreak.

NO NIGHT SERVICE ON THE M. & I. RAILROAD.

Brainerd, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. H. Gemmell, general manager of the Minnesota & International railroad, was here from St. Paul Wednesday and Thursday. He stated that no definite arrangements had been made for the rumored night service on that road. Business conditions were not such as to warrant heavy expenditures at present, he stated, but he hoped to see an improvement in the near future.

The business car of the Minnesota & International has been sent to the Northern Pacific shops at Como, as a result of an accident in the Northern Pacific yards here. A coupling let loose, letting the car strike another coach with such force as to break its end sill and damage the furniture and equipment of the car considerably.

They called what we term coal "black rock." Today, if it isn't mixed up with too much slate and dirt, it's still "black rock;" but 'twill burn to bake, broil or boil as you like it. We furnish a coal which will do all three —furnish heat besides, when heat you want.

SOMETHING PRACTICAL DONE.

The schoolboard at Hibbing is trying to work out the problem of teachers' salaries in a practical way. There is a decided sentiment at Hibbing, as elsewhere throughout the country, in favor of substantial increases in wages for teachers. In response to that sentiment, and in an effort to test it, the Hibbing schoolboard last year raised the salaries of all the teachers of the Hibbing public schools $5 per month. The raise met with the emphatic approval of the people of the district and with no apparent abatement of the demand that provision be made for substantially higher salaries than in the past. The board therefore has again raised the salaries of its teachers another $5 per month for the coming year. A raise of $2.50 was made two years ago, so that now the schedule of teachers' salaries in the Hibbing district is $12.50 higher than it was two years ago.

It strikes The Herald that this is not a bad way to work out the question of the increase in teacher's salaries. The Herald does not know whether the board at Hibbing plans to add another $5 raise to their schedule next year, but if the raise just announced is well received by the taxpayers, it is quite possible that there will be still other advances. The whole question is one for the taxpayers, and it will be pretty difficult to increase wages in the schoolroom any faster than public sentiment will warrant it. There is plenty of evidence, however, that there is a strong sentiment among the people for finding ways and means to bring about very decided increases in the pay of public school teachers.

It is a fact that anyone can verify with a few moments' thought, that teachers are now more poorly paid than any other class of woman workers, and yet they are entrusted with our most important public undertaking. A teacher who gets $60 per month for nine months is being paid $540 per year for her services in educating and training for life our children. Naturally we demand that such a woman, entrusted with forming the character of our children, shall be well educated, specially trained for her work, endowed with a little better than the average mentality, that she shall live well, dress in taste and fashion and keep abreast of the times—all for $540 a year, that is providing she gets $60 a month, which she doesn't. The average monthly wage of the teachers in the village and city public schools of the state is very much less than $60. In fact, $60 is regarded in most towns as a "big salary." The average teacher in our public schools does not get much more than $400 per year. Compared to this the fairly good domestic gets from $225 per year up with board and lodging included, and nothing is required of her but a very fair quality of housework. A bright stenographer gets from $500 to $1,000, and in fact, it is hard to find anybody who gets less than the school teacher, unless it be the child factory worker.

Notwithstanding the enormous sums we are spending for education each year, there can be no question that we have got to very materially increase the largest item in that expense—the salaries of teachers. Although the teachers of the country are the most devoted public servants that the world has and probably the most enthusiastic toilers in any calling, nothing is so holding back our public development as inadequate salaries for teachers.

PROFIT IN TREES.

The moral of Miller's creek, which in twenty years since the trees were removed from its banks, has washed more sediment into the bay than in the preceding 100 years, is repeated in thousands of streams all over the country. A writer in Horticulture calls attention to the condition of Massachuetts in this respect. Once covered with fine groves of pine and other woods, it is today almost a treeless state, and brooks where once was good trout fishing now contain only a few inches of water in the spring and fall and are dry, or nearly so, all the rest of the year.

The attempt of Z. D. Scott of Duluth to reforest the northern shores of Lake Superior is arousing considerable interest, but it would arouse more if it could be proved to the satisfaction of those who own the land that such reforestration will pay, not only from the standpoint of the needs of the country, but in actual dollars and cents to those who attempt it. That it will not bring back dollars in this life does not matter; men slave every day to pile up wealth that they cannot use in this life or any other. If trees can be raised profitably, does it matter to capital that the profit is not to be taken for a quarter of a century to come, so long as the profit is sure?

Some very interesting experiments are reported by Horticulture which show that a large profit can be made from raising trees. J. D. W. Williams of Raynham, Mass., set a piece of land to pine in 1850. The land cost $10 per acre, the setting cost $5 and the total taxes paid were $5 per acre. Thus the total cash investment was $20 per acre. At the end of twenty-five years the timber on the land was sold for $150 per acre and the land was left for replanting

A Mr. Williams of Bristol county, Massachusetts, set out a piece of land to pine in 1811. The trees were set in rows from six to nine feet apart and at a distance of six feet from each other. The land was worth $6 per acre, the cost of setting was $7 and the taxes up to 1870 were $11 per acre, a total of $24 per acre. The timber was sold in 1870 for $350 per acre. Other instances are given in which timber planting yielded $150 per acre in periods varying from 25 to 30 years .

In each of the cases, the expenses given were the only ones incurred. There was absolutely no expense whatever for care, and it is estimated that with a little pruning and trimming the value of the product could have been increased about 15 per cent.

It is absolutely certain that we must come in time to the raising of trees, and there seems to be little question that the growing of forests can be made financially profitable. To plant a forest today and wait for thirty years for returns seems a long time to this impatient generation, but when tree growing becomes a business we shall find capital for the planting of forests each year and then when returns begin to come in they will be continuous. The brunt of the work must now fall on the government, but little by little we shall surely come to tree growing as a private venture.

THE DAVIS BILL.

The move for agricultural and industrial teaching and practical investigation and demonstration in connection is the most significant phase of education in this generation.

This movement manifests itself in Minnesota in the proposal now being made in and out of the legislature for the teaching of agriculture and industrial arts in grade and city high schools, for county and district agricultural schools and for the multiplying of experimental stations. The very essence of it is found in the provisions of that bill which bears the name of Congressman Davis of Minnesota, now pending in congress and quite certain to pass at the approaching regular session.

The Davis bill is backed by the national league for industrial education, composed of a combination of agricultural, commercial, labor, educational and civic interests. It has the vigorous support of the department of agriculture. Its present form is largely due to the labors and investigations of Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Hays of Minnesota. The bill is of peculiar interest to Minnesota, in that it co-ordinates so closely with the proposed Stephens bill for district agricultural schools in this state, and also because of the fact that it bears the name of a Minnesota man and is largely the result of the investigations of Minnesotans.

The Davis bill simply gives aid for industrial and agricultural education. The state must first establish its district agricultural schools; it may then, under the provisions of the Davis bill, draw from the nation some $25,000 each year for the support of these schools. The Davis bill provides for national grants of 10 cents per capita annually, a total of about $9,000,000, for this purpose. The bill also provides a grant of one cent per capita, amounting to $900,000 for the training of teachers for these schools.

If Minnesota authorizes the establishment of district agricultural schools and experimental stations, these schools will just about be ready by the time that the provisions of the Davis bill will go into effect.. The bill has already been very favorably considered in congress and high hopes are entertained for its passage next winter.

SAVED THEM THEIR JOBS.

The defeat of the county assessor bill in the house will have to be charged up, along with the failure of the county road commission bill, to human nature's love for the loaves and the fishes.

The bill was recommended by the state tax commission and the system that it sought to adopt was earnestly urged by Governor Johnson in his message to the legislature. There is absolutely no difference of opinion in regard to the wisdom of the bill from the standpoint of the welfare of the state. It is a measure of tax reform upon which all who have considered the needs of the state are agreed. Yet it failed. Why?

The reason is to be found beneath, though not in, that principal argument made against the bill—that it would create a new office. The truth is that it would do away with scores of offices and that is just where the rub comes. We may have conscientious scruples against creating new offices, but we have constitutional objections against giving up any offices that we have. For the present township assessors, the law proposed to substitute one county assessor in each county. Had the bill passed a lot of good people throughout the state would have been out of a job. In order that these good people may have a job we must continue with our illogical and ineffective township system of tax assessment.

The reasons for the bill are given in The Herald's correspondence from St. Paul: "Since equality of taxation is the object of tax reform, and since there can be no equality of taxation without equality of assessments, the commission thought it would be better to have a county assessor with deputies under his direction, instead of the present hodge-podge of assessments by a horde of local wiseacres."

But the township assessors come from the country and the country flew to their relief, killed the bill and saved them their jobs.

If all our presidents were like Roosevelt we should not need to worry about what to do with them.

The promised scandal in connection with the Whitla kidnaping case seems to have been imaginative.

Senator Laybourn is deserving of congratulations on getting the senate committee to report a reapportionment bill.

Well begun is said to be half done, but it is hard to believe it in the case of this special session of congress.

A censor of public morals is proposed in Des Moines. Look out for the morals of the man who wants to be the censor.

Congress, while commending the brevity of Taft's tariff message, probably has no intention of taking it for a model.

When the other Sharon boys look at Willie Whitla's collection of marbles, they almost wish they also had been kidnaped.

The California girl who is meeting with so many obstacles in her desire to marry a Japanese is being given full opportunity to demonstrate her fixity of purpose.

The Winona Republican-Herald, which is one of the newsiest daily papers in Minnesota, has issued a spring and summer fashion edition consisting of forty-six pages, handsomely illustrated and filled with special fashion stories in addition to the regular news features. This edition is not only a credit to the Republican-Herald's enterprise, but is an evidence of the push and prosperity of Winona. It ranks well with the special editions of the metropolitan newspapers.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"The days of the old melodrama of the 'junk' shows, as we used to call them, appear to be numbered," said Jake B. Isaac, manager of "Brewster's Millions," who is at the Spalding.

Mr. Isaac is one of the old-time melodrama managers. He was in the business for some ten or twelve years, and knows it from the ground up.

"The trouble with the business is that the melodramatic writers are written out and have new sensations to offer. There is one writer, who wrote fifty plays in three years. You can imagine what those plays must have been. They were almost identical in plot and action with the names of the leading characters, changed a trifle, and different scenes. The rule for writing a melodrama was to get a title and the 'paper,' as we call the advertising matter, and then write a play to fit them. Climaxes were also a very necessary requisite, and every melodrama had to have a series of climaxes. It got so the steady patrons could anticipate the dialogue. I have been in melodrama theaters where the old-timers could watch a new play being produced and anticipate the cues of the actors, so familiar were they with the stereotyped expressions.

"That is what killed melodrama, and the 'junk' plays are not what they uhed to be. The theaters that used to be devoted to melodrama, are being turned into vaudeville houses or moving picture shows and melodrama at popular prices seems to be rapidly dying out. Theaters that used to take in from $6,000 to $8,000 a week, now consider themselves lucky if they get $2,000. Fortunes have been made in melodrama, but the outlook for that field of dramatic effort doesn't appear very promising."

"What would the average man do when his child was kidnaped?" was the subject of a heated discussion at the Lenox hotel between three traveling men and an insurance adjuster, last evening.

It seemed to be the opinion of the majority of those present that the average father would do just as the father of Willie Whitla did—pay the ransom when he saw the police could find no trace of the kidnapers. Those who took part in the discussion were also emphatic in their belief that the punishment of kidnapers could not be made too severe, and the crime, in their opinion, was almost if not quite, as black as murder.

"That story in The Herald last night about the settlers in Linden Grove, appealed to me more than anything I have read in a long while," said H. C. Moore, an old-time cruiser, who was at the McKay last evening. "I have been all through this north country many times and know what a rough time the settlers have of it until they get roads. I have also been in Linden Grove township, and know that what they claim is true. They have no road there, and no means of getting supplies in or out except by the Little Fork river, which has many dangerous rapids. A number of settlers who have tried to bring in supplies by way of the river have lost them in the rapids, and all their work is wasted and their money lost. In the winter they can get in and out easier, because there is snow on the ground, but in the summit it is impossible to get in and out of the settlement except on foot or by way of the river. If a person is taken ill there, it is almost impossible to get medical attendance. If any settlement in this county needs a road it is Linden Grove township."

Says Bryan Will Run.

Baltimore American: "There is not a shadow of doubt as to Bryan's candidacy in 1912," remarked a member of congress from a Western state, at the Stafford.

"I took dinner with Bryan in Denver a week ago, and I am positive he will again be willing to take the leadership as he has done in three past campaigns. He did not say this directly, but often one does not have to hear a man's open declaration to know his intention. But before again trying for the White House Bryan will seek election to the United States senate from Nebraska. From what I know of the situation, I believe it safe to predict he will win this office, inasmuch as a senatorial primary law will be passed by the present Nebraska legislature, and with such a law Bryan would have more than an even chance of victory. He would duplicate the trick of Governor Chamberlain in Oregon. Thousands of Republicans in Nebraska like Bryan, and as a matter of state pride would aid in sending him to the senate. The same men would never vote for him for president. As a Democrat, I do not wish Bryan to run in 1912, but as his warm personal friend I shall support him, even while positive he has no chance."

THE WEATHER.

CLOUDY

Winter showed a tendency to linger in the lap of spring this morning, and there was quite a fall of snow. It is not the kind that will last, however, and will serve only to make the streets slushy for a few days. The outlook for tonight is for cloudy and somewhat colder weather.

A year ago today it was crisp and cool.

The sun rose this morning at 5:59 o'clock and will set this afternoon at 6:29, making twelve hours and thirty minutes of daylight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the past twenty-four hours light rain or snow fell throughout the Atlantic states and the greater part of the Northwest, due largely to the influence of the low pressure areas that have moved their centers from Maryland to Maine, and from Saskatchewan to Minnesota, respectively. The barometer has risen and the temperature has fallen over the Middle and South Atlantic states, Montana and Alberta, with a high pressure area developing over the latter district. Temperatures are somewhat higher this morning in the regions lying between the Mississippi valley and the Rocky mountains, this condition attending a fall in barometer. The easterly movement of the Minnesota low pressure disturbance will be followed by generally fair weather at the Head of the Lakes tonight and Saturday."

A Model License Country.

New York American: An Ohio dispatch notes that in the little city of Newark, which recently went "dry" on a popular vote, the lessened municipal revenues due to the non-issuance of liquor licenses have compelled the authorities to shut off a considerable portion of the electric light service at night and to reduce the police force very materially. It may be, of course, that the people there prefer prohibition—at least, prohibition in name—to well-lighted and well-policed streets; but a few burglaries and highway robberies growing out of the disorder of things would unquestionably result in a popular demand for a return to the old system, and especially if under the present one the drinking of unlicensed liquors continues in as much volume as was the case with licensed liquors—a by no means uncommon condition under legal prohibition.

In all probability the vast majority of the people in Newark and Licking county who voted "dry" on the liquor license question did so as a matter of mere personal sentiment or conviction or through political and other considerations, but without any particular knowledge of the history of the prohibition movement in general, of the moral and economic results of the system under test or of the results that follow a rational regulation of the liquor traffic in other states and other countries. In Switzerland, for instance, the government maintains what is known as the "Swiss alcohol monopoly," the principal purpose of the plan being to put a sort of check on the consumption of distilled liquors—such as brandy, whisky, etc.—while encouraging the moderate use of pure wines, beers and other malt liquors. One of the immediate effects of the system was wine, cider and beer of a vastly improved quality and at lower prices than before, and brandy, whisky, rum, etc., of improved quality also, but at higher prices. "The monopoly," says M. Milliet, its director, "offers a better distribution of the burdens among the different classes of the population and enables us to tax the distilled spirits variously—the drink of the rich man higher than that of the poor man."

As to the traffic itself in Switzerland each canton has a large measure of discretion in its regulation, the general plan being to limit the number of saloons in proportion to the population; the average is about one saloon to every 500 inhabitants, while in the country districts the ratio is not infrequently as high as only one saloon to every 1,000 inhabitants. In Lucerne there is a system of graduated licenses, the minimum price for a permit to sell intoxicants at retail being only 200 francs or $40 a year, and the maximum price—that paid by the large hotels, for instance—being $1,200 a year. The hour for closing all licensed places is 12 o'clock midnight—and the regulation easily enforces itself, because the first violation of it results in a forfeiture of the license; all license fees are payable by the year in advance. E. R. Mansfield, the American consul at Lucerne, reports that in that city an intoxicated person on the streets is a marked rarity, and that he has never seen anybody "boisterously drunk" there unless it was a foreign tourist.

Home.

Cling to thy home! If there the meanest shed
Yield thee a hearth and shelter for thy head,
And some poor plot, with vegetables stored,
Be all that heaven allots thee for thy board;
Unsavory bread and herbs that scattered grow
Wild on the river brink or mountain brow,
Yet e'en this cheerless mansion should provide More heart's repose than all the world beside.

—LEONIDAS.

He's a Leader.

Pittsburg Dispatch: People who are asserting that Senator Root has now become the boss of New York state may possibly by careful study be able, in the course of a few years, to discover the difference between a boss and a leader.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Mankato Free Press: 'Women may fight the tariff on stockings," is the news flashed over the wires. Sock it to 'em.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Anyway if we have to, St. Louis county can pay all of the state taxes.

Floodwood Broadaxe: Well! let's secede. St. Louis county is bigger than Rhode Island and we can raise more money for taxation than two little states like Rhody.

Red Wing Republican: A Michigan judge has decided that a girl who breaks an engagement must return the ring. This is a wise decision and a just one for it's usually easier for a young man to get another girl than it is to get another ring.

Albert Lea Times-Enterprise: Industrial enterprise has gone mad. Law and morals have no place in the category of commercial virtues. Success can only be achieved by a system of plunder based upon an evasion of the laws of the land.

Princeton Union: That President Taft is a kind-hearted man is shown by the fact that he has sent Elmer W. Loring, a boy who formerly carried his golf sticks around the links, to the University of Virginia and will allow him $2 a day until he graduates. Then Mr. Taft intends placing the young man in a position of trust.

Virginia Virginian: Jack London, the author, has been forced by illness to give up his tour around the world in his yacht, the Snark. Sultry days spent in Southern waters did not agree with the man who wrote tales of the wilds of Alaska and who has traveled over the Chilcoot pass on different occasions. He will return at once to his home in California.

New York is so big that a great many things worth knowing are likely to pass unnoticed.

TORTURED BY IMAGINATION

Prince Ferdinand Lives in Constant Fear of Health.

St. Petersburg, March 26.—Prince Ferdinand, whose constant fear of regicidal men and maladies is so disproportionate to the actual dangers, had a severe fright before quitting the hospital banks of the Neva last Thursday night. Diagnosing a slight pain in his throat as the premonitory symptom of diphtheria, the "lesser czar" was distressed beyond measure on account of the Bulgarian nation and himself.

The source of this uneasiness was an incident which clouded the sunshine of his visit to the North. On the way to St Petersburg he had been informed that the Grand Duke Nicholas was disputed to meet and welcome him, but would be compelled to see less of him than he would like because his nephew was down with scarlet fever, and although nephew and uncle were not riding together, the grand duke visited him regularly. Prince Ferdinand meditated anxiously on this fateful message and then requested as a great favor that some other grand duke further removed from the infectious ills to which even royalties are heir should meet him, whereupon the Grand Duke Constantine was appointed. Thereupon the Coberg prince was tranquillized, and everything worked smoothly and without the slightest hitch.

But on Sunday evening, on his return from church, the "lesser czar" suddenly received a sharp nervous shock on learning that, whereas the Grand Duke Nicholas's nephew was sufering from scarlet fever in another house, the Grand Duke Constantine's own children, who lived together with him under the same roof, were down with genuine diptheria. After that the distinguished guest was anxiously warring with throat bacteria, apparently with success, until Thursday, when pain made itself felt, resuscitating his gravest apprehenslons. Happily, the disquieting symptoms finally vanished, and the "lesser czar," having escaped cholera, diphtheria and other perils which Russians regard as the common-place of daily existence, returned safe and sound to his loyal and independent Bulgarians.

Raisuli Gets Consolation Prize From the Sultan.

Tangier, March 26.—Raisuli, the picturesque brigand, has met with an unexpected reverse.

He has been endeavoring for some months to secure the post of governor of the Fahs from Mulai Hafid, and has sent over $50,000 in order to "interest" various courts officials in his behalf.

Now Mulai Hafid has definitely refused him the post. By way of consolation, however, the sultan has presented Raisuli with a horse, some tents, and four new wives for his harem.

Pekin, March 26.—The minister of war is said to have memorialized the throne asking that a squadron of war vessels should be sent to the South Pacific in order to show the dragon flag to Chinese residing in the British and Dutch colonies and dependencies. It is asserted that this step is meant to combat any idea that may exist among Chinese abroad that the power of the present dynasty is waning—a feeling that may take root owing to the seditious literature which is being disseminated among them by revolutionaries.

SOLD FOR THE TAXES

Strange Title Deed of Four Hundred Acres in Pennsylvania.

Collector Sought in Vain for Some One to Settle.

Laporte, Pa., March 26.—Four hundred acres of fine land hereabouts have been sold for taxes, the owner being the Almighty. That sounds rather sacreligious, but something over forty years ago Peter E. Armstrong deeded the tract to God, and thus the title an odd religious faith tha tnprompted an odd religious faith that prpmted him to assemble a band of followers on the hilltops and form what was then named Celestia, and what has come to be known as the City of God. Strangely enough, when he willed to God the 400 acres surrounding this hilltop villa, he provided no way for the payment of taxes. The total sum due grew startlingly large, and the authorities began to wonder how the amount might be realized out of the so-called "holyland."

When Recorder of Deeds Albert F. Heess of Laporte took office, he figured out that the money on this piece of land must be collected. The county needed the money. A prompt appeal was made to relatives of Prophet Armstrong to reimburse the county, but this was futile. They were not exactly in sympathy with the disposal of the acres by their father, and so they said: "I guess you'll have to go to the owner for your tax money."

Sold at Tax Sale.

The answer did not sound like money to the Sullivan county recorder. So he proceeded to sell the property at a regular treasurer's sale, at Eagles Mere. This transaction ended the long-cherished dream of Peter E. Armstrong, who had said in his remarkable will that he hoped the property would remain in the eternal care and possession of God."

It will be many years before the story of Peter E. Armstrong's bequest will be forgotten. Summer guests at Eaglesmere, a resort near the site of Celestia, always include in their jaunts a trip to the sacred villa. They grope about the ruins of the Armstrong hope, and seem to delight in rummaging through the shacks that remain standing.

Only four tumbled-down houses tell the tale of the undertaking. They crown a bald spot in the mountain top; they are a remnant of the one-time city where Armstrong had hoped to gather 100,000 persons. One of the buildings has been converted into a sheep den, and another into a small home, where A. C. Jenkins, an affable Yankee, lives as keeper of the estate.

The trend of the group of buildings is so rickety that persons think twice before entering it. Once it was the workshop, schoolhouse and printing establishment of the prophet. There Armstrong turned out the Day Star of Zion, a monthly publication in which he expounded lengthily his particular religious views.

Pasted on the walls of this musty old shed are hundreds of copies of the Day Star. In one room is stored all the earthly treasures of the doctrinist, which, according to a dying request from Armstrong, shall forever be closed from public eyes and left to rot to dust. Visitors peer through the cracks in the walls of the secret chamber, but all they see is a pile of old-fashioned decaying furniture.

Called Himself Prophet.

Armstrong aimed to outdo Alexander Dowie and build the first Zion City in America, and it was with this express purpose he went to Sullivan county and bought the 400 acres of land. He dubbed himself a prophet and leader, and he promised his flock, that when their earthly life had been spent, they would leave the earth in the misty cloud that would envelop Celestia and thew would soar heavenward. For this reason, it is said, he chose mountain lands, since it was 2,100 feet above the sea and ever so much nearer the blue sky.

To those persons who knew him and studied his life, Armstrong stood out as a mysterious character. Either he was as shrewd as Shakespeare's Shylock, or out of mere fancy he was the promoter of one of the airiest religious ideas that the history of this end of the United States has had to witness. An interesting story is told of Armstrong's experience with a Sullivan county collector who had come to get tax money. It emphasizes the man's keenness and farsightedness. Always through his life the prophet maintained the land over which he was earthly president belonged to God, and whenever the tax collector appeared he would have an ever-ready answer:

"Get your money from the real owner of this property. I am simply a tenant here."

Threat to Jail Him.

This excuse had warned off several of the men who had visited him on a tax-gathering errand. Finally, one came along who advanced a strenuous argument, and made a threat to jail Armstrong, if he didn't pay up.

"You are the owner's agent, as you say," thundered the collector, "and I'll get value received out of you, if I am compelled to put you in jail."

The old doctrinist winced, but did not produce. When the collector came again he started to drive from the sacred land a flock of sheep that was the pride of the proprietor. Armstrong saw the man chasing the sheep in the direction of Laporte, but paid little attention to it.

"God will stop you from taking my sheep from me," he replied, when the collector passed the house and told him that he expected to negotiate the flock.

Previously, Armstrong had trained the sheep never to cross the bridge that had been built at the end of the Celestia acres on the road to Laporte. As they had been trained, the sheep balked at the edge of the bridge. Armstrong walked leisurely from his house to the place where the collector was trying vainly to drive the sheep across the road bridge. He didn't say a word, and was about to return home and laugh at the effort.

Just then, it is said, the collector forced Armstrong to cross over the hoodoo bridge, and the entire flock followed pellmell.

"FRATS" IN REVOLT.

Refuse to Obey Ohio Law Forbidding Their Existence.

Columbus, Ohio, March 26.—The modern spirit of contempt for the law is shown in the action of the members of the Beta Phi Sigma, a high school fraternity of this city, in refusing to withdraw from the organization, as required by the statutes.

Summoned to appear before the school board on March 31, the lads have announced that they have employed an attorney and will fight the board. They organized the fraternity in defiance of the law and propose to do as they please.

The law requires their expulsion from school and provides a penalty for the teachers and the school board for non-action.

The girl members of the Alpha Delta Sorovity, who were tried by the board, have filed proof of their withdrawal from it. The sorovity is kept up by graduates, and they refuse to surrender the charter. It has not yet been decided by the board what to do with the offenders for breaking the law by joining the society.

The general assembly enacted the law because it was shown that these organizations were un-American and made snobs out of their members. While the girls were being forced to confess their misdoings some of their mothers pranced about the corridors threatening vengeance and declaring that they would "get a lawyer to make the board stop."

Following their example, the leaky-nosed boys have secured a lawyer and once more the Ohio constitution will have to be construed.

BASHFUL HUSBAND A PAPA.

Dan Mathews Balked Four Times at Altar Before Marriage.

Jerseyville, Ill., March 26.—Bashful Dan Matthews, the man who made four attempts to summon up courage to say "I will," when he faced the parson to be married, before he finally got them out, is a father. Daniel and his wife welcomed a twelve-pound boy to their home today. The son and heir of the most bashful man in Illinois will be called Daniel Matthews, Jr.

Matthews's experiences while on the matrimonial market were thrilling, and his timidity which he could not overcome under four attempts almost cost him his bride.

Three separate occasions did Daniel and his fiancee face the parson, and Daniel bolted from the altar. The first attempt he made, he did not get any further than the license office.

"Let's wait until tomorrow," he said to the girl. "I've got something important to do this afternoon and I'm afraid I won't have time to get married."

The girl agreed and they retraced their steps. The next time Daniel balked at the altar and the third time he reneged his fiancee's mother was with the wedding party. After that failure Daniel was promised one more chance and was accompanied to the altar by his closest friend and the bride-to-be's mother.

ANXIETY AS TO THE KING

Edward Must be Absolutely Silent for Two Hours Daily.

Rich Mammas Given a Great Shock by Children's Nurses.

London, March 26.—In the circle of the king's friends it is well known that Edward VII is in a state of health which is causing grave anxiety. For years the king has gone the pace steadily and "suddenly, almost without warning, the brake which controls the nerve forces has snapped and there is serious trouble." This was the definition of his condition which was given one day last week by a great specialist who was privately summoned to a consultation at Buckingham Palace recently. His majesty has worn himself out—no one would be guilty of saying with dissipation—but at least with a continuously good time. On the day when the king opened parliament no one who listened to his speech ever thought he would be able to get through with it, but the British press, realizing his objection to any insinuation that his health was not what it might be, refrained from commenting. The nerves of his throat are so limp that his physicians have condemned him to silence for at least two hours a day. He may drive, walk, sit in the open during that time, but on no account must he speak. To condemn the king to silence is like condemning him to eternal torture. His energy is immense. This makes him a trying and difficult patient, for he is never happy unless he is rampaging somewhere or the center of a lively crowd, with wit, beauty and charm dancing attendance upon him.

Consuelo to the Rescue.

American women will make things as gay for him as they always do at Biarritz or Marienbad. Consuelo Duchess of Manchester, one of the few women who never pall on the king, will be ready to take a morning walk with him, which no doubt will be enjoyed in silence; there will she be also to play bridge in the evening. (By the way, the duchess, who used to be such a poor player, has improved considerably lately.) The Drexels will also be turning up—if they are not there already—by the time this reaches you. Anthony Drexel is one of the American men of whom the king has made a pal and they are very thick indeed.

Last year three or four of the American women in Biarritz had the king's suite of rooms sumptuously decorated with flowers for him on his arrival. Lilies, roses and lilacs bloomed for him as though it was June. I think it was Lady Essex who sent a thrush and a blackbird, each in a golden cage, tied up with pink ribbons. This started a vogue after which for months women had such birds to sing in their boudoirs. But this year the smart American women of the king's set no better than to send him gifts of singing birds whose music they realize his majesty's nerves would not stand.

Rubies Doped.

Smart society women have had a revelation in discovering that their babies have been imbibing a new patent medicine advertised as "perfectly harmless for the most delicate infant, but which is guaranteed to put them to sleep for nine hours at a stretch. This medicine has found its way into the most exclusive nurseries in Mayfair, imported by unscrupulous nurses who either object to being awakened by their charges or want to have a night out when their masters and mistresses are attending a late dinner party.

The story is going round that Mr. and Mrs. Lulu Harcourt have been in the greatest state of anxiety because their only son and heir slept for twelve hours without a break. When he awoke he was curiously dazed, though he showed no other symptoms of having been drugged. A doctor having been called in he instantly diagnosed the case as the result of morphine.

All the mothers in Mayfair are now on the qui vive, and many of them have decided to employ only trained hospital nurses who have a reputation at stake and may be trusted. Lady nurses are also in great demand, as it is felt that gentlewomen nearly always have a little more conscience than the young person recruited from the lower classes who is usually called upon to look after the children.

There are amusing incidents told of adoring parents, who upon hearing what nurses had been doing, went straight to their own nurseries and if baby was asleep shook the poor mite awake to make sure that it was not going to sleep forever. In at least one case the nurse chased both parents out of her dominion, saying they were mad.

Crowded With Americans.

Considering the time of the year and the severity of the weather, which is unparalleled for disagreebleness, never in the annals of London has it been so crowded with smart Americans. In the Anglo-American set it is dance upon dance, wedding upon wedding, bridge and dinners galore and cotillions without number. At the first two courts American women carried all before them with the beauty of their gowns and the wonder of their jewels, while at the levees the preponderance of American men was a subject of universal comment. The king himself noticed it and was vastly pleased. In past years Americans, unless in the diplomatic service, rarely troubled to make their bow at the court of Saint James, contenting themselves with the fact that their womenkind had done all that was needful in that respect when they went to Buckingham palace. Now all that is changed. All the best Yankees seem to think it their duty to buy a levee dress which costs anything from $250 upwards, and arrayed in velvet knee breeches, silk stockings and picturesque swallow tail, not to speak of buckled shoes and lace ruffles, make their way to Saint James palace, where the levee takes place.

Balls Are Numerous.

The balls and cotillions given by rich Americans just now are keeping crowds of smart people in town. One of the most successful was that of Lady Cora Strafford. Few dreamed of leaving before 5 in the morning, and were not keen on departing then. "The fact is," said one of the richest men about town, "these Yankee women do things so brilliantly, give such ripping suppers, feed you so well in the morning before you depart, present such delightful presents, that one is only too willing to sacrifice a bridge party or a theater to dance for them." Observe the condescension. Yet he was only echoing the feeling of all his kind. But, at any rate, American women do manage to get crowds of men for their dances. It is amazing what people will do if they think there is something in the way of a present—which may not be worth half a sovereign—for the mat the end of an evening. Even millionaires will watch for it with the eagerness of schoolboys. The presents which American women make such a feature of at their cotillions undoubtedly help the success of their parties.

Making Things Hum.

Countess Pappenheim, who was Miss Wheeler of New York, is making things hum just now. She has a pretty little girl to take out, and she is giving a succession of dances for her. At one of her cotillions there was a fancy head figure in which all the men wore Oriental headdress of one sort or another, that of a mandarin with his pig tail being very popular. In another everyone affixed silver wings and there were chains of roses binding the partners. Some lovely presents were given in the way of charms, bangles and gold and silver chain purses. At all cotillions there is always a riot, which is considered the best part of the fun, silver horseshoes, flowers and confetti playing a part in it. Then there is the pandemonium of trumpets, drums, whistles and the like, in which everyone exerts himself and herself to the utmost, and in which old and young, grave and gay, debutantes and dowagers, duchesses and peers join. It is a wonderful sight. The strange part of it is that no enterprising society playwright has yet thought of introducing it on the stage. It would be the making of the piece, I am told. It was in the first instance to American women that we owed the introduction of the pandemonium. It is an enormous success, so that surely justifies it.

ASKS BIG DAMAGES.

Photographer Demands $40,000 for Loss of a Front Tooth.

New York, March 26.—Forty thousand dollars was the value placed on one of his front teeth by Horace E. Bishop, a photographer, in the supreme court, when his suit against George H. Pigueren, owner of an office building at 32 Union square west, for damages was called for trial by Judge Goff.

Mr. Bishop's petition says that last June he got out at the wrong floor in the building in question and when he tried to re-enter the elevator John McMahon, the elevator operator, began to argue with him, blows were exchanged and his front tooth broken off.

The defense admits the arguments between the photographer and the operator, but contends that Bishop was the aggressor.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Health Talks

No man is stronger than his stomach. Make your stomach strong and you thereby fortify your system against the attacks of a long list of diseases which originate in the stomach and must be reached, if at all through the stomach. Thus torpid, or lazy liver, biliousness, dyspepsia, impure blood and various skin affections originate in weak stomach and consequent poor nutrition. The same is true of certain bronchial, throat and lung affections.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

Strengthens the stomach, invigorates the liver, purifies the blood making it rich, red and vitalizing and thereby curing the above and kindred affections.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

FRENCHMAN IS THROWN

Champion Frank Gotch Has Easy Time With Raoul De Rouen.

More Than 10,000 People Witnessed the Big Match.

Kansas City, Kan., March 26.—Frank Gotch of Iowa, champion wrestler of the world, last night retained his title by defeating Raoul De Rouen of France in two straight falls.

The winning fall was won with Gotch's famed toe hold. The Frenchman allowed his shoulders to be put to the mat almost without an effort. De Rouen was repeatedly cheered for his gameness.

The champion was never in serious trouble, and it soon became evident that his ultimate victory was only a matter of time. Gotch really won the bout in the first fall, when he so weakened his opponent by the toe hold that De Rouen did not care to repeat the experience in the second fall. The time for the falls was 34:45 and 13 minutes flat respectively.

As they entered the arena, the Frenchman appeared nervous. The gong sounded at 9:30. De Rouen was the aggressor, while Gotch seemed to take it easy. They went to the mat at 9:37, Gotch throwing De Rouen with a leg hold. De Rouen seemed to have all he could do to defend himself. De Rouen several times tried to strike Gotch in the face with his elbow.

In the struggle both men got to their feet. Gotch in a few minutes again secured a leg hold on his opponent and brought him to the mat. Gotch secured a toe hold on the Frenchman, whose face showed extreme agony. He struck Gotch feebly with his elbow, but soon lay still, with his chest heaving. Then he rolled slowly over, finally broke his hold by bridging and rolling clear over. Gotch then secured a barlock and only a supreme effort saved the Frenchman, who made no effort to take the offensive. Referee Dave Fortesus brought the men to the center of the ring. After a few minutes of sparring Gotch secured a hammerlock. De Rouen bridged again and broke it. The Frenchman regained his feet and Gotch rushed him backward over the ropes. Gotch, for the third time, threw De Rouen with a leg hold and in a moment secured a full-Nelson and put his shoulders to the mat in 34:45.

When the men re-entered the ring the second time, the Frenchman advanced as at first, but with extreme caution. After eight minutes sparring, Gotch repeated his former feat of catching De Rouen's leg, and they went to the mat, Gotch uppermost. Twice the men rolled through the ropes and were brought back. Finally Gotch felt the toe of his opponent cautiously, smiled, gave it a quick twist, and De Rouen's face became distorted with pain. A moment later Gotch was proclaimed victor.

There were two preliminary bouts of two falls each.

Tommy Mowatt of Chicago and "Dago Kid" of Kansas City, each won a fall, the last one going to Mowatt. Charlie Blaker of Table Rock, Neb., won two falls from Nick Snider of Kansas City.

One of the biggest crowds that ever witnessed such an event in the country was present. W. D. Scoville, manager of the Missouri Athletic club, which put up the $8,000 purse for the match, estimated the attendance at over 10,000. Of this number 2,500 were from out-of-town points, including Chicago, St. Louis and Denver. The winner's end of the purse was $5,000.

Both contestants were in excellent condition. Gotch, who weighs 212 pounds, was a 10 to 9 favorite, though De Rouen was forty-nine pounds heavier.

KUEHNOW LANDS BALL PLAYERS

Three Milwaukee Men to Play With the White Sox.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 26.—Gus Wisser, the Johnny Evers of the Wisconsin-Illinois league last season, and who was with Milwaukee for a time under McCormick, and William Kutina, outfielder and first baseman, were released today by Milwaukee to the Duluth club of the Northern league. Wisser will cover the second sack for the White Sox while Kutina will probably play first. These two men were with the Fond du Lac team last season. Wisser last year batted .166 and fielded .948. Kutina had a batting average of .288 and a fielder's average of .972.

Eastern Football Team Will Meet Cornell Eleven Instead.

Cambridge, Mass., March 26.—The schedule for the Harvard footfall team for next fall was announced last night by Graduate Manager William F. Garcelon. A place is made on this year's schedule for Cornell by dropping the Carlisle Indians. This marks the resumption of football relations between the two universities after a lapse of nearly a score of years. The game with Yale will be played at Cambridge Nov. 20.

One game less than last year is provided this year. Annapolis is exchanged for West Point, the only game played away from home this year. But one Wednesday game is provided for. The game with Dartmouth on Nov. 13 was arranged without any additional stipulations. The principal dates are: Oct. 30, West Point at West Point; Nov. 6, Cornell at Cambridge; Nov. 13, Dartmouth at Cambridge; Nov. 20, Yale at Cambridge.

CORBETT WINS OVER BERT KEYES

He Nearly Went Under in the Sixth Round, However.

New York, March 26.—Young Corbett and Bert Keyes met here last night in a fast ten-round bout. Corbett won a draw only by excellent work in the last four rounds. For six rounds he was bested and only the bell saved him at the end of the sixth round. When the seventh round began he had rallied, however, and took the aggressive, holding the advantage over Keyes for the remainder of the fight.

ANNUAL CHESS MATCH IS ON

Great Britain—H. E. Atkins, J. H. Blackburne, A. Burr, F. J. Lee, T. F. Lawrence, W. Ward, G. E. Wainwright, H. W. Richmond, R. H. Michell and J. H. Blake. Substitutes: Dr. H. A. Holmes, H. Jacobs, C. E. Sergeant, V. Wahltuch and E. Spencer.

Play was begun at 10 o'clock this morning, the Americans playing from the rooms of the Brooklyn Chess club. America has won six of the series of these international matches, lost three and tied one.

QUITS BASEBALL FOR ALL TIME

Fielder Jones Has It Out With President Comiskey.

Portland, Or., March 26.—"Mr. Comiskey, you have nothing to offer that will get me back in the baseball business."

"Not even if you write your own contract?"

"No; I am out of baseball for good. That's final."

This dialogue yesterday between Fielder Jones and President Comiskey of the Chicago Americans makes it certain that the former manager of the club will not return to Chicago.

All that was said during the interview was not revealed, but it is known that Jones made a flat refusal before Comiskey had any opportunity to make an offer.

The men appeared to meet in perfect friendship and while Comiskey was wringing Jones' hand in farewell he seemed greatly affected.

WILL PLAY IN MINNEAPOLIS

Local Military Company to Meet Flour City Indoor Baseball Team.

Company E of Duluth will meet Company B of Minneapolis at indoor baseball in Minneapolis some time during the month of April.

The local boys have a strong team and have cleaned up a number of the fast ones at the local armory already this year. They are hard at practice, for their Minneapolis engagement, and expect to bring back the heavy end of the score.

Monday evening at the St. Louis hotel, the members of the newly organized company will sit down at their annual banquet. This event is looked forward to with much pleasure by the boys. All the old members as well as those who are now in the ranks are invited to attend.

Basketball Tournament.

Detroit, Mich., March 26.—The eight surviving teams participating in the contests this afternoon and evening in the amateur athletic unions central division basketball championship tournament which began here yesterday are the Detroit Y. M. C. A.; Franklins of Detroit; West side Y. M. C. A. of Chicago; Detroit Y. M. C. A. reserves; Evanston avenue Y. M. C. A. of Chicago. The Franklins lost a game to Evanston yesterday, but were counted among the survivors because of having the best score of any losing team. Today's games were scheduled for 3, 4, 8 and 9 o'clock, the contestants being coupled in the above named order, Detroit Y. M. C. A. meeting the Franklins in the first game.

DECIDING GAME FOR STATE CHAMPIONSHIP.

Fargo, N. D., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Saturday night is the date fixed for the basket ball game to decide the high school championship of the state. The teams of the high schools of Fargo and Valley City will be the contestants, and they have accepted the tender of the floor at the gymnasium of the agricultural college. This will be an absolutely neutral floor, as the local highs have never practiced on it.

Duluth Horsemen Are Planning on Novel Card For Summer.

Harness Nags to Share Attention With the Bang-tails.

Certain local horsemen who are anxious to give the people of Duluth a speed show, the likes of which has never been seen at the Head of the Lakes, are now planning a big program for the early summer months. Heretofore the racing of horses around Duluth and Superior has been confined to the harness style of going. While there are a great number of people here who love the straps, the great majority prefer to see the saddle nags. It is to satisfy this faction that plans are being perfected for the bringing to this city of a large bunch of jumpers.

The plan, as it appears in embryo, is to give the Head of the Lakes a sort of big derby, which will attract people from all over the Northwest. It would seem that most people hereabouts would favor a nice classy card which would feature the gallopers, for who has not felt a thrill of delight at seeing a big field of speeding horses swinging into the home stretch under the spur and whip?

From present prospects the harness horse end of the racing game will receive greater attention than ever before at the Head of the Lakes. The matter of spring training has already been taken up by the Duluth and Superior horsemen who have their "swipes" busy brushing up the boots and hopples and getting out the bandages and coolers. Last year most of the local horses of note received their spring education at the Hamline track, but it is understood now that many of these speedy animals will be tracked over the local course in the West end this spring and early summer. If this is done it will necessitate the expenditure of considerable money to place the track in proper condition.

The range horsemen are celebrating this afternoon at Longyear lake, near Eveleth, where they are pulling off their regular monthly card of ice races. There are three events on the card, one free-for-all and two slow races. All of the Hibbing, Virginia, Chisholm, Eveleth and Sparta nags are entered and considerable money has been placed on the outcome of the different races. On account of the lateness of the season it is probable that the range horsemen will wind up the winter's work with today's program.

IRISH PEOPLE ARE OVERTAXED

Annual Income Is Only $12.86, Compared With $49.59 in England.

Dublin, March 26.—It is hoped that the readjustment of the financial relations between Ireland and the rest of the United Kingdom will be the result of an agitation which has been started in Ireland. Luckily it is a cause to which every Irishman, whether he be Nationalist or Unionist, can rally.

The basis of the agitation is the over-taxation of Ireland. One of the articles of the act of union provided that each partner in the Union should be taxed in proportion to her population and her ability to bear the burden, and English statesmen have repeatedly accepted this principle in theory, but have done nothing to give it effect. Ireland has for many years been grossly overtaxed, and it is estimated that her present contribution to the imperial exchequer, over and above what she ought to pay, is about $15,000,000 a year. Irish taxation has increased from $10.34 a head in 1906 to $10.54 a head in 1908. It should be borne in mind, too, that Ireland is a much poorer country than the other partners in the United Kingdom, the average of incomes being considerably lower.

Average Irish Incomes, $12.86.

A recent income tax return gives the average income in Ireland at $12.86, the average in Scotland being $36.81, and the average for England and Wales $49.59. Of course it must be remembered that these figures are arrived at on the basis of income available for taxation divided by the total number of inhabitants of the country in question. Incomes of less than $800 a year are exempt from income tax, but the proportion of incomes above that figure is much smaller in Ireland than the other countries. Ireland also pays much more than her share of the indirect taxation, because she drinks more tea and spirits, which are heavily taxed, and less beer and coffee, which are lightly taxed, than her neighbors.

For this, however, she has only herself to blame, and one of the policies which the Sinn Fein party is pushing now is the voluntary substitution by Irishmen and women of beer for spirits and of coffee for tea. If this policy were carried out, the English revenue would be hard hit.

No Cases for the Assizes.

The spring assizes, which are just being opened all over Ireland, give the lie, as usual, to the English journalists and others who delight in representing Ireland as a hotbed of crime and outrage. In many of the counties there has not been a single case for the judges to try, and in most of them the few cases which have been brought in by the grand juries are of a trifling character. The judges all congratulated the grand juries on the freedom from crime of their counties, and remarked on the difference between the real conditions and those which are alleged to exist.

TRYING TO STOP ROULETTE.

Thousands of Dollars Fraudulently Won in Paris Clubs.

Paris, March 26.—The police are having a great deal of trouble to suppress roulette in the so-called clubs in which many thousands of dollars have of late been fraudently won and lost. The latest attempt to evade the roulette law has been a new game which the police call "rifle roulette," but which the players and inventors call "rotary rifle shooting." Instead of a ball on a rotary table, the numbers turn upon the wall and a cropier fires an arrow at them from an air gun. During the last week M. Lepoine's men have confiscated seven of these roulettes, with which, as one of their English victims humorously, if ruefully, put it, "rifling was made easy."

HORSE RACES AND CHARITY.

Nearly $1,000,000 for the Poor Comes From Betting System.

Paris, March 26.—The vast benefit to French charitable institutions of the "pari-mutuel" system of betting compulsory in all French race courses, was shown this year at the meeting of the committee of distribution, presided over by M. Ruan, minister of agriculture.

It was announced that the total sum available for distribution, consisting of a percentage on the money risked by bettors, amounted to $929,800. This sum was distributed as follows: $285,000 to the "Public Assistance" bureau of Paris and the department of the Seine, $590,000 to charitable institutions in the other departments, and the balance to branch charitable funds abroad.

BOARD IS ORGANIZED.

J. W. Preston Succeeds O. G. Olson as President of City Department.

At its annual meeting yesterday afternoon the board of public works elected J. W. Preston president and R. Murchison secretary. O. G. Olson, former president, will now have charge of the aerial bridge, in place of Thomas Dillon, who has left the board.

Two street commissioners were also appointed at yesterday's meeting. Joseph Becks was elected for the Fifth district, which comprises West Duluth, and Charles F. Spence was selected for the Fourth district, which includes the territory from Twenty-first avenue west to West Duluth.

S.S.S. NATURE'S CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

The conditions and causes which produce Rheumatism all suggest a healthful vegetable remedy as the surest and safest cure. The disease is brought about by the accumulation of uric acid, an irritating, pain-producing property in the blood. This causes a weakening and souring of the circulation which then becomes unfit for nourishing the body, while the deposits of uric acid in the nerves, muscles, joints and bones produce the pain and agony of Rheumatism. To treat the trouble with medicines containing potash or other strong minerals, is simply adding another poison to the already weak, diseased blood, sapping it of its remaining vitality, and perhaps in the end making a physical wreck of the sufferer. The one safe and only cure for Rheumatism is S. S. S. It is nature's remedy for this disease, made entirely from healthful vegetable ingredients extracted from the roots, herbs and barks of the forest and fields. S. S. S. goes down into the blood and removes every trace of the cause of Rheumatism, cleanses and purifies the circulation, and restores health and comfort to those who are suffering from this painful disease. There is but one way to be sure you are not dosing your system with mineral medicines, and that is to take S. S. S. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free.

BEST MEN FOR POSTS

In South to be Picked by President, Disregarding Politics.

Said That He Will Consult the Democratic Senators.

Washington, March 26.—Among the many vexatious problems engaging the earnest attention of the president is the general policy he should enforce in the distribution of federal patronage in the South.

He is consulting the postmaster general, who has been in close touch with Southern politicians for several years.

Southern senators — Democrats, of course—are beginning to believe the president will confer with them to a considerable extent, and they get this notion from conversations with Mr. Taft himself.

Senator Smith of South Carolina called at the White House, relative to the postoffice at Florence, his home town. The present postmaster is a negro named Wilson, and is not to be reappointed. Many white Republicans are candidates.

Senator Smith wants to know whether the selection of the postmaster is be made from the list of Republican applicants or whether he wishes the recommendation of the senator, who is of the opinion that none of the men now applying are backed by the sentiment of the people.

The president told the senator he would take the matter up with Postmaster General Hitchcock and give him an answer.

Confer With Senators.

"I am fully convinced," said the senator afterward, "that Mr. Taft means to confer freely with Democratic senators of some of the Southern states, and that his policy will be to give careful attention to the voice of a majority of the people. His appointments in the South, I think, will not be made with any reference to the politics of the candidate, and he will seek only the best men, whatever their party faith."

Senator Smith stands ready to recommend a postmaster at Florence if he is permitted to do so. But if it is decided that a choice will be made from Republican candidates for the office, he will make no recommendation.

What the president means by the words "consult" or "confer," as used in his conversation with Southern senators, is susceptible of wide interpretation. If the view of Senator Smith should prove to be correct, Southern senators would have considerable voice in patronage affairs.

Hitchcock's Advice.

Postmaster General Hitchcock undoubtedly will advise the president to favor respectable, upright Republicans of long standing in Southern appointments, instead of individuals of the big army of recruits that are now putting out their long arms for slices of the pie they have condemned others for scrambling for.

Wherever satisfactory Republicans cannot be had, Democrats probably will be named. But what Hitchcock cannot see is how he is to keep Republican organizations in the South if Republican national committeemen and state chairmen are to be ignored and Democrats are to name the officeholders.

In the particular case of Florence the decision may be reached to permit Senator Smith to name the postmaster. That may be done in his home town as a matter of courtesy to the senator, it is pointed out, and not as a part of a policy of turning things over to the Democrats.

In the naming of E. W. Durant, Jr., as collector of customs at Charleston, in place of W. D. Crum, a negro, the South Carolina senators were not consulted, Durant was a Republican also, although he was satisfactory to Democratic influences paramount at Charleston.

BANQUET PLAN REVERSED.

African Intended to Have Snake, But Latter Swallowed Him.

Berlin, March 26.—The Ost Afrikanische Zeitung published a horrible account of the tragic fate which overtook a native at N'geta, German East Africa.

According to the custom of the country, one of the native planters had caused his fields to be weeded by friendly natives, paying them no money, but granting them unlimited quantities of pombe, a special kind of beer drunk by negroes of the colony.

One of the negroes, who belonged to the tribe of Walugru, which regards snake flesh as an especial delicacy, found a huge boa constrictor lying in the middle of one of the fields, and, instead of informing the planter on whose ground it lay, confided the discovery to one or two other natives, and arranged with them to kill it during the hours of darkness so that they might enjoy the delicacy together.

Towards nightfall, when the consumption of considerable quantities of pombe had stimulated his courage, this negro, armed with a stick, attacked the huge serpent with the intention of killing it. But the boa constrictor, aroused from its apparent torpor, suddenly seized the unhappy negro, slowly crushed him to a pulp, and then gradually swallowed him.

D'ANNUNZIO AND NIGHT WORK

Work on Last Play All Done After Sun Went Down.

Rome, March 26.—The motor car as a source of lyric inspiration has been acclaimed. Gabrielle D'Annunzio, the Italian dramatist, unbosoming himself to an interviewer in regard to his latest achievement, a tragedy on the subject of Phaedra, avers that it was the outcome of a motor trip. "I had just had a rapid automobile trip through Italy and had returned with my brain full of lyrics, feeling that prose could not express my sentiments, and 'Phaedra' sprang up full-born, although I had thought much about her ten years ago."

The deliverance of the motor-bred drama was hardly less rapid than its conception. The author explains: "It took just seventeen days from the first word to the finish—seventeen days of intense work, in which I could not once leave the house. I slept during the day, rising at 5 p. m., dining, exercising, etc., and at 9 was at my desk, where I stopped until 9 the next morning, with at midnight and at 2 a. m. a short interruption for a cup of bouillon. I have found this system to work so well that I shall pursue it with all other works."

ARTISTIC DEVELOPMENT

Of Poor Talent Is Mrs. Corey's Aim in Life.

New York, March 26.—Mrs. William Ellis Corey, wife of the president of the steel trust, who was Mabelle Gilman, comic opera star, announced before sailing for Europe, that she would ultimately found a school of declamative art in this city. "My aim in life," she said, "is the artistic development of poor talent."

FINED A DOZEN PIES

Was the Baker by the Pittsburg Police Magistrate.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 26.—Tim Eckert, a baker, was arrested, and when arraigned before Police Magistrate Lane, he begged to be allowed to go, saying he would present his honor with a dozen real home-made pies as soon as he could go home and bake them.

"You're on. You're fined a dozen home-made pies for the station house force of officers, and see that you pay the fine before dark."

Six hours later Lane paid his "fine" by bringing a dozen hot pies into the station house.

BENEFIT TO TRADE

Tariff Bill Hustling Has Had Good Effect on Business.

Many Changes Likely to be Made in the Schedules.

New York, March 26.—The start upon the tariff bill by congress had a good effect upon business affairs of all kinds, although no one believes that the schedules as presented will become laws without many important changes and amendments.

The beginning of actual work, however, was encouraging in the fact that it was one great step toward the ending of what has been for months an embarrassing and perplexing situation.

The country will be agreeably surprised before many weeks by the immense orders for supplies and material which the railways of the country will give to various manufacturing companies.

The placing of these orders is sure to give a much-needed stimulus to trade all over the country.

The feeling of the railway managers now is that the wave of opposition to their enterprises has spent its force and the recent action of the Kansas legislature, the United States courts and the Virginia railway commission would bear out that idea and indicate that there was a recognition of mutual interests and a desire to co-operate with the railways to ascertain a fair and reasonable basis for charges for freight and passenger traffics.

Troublesome Questions.

It will be found that the decision of the United States supreme court in the case of the Consolidatel Gas Company of New York covers many of the troublesome questions which have come forth in this popular upheaval against corporations in general, and especially the railway companies.

That decision fairly and squarely met the main question at issue and defined the rights of the companies to produce reasonable earnings for their stockholders, and yet, limited charges to those reasonable earnings and fair returns upon the values of invested capital.

Not in the history of the supreme court has there been a more important or far-reaching decision than that, considering the immense capital invested in corporations at this time and their most intimate relations with the daily life of nearly every individual in the United States.

That decision will continue to be for a very long time the recognized basis of equitable dealings between the corporations and the people, but will have to be followed by legislation which will give the states and the nation the power to supervise and control, to some degree, the capitalization of the corporations.

That, under the decision, becomes an essential to the equities involved in corporate dealings with the public.

Governor Pothier, of Rhode Island, is doing his utmost to secure for one of the cities in that state the manufactory of fine laces, now controlled by Messrs. Caderas and Ozanne, and situated at Calais, in France.

Would Employ Many Hands.

It is said the United States imports fully $10,000,000 per annum of this class of laces, and if the French firm should follow the example set by the Contes Thread Manufacturig company, the Clark Thread company, and other large European manufacturers, and transfer their plants to this country, they would control the lace market and give employment to thousands of employes.

A telegram of this week from Chicago states that the railways of the West are carrying a much larger tonnage of farm implements than they did this time last year.

The increase is said to be fully 15 per cent above the tonnage of last spring.

The railroad people are much encouraged by this proof of prosperity, and take it as a sure indication of larger business during the summer and of heavier crop production next fall, if weather conditions are normal.

The purchase of so much new machinery by the farmers means, in their opinion, greater acreage in crops, tends to better cultivation and, therefore, increase of tonnage in production and shipments.

The 15 per cent increase in the tonnage this spring is gratifying, and these additional shipments must be aiding the firms and corporations which manufacture the implements that are now in such demand.

It is certain that the great interest aroused in the agricultural districts of the West by the thorough and good work done by the various agricultural societies, the state lectures and the United States department of agriculture has been beneficial to the farmers and farm interests in many ways.

Many of the railway companies in the West, realizing how the increase in tonnage of farm production, as well as the prosperity of the farmers resulting from that increase, would help their roads, have run special trains, carrying instructors and lecturers upon their lines, in order that the assembled farmers could have the benefit of these instructions and addresses.

The results have been excellent to the farmers and most profitable to them, to the railways, to the large and small merchants and, of course, to the country at large.

The Western idea was adopted last year by some of the roads in the East, and Pennsylvania and New Jersey found the farm trains were very popular, and results were far above anticipation.

It is announced that the Pennsylvania railroad has arranged with the State College of Agriculture to operate another educational train in Pennsylvania during this week.

Not only are the instructors and lecturers to continue their addresses to the farmers throughout the state, but the Pennsylvania railroad is arranging to take its station agents to the state college to listen to the instructors, so that they (the agents) may be able to advise and suggest to the farmers as to the most profitable crops that can be raised in their respective localities.

Through this system of information and the diffusion of the very latest ideas in scientific farming the American farmers are bound to keep in the lead of those of all other countries, and thus to the greatest possible degree assure their own prosperity, as well as in a great degree sustain the prosperity of the Union.

The immense dealings in reality continue here in the city, and the activity in real estate appears to be increasing in every part of the country.

Very high prices are being realized here.

One large transaction, near the corner of Nassau and Pine streets, was consummated a few days ago, and it is said the ground brought over $350 per square foot.

The old Ashland house property on Fourth avenue and Twenty-fourth street was sold at auction on last Tuesday and one of the largest crowds of buyers of the season was at the sale.

The parcel contained 9,875 square feet and brought $380,000, or rather more than $38 per square foot.

Very high prices have been obtained within the last thirty days—in fact, record prices—for properties in every section of the city.

There is not the slightest evidence of any industrial depression or hesitation in business when it comes to real estate in this city, or, in fact, in the majority of the states of the Union.

The citizens of the United States are confident of the future, and the holders of real estate, whether improved or vacant city property or farm lands; South, West, Central, North or East, know that with returning good trade and our steadily increasing population, combined with constant growth in the volume of our currency, prices of realty will keep on going up.

It is this confidence that is furnishing the crowds of buyers at every realty auction sale in New York.

RIGHT IN ST. PAUL

The Tonic Treatment Has Cured a Severe Nervous Disorder and Here Is the Proof.

The cure of Mr. Arthur E. Dewar, a plumber, of No. 569 Golf avenue, St. Paul, Minn., is convincing proof of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can do in this severe nervous disorder. He says:

"A few months ago I was laid up with inflammatory rheumatism. Following the four months of sickness with the rheumatism, I was in a very weak and nervous condition. I shook all over and could not dress myself. I then began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After I had taken three boxes of the pills, which helped me some, I was advised by my neighbors to again call in a doctor. This I did and he pronounced my case St. Vitus' dance. I was under his care for a month but his medicine did not help me at all and I could not take it without its upsetting my stomach.

"I was so nervous that I lost control of my hands and could not feed myself. My hands and feet were numb. I was always tired, did not have any strength and could not sleep at all. I had severe night sweats and was very pale and thin. I could not sit still.

"After giving up the doctor's treatment, I decided to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills again and nothing else. The pills were taken as the directions stated and soon I could see that they were helping me. I gave them a thorough trial and was cured. I am now well and strong and have gained ten pounds in weight. I strongly advise everyone suffering with any nervousness to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as they are worth their weight in gold."

There is absolutely no way of reaching the nerves with medicine except through the blood. The nerves receive all of their nourishment and support from the blood which, under healthful conditions, carries the elements needed to rebuild wasted nerve tissue. It is through the blood that all functional nerve troubles must be cured.

Those who are interested in the treatment which cured this case can obtain further information by writing for the booklet, "Nervous Disorders," which we send free on request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

GOLD DUST will take the grime and smut, grease and dirt from your pots and pans in a twinkling, leaving them as clean as when new GOLD DUST is so far ahead of soap for cleaning pots and pans, that the woman who does not use it is really doing about twice as much work as necessary. The soap merely cleans off the surface, and does not dig deep after the germs of decay which accumulate on pots, pans and kettles which are in constant use.

GOLD DUST does more than clean—it goes to the very heart of things, kills every germ and sterilizes your cooking utensils. It makes them sanitarily clean and safe.

GOLD DUST does the work in just half the time that it can be done with soap or any other cleansers.

GOLD DUST is a vegetable oil soap in powdered form which starts to work the moment it strikes the water; it cleans quickly, easily and thoroughly.

MILLIONS TO SUFFERERS.

And Still Messina and Reggio Are in Dire Need of Help.

Rome, March 26.—The military rule in Messina and Reggio has given place to civil government, not altogether with advantage. The erection of wooden houses proceeds only slowly, with indefinite delays. And until adequate shelter can be provided in the stricken regions there is no way of bringing back the scattered refugees to their own provinces. Until these fugitives return there is still terrible need of supporting them elsewhere, and little prospect of any permanent alleviation of their misery. On the other hand, it must be acknowledged that there are many difficulties not fully appreciated, perhaps, abroad, which help to explain, though they do not altogether excuse, the shortcomings of the work of relief.

Of the total of the sums collected in Italy, and all over the world, for immediate and unofficial relief no exact amount can be given. The Vatican fund has reached over $800,000; the Lombard and Piedmonteso funds have possibly reached $700,000; the American and English funds were for the most part paid into that of the central committee or national fund—over and above the money thus paid, they have realized $2,000,000, chiefly American, and expended in stores and portable houses. The national fund, at the disposal of the central committee, stands at $4,200,000, of which the American contribution must have amounted to about $2,500,000.

Mrs. Soper lives in Big Pond, Pa. It works wonders in Coughs and Colds, Sore Lungs, Hemorrhages, LaGrippe, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough and all bronchial affections. 50c and $1.00. PREPARING FOR PRINCE

Holland Makes Minute Plans for Heir to the Throne.

Every Dutch Settlement Will Contribute Toward the Gifts.

Paris, March 26.—Every town and village in Holland and every settlement in the Dutch provinces is preparing to contribute toward gifts to be sent to The Hague, late in this month or early in April, when, it is hoped, an heir to throne of the Netherlands will arrive. When, last summer, the happy news of the coming event was rumored, everybody was afraid to believe it. But when, on Christmas eve, the official announcement was made in the States General, plans were formed to delight the queen with gifts for the royal nursery.

Wilhelmina was placed in a difficult position when she was told of these projects, as it has always been the custom with the Dutch royal family to decline gifts from its subjects. With much tact, she drew up a message saying, that while she appreciated greatly the kind intentions of her people, she hoped the greater part of the money raised would be devoted to purposes of charity.

Some Gifts For the Baby.

The Dutch subjects were not to be turned from their orginal purpose, but they will observe the queen's wishes. In every town and village a committee has been formed to receive contributions, and in every province there is a central committee which will arrange for one gift from the entire province. In every case it is expected that enough money will be left, after the presentation to the queen of the article of value to make a substantial gift to the poor.

The province of Zeeland is preparing to send to The Hague a white peramulator, with a sunshade made by the famous Sluis lace makers. The Hague itself will give a cradle, the embroidery of which is being prepared by the hand that embroidered the queen's coronation robes and her wedding dress. Leewarden will give a silver book in which the events of baby's life may be noted. The book will be accompanied by an antique oak stand.

From Rotterdam will come a silver mug, plate, spoon and egg cup, and from Amsterdam a washstand with silver ewer and basin. Among other gifts are a screen painted by famous Dutch artists, an antique oak chest for baby's clothes, a white lacquered furniture, a clock in Hinloper carved wood, and a set of scales. The Dutch colony in London is collecting money for the endowment of a cot bed in one of the London hospitals, to be always at the disposal of a Dutch patient.

What Color Does She Prefer?

It is custom in Holland to use pink ribbons and pink lining for the cradle curtains when a girl would be most welcome, and light blue when a boy is hoped for. When women of The Hague inquired which color the queen preferred for the cradle, the diplomatic answer came that she had selected a special shade of old gold for the nursery, and would prefer the same color for the cradle.

The baby trousseau had already been prepared when the queen was disappointed in her expectations the first time. The dainty little garments were made in different schools and workshops of Holland. The queen is fond of elaborate hand-made embroideries and is a good judge of needlework, so the layette was ordered with much loving care.

If a prince is born the event will be announced in The Hague by 101 shots from a cannon. If a princess, by fifty-one shots. On a warm summer evening in August, 1880, the booming of cannon was suddenly heard over the city and the inhabitants eagerly counted the shots. There came forty-nine, fifty, fifty-one—then a moment of suspense, but no more shots followed.

"Only a girl," were the words most frequently heard to announce the birth of Wilhelmina, princess of Orange-Nassau, daughter of King William III and Queen Emma—words long since regretted in affection for the young sovereign.

Within a few weeks the Hollanders will again strain their ears to catch the sound of the firing and they will be only too glad to know that a royal baby has been born; that the young queen's fondest hope lies at last been realized, after eight years of marriage. Meanwhile, numerous gifts from patriotic Dutchmen have been promised to other babies born on the same day as the hoped for heir to the throne.

As soon as the queen has regained her strength the royal family will go to her country residence on the Loo, where the queen passed the greater part of her happy childhood. Her loyal subjects pray that there, under the old trees in the healthy Gelderland air, the young scion of the illustrious house of Orange will grow up big and strong, watched over by parents and grandmother.

In the population of New York city there are 187,000 persons who are stockholders in corporations.

According to the records of the internal revenue department, last month, New York city drank fermented liquors enough to give each inhabitant nearly three quarts.

HAVING AN EASY TIME

Ullmo, the French Naval Traitor, Isolated, But That's All.

Is Raising Chickens, and May Add Goats and Pigs.

Paris, March 26.—Ullmo, the naval officer who sold, or rather tried to sell, secrets of the nation's defense to Germany, and, failing this, tried to blackmail the French admiralty, has been sent to Devil's Island, and is to work out his time, or rather live it out, in the same hut that Dreyfus occupied. His is a curious punishment. He is not altogether isolated, for his jailers are allowed to talk to him, and all the punishment he has is moral. The hut has been repainted, and Ullmo is very comfortable there. It is hard to realize that he is a prisoner, and not in command of a few men in some distant colonial post. He wears no penal uniform, but dresses in white with a white pith helmet. His room is furnished with plenty of books, pictures hang on the walls, and white mosquito curtains shut in his bed at night. He keeps his own larder, which is well provisioned by his friends, and is allowed to spend $5 a week for extra rations. Not only that, but Ullmo has a special cook all to himself. Outside his hut are chickens, which he feeds every day, and has now applied for leave to keep goats and a pig or two, for his life is monotonous.

How He Passes the Day.

He gets up very late, passes the morning ordering his meals and feeding the chickens, lunches at 11, sleeps till 1, and then goes for his daily walk. He walks along the seashore by a pathway leading to a little wood of cocoanut trees, through which again he reaches a bench on the west side of the island. On this same bench Dreyfus sat for long hours dreaming of his rehabilitation, when, after four years of torture he was allowed out beyond the palisades which have now disappeared from round his hut. At night Ullmo is locked into his hut, reads, dines and plays cards with his jailers. He receives a box of books from his friends every month, and were it not that there are carefully examined before they are given to him, and for the precaution of the locked door at night, Ullmo might easily forget that his exile is not a voluntary one.

Some of the horrors of the sweating system in France are exposed by the Comte de Mun, of the French academy, in an article published in the Figaro. Of 217 seamstresses from whom particulars were obtained in the course of an official inquiry, 6 per cent were found to be earning less than 3 cents an hour, 45 per cent less than 5 cents. This is to say, if they worked ten hours a day they made 50 cents in the one case and 50 cents in the other. Out of that they had not merely to provide themselves with food, lodging, warmth and clothing, but also to pay for thread, needles, and the cost of hiring or purchasing sewing machines.

Works Seventeen Hours a Day.

But a ten-hour day is far from being the rule among these victims of starvation pay. The case is mentioned of a woman who worked seventeen hours a day for the equivalent of 2 cents an hour. She rose at 4 o'clock and went to bed at 11 o'clock at night, because she had household duties to attend to. She also worked on Sundays. After deducting the cost of thread, needles, maemne and lighting, her net earnings came to slightly under 29 cents a day and she had a daughter. Their food cost 19 cents a day, with 10 cents worth of horse flesh every other day. It is in the report that they were 'small eaters."

Dr. Labbe, a well known physician, states that nine-tenths of the women who consult him betray great concern lest with advancing years their figures should lose the graceful lines of youth. They have a horror of growing stout and are willing to submit to any martyrdom if only they can remain slender and elegant. Dr. Labbe's answer to his patients is that although French cooking is agreeable to the palate, it is neither hygienic nor beneficial, and, further, it is very fattening. Instead, he strongly recommends for breakfast, porridge, fish, eggs, preserves and tea instead of the customary coffee and roll. Lunch should consist of plain dishes and fresh fruit. Five o'clock tea he considers a capital institution, with sparing quantities of toast and cakes. For dinner he would have roast beef, mutton or lamb, devoid of sauces or "kickshaws."

Advice to Fat People.

He also advocates bathing, walking and outdoor recreations. "If," he says, "the French would only follow this regime there would be less illness and disease." The physician advised the French to drink beer and cider, and especially to avoid tees. Fruit, he says, should be eaten raw after being well washed, but it should not be peeled, since salts essential to health lie under the surface of the skin. Dr. Labbe also warns patients against dressing too warmly, and he is strongly opposed to corsets and collars, which he calls "the two great enemies to health and good digestion."

M. Picard, the new minister of marine, is still pursuing his formidable talk of reorganizing the French navy. Next to the army, Frenchmen are proud of their navy, and everyone has a distinct impression that something must be forthwith done for it. Things cannot go on as they are. Indeed, it would be better, observes a commentator, to "give up having a fleet altogether than to persist in the present lamentable errors." On the same subject a prominent deputy, member of the commission on the navy, remarks: "We are at the parting of the ways, and there is not a minute to lose." He holds there must be no delay or it will be too late to try to save the navy by a complete reorganization in all its branches. If the prestige and value of the navy be not revived France loses one of her means of defense, and lowers herself in the eyes of neighboring powers. So widespread is the feeling in France to make any sacrifice rather than allow the navy to be a disgrace to the country that were it necessary a national subscription could be started to provide M. Picard with the millions he requires to execute his work. If a tenth part of what finds its way into print concerning the navy be true, the condition of things must indeed be deplorable.

LARRUPS FORMER LOVER.

Massachusetts Girl Takes a Whip to Her Alleged Defamer.

Winchedon, Mass., March 26.—Miss Lillie Frink, a 19-year-old girl, horsewhipped her former sweetheart, Alfred Boudreau, in the street here until he ran in fright. The young woman pursued, and the man ran into a barb wire fence, tearing his trousers and lacerating his flesh. While he was trying to get over the fence, Miss Frink made the most of the opportunity.

Miss Frink and Boudreau were the best of friends, and he called upon her regularly. Then there was a rift in the lute of their lovemaking, due to alleged stories it is said Boudreau told about her.

AMERICA LEADS IN COAL OUTPUT

Exceeds Production of United Kingdom by 60 Per Cent.

London, March 26.—A white paper issued by the board of trade gives some remarkable statistics with regard to the production, consumption, imports and exports of coal. In 1907 the output of coal in the United Kingdom was 267,831,000 tons; Germany, 140,885,000 tons; France, 35,586,000 tons; Belgium, 23,334,000 tons, and the United states 428,896,000 tons. The production in the United Kingdom, Germany, France and the United States was greater than in any previous year, the increase over 1906 being as follows: United Kingdom, 17,000,000 tons; Germany, 6,000,000 tons; the United States, 50,000,000 tons, and France, 2,500,000 tons. The production of the United States now exceeds that of the United Kingdom by 60 per cent, but the production of Germany represents little more than a half, and that of France and Belgium together less than a quarter of the production of this country. The total known coal production of the world (exclusive of brown coal and lignite) in 1907 was about 1,000,000,000 tons, of which the United Kingdom produced more than one-fourth.

As compared with its population, the production of coal in the United Kingdom still surpasses that in the United States, amounting to 6 tons per head, as against 5 tons per head in America, 2½ tons in Belgium, about 2½ tons in Germany and under 1 ton in France. The average value of coal in 1907 at the pit's mouth was an increase on the price ter 1906. In the United Kingdom the value was 1s 8¼d higher, in in Germany the corresponding advance was 9¾d per ton, and in Belgium 1s 6¾d, while in the United States the price was 2d per ton higher.

In 1907 the output of British India amounted to 11,147,000 tons, an increase of about 1,233,000 tons compared with 1906. In both Australia and Canada the output now approaches 10,000,000 tons per annum.

In Australia the output of 1907 was greater than in 1906 by over 1,000,000 tons, while the Canadian production increased 600,000 tons. Small increases have taken place in New Zealand and Natal, but the output of the Transvaal and of the Cape of Good Hope remained practically stationary. In the Orange River colony the output in 1907 amounted to 445,00 tons. In British South Africa as a whole the annual production is now rather over 4,500,000 tons. Railway companies in the United Kingdom consumed 12,922,805 tons in 1907 for locomotive purposes, as against 12,693,890 tons in 1906 and 11,593,758 tons in 1905. London received by railway, canal and sea, into an area within a radius of fifteen miles from Charing Cross, in 1907, 16,572,857 tons, as against 15,972,198 tons in 1906 and 15,650,388 tons in 1905.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

DULUTH PUGS STILL BUSY

Whitehead Is Backed to Meet Schreck, Wille and Gunther.

Clubs of Michigan and Canadian Cities Get the Bouts.

With the demise of boxing in Duluth and on the range, attention is now being given to certain towns in neighboring states, where the fans are more numerous, and where the public more generally favors the sport. On account of certain pugilists, who are continuing to make their homes at the Head of the Lakes, Duluth will remain in the boxing limelight for at least several months.

A number of prominent battles that were scheduled for the range before the crash came, will be fought out in Michigan and Canadian cities. Principal among these are the Whitehead-Schreck bout, the Wille-Whitehead mill, and the Gunther-Whitehead contest.

While no definite date has been set for any of the events, it is probable that the Schreck-Whitehead mix will take place in the very near future on Michigan soil. It will be a twenty-round affair, with five-ounce gloves in which straight rules will govern. Tommy Ryan of Chicago, retired middleweight champion of the world, will referee the match.

While no articles have been drawn up for the Gunther-Whitehead affair, it is probable that it will be the same distance, and will be governed by the same rules as the Schreck-Whitehead mix. The date will not be set until after the first named mill comes off. This will be one of the greatest fistic contests that has ever been pulled off in the Northwest. For months the fans have been talking the matter over, some of them favoring Gunther and others taking the side of the Duluth negro. Some of the Duluth fans, who have never seen Whitehead, go so far as to imagine that he has been picking off a lot of lemons up on the range, but such men as Flandrel and Heller and "Chicago" Jack Johnson are not sour fruit by any means, and Whitehead made all three of them bite the canvas. For the reason that he hangs up his hat in the Zenith City, he is not considered as great as some of the pugs that come here from distant and larger cities.

At last "Chuck" O'Connell, the little Philadelphia boxer, has been granted a match with Kid Constantine of Eveleth. The bout will be under straight rules and is limited to fifteen rounds. Both men are in training.

GOTCH HEADED THIS WAY.

World's Champion May Make Annual Call to Duluth.

It is possible that Frank Gotch, heavyweight champion catch-as-catch-can wrestler of the world, will soon make his annual spring bow to the Duluth sporting fraternity. For years it has been customary for the big Iowa athlete to visit the Zenith City, dust the mat with any number of opponents that might be selected to try his game, and then journey on to the Twin Cities.

Local promoters have opened negotiations with the champion and, it is probable, that something definite in the way of a match between Gotch and Fred Beell will be known early next week. Gotch is booked to meet Yousiff Mahmout, the Bulgarian giant, in Chicago on next April 14, and if he comes to the Head of the Lakes it will be right after this date.

BEMIDJI IS PRAISED.

Visiting Railroad Men Find Much to Entrance in City by Lake.

Bemidji, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—"I am convinced that the city of Bemidji is the 'liveliest wire,' considering size, in the north half of Minnesota, and this conclusion is arrived at after having visited every town and city of any importance in this section," said Harry L. Wyand of St. Paul, district passenger agent for the Chicago & Great Western railway, who was in Bemidji yesterday, in company with E. R. Porch, traveling passenger agent for the Erie railroad, and Thomas S. Hughes, traveling freight agent for the Chicago Great Western, the latter acting as "chaperon" for the former two and G. A. Walker, local agent for the M. & I. railway, being escort for the party.

Mr. Walker took the three visiting railway men about the city, showing them the site which Bemidji is offering for the proposed sixth state normal school, the elegant lake shore and splendid boulevard, which extends along the lake front the entire distance to Diamond point, the normal site, with the high, dry banks, and also the splendid county and business buildings, and the entire party agreed with Mr. Wyand when he continued to praise this city as the leader of Northern Central Minnesota.

GRAFT CHARGE PUBLICLY MADE

Suspended Marinette District Attorney Accuses County Supervisor.

Marinette, Wis. March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the opening session of the Marinette county board, A. E. Schwittay, the suspended district attorney, filed a petition with the board asking it to take action against Supervisor C. R. Johnston, who, he alleges, secured between $400 and $500 from the county for premiums on insurance policies he sold.

Justices twice discharged M. Johnston on their preliminary examinations of such cases, but on the third action stated against him by Mr. Schwittay, when he was district attorney, Mr. Johnston waived hearing and was bound over to the circuit court. That action is now pending.

It is not probable that the board will act on Schwittay's petition before the end of the term, if at all.

BROOKSTON HAS BRIGHT FUTURE

Annual Meeting of Townsite Company Discloses Prosperous Year.

Brookston, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual stockholders' meeting of the Brookston Townsite company was held here Wednesday afternoon.

There were only five out-of-town members in attendance, but absent stockholders were represented by proxy. The secretary and treasurer rendered statements, showing the financial condition of the corporation. The statements were accepted. The past year has been a successful one, as there has been quite a sale of lots, and a large quantity of timber has been disposed of. A $35 dividend on each 100 shares of stock was recently declared and paid.

The stockholders elected the following directors for the ensuing year: J. A. McDevitt, J. F. O'Brien, J. Lindsay, A. M. Brunelle, E. R. Smith, J. F. Ryan and W. A. Epperson. The directors will meet in Cloquet on April 6 and elect the president, vice president, secretary and treasurer. The following out-of-town members were present: John Stapleton, J. A. Wilson, J. F. O'Brien, J. A. McDevitt and A. M. Brunelle, all of Cloquet. All were well pleased with the growth of the town during the past year, and all think thereis a bright future in store for Brookston.

WILL ACT ON THEIR ADVICE

Governor Johnson Says He Will be Guided by Bar Association.

Frank Crassweller, secretary of the Duluth Bar association, this morning received a letter from Governor Johnson acknowledging the receipt of the recommendations of the bar association in regard to the choice of a fourth district judge for this district.

"It is needless for me to state that I shall be governed by the recommendations of the bar association, in filling this appointment," says the governor in his letter. Martin Hughes of Hibbing, Alfred Jacques of Duluth and S. T. Harrison of Duluth were the three men recommended to the governor, Mr. Hughes receiving the largest number of votes. It was the opinion of the members of the local association that the ranges should be recognized in making the appointment, and Mr. Hughes, it is generally understood, will be appointed.

NORTH DAKOTA OIL THAT IS COMBUSTIBLE.

Ryder, N. D., March 26.—Great excitement prevails in Ryder over the discovery of oil in paying quantities.

The well of Joseph Wustner has shown traces of oil for two years. For several days horses have refused to drink the water, and today an attempt was made to pump the well out and rid it of oil.

Investigation showed that one-half the water is oil that will burn. It cannot be pumped out, so fast does the water and oil run in from a vein. Citizens are taking lamps, oil cans and vessels of all kinds to the well and supplying themselves with free oil.

A Balloon to Carry Freight.

A new dirigible balloon, or rather air ship, invented by Prof. Schuegte of the technical high school at Danzitz, Prussia, is designed to carry two tons of freight in addition to outfit and crew. The balloon will be 310 feet long and 50 feet in diameter. The propelling force is two 150-horsepower engines. The high quality of Golden Grain Belt Beer suggests the propriety of making the first shipment of this famous product. Have you a case in your cellar? Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch, Minneapolis Brewing company.

ELECTION HELD ON RECALL PLAN

Los Angeles Holds First of the Kind in America.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 26.—The first election for the recall of mayor of an American city is being held in this city today, after having been robbed of a great deal of its interest through the resignation three weeks ago of the man at whom its operations was aimed in the first place.

The recall election is the result of charges made against Former Mayor A. C. Harper of protection given to various forms of vice in this city. Other officials, whom he had appointed, were implicated, and last night a special grand jury indicted one of his former police commissioners for an alleged attempt to bribe the city prosecuting attorney to induce him to discontinue his prosecution of inmates of houses of ill fame.

The recall section of the charter has been a law of the city for nearly four years, and once before it was invoked to bring about the elimination of a city councilman, George W. Alexander, candidate of the reform element, will undoubtedly be elected, there being but one other name on the ticket, that of Fred C. Wheeler, nominated by the Socialists.

CHEAPER CENSUS DUE TO DEFICIT

Director North Cuts Down Amount Asked of Congress.

Washington, March 26.—In view of deficit in the treasury, Director North of the census bureau has withdrawn his request for an appropriation of $14,117,000 for the next census, and has substituted a request for $10,000,000.

The original estimate covered, not only 1910, when the enumerations must take place, but the three succeeding years during which the reports will be tabulated and published.

The revised estimate covers the expenses, only for next year, in which all the preparatory and field work will take place. This is the amount appropriated at the beginning of the last census. It is estimated $5,500,000 will be necessary to pay supervisors and enumerators.

GOES CRAZY IN MINE.

Quincy Miner, Formerly in Asylum, Becomes Stark Mad.

Hancock, Mich., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Matt Hansen, a miner employed at the Mesnard shaft of the Quincy mine, became violently insane while at work yesterday, and the sheriff's office was notified.

Deputy William Anderson went to the Mesnard to get the man and it required the assistance of four men to bring Hansen to the surface. n seeing the officer, however, he quieted down and went to Houghton peacefully. Hansen was sent to Newberry about a year ago, and after four months was discharged as cured, returning to Mesnard, where he went back to his work in the mines. Yesterday's outbreak was the first since his return. His wife believes he is still insane and will ask to have him examined and re-committed to the asylum.

OUR $4.50 HATS are of the same value as the usual $6.00 article, having a considerable amount of character and "niftiness."

OUR $5.00 HATS are going to be the leading sellers, being so much in advance of $5.00 millinery as you are used to seeing it. Values are actually $7.50 to $8.50.

The house passed the Lennon resolution providing for the appointment of two senators and three representatives to negotiate with the railroads, with a view to settling pending rate controversies. Some of the members feared this was an attempt to defeat the senate bill re-enacting the commodity rate law of two years ago, which is now in the courts, with the penalty clause stricken out.

Lennon consented to allow the passage of the bill under a suspension of the rules on motion of Representative Duea, though he alone voted against the bill. His resolution was then adopted, 74 to 43.

The house sat on Representative Opsahl of Bemidji in beautiful shape this morning. Representative Lennon of Minneapolis wanted to suspend the rules and pass a Minneapolis bill, as it would save the time of the house and printing expenses as well. Opsahl objected, so Lennon had the bill laid on the table to be taken up later. A few minutes after Opsahl wanted to do the same thing with a local bill of his own, and his motion was defeated four to one.

The house tax committee recommended for passage the Bendixen-Kneeland bill making the tax on all credits 3 mills, with the exception of real estate mortgages paying a mortgage registry tax.

W. A. Nolan's committee on express, telegraph and electric lines killed practically all of the pending telephone regulation bills to which the telephone companies have been objecting. The house adopted a report of the rules committee, providing that sessions begin at 9:30 a. m., and that all bills on general orders shall be made a special order to be voted upon when reached, in order to save time.

Representative Bendixen offered a resolution, which was adopted, asking congress not to cut the duty on barley from 30 to 15 cents.

The house invited Lafayette Young and John MacVickar of Des Moines to address it on the commission plan of city government.

Senator Canfield introduced in the senate a joint memorial to congress asking it to prohibit federal courts from interfering with state railroad rate laws.

The senate committee on dairy products introduced a bill prohibiting discrimination in sales of dairy products designed to obliterate competition.

Senator Campbell offered a joint memorial to congress asking an amendment to the national banking law, allowing national banks outside of reserve cities to loan money on real estate.

The St. Louis county delegation held a meeting this afternoon to hear C. O. Baldwin of Duluth in behalf of a curative act for the village of Gilbert, the courts having held its organization to be invalid.

NO IRREGULARITIES.

Fourth Ward Contest Will be Dropped by Nelson.

Investigations are said to have proven to the satisfaction of R. I. Tipton, attorney for Swan Nelson, defeated candidate for supervisor from the Fourth ward, that there were no irregularities at the primary election of Tuesday in the Fourth ward.

Nelson obtained the services of the attorney to look into the matter, for he and his friends were of the belief that mistakes had been made through the use of the voting machines, and that a number of non-registered persons had voted in the ward who had no right to do so.

HOT AFTER GROCERS.

City Sealer Claims They Gave Him Short Measure.

Joe Morrissette, sealer of weights and measures of Superior, is hot after merchants who give short measure.

Yesterday he caused the arrest of a number of grocers whom he claims sold him potatoes short of weight. The grocers arrested were H. S. Spindler, W. F. Albright, Berthiaume Bros., A. Grant and William O'Connor, all of whom pleaded guilty to the charge, stating that they had no way of proving that they gave correct measure, and rather than fight the charge would pay a fine. Each was given a minimum fine of $2.

Mr. Morrissette claims to have purchased a peck of potatoes from each of the dealers, and none of the pecks were up to the standard weight.

School Property Sold.

The Kimball school property was formally transferred to the Nemadji River Land company today for a consideration of $20,000. AN ITCHING PALM

No Cure for It. Other Forms of Itching Preferable.

There is no cure for an itching palm—the money kind. Even poslam, the new skin discovery, cannot help it. But when it comes to eczema, the most annoying of itching skin troubles, poslam will stop the itching at once and cure the worst cases in a few days. So with hives, rash, scabies, split toes, piles, and scaly scalp, all of which are different forms of eczema, accompanied by severe itching and caused by imperfect digestion and careless diet.

Poslam comes in two-dollar jars, but fifty cents' worth will answer in curing any of the disease mentioned. It can be had of any druggist. The Lyceum Pharmacy and W. A. Abbett in Duluth, and Holmberg in Superior, make a specialty of it.

That results are immediate will be amply demonstrated overnight by the use of the experimental sample which the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York city, will send free by mail, in plain wrapper, to any one who will write for it.

VEGETABLES ARE SCARCE

Old Stocks Getting Low; New Stocks Not Yet In.

Potato Market Firm; Butter Advances; Eggs Are Plentiful.

This is the season of the year when the housewife is very much in doubt when it comes to buying vegetables for the home. It is between seasons, and she does not know whether to lay in a supply of old vegetables at prevailing prices, or to wait and see if the new varieties will not be in soon in sufficient quantities to bring the prices down. It is a time when both the old and the new vegetables are high in price.

The potato market is still firm, and there is believed to be a good chance that prices will be higher yet before new potatoes arrive in large enough quantities to supply the market and cause a reduction in the general run of prices.

Last year's cabbages are now out of the market entirely, and the new stock from Florida and Texas is arriving. This stock is of very fine quality, and prices asked are no higher than those charged for the last of the old.

The orange market is firmer than it was a week ago. Rains in California have resulted in an increase of 25 cents a box on the California product. Even at this the fruit is still exceptionally cheap, and the quality is extra fine.

The apple market still stands firm at last week's prices. The stock is being gradually cleaned up. The Western stock in boxes is showing regular advances.

Fresh vegetables are arriving in more complete variety, and the prices are getting more reasonable right along. The old stocks of cabbages and carrots are getting very low.

The wholesalers are patiently waiting for strawberries. It is expected it will be another week or two before the fruit begins to arrive in any quantities. The Chicago market has been getting some Florida berries, but their quality is too poor to stand the long ride to the Head of the Lakes.

California has been supplying the local market with celery, but Florida is now shipping, and the quality of the product is acknowledged to be better than that received from the West.

Butter has advanced 1 cent a pound in the last week. Egg receipts are liberal, and prices are as low as they are likely to be for some time.

All lines of cheese are showing advances in price, because of the fact that the old stock is getting scarce. High prices will prevail until new cheese comes in.

PLACE VALUE ON PARK PROPERTY

Virginia Commission Decides Upon Amounts to be Paid for Property.

Virginia, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Commissioners Edward C. A. Johnson, E. M. Tredway, William Rooney, Alexander Reid and John A. Kennedy, appointed to appraise the property in block 43, located opposite the Roosevelt school, wanted for park purposes, met this week and listened to arguments by the several lot owners in that block.

The prices offered in a number of lots were cut down by the board. The board agreed upon the following schedule of prices on these lots, and its report will be submitted to the council Tuesday evening, April 6:

Lots 4 and 5, owned by Mrs. V. A. Stewart, $1,000; lots 6, 7 and 8, Morris Shandeling, with $50 added for filling done, $1,550; lots 9 and 10, Virginia Improvement company, $1,600; lot 11, John Vogland, $500; filling, $100; house, $1,850—$2,475; lots 12 and 13, Presbyterian church society, $1,975; filling, barn and house, $2,000—$3,975; lots 14, 15 and 16, Virginia Improvement company, $2,100; lot 17, D. W. Freeman, $700; house, $550; shed, $50—$1,300; lot 18, D. W. Freeman, $700; lot 18, D. W. Freeman, $700; lot 20, D. W. Freeman, $700; lot 21, D. W. Freeman, $800; lot 22, J. L. Kimball, $500; filling, and labor, $15—$515; lot 23, J. L. Kimball, $500; filling, $10—$510; lot 24, O. A. Poirier, $500; filling, $35—$535; lot 25, O. A. Poirier, $500; filling, $35—$535; lots 26 and 27, Jewish society, $1,000; lots 28 and 29, Virginia Improvement company, $1,000. Total, $20,415.

The remaining lots in this block, 30, 31 and 32, are owned by C. H. Rogers, and 1, 2 and 3 by John Costin, Jr. These lots will not be purchased by the park board, as they contain residences valued at thousands of dollars, and the board does not think it advisable to expend so large a sum of money for the property.

Whether the council will act favorably upon this report cannot be foretold at this time. The commercial club has gone on record as favoring this location for a city park, and there are also a large number of citizens who have expressed their desire, by petition, to have the city acquire the property.

CONSERVATISM TO BE FOLLOWED

Eveleth Charter Commission Will Try to Adopt Nothing Radical.

Eveleth, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The charter commission last night discussed many matters concerning the proposed charter. J. C. McGilvery, who has been appointed attorney for the commission, outlined the work of the commission. A number of the charters were distributed, and the various committees will begin work at once on the different phases of the work, as they will be required to have some outline of their committee work ready for the meeting of the commission to be held next Thursday night.

In the framing of the charter the commission will see to it that all local interests are treated fairly, as that is the only way they can think of securing any help from the Oliver Iron Mining company. If a proper charter is framed which will be conservative many members of the commission think the Steel corporation will be willing to have the three mines adjacent to the town annexed, making a much larger valuation for the town and also giving it the good will of the corporation.

NEW ELY SUPERINTENDENT.

T. H. Barnes Is Chosen to Succeed Prof. C. L. Newberry.

Ely, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—T. H. Barnes of Wells, Minn., where he has been prominently identified with the schools for five years, has been elected superintendent of the city schools, succeeding C. L. Newberry at a salary of $2,400.

Mr. Newberry resigned and it is reported will soon take a position of a similar character in a larger place on the Mesaba range.

Under the management of Prof. Newberry, who has been superintendent for nine years the schools have grown from a small district, having only a few teachers to a district boasting of seven buildings with about 1,200 pupils. The present standard of the schools is attributed largely to the energetic and able efforts of Prof. Newberry, who by his aggressive work and careful attention to his business has raised the schools to their present high plane and standing, and with the assistance of the school board, who have from time to time worked with him, has been responsible for the reputation throughout the state as one of the best school districts in Northern Minnesota.

ELY LAKE RACING IS SCHEDULED ON FRIDAY.

Eveleth, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Today at Ely lake a large number of horse races are scheduled. The best horses from Hibbing, Virginia, Eveleth and Chisholm will compete for prizes. Among the local horses entered are Bessie S, belonging to Mayor Smith; American Count, belonging to ex-Mayor Jesmore; Sherman Douglas, Daisy Wilkes and Persis, belonging to Mark Eddy, and a large number of other fast ones.

VIOLA ALLEN IN JAIL.

Not the Famous Actress, But Eveleth Woman Who Got Into Trouble.

Eveleth, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Prince was astonished yesterday, when a woman arraigned for disorderly conduct and drunkenness gave the name of Viola Allen.

The judge thought at once of the famous actress of that name, but recalled that she is at present appearing in the Twin Cities, so he gave her a fine of $25 or forty days in jail. As she had appeared too hilarious here, she thought she would take a rest for that time in Duluth, and was taken there today.

Matt Mazesick, his cousin, Met Mazesick, and brother, John Mazesick, were arraigned on charges of assault and battery preferred by Jure Belanich, who was the victim of their assaults in the saloon of J. Lebonavich. The first two were fined $10 each, which was paid, while the charge against John Mazesick was suspended. Johanson Fennel, who was arrested for being drunk, was fined $5, which was paid

Mrs. Betsy Peterson of Cook Heeds the Final Summons.

Virginia, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Betsy Peterson, residing with her daughter, Mrs. Engell P. Tweit, six miles west of Cook, died Tuesday night at about 9 o'clock from old age.

The deceased was 79 years of age and is survived by three daughters, one living in Minneapolis, Mrs. Davis in Tower and Mrs. Tweit. The funeral will be held next Sunday afternoon, with services at the family home, interment following in the cemetery at Cook.

VIRGINIA ELKS ELECT.

George F. Shea Is Chosen Exalted Ruler of Lodge.

Virginia, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Virginia Lodge No. 1003, B. P. O. E., has elected officers as follows: Exalted ruler, George F. Shea; esteemed leading knight, W. W. Woodward; esteemed loyal knight, W. T. Irwin; esteemed lecturing knight, Charles McCormick; secretary, Albert E. Bickford; treasurer, D. W. Elmquist; tyler, A. F. Thayer; inside guard, D. E. Cuppernull; trustee for three years, W. H. Eaton, re-elected.

Dr. J. W. Deering, the retiring exalted ruler, was chosen a delegate to the Elks' convention to be held in Los Angeles in June, and John A. Kennedy was selected as alternate.

Three candidates were initiated, Dr. M. F. Guidinger, Charles Parker and H. L. Bartlett. Following the initiatory exercises a spread was served in the new dining room, and then came an hour or two which was given over to song and story.

If the plans of the lodge are carried out, it will not be many months before the organization will be quartered in its own home. An option has been taken on three lots on West Chestnut street, and if the deal is closed, arrangements will at once be made for the erection of a modern building which will be used for clubrooms for the members.

JURY NOMINATED.

Defeats Judge Osborne for the Ely Judicial Position.

Ely, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The judge was beaten by the jury. To be more explicit, Thomas Jury, the present assessor, defeated Municipal Judge Osborne at the primaries for the nomination.

Otherwise the primaries were lacking in public interest, as the fight between the two named was a lively contest. Frank Hodge, who has held the office of assessor in former years, received the nomination over Harry Stein and Joseph Rothman. Louis Eisenach was nominated for mayor without opposition. John E. Cosgrove was nominated again for treasurer without opposition.

The contest for nominations for aldermen in the various wards was not very spirited. Candidates were selected as follows: First ward, J. W. Graves and Jack Seraphine; Second ward, Fred James and Olaf Knutson; Third ward, Dr. George T. Ayres and Jake Butala.

GILBERT IS ANXIOUS.

Desirous of Knowing Outcome of Recent Court Decision.

Gilbert, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is no little interest here over the outcome of the work of the committee appointed to look after the interests of the place since the supreme court recently declared the incorporation invalid. The work of the committee will mean much to the town and a considerable amount of money has been raised among the business men and property owners to back the committee in its work. Some members of the committee are in St. Paul trying to further the interests of the town with the members of the legislature, to see what they can do to help the village in its present state of anxiousness. The village council will hold a meeting Monday night and then more will be learned of the situation. This meeting will be the last of the present council, and they will then decide whether or not to keep up the fight against the decision and not put in the next counsel or to keep working and see what is best to be done.

EVELETH AGAINST CLOQUET.

Rival Basketball Teams Will Contest in Slabtown Friday Night.

Eveleth, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The high school basket ball team left today for Cloquet, where tonight they will take on the fast high school team of that town. The local team has made a good record this season and are to beat the Cloquet team. If possible a game will be arranged to play the sophomore team of the Duluth Central high school in Duluth Saturday night. This is the first time the Eveleth and Cloquet teams have met and a battle royal is looked for as both have made good records so far this season.

EVELETH NIGHT SCHOOL PROVES VERY POPULAR.

Eveleth, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The night school being conducted at the Fayal school building under the direction of Principal John Shoemaker is making good progress. New students are joining at each meeting of the classes. Five girls began work in the night school Wednesday evening and more are expected as the work of the school becomes better known.

Grand Rapids, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The looked-for annual declamation contest between teams comprising the North Central Minnesota Inter-Scholastic Declamatory association will be held here tonight.

The high schools of Bemidji, Cass Lake, Akeley, Park Rapids and Grand Rapids will be represented, two students of each institution speaking, one on a serious subject and the other on a humorous subject.

The contest was held at Park Rapids last year and the banner was won by Grand Rapids high school representatives. This year the local high school will be represented by William Powers, who will give a serious recitation, and Herbert Grove, who will give a humorous declamation.

DULUTH RABBI OFFICIATES.

Hibbing Woman Is Married to Resident of the Metropolis.

Hibbing, Minn., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—About 200 guests, many from other points, were present at the wedding in Close's hall Tuesday of Miss Anna Helstein, daughter of I. Helstein, a well-known resident of this place, and David Miller, a jeweler living in New York city, which was performed by Rabbi Kussem of Duluth, all of the impressive rites of the Jewish orthodox church being observed.

Following the ceremony, a substantial spread was served to the guests.

At the ceremony the bride wore white silk with bridal veil and carried white roses. The bridal couple entered the hall to the air of wedding music played by a full orchestra, and stood together under a canopy during the reading of the contract by Rabbi Kussem and the beautiful ring service that followed. The couple was attended by the bridal party and flower children.

In the bridal party were Messrs. Louis Helstein, Nathan Nides, Benjamin Friedman and Hyman Miller of Duluth, brother of the groom, and Misses Slossberg, Annie Kasmir, Clara Shore and Sara Helstein. Sara Azinski and Morris Helstein carried flowers.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Shore, Miss Clar Shore, Mr. and Mrs. A. Friedman, Mr. and Mrs. Miller, the Misses Annie Kasmir and Hymen Miller of Duluth; Mr. and Mrs. Azinski and Miss Sara Azinski and Miss Sara Slossberg of Superior; Mr. and Mrs. S. Bernstein, Mr. and Mrs. Stein and J. W. Mark of St. Paul and Mr. Friend of Minneapolis.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

LYCEUM—"Brewster's Millions." (See notice below.)

A GOOD COMEDY.

"Brewster's Millions" Opens Three Nights' Engagement at Lyceum.

Brewster's Millions," one of the best and most wholesome comedies on the road today, opened a three-nights' engagement at the Lyceum last evening before an audience that fully appreciated the general and genuine excellence of the production.

The comedy was played in Duluth last season. It was finely staged and finely acted then, and the same can be said of it now. Everything about the show is as good as it was then, and this should be sufficient recommendation for any one who witnessed "Brewster's Millions" a year ago. The leading roles are in the same hands now as last season. A large company is required for the piece, and the numerous parts are well taken.

The stage settings are up to the usual Frederic Thompson standard, which statement, those who saw "Polly of The Circus," will appreciate. The storm scene on the yacht in the third act is a wonder, and one of the most thrilling spectacles on the stage at the present time. For action and interest it fully equals the famous racing scene from "Checkers" or the football game in "The College Widow." Manager Isaac has improved upon the scene since last year. For one thing he has substituted a real sail for the canvas drop used last year. The light effects also appear to be better, and the fall of the curtain leaves the audience tense.

Robert Ober's work as "Monty" Brewster is delightful. He is a natural comedian, one of the Willie Collier school, and his work is quiet and effective. As the young man who undertakes to spend a million dollars in a year in order that he may inherit seven times that amount, he gains the sympathy of the audience from the start, and becomes as popular with the audience as he is with his friends on the stage, who are trying to prevent him from squandering his money. The ridiculous situations provide plenty of opportunity for clean, bright comedy and Mr. Ober takes advantage of all of them.

Miss June Mathis has the leading feminine role, that of "Peggy." Miss Mathis appeared in Duluth last year in the same role, and made many admirers at that time. With a very attractive stage presence, she has the added quality of genuine artistic ability, and is very effective in the role.

Marie Horton is good as Janice Armstrong, and Katharine Raye and Charlotte Lambert appear to advantage. Carl Gerrard, Gus Christie, Franklin George, Norman MacDonald and Daniel Fager as staunch friends of the young millionaire, all do very well.

The performance will be repeated tonight, tomorrow afternoon and night.

It is one of the brightest, cleanest comedies that will be seen in Duluth this season, and those who attend the theater purely for amusement and entertainment, cannot afford to miss it.

FREE CONCERT.

Wagner's Music Featured in Weekly Program at Masonic Temple.

The program for the twenty-second Masonic free concert, Sunday, March 28, at 3:30, p. m. is as follows:

Organ—"Tannhauser" ..... Wagner
(a) "Bacchante" .....
(b) "Elizabeth's Prayer" .....
Baritone solo—"Mochac's Field" Korbay
Louis Dworshak.
Organ—"Tannhauser" ..... Wagner
(a) "Introduction to Act 3" .....
(b) "The Defeat of Venus" .....
Baritone solo—"Evening Star" Wagner
Louis Dworshak.
Organ—"Tannhauser" ..... Wagner
(a) "Pilgrims' Chorus" .....
(b) "Overture" .....

As will be noticed the selections for the twenty-second program are all from Wagner's opera of "Tannhauser," but with the range of music from the exquisite "Elizabeth's Prayer," to the greatest of "Overtures," there is no chance for a tiresome moment.

"Tannhauser" is an opera in the full sense of the word, musically connected with the methods of the old operas from which Wagner gradually drew away, and shows the bold flights and melodic forms which are very characteristic of the composer. The "Pilgrim's Chorus" represents the religious element while the first number on the program, "Bacchante," represents the profane and unholy, and all the emotions between those extremes are set before the listener in a sound picture by the other numbers. The several themes, or motifs expressive of those varying moods are presented, and the "Overture," probably the grandest piece of orchestral music, is placed at the end of the program instead of at the beginning as is usual, in order that the masterly manner in which the music has been made to tell the story may be appreciated because the overture is a condensed summary of the drama in which all themes appear individually and then are merged in the grand crash of melody at the finale.

GERMAN DEFAULTER IS BEING SOUGHT AFTER.

St. Paul, Minn., March 26.—The local German consul's office has received notice that the president of police, at Berlin, has offered a reward of 1,000 marks to any one who will affect the apprehension of Alfred Schubert, a defaulter, who is now supposed to be in this country.

At the time of his disappearance from Berlin, he was accompanied by Charlotte Schellenberg, a young woman about 20, and he had in his possession three letters of credit on the Disconto-Gesellschaft, a Berlin bank. He is about five feet ten high, has light hair, a pale face and is clean shaven. He is a good violinist and frequents pool rooms. Besides German, he talks broken English and French.

At the present rate of growth Manhattan island will have a population of 2,500,000 in 1932.

SHE ADDS TO MYSTERY

"Woman in Black" Figures in Indiana Suicide Case.

Former Fiance of Mr. Culbertson in Chicago Talks.

Vincennes, Ind., March 26.—Vincennes' suicide case is losing none of its thrills, as developments grow.

"The mysterious woman in black," at first thought to have been Mrs. Culbertson's murderer, the police now think may exist, and that she might have known of Mrs. Culbertson's past. Fear that something in her past might be revealed, the authorities think, may have been the motive for suicide. She is known to have said to a friend about four months ago: "If anything ever happens to me, don't try to find out who I am, because no one will ever learn anything." Mrs. Culbertson was a graduate nurse was schooled in Chicago and also in New Orleans, and was an excellent nurse.

Had Knowledge of Binding.

The bandages placed over her head were in a position to indicate that they were adjusted by one who had expert knowledge of bandaging wounds. Where the muslin or the poison was purchased the police are seeking to learn. The poison, it now develops, was in a tin cup. It had been poured into the cup from a vial.

Mr. Culbertson, his parents and relatives of the dead woman are not reconciled to the suicide theory of the police. They insist that the woman was happy and had no cause to take her life. Mr. Culbertson admits, however that he knows little of his wife's past. Tuesday evening before the tragedy, Mrs. Culbertson accompanied Mrs. Brazleton, her mother-in-law, and another friend, to the theater. She was in a jovial frame of mind and enjoyed the entertainment.

Lack of any clue to persons who might have dragged the woman into the sled and to her death, in the middle of the afternoon, is the main factor and the police believe that no murder was committed.

Mrs. Longwell Talks.

Chicago, March 26.—Mrs. Etta Longwell also admits she is the woman referred to in newspaper stories, in connection with the death of Mrs. Russell Culbertson of Vincennes, Ind., declare, today that she had nothing to do with the death of the woman, and denied that she ever knew the wife of Russell Culbertson.

"I at one time was engaged to be married to Russell Culbertson," said Mrs. Longwell. "That engagement was broken off a year ago last New Year's day. Since that time I have not seen Mr. Culbertson. We had an argument at that time because of his attention to other women, and I decided that I would not marry him.

"The woman whom he finally did marry I have never seen in my life. There is not a reason on earth why I should be desirous of doing her any harm. When I broke off my engagement with Mr. Culbertson our relations ended."

Mrs. Longwell is about 33 and a beautiful woman. She at one time lived in Vincennes, but says she has not been outside of Chicago for three months, and says she can prove an alibi without any trouble.

"THE GIRL OF MYSTERY"

The Immigration Officers Have Strange Case to Deal With.

Refuses to Tell Anything Regarding Her History.

Mary Kongestate, an Austrian girl 23 years old, who has been in the county jail for more than a month past, will soon be deported by the United States immigration inspectors here.

The girl's case is a peculiar one. She refuses to give any information regarding herself, and the securing of knowledge in regard to her former home and life was a difficult task. Since the girl has been in the county jail Inspector in Charge W. H. Dean of the local immigration district, has been working on the case and he has finally secured the desired information in regard to the girl's former home.

The girl has been a continual source of wonder to the attendants at the county jail. At times she appears perfectly rational, but even then she refuses to talk. She is a linguist of ability, speaking six different foreign languages, though she cannot speak English.

When her mind takes its peculiar turn she sits in the window of the county jail in her cell and sings, sometimes in one language, sometimes in another, with the wailing tone of a person in distress. The words of her plaintive songs are never distinct, but the air tells the story of a sorrowful spirit broken.

The girl has been in this country a little more than a year. She was employed as a domestic when her mind became deranged, and nothing is known of the cause of her affliction. It is presumed that a love affair had something to do with it, but her lack of knowledge of English and her reticence have baffled all attempts to learn her story. She will be sent to her old home in Austria, there to recover amidst familiar scenes or to spend the remainder of her life in the darkness of insanity.

POU SAYS PIE GRAB

Declares That Republicans Stay Longest at the Counter.

North Carolinian Picks Flaws in Payne Tariff Bill.

Washington, March 26.—"A place at the pie counter is desired by us all," said Representative Pou of North Carolina in discussing the tariff bill in the house today, "but I have often thought that our Republican friends get there quicker, stay longer, and are harder to force away than any class of people on earth. Therefore, rather than lose its place in the national restaurant, that party promised to revise your Dingley tariff, and when you agreed to revise it, you meant to revise it downward, in a manner fair and just to all sections, and the people so understood it." But, he asserted, the Republican party has not done so.

Mr. Pou said the Payne bill is a worse measure than the Dingley law and charged the Republicans that "in the teeth of your promise to the people to revise downward, you have revised upward." He argued that shoes should be placed on the free list if hides are admitted free.

Wool Schedule Criticised.

Mr Pou criticised the wool schedule, declaring that the very necessaries of every day living have been doubled by the imposition of the duties provided therein. He also said that the duties on womens' and children's gloves have been increased with the result that every woman and child in America will suffer while the beneficiaries of the change would be confined within the limits of one city, Gloversville, N. Y. "During the last days of the last session of the Sixtieth congress," continued Mr. Pou, "the fate of the subsidy bill was hanging in the balance. The measure had passed the senate and had come to the house for ratification or rejection. It was known that the vote would probably be very close. In this exigency Republican leaders brought to their assistance all of the old guard within reach who were supposed to have influence over the membership of the house.

ap..s... and an

"One very genial gentleman in particular, who is largely interested in the glove business, was on the scene, and it is said did yeoman service in bringing up Republican recalcitrants to the support of that vicious measure. Likewise, immediately preceding the assembling of the present congress, when the organization of the house was in doubt, this same genial gentleman was on hand doing yeoman service to force back into line holters from the regular Republican column. His town of Gloversville has control of the output of men's gloves, to a very large extent. His community enjoys a protection against competition which is so complete, that during the year 1907, only 108,000 dozen men's gloves were brought into the United States from abroad. His community has had a monopoly of this business. Now, lo and behold, he is to be rewarded with an additional monopoly probably of the manufacture of women's and children's gloves also."

Lumber Reduction Attacked.

Mr. Pou criticised the Republicans for not granting the peanut, mica and long staple cotton interests of the South, the increased duties that the they requested, and claimed that the only reason for refusing was the fact that the people in the sections of the South where they are produced did not vote the Republican ticket.

The reduction in the lumber schedule was also attacked by Pou, who declared that it was another evidence of the favoritism shown in the framing of the bill. He said that every American citizen who must pay the advance in price of sea, which he claimed would result from the duty placed on this beverage, would hold the majority of the house responsible

THE YELLOW PERIL

By John Forbes.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

An oppressive gloom pervaded the atmosphere of the Capital club, and in the Red room a slow departing twilight, penetrating with difficulty heavy black masses of tobacco smoke, was the only illumination. No one had cared to press the electric button. Occasionally one of a dozen or more glowing cigar ends seemed to awaken from a reverie to beam brightly for a moment—then relapse again like the eye of a drowsy tiger. There was no sound in the room and scarcely a perceptible movement, save now and then a finger flecked the ashes away or a hand removed a weed from close-shut lips.

For several minutes thus—then the deep-voiced cabinet secretary, with dignified deliberation, resumed, "And gentlemen, when all is said and done, the entire situation may be briefly summarized. As the general has explained, they have encroached upon our northern boundary until a barrier of armed men extends from the Pacific to the Atlantic. Our southern boundary is a glittering line of bayonets from gulf to gulf. If we drive back a regiment we retreat to our lines before a brigade."

"A corps, Mr. Secretary, an entire army corps," interposed the general.

"And," continued the secretary, in every harbor of the world. For every torpedo boat we possess they have a cruiser, and for every destroyer over whose decks our flag boats a battleship flaunts their colors to the breeze. They have naval stations within fifty hours of our most sequestered sea ports. They have invested our great lakes. Our insular possessions we have ceded to them, with honor indeed, but I cannot say, gentlemen, without coercion—subtle, perhaps, but still coercion.

Lo Toon, their prime minister, is exceedingly frank. "It is not," he says, "a matter of conquest, but a struggle for existence. My people must have breath—they are suffocating. We have our fisheries at the very south pole, and every foot of the bleak Siberian steppes yields its quota of rice or millet—nay, even though its needs be roofed with glass to keep the earth from strangling in its frozen clutch the sprouting seeds. There is no area in all the western hemisphere, from ice-bound valleys of northmost bays and rivers to lofty snow-capped Cordillera in the south, save what is occupied by these United States of yours, but responds to the industry of my people. And you have room, room, room. You are encompassed. You must see the inevitable." This, gentlemen, is the situation. We are encompassed. Our navy is helpless, our army but barely holds at bay the hordes upon our borders. Our lines of fortifications are problems which cannot long remain unsolved. The time when statesmanship availed us has long, long since gone by.

"Gentlemen," and the secretary's voice was scarcely audible, "I fear, I greatly fear we are undone."

There was silence and again the cigar ends glowed more ominously in the deepening gloom. An onyx clock on the mantel over a closed fireplace ticked aggressively and the match with which the secretary relighted his cigar sputtered noisily.

"Mr. Secretary!" The professor's passionless voice sounded afar off, but every eye startled and new-lighted, turned toward him. The secretary responded:

"Professor!"

"Since it appears, Mr. Secretary," he calmly continued, "that this disaster which has been impending for so long is about to fall upon and crush us. Since it is evident from what you say that the defense of our beloved country has passed beyond the powers of its natural agencies. Since diplomacy and force of arms are alike hopeless, may I not submit the proposition that the defense of our nation has entered the realms of science and as a humble disciple of truth volunteer my services in its behalf. It must still be war—most horrible, most hellish war—and God alone knows how I hate it and shrink from it; but I make the sacrifice gladly."

"I had forlorn hoping, professor and I must still forbear." The secretary breathed deeply.

The professor had arisen and passed silently from the room and the cigar ends gleamed brightly in the direction of the half open door.

Lo Toon, the prime minister, sat in state. Courtiers in silken flowing gowns paused in their goings to and fro, and clerks and scribes, low bent at their writing, looked up expectantly. Lo Toon's face was expressionless as ever, but his eyes glittered perhaps more than usual, and his voice was over-sweet.

"Why," he queried, "have I not been informed of this before?"

The courtier quailed and murmured, "Because, oh, Light of the World, it was feared that some word would teach the enemy. These men were found torn and bleeding, one wounded by a rifle ball, and both near starvation, within our lines, some miles from the enemy's works. They are engineers, had quarreled with their superiors, were arrested and escaped, bearing plans of the enemy's first and second lines of fortifications. The plans were checked and agreed with our information, so the men were sent here with all dispatch, for they would explain nothing save to your highness."

The courtier bowed deeply.

"Bring them in. I would look upon them." The prime minister seemed appeased. Once more the courtier bowed deeply, then left the room.

Soon, surrounded by several soldiers, but unbound and walking, the two men were brought in. The glitter in Lo Toon's eyes was more needle-like than before.

"Why," he asked them, and paused, smiling the while, then repeated, "Why did you bring us these plans?"

The two men dropped their heads.

"Why?" he again repeated, and then, in higher key and standing close before them, "Answer me, or"—

The older man, pale-faced and bare of brow, with arm tied in a sling, looked up and, sighing deeply, murmured but little louder than a whisper, "Because we loved our country."

Lo Toon turned to reseat himself, then hesitated. "Take them away," he said, and to a closer attendant, "Some tea, some tea, slave; quickly; quickly." Suddenly he fell into his throne, thence to the floor, grasping the while his forehead and his eyes.

And so the plague commenced. Right and left men died, and the women and the children. Along the water courses they were piled high, like slain sheep in wild endeavor to assuage their thirst. Some fell at once upon their very tracks without a moan, and some lived on and on and cursing, until at length death came. Those still alive fled north to the Siberian steppes and spread the pestilence there, or south to India and the fisheries at the nether pole, and spread the pestilence there, or eastward over oceans and spread the pestilence there. The sky at noon was darkened by the flight of vultures—the land was given to the wolf and jackal. Every dim outpost, every wild retreat was searched by this fierce death blight and wilted by its awful might. Then, when every human fragment had ... appeared, the wolves and vultures and jackals rent and ate each other, till scarce were there enough to waken with their howls the trembling chon night.

It was again twilight, and in the Red room of the Capital club. The professor, pale-faced and bare of brow, sat reading intently a book before him. The secretary entered.

"Tell me, professor," he commenced, and the professor looked gravely up, keeping his place in the book with his index finger, "tell me how you did it."

"Why," he calmly replied, "I merely carried in my mouth a capsule containing a sort of microbe culture which we had been developing here at the Jonesonian institute, and blew them in the face of the prime minister. They attack vigorously rice-eating races, you know. Others are practically immune. That was all."

The secretary watched the professor, as he pored more closely over his tome in the dimming light, then slowly turned away, muttering as he did so:

"Ye Gods!"

HOME FOR THE BLIND.

National Institution May Result From North Dakotan's Efforts.

Fargo, N. D., March 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—In impetus to the movement to establish a national school for the blind has resulted from the efforts of Nels J. Rustan of this city. At the meeting of the North Dakota Educational association the first of the year he secured an indorsement of the plan. Since then, through correspondence and co-workers in other states, he has been able to secure the adoption of concurrent resolutions favoring the school by the legislatures of Washington, Montana, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana, Ohio and Illinois. He went to the capitols of several of these states in person and assisted in explaining the object.

County and city superintendents, teachers of all grades and others interested will be taught agricultural instruction at the summer school to be held at the North Dakota agricultural college this summer. This is the first attempt of that kind made in the state, and is in the interests of the movement to establish agricultural and instructions in the schools of the state.

ITALIAN SUFFRAGETTES.

An Italian woman by the law of Italy has no right to her property after marriage and no control over her dowry, the interest of which the husband may spend as he likes, though he may not touch the capital, which must be returned to her in the event of a separation.

She cannot sign or draw a check on her own account even for her own money, says the Gentlewoman, and her evidence is not accepted in a law court without her husband. She is entirely subservient to him and he can shut her away from all her friends. She loses her nationality on her marriage with a foreigner.

Under these circumstances it is scarcely surprising that of late there has been a powerful agitation for the suffrage among Italian women and one or two test cases have come before the law courts. A debate took place recently in parliament on the subject and a committee was appointed to investigate the laws affecting women and the desirability of conferring the franchise upon them.

The Queen Dowager Margherita takes a personal interest in the question and recently during the national congress of Italian women held in Rome she entertained the delegates at a monster party at her palace, when she expressed her sympathy with the movement and the hope that Italy would be among the first of the great modern nations to proclaim the enfranchisement of women.

WOMEN'S HATS SAVE LEVEES.

From the Milwaukee Sentinel: "Women's hats are doing much to save the levees along the Mississippi river in Louisiana," said Henry R. Lewis in the Plankinton. "This statement sounds fantastic, but of the fashionable fur hats it is certainly true.

"Muskrats, which for years have cost the state no end of trouble and thousands of dollars through their depredations, have been popular upon as well as in the pompadour or 'psyche.'

"Several of the more progressive hunters quickly realized that muskrats were marketable and gave up the pursuit of ducks and other game. One hunter alone in February killed 6,000 rats, for which he received 20 cents apiece.

"Other hunters have followed the lead of this mighty nimrod, and it begins to look as if the state will soon rid itself of the industrious rodents, whose burrowings have for many years endangered the cities and towns along Louisiana's river fronts."

"At the wars do as they do at the wars;" and in this city, which is a "want-advertising city," do as they do in this city.

WILL SPEAK ON TRUCK GARDENS

Interesting Addresses Will be Delivered at the Y. M. C. A.

Farmers and truck gardeners, who make their homes in and around Duluth, will have an opportunity to receive some valuable instruction this evening, when Prof. A. H. Kohler, assistant in horticulture at the state school of agriculture, will deliver a talk on the subject. "Potatoes and Root Crops," at the Y. M. C. A. lecture room. Prof. Clayton Cooper of the department of agriculture will also speak.

The importance of the successful cultivation of root crops in this vicinity is patent, when it is stated that nearly all of the great abundance of vegetable matter that is annually consumed by the Duluth public has to be shipped in from outside, making the food less palatable and far more expensive than if it were grown here at home. This is one of the many interesting topics on farming that the members of the Commercial club and Y. M. C. A. are bringing to the direct attention of the people of this district, and a crowded house will undoubtedly greet the speakers this evening.

APPEASING LAND HUNGER

All Records Broken For Final Proofs at Land Office.

Majority of Those Taking Claims Are Bonafide Homesteaders.

All monthly records for the filing of final proofs on homestead entries in the state of Minnesota have been broken by the business done at the local land office so far this month. As there are still five days left in March the lead which the record enjoys will probably be materially enhanced.

In the past twenty-six days there have been eighty-five final proofs made. The average for thirty days is usually around the fifty mark. While these proofs come from many counties included in the district which is governed by the local office, most of the eighty-five are made on lands in St. Louis county.

Surprising as it may seem, nearly all of the proofs made so far this month are first-class in every particular. In a large majority of the cases the homesteaders are married men who have been residing on their land with their wives and families. A large percentage of the homesteaders are Finns. These homesteads run from 40 to 160 acres and most of them have valuable improvements made upon them.

"The proofs which we are receiving this year are much better, in every way than those of past years," said Receiver Morrison today.

"The homesteaders seem to realize that it is better to do the right thing and thus avoid any chance of trouble. It is remarkable the way the Finnish people take to farming and most of them are making a grand success in the northern woods.

"One of the best proofs which we received was from a homesteader named Peter Dardell. He filed on 51½ acres of land in St. Louis county, Oct. 1, 1903. He had to cut one-half mile of road in order to get to his land, and in less than six years has placed improvements on the property which are valued at $2,500. He has eleven acres all cleared and under cultivation. A two-story seven-room frame house, with a nice cellar has been built on his place, along with a big red barn, hay sheds and fence. He has considerable livestock. While I do not care to state that the Finns make the best homesteaders, I will say that if they are not the best, they are certainly not behind any of the other nationalities."

A RAILROAD TO DULUTH

"Farmer" Hines' Active Brain Revives His Old Scheme.

Would Have Farmers Control Line Running From Dakotas.

"Farmer" Hines of North Dakota, a dozen years ago one of the most-talked of men in the Northwest, through his activities in the railway promoting line, is in Duluth. He still assumes the role of railroad magnate, and speaks of Hill, Morgan, Harriman, and a few of the other big fellows, as if he had been on terms of intimacy with them for many years.

Mr. Hines thinks he is in a position to give the people a squarer deal than any one else in the country, and just now is anxious to raise sufficient capital to build a road from the Dakotas to Duluth. His idea in this proposed venture, as in ventures of his in the past, is to have farmers and others along the line own all the stock in the company. Prospects of his carrying out designs in this direction are not especially bright.

Hines really did some effective work in North Dakota many years ago. The farmers were badly in need of a railroad to Duluth. J. J. Hill refused to build the extension. There was no other big line available and, led by Hines, the farmers themselves decided to build the road. Hines did a lot of talking and a lot of work in connection with the project, and attained wide publicity. The farmers fall in with his idea, and a considerable amount of money was subscribed. Work was actually started on the road, but before much progress was made, Hill decided to build a road himself, and did so.

Later Hines tried to raise an agitation in favor of a trunk line from Western Canada to Hudson's bay. His plan was to have a co-operative system, with farmers along the route owning the stock. The undertaking didn't meet with a very enthusiastic reception. Railroad men ridiculed the project, and the general public didn't look upon it with favor.

Hines still has the railroad bee buzzing about in his head, and now thinks it would be a beautiful plan to build another line from the Dakotas to Duluth, the people along the line to control it. He talks just as enthusiastically as of old, but in a somewhat less convincing manner, and he seems doomed to disappointment in his cherished plan.

DISGUSTING BRUTALITY

Pet Bull Dog Stolen and Used to Test Fighting Terriers.

Dog Limps Home Torn and Lacerated After Fight.

Duluth lovers of pet dogs are highly incensed over the brutal action of the owner of a certain pit bull dog and the police and humane officers are looking up evidence with the intention of bringing the matter into a court of justice.

Mrs. Ida Schneider, residing at 109 Second avenue east, is the owner of a pet bull dog, named "King", which is known by all the children of the neighborhood because they have played with the animal daily for several years. At the Bijou theater, where Mrs. Schneider is a member of the orchestra, the canine is the pet of the stage hands and other employes. He is a handsome dog and has been fondled so much that he would never think of biting any one or of fighting with other dogs.

One day this week, "King" came home in a most dilapidated condition. All of his legs were badly chewed up, his neck was lacerated in several places, the hide on his back was ripped, and his breast bore wounds that were clotted with blood. A veterinary was summoned and the prompt treatment given the animal is the only thing that saved its life.

Yesterday it was learned that a certain owner of fighting bull dogs in this city had pitted King with two trained fighting bulls that he was anxious to "try-out" for some coming fights which they are booked to make in the near future. It is said that this man threw both of his fighting dogs into the pit with King and allowed them to chew him, while a lot of stable boys and others stood by and laughed at the poor animal's anguish.

Joseph Maitland, manager of the Bijou theater and brother-in-law to Mrs. Schneider, has placed the matter in the hands of the police and the Humane society, and says that if he can get hold of the guilty party he will invoke the full rigor of the law.

This afternoon Mr. Maitland offered a reward of $25 for the arrest and conviction of the guilty one.

RETURNS TO DULUTH.

E. M. Tredway Buys the Kugler Drug Store on Superior Street.

E. M. Tredway, well known in Duluth, has purchased the Kugler drug store, 108 West Superior street, and has assumed active control of the property. The store went into the hands of a receiver some time ago, and for the past four months W. W. Baldwin has acted as manager for the trustee.

With Mr. Tredway's taking over the management, Mr. Baldwin has gone to Virginia, Minn., to take charge of Mr. Tredway's drug store there. The new owner of the Kugler establishment came to Duluth thirteen years ago, and for several years worked as druggist in the Smith & Smith, Boyce and Lyceum stores. He was manager of the Lyceum while connected with it.

From Duluth he went to Virginia and has owned a store of his own there ever since. He will move his family to Duluth now, and will take up his permanent residence here. He has been in the drug business for twenty-five years, and expects to make many changes for the better in running the Kugler store.

Papers in divorce proceedings were filed this morning with the clerk of the district court by Gertrude Margaret Williams against Ira Julian Williams.

FIGHTING FOR AN OLD MAN'S MONEY

Halvorson-Mueller Case Is on In District Court.

The case of Mrs. H. Halvorson vs. Mrs. Mueller was called this morning in district court, before Judge Dibell. It is a suit over the property of Charles Vought, who died several months ago.

Mrs. Halvorson was allowed $550 in probate court for her care of Vought during his illness, and she appealed to the district court for more. Mrs. Mueller, to whom the property was left, is fighting the case.

Vought was 83 years old at the time of his death, and Mrs. Halvorson claims that she cared for him during the last few years of his life, when he was unable to care for himself.

In his will he left his property to Mrs. Mueller, and the case has grown out of the fact that Mrs. Halvorson got nothing.

A number of witnesses were called who testified as to the length of time Charles Vought was cared for by the Halvorson woman, and Mrs. Halvorson was called to the stand late this afternoon.

TREED BY MAD RABBIT.

Hutchison (Pa.) Correspondent Philadelphia North American: Chris Mann, a local hunter of some renown, related to his friends today a thrilling experience he had with a maddened rabbit one day last week. For three hours he was held a prisoner in a tree, while the infuriated beast squatted below, growling fiercely.

He had been shooting back of Oakville," said Mr. Mann, "when I came across the tracks of a huge rabbit in a cornfield. Following the trail, I at length confronted the animal in his lair. Taking careful aim as he lay asleep, I fired my trusty rifle and wounded the rabbit.

"With a roar of rage he leaped to his feet and, catching sight of me, made a dash in my direction, at the same time emitting bellows of pain. So terrifying was the sight that I fled. The beast gained on me and soon I heard his pants close in my rear. They were loud pants. I could feel his hot breath also.

"Fortunately, there was a tree in the path in front of me and with a bound I sprang into its branches. Any naturalist knows that a rabbit cannot climb a tree, so I was safe.

"In its anger the beast made leaps into the air, trying to reach me, but by climbing to the topmost limb I was beyond danger. Then the rabbit took a place at the foot of the tree, apparently bent on waiting until I fell from my perch through exhaustion. For three hours I remained in the tree and then the rabbit went away."

SHOES FOR A GIANT.

A pair of shoes roomy enough for the feet of a giant but to be worn by a mere citizen of Arkansas were shipped recently from a factory in East Weymouth, Mass., says the New York Sun.

The shoes are twenty-two inches long of seven inches beam. The ball measures twelve and three-eighths inches, the waist twelve inches and the instep thirteen and one-half inches. The size is 16.

The customer lives in Newport, Ark. The dealers of his neighborhood could do nothing with his specifications, so one of them sent the order on to New England. The shoes were made on a special pair of lasts and are said to be graceful, considering.

NAKED MAN ARRESTED

Dan Laine Poses in the Nude on Grand Avenue.

Appeared to be Praying, But Residents Have Him Pinched.

Clothed only as nature clothed him, Dan Laine, a woodsman from Superior, stood yesterday afternoon, at about 5:45 o'clock, on Grand avenue and Seventy-third avenue west and with arms stretched to the skies, muttered words unintelligible to the shocked passersby.

While in this attitude of supplication, with his garments hanging on a nearby wire fence, scattered on the ground at his feet, he was taken into custody by a member of the West Duluth police force, who hastily shoved him into a waiting patrol wagon, to hide his nakedness from the eyes of the scandalized neighborhood. Behind the screening walls of the wagon, the officer played the valet to Dan, and dressed him.

The disrobing scene took place just at a time when people were coming home for their evening meal. It created quite a stir, to say the least, and it was not long before both 'phones were working at the police station, indignant men and women demanding that the patrol be sent at once to remove the man in Adam's apparel.

This morning Dan awoke in a rational frame of mind at the police station, and explained his strange behavior, by saying that he was just recovering from a long spree. The Superior police when telephoned, stated that they knew the man and that he was harmless, only inclined to be erratic after several days of drink. He will be arraigned in the municipal court.

DIES AFTER A DAY AT PLAY

Little William McDonald Passes Away Suddenly at His Home.

After playing with his little friends all day, William McDonald, the 13-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roderick J. McDonald of 301 Halifax street, died suddenly at 7:30 o'clock last evening at the home of his parents.

The boy had complained of not feeling very well during the day, but his illness did not seem to be of a dangerous nature, and his parents gave little thought to it, especially as he seemed to enter fully into the play with his companions.

After supper his condition grew suddenly so serious that a physician was summoned, but when he arrived it was too late, for the boy was already in death's grasp.

This morning an autopsy was held at M. J. Filiatrault's undertaking rooms, and the cause of death was learned to be an obstruction of the bowels.

The funeral will take place Monday afternoon, with interment at Oneota cemetery.

TAKE TRAMP OVER ROAD ROUTE

Commercial Club Members and County Commissioners on Jaunt.

This afternoon a party composed of a committee from the West Duluth Commercial club, three members of the board of county commissioners, and Herbert Warren, representative of the Duluth Street Railway company, went over the proposed route for a road between West Duluth and the adjacent farming district.

The party started for their tramp at 1 o'clock from West Duluth. Those on the Commercial club committee were J. Eklund, J. J. Frey and H. H. Phelps. The members of the board of commissioners were Albert Overton, Joseph Cummings, George Tischer and Alex Frazer. Besides Mr. Warren they were accompanied by C. E. Elmquist of Adolph, who has for some time been promoting the road for the benefit of the farmers of his district.

The route has been surveyed by the city engineer and approval by him. In case the party this afternoon finds it satisfactory the road will be built this summer. The street railway company has also promised that if the grades are not too great it will build a street car line from West Duluth to Proctor. The road and street car line will be of great importance to West Duluth and the surrounding territory.

GOOD SAMARITAN IS ARRESTED

Says He Was Trying to Take Drunken Friend Home.

Dan Sargeant says it doesn't pay to play the Good Samaritan act. He was arrested last night, in company with Phil Ney, on the charge of disorderly conduct, and in police court this morning each man drew a fine of $3, with five days in jail as an alternative.

"Nothing was the matter with me, your honor," said Sargeant. "Ney is a friend of mine, and when I saw how drunk he was I thought I would take him home. It was pretty much of a job. He didn't appreciate my services, and I almost had to fight with him. When I was having the worst time, a policeman came along and arrested us both."

CLAIMED THEY TOOK THE CHANGE

Two Men Are Arrested Charged With Stealing From Drunken Man.

Samuel Smith, bartender, and Fred Miller were arrested this morning charged with stealing $5 from William Wilkie, the man who complained to the police this week that he had last $300 in Duluth while on a spree. Both men pleaded not guilty in police court, and their hearing was set for next Monday afternoon.

According to the story told the police, Wilkie gave Smith, who was tending bar, a $10 bill in payment for a drink. The right change was laid upon the bar by Mr. Smith, it is said, but Miller so the story goes, took a $5 bill from the small heap of money, with the knowledge of Smith, and later bought drinks with the bill.

ARE FED THROUGH SKIN.

Patients Now Take Nourishment by "Mouths" of Cuticle.

London Correspondent Chicago Inter-Ocean: A new method of giving food to patients too ill to take nourishment in the ordinary way has been discovered.

"Cataphoresis" is the name given to the invention, and its author, Dr. Morgan Dockrell, says: "I unhesitatingly claim that this discovery inaugurates a new era in medicine."

The skin has thousands of "mouths," and the problem Dr. Dockrell has solved, after twenty years of study, is now to administer food through these myriad "mouths" when other methods fail.

"Cataphoresis—the term was first used by Dubois Raymond—is a performance of work by the electrolysis, which, however, has no connection with the actual electrolysis," said Dr. Dockrell.

Since 1847 certain medicines have been introduced into the human system by electrical currents, and it has been found that these currents set up a movement in the same direction as the current of the tiny particles of matter known as molecules, and it is this process which is termed "cataphoresis."

"During the last twenty years I have been working at cataphoresis," Dr. Dockrell says, "with, in a large number of cases, the most satisfactory results, for which I and many medical men and patients throughout the country can vouch."

The method of treatment is as follows:

An ointment containing medicine or food is first smeared over some convenient part of the body, such as the arm or hand, the patient holding in his hand an electrode attached to the positive pole of a battery, in which is placed a sponge saturated with carbonate of soda.

In the other electrode a wet sponge is fixed, leaving dry the free end, which comes into contact with the ointment. The dry end is then rubbed gently over the greasy surface, when the medicament is rapidly absorbed by the skin.

Vhrol, a preparation of bone marrow with malt, egg and lime, is quickly absorbed, and is highly nourishing.

But the treatment is not only useful for introducing food in cases where the patient might otherwise starve. It has also been used with great success in treating baldness.

In these cases a hypodermic injection in the arm of a drug called "pilocarpin" is made, and cataphoresis employed to localize the action of this medicine to the scalp.

"More recently," Dr. Dockrell said, "I have applied an ointment of pilocarpin to the scalp and put it in by the direct method of cataphoresis, with good results."

Speaking of the general aspects of the discovery Dr. Dockrell said:

"Just for a moment think what this thing means; what are its possibilities and what it promises.

"Take for a moment into consideration those diseases where it is of vital importance the mucous membrane shall have, so far as is compatible with the preservation of life, absolute and entire rest. Here lies salvation.

"By cataphoresis the patient may be nourished, stimulated, given medicine. Meanwhile, the mucous membrane is left entirely and uninterruptedly uninterfered with. The value of cataphoresis as a means of supplementing nourishment and raising the standard of health is incalculable."

It can also be used, the doctor pointed out, where the loathing of medicine has almost become a mania, and it at once does away with that difficulty.

HELPS FOR AWNING MAKERS.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Our greatest benefactor," said a local manufacturer of awnings, "is the office man who sits and smokes and throws his cigar stubs out of the window. If it's at the time of year when awnings are up on the big office buildings, it is not improbable that the cigar will fall on an awning and burn a good-sized hole.

"Possibly it will fall against a roll of the canvas and burn through several folds. Look at some of the awnings over the stores on the ground floor of buildings, and notice the little round holes that have been caused by the falling cigar stubs. These holes, of course, greatly hasten the time when the awning must be replaced. Nearly every office building in town has suffered the same damage."

CONSPIRACY IS CHARGED

W. G. French Asks Wisconsin Legislature for $500,000 Indemnity.

Ashland Man With a "Past" Alleges False Imprisonment.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 26.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Ashland, Wis., says: William G. French has prepared a petition to the legislature and sent it to Senator Sanborn and Assemblyman Chappelin, in which he asks indemnity in the sum of $500,000 for alleged false imprisonment, and as the victim of conspiracy in the Ashland county jail, the state prison at Waupun, the Northern hospital for the insane, the Iowa county insane asylum and the insane asylum at Richland Center, Wis.

French has a remarkable history. A previous logger and owner of a drug store, farm and real estate, he shot and killed his brother-in-law, Gavin M. Steel, in 1891. Steel had been entrusted with money by Mrs. French and was, at that time, manager of French's drug store. French entered the store, demanded the money, was refused, whereupon he shot and killed Steel.

A jury first heard evidence on the sanity of French, and disagreed. The same jury found him guilty of murder and he was sent to Waupun. His wife then married James Dukel, a boarder at French's and an intimate friend of Steel's. The supreme court reversed the French case, whereupon Dukel was arrested for adultery and convicted by a jury on the ground that as the supreme court had reversed French's case, his wife had no right to marry again.

The supreme court reversed the Dukel case and he was freed. Then an insanity inquisition was summoned, Dr. Kempster and other noted experts testifying. French was declared sane at the time of the homicide and was tried and sent to Waupun for sixteen years. He was subsequently declared insane and was sent to Oshkosh and to other places.

After he was freed by a jury from the insane asylum he returned to Ashland and a shooting match was expected daily. Dukel, however, has gone and French is trying to get back property he possessed before shooting Steel.

He was a sort of protege of Maud Ballington Booth while he was in prison, and she wanted him to take up Salvation Army work. French's father lived at Fond du Lac and was a well-known Presbyterian missionary. French himself is a quarter-blood Portuguese.

TAMING A RIVER.

Although with the exception of the St. Lawrence river it is the largest stream flowing into the North Atlantic, the Susquehanna river has never been renowned for anything but scenery and trouble.

Since the timber has been stripped from its mountainous drainage basin, embodying an area of 27,000 square miles, the floods of the Susquehanna have been extremely sudden, violent and destructive. Not infrequently it attains the remarkable record of a flow at high water equal to twenty-five times its volume at low water.

Large as it is, the erratic Susquehanna is navigable for only five miles above its mouth. Beyond that point it is so full of rocks and shoals and rapids that nothing but an occasional raft at high water has ever passed down.

Such a particularly outrageous stream is the Susquehanna, says the Technical World, that it is difficult to find room upon it even to navigate a ferryboat comfortably. One of these quiet reaches is McCall's Ferry, where a part of Washington's army crossed on its way to do up Cornwallis at Yorktown. The commander himself crossed at Conowlugo Ford, fourteen miles below.

At this historic spot some clever engineers are demonstrating that the Susquehanna is good for something after all, for they are building a hydro-electric power plant which is remarkable. Not the least interesting feature is the extraordinary care with which the situation was studied before plans were formed. To be sure engineers are proverbially painstaking, but in this case a new record for thoroughgoing accuracy was established. It was the highest tribute that iron could pay to the terrors of the Susquehanna.

THE EARLY SHAD.

When in the late winter and early spring the shad come out of the Southern rivers and up the coast seeking waters further north they bring fancy prices; the Potomac first shad, for instance, bring $1 apiece at the nets, says the New York Sun.

But Potomac fishermen may make some of the early shad yield a higher price still by selling not the fish but their eggs to the United States to be hatched out in the government shad hatcheries. The United States fisheries bureau pays for shad eggs, when it wants them, two cents a thousand, and a shad may yield 70,000 eggs; and so from some of their catch of early shad the Potomac river fishermen get not $1 but $1.40.

OUR RAT BILL.

The bill of damages which civilization holds against the rodent foots up into tremendous figures. According to the experts of the bureau of biological survey of the department of agriculture Uncle Sam alone has to pay $150,000,000 every year on account of property damages inflicted by the pest. John Bull and the kaiser between them have to fork over $150,000,000.

The rat bill of the world would reach into the billions, says Success. Sir James Crichton-Browne, president of a recently formed international union of scientific organizations working together for the extermination of rats, declared that every rat in the United States costs the citizens at least two cents a day for its keep.

In England a rat costs from one-half a cent to five cents daily. The British India rat is the most expensive rodent of them all, for there each of the innumerable swarming millions of the pests consumes on an average three cents daily.

If you add to the cost of the board and lodging of rats the expense of maintaining quarantine operations against them and of fighting the diseases spread by them the average specimen of the rodent tribe preying on civilized nations may be said to cost us from seven to ten cents a day.

VENEZUELA BARS HIM

Castro Furious on Learning He Cannot Reenter Country.

Had to Accept Tickets to Port of Spain Only.

Bordeaux, March 26.—"If I am a criminal why haven't my accusers the courage to allow me to return to Venezuela and defend myself?" exclaimed Cipriano Castro this morning when an agent of the French Steamship company informed him that he must leave the ship Guadeloupe on which he sails today, before that steamer reaches Venezuela.

The former Venezuelan president was furious at the action of the steamship company. He entered an automobile and was driven to the offices of the company, where he indulged in a tirade against Juan Vicento Gomez, president of the republic.

"All I ask is the right to a fair trial," he declared, "I am prepared to accept the result. The refusal of Gomez to permit me to enter Venezuela is overwhelming proof that they have no case against me, but realize that if I land on Venezuelan soil their game is up."

Castro's protestations were in vain, however, and he had to accept tickets to Port of Spain, Trinidad, only. His words here leave no doubt of his intention to try to organize a revolution to overthrow his enemies and reestablish himself at Caracas.

A FRONT HELPS.

Encouragement for Man Who Keeps Up Good Appearance.

New York Sun: "Taking it altogether, this past year has been about the worst twelvemonth I ever experienced," observed Hardraps meditatively, "chiefly because I haven't been able to get steady work.

"It isn't so easy as you'd imagine for a man verging upon 40 to get work in New York unless he's a specialist. I can't do anything but keep books, and bookkeepers, as maybe you know, have been hit hard in this town by the slack times since last year's financial disturbance. I've had an odd job of bookkeeping here and there, just temporary propositions, and I've contrived to keep my head above water somehow or another, although it has been keen fiddling at times.

"Most difficult end of it is in keeping up what's called on's front. I can nearly always manage to squeeze out the price of shelter and something to eat—I'm not saying much, though, about the quality of the shelter or of the fare. But it takes hard guessing to keep up the front.

"The exterior, that is to say. The outer raiment, decent shoes, clean linen, passable hat—oh, yes, occasionally I've had to let things go around the worn spots. But I contrive to keep up at least a semblance of a front.

"I learned a long time ago, you see, that when a fellow loses his front, why, he's a goner. There's no hope for him. His chin is in and out then.

"It's an odd thing, but most of us take ourselves at just the valuation other people put upon us, instead of the valuation we put, or ought to put upon ourselves. If you hold to general sizes us up as persons that won't do, why, we're pretty liable, sooner or later, to look upon ourselves in just that way too.

"And when a chap's front is all run down, why, he himself just begins to feel as shabby and measly as his clothes, and the first thing he knows his self-respect begins to evaporate, and when a fellow's self-respect is gone, why, there he is, you know, just as down and out as he can be, and no mistake. So that as long as I can fight to keep it up, I'll never lose at least some kind of a front.

"What I started to say, though, was that a fellow who feels sort of downhearted and low-spirited and lonesome and all that because he hasn't any work or anything—a fellow in that shape often gets a little nudge along, quite by chance, that helps his drooping self-respect.

"I'm speaking now of when a fellow in that state begins to have doubts as to whether he's really keeping up his front or not. You see a man, especially a sensitive man, may imagine that he looks terribly seedy, whereas he doesn't look that way to other folks at all. This is odd, but it's a fact.

"When the front row isn't just right in a fellow's own eyes he gets to imagine that everybody he meets is dead next to his state of chronic impecuniosity and that they are secretly commiserating him, and if there's anything a fellow hates it's that, to have people feeling sorry for him because he's looking shabby or imagines that he is.

"Just to give you an instance of how little things happen to make a fellow feel a little better over things when he's down in his luck:

"A couple of days ago I was trudging up Broadway trying to figure out how I was going to pay my week's rent and wondering if I'd better write another letter about a job that had been half promised me, and feeling pretty shabby and blue, all in all, when I met up with acquaintances wearing their brand new spick and span togs—I was trudging along, I say, feeling like this, when a taxicab driver pulled his machine alongside the curb, held up his hand to attract my attention, and called out to me:

"'Taxi, sir?'

"Well, you've no idea, really, how comparatively cheerful that little incident made me feel. It sure did.

"Of course I shook my head at the taxicab man—I'd have given him half a dollar if I'd been flush for what he did for me. I couldn't ride anywhere in a taxi, of course. But the thing was this: That taxicab man had sized me up and he'd doped it out that I looked like a likely fare. My front looked good enough to him to cause him to consider me.

"So there I was along quite a little bit and cheerful enough over the business, and I'm sure that I picked up my moccasins and walked a heap more springily after that.

"Yesterday two more pleasant little incidents of a similar character happened to me.

"I was strolling along Sixth avenue, not particularly chirky over the way things were going, when a shrewd eyed fellow standing by the curb said something to me as I passed by that I did'nt catch the import of. So I took a step nearer and asked what he'd said.

"'I asked you,' he replied in broken English, 'if you had any old clothes you wanted to sell.'

"Of course I told him that I hadn't and passed on. But there I was again quite a little mixed up in my self-esteem.

"You see, these old clo' men are no fools. They know what's what. They can pick out the fellow who looks as if he might have something. And that old clo' man sure thought that I was sufficiently prosperous to have some old clothes hanging back home in a closet, clothes that I wouldn't deign to wear and more and that I'd be willing to sell, or he wouldn't have put the question to me. Tell you what, that made me throw my shoulders back, that question from the old clo' man did.

"Small matters, of course, these things that I mention, but they all helped. You can take it from me that a chap sort of needs little helps of that kind when he's dubbing along doing the the best he can to keep up a front and in more or less terror all the time of the front going back on him and fearing he's beginning to look seedy and shabby and like a permanent member of the Down and Out club."

MOTOR TRUCKS SAVE MONEY.

As the crossing policeman's whistle sounds the heavy motor truck starts smoothly forward, when the hoofs of horses on a big dray strike sparks on the pavement, says the New York Sun. In fact, the motor truck steals a lead, like a ball player, and "goes down with" his rivals before the whistle shrills. In the crowded traffic the smaller motor driven delivery wagon, short of base, weaves in and out through the heavier and clumsier vehicles.

Some interesting data have been compiled which show comparative costs of horse drawn and motor driven wagons, and according to System brings out certain advantages of the motor truck.

It cost twenty-four owners of ninety-six horse drawn vehicles $1,392.74 annually for trucking. On a similar basis it cost forty-three owners of ninety-four motor driven wagons $2,237 a year. In both cases annual expenses for vehicles of all capacities were averaged.

Whereas the cost a vehicle mile and a ton mile for the horse owners was respectively 20.4 cents and 31.7 cents the motor car owners paid 16.4 cents a vehicle mile and 11.7 cents a ton mile for hauling their goods. In other words, the motor went further and carried more for each cent spent than did the horse drawn vehicle.

"Things without remedy should be without regard;" so if you have lost your job, stop "fretting" about it and look over the ads.

—Ingredients.

BAKED EGGS ON TOAST.

Toast six slices of stale bread, dip them in hot salted water and butter them lightly. After arranging them on a platter or deep plate, break enough eggs to cover them, break one at a time and slip over the toast, so that they do not break, sprinkle over them salt and pepper, and turn over all some kind of thickened gravy—either chicken or lamb, cream, or a cream sauce made the same as "White Sauce;" turn this over the toast and eggs and bake in a hot oven until the eggs are set, or about five minutes. Serve at once.

LETTUCE SALAD.

Take the yolks of three hard-boiled eggs and salt and mustard to taste; mash it fine, make a paste by adding a dessertspoonful of olive oil or melted butter (use butter always when it is difficult to get fresh oil); mix thoroughly and then dilute by adding gradually a teacupful of vinegar, and pour over the lettuce. Garnish by slicing another egg and laying over the lettuce. This is sufficient for a moderate sized dish of lettuce.

POTATO SALAD—HOT.

Pare six or eight large potatoes, and boil until done, slice thin while hot, peel and put up three large onions into small bits and mix with the potatoes; cut up some breakfast bacon into small bits, sufficient to fill a teacup and fry it a light brown, remove the meat and into the grease stir three tablespoonfuls of vinegar, making a sour gravy, which with the bacon pour over the potato and onion, mix thoroughly. To be eaten while hot.

A TRUE SHARK STORY.

Surveyor Counted 187,430 of the Man-Eaters on a Sandbar.

On the ship Mary Ann, an East Indiaman, we had a very inquisitive passenger who would swallow the toughest story, and believe it as readily as gospel truth. I was at the wheel one day as the vessel was approaching Simon's Bay, near the Cape of Good Hope, when the inquisitive gentleman spoke to me of three or four sharks which had been following the ship for forty-eight hours. The crew had noticed the pursuit of those monsters of the deep, and among the tars it had been a theme of general discussion since the moment of their appearance in our wake. The passenger asked me if there were many sharks in Simon's bay, says the New York Weekly.

"No, not now," I answered; "there have been very few since the sailors began shooting them for their hides and tallow."

"Ah! then there used to be lots of them some time ago?" he asked.

"I don't want to talk about them, stranger," I answered, "because you might think I was lying, and that is something Truthful George never does. I can cheat at cards, drink rum and play mischievous tricks, but I can't lie."

This remark put a keen edge on the passenger's curiosity, and again he asked if sharks were ever numerous in the bay.

"I am almost afraid to tell you the exact truth," I said, "but from the forecastle deck I once counted 1,897 sharks, and then I missed a lot more that were in sight."

"I don't doubt it," remarked the passenger.

"And, strange as it may appear, I have counted 187,430 sharks on one sandbar. It sounds big to tell, but I assure you it is true. I am certain as to the exact number—187,430 sharks—because we had a government surveyor on board, and I called them off while he checked them. Fact, I assure you! I hope you don't think I'm lying?"

"Oh, no; not at all. I might have doubted the assertion until you mentioned the surveyor; but with him as corroborative proof I must believe."

"Ah, I am glad of that," I continued; "some fellows might think I was stretching the truth. This bay used to be a paradise for sharks. I have seen them so thick that I have often walked half a mile from the ship's side to shore on their fins."

"Is that so?" said the inquisitive gentleman.

"True as preaching. As I stepped on the poor brutes I could not but feel sorry for them. They would cry out like lambs, rubbing their tails up and down my back. Our cable-chain gave way one day, and the best bower-anchor fell on a lot of the sharks, killing nine and wounding seventeen. The captain was a very compassionate man, and he ordered me to throw overboard, to the wounded ones, seventeen bottles of liniment and seven healing plasters."

"Now, that was very kind of the captain," said the passenger approvingly.

"Ah, our captain always was a good man. I don't ever expect to see his equal. From that time the sharks got to recognize the Mary Ann, and to know Capt. Block. They used to be on the lookout for her, and when they saw her entering the bay they would swim up to her, rub their tails against the ship's side, and purr like cats, looking up toward the deck, and nodding their heads and winking their eyes at us."

"They would, eh?" and the passenger opened his eyes in wonder.

"Fact, I assure you! One day, during a dead calm, the mate ordered me to get the shark-hook and sixty fathoms of chain. He put a twelve pound chunk of pork on the hook and threw it overboard. The sharks understood what we wanted; they seized the chain and towed the ship eighty-two and one half miles up the bay, completing that distance in just two hours nineteen minutes and fourteen and a quarter seconds. It seems an extravagant story; but I never yet told a lie, and I never shall. I wouldn't tell a fib for all the money you could put aboard ship."

There was an embarrassing silence, and after a while I resumed:

"During a heavy storm we lost our masts and yards. The captain ordered me to get ready four shark-hooks and 400 fathoms of chain. We threw them over the side, the sharks took hold and towed the vessel from Calcutta to Madras, a distance of 800 miles, in four days, two hours and six minutes."

"They did, eh?" exclaimed the old gentleman. "Wonderful!"

"Some years afterward, when the news reached Simon's Boy that Capt. Block was dead, all the sharks in the vicinity daubed their backs with mud as a badge of mourning for him, and lots of them fretted themselves to death."

CROW AS HARBINGER OF SPRING.

Ottawa Citizen: Two crows were seen to fly northward over Ottawa yesterday. This is generally considered an indication of approaching spring, for the crow as a rule remains south of the snow-belt until it feels that either the snow has or is about to clear away further north.

IS COY AND CRITICAL

A North Dakota Homesteader Finds Trouble in Choosing Wife.

Has Wedding Clothes and License, But No Bride Yet.

The North Dakota homesteader has settled on the day of the wedding.

He has decided upon a tie of beautiful emerald hue and sox to match as most befitting the festal occasion.

He knows where he's going for a wedding trip. He has his home all picked out. The license money is ready, many guests are anxious to attend the wedding, but that North Dakota homesteader has become coy and reticent. Marriage, he has decided, is a serious matter, and although one may decide on the day and the appointments of green, one should be very certain before one names the bride.

This is the homesteader who applied to Mrs. Margaret Forgy, assistant humane officer, for assistance in choosing a wife.

His wants were very simple at first. "Just a wife," he said, in explaining his needs to Mrs. Forgy; "a simple, loving wife, who would be content with life on a Dakota homestead and the devotion of an Irishman of about 45." All the world loves a lover, and The Herald, casting aside the rules for regular advertising, did its best. Mrs. Forgy has since been deluged with applications. They come by telephone and by every mail. They are from the city and out of town.

Meantime the homesteader is having the time of his life. Every evening, with his boots polished till you can't rest, and his hair shining from much furbishing, and his bright and honest face shining, he is calling on different applicants for matrimonial honors. Where before he longed with lonely heart for any old wife, he is now becoming critical, and sees little flaws that aforetime he never would have noticed. Perchance her hair is red. Before he would have considered it but the color of gold. Now he thinks: "I bet she's got a divil iv a temper." Perhaps one eye follows the other too closely for real beauty, and the homesteader is not pleased.

Mrs. Forgy is patience itself. "We are considering carefully," she says, "and before he goes back in the spring he will have a wife who will help him build a happy and prosperous home in Dakota."

One father from out of town has written, modestly naming the virtues of the two daughters whom he is willing to give in marriage. Another homesteader from the West has also written. If there are more prospective wives than the first one needs, he wants to be placed on the waiting list for the leftovers.

And meantime the wooing is being watched with interest.

EXTRA TUG FOR ASHLAND

Chequamegon Bay Will be Scene of Marine Activity.

Preparations are being made in the Chequamegon Bay district for the handling of the increased traffic that the lumber industry will afford the coming summer. The Great Lakes Towing & Wrecking company of this city, will send its tug, Crosby, to Ashland as soon as the ice leaves the local harbor, and another tug is being fitted out at Bayfield, Wis., by the same company, to be used on Chequamegon bay. The new tug is the Robert Emmett, which is receiving repairs to its boiler and machinery. This tug will do nothing but tow logs for the Stearns Lumber company and, while the Crosby will give most of its attention to towing boats, it will, now and then, assist the Emmett.

Capt. Alton B. Cornwall of Detroit, Mich., who has skipped the Crosby in Chequamegon bay for years, has arrived in Duluth to report for work.

The increase in business in the Chequamegon Bay harbor has been caused by the forest fires, which swept that region last fall. Much timber was toppled over which had to be logged last winter, in order to be saved. These logs are now skidded on the banks of the Bad river, near Odanah, and when the ice goes out they will be floated to the mouth of the river, where they will be boomed and then towed to mills at Ashland and at Washburn. All of the mills that will saw for the Stearns company this season will work until snow flies.

OPEN BIDS FOR NEW PAVING

Property Owners Will Meet Monday to Select Material.

At a meeting of the board of public works this morning, bids for the paving of Twentieth avenue east, from Superior street to Fourth street, and for the construction of a storm sewer, from Fourth street to Jefferson street, were opened.

The bids for the paving allow a choice of five kinds, sandstone, creosote, cedar blocks and asphalt and tar macadam, and the board is busy this afternoon figuring up the various prices which the contractors have placed on the job.

The owners of property on both sides of the avenue to be paved will meet Monday, at 2:30, when a decision will probably be reached on the kind of material to be used in the work.

EVELETH TEAM TO PLAY HERE

Sophomore Basket Ball Five Will Meet Range Champions.

The sophomore basket ball team of the high school league which has defeated everything in its class hereabouts, will line up against the Eveleth high school basket ball team in the gymnasium of the boys' department Y. M. C. A. Saturday afternoon.

The Eveleth team passed through the city this morning on its way to Cloquet, where tonight it will line up against the Cloquet five. The visitors have won the championship of the range and J. D. Batchelor of the boys' department made arrangements with them for a contest to be played while they are on their way home Saturday afternoon.

The sophomore team is a strong one and they will no doubt give the Eveleth boys a stiff rub. Mr. Batchelor says they are the fastest of the younger fives in the city and he looks to see them defeat the boys from the range town.

CASE SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Walter W. French Said to Have Received $5,000 From Railroad.

The case of Walter W. French, who was suing the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway company for $25,000 for personal injuries alleged to have been sustained while alighting from the company's train in the Omaha station, has been settled out of court and the action dismissed.

The attorneys would not give out the exact amount of the settlement, but it is understood that it cost the railroad company close to $5,000.

The case dates back to Oct. 21, 1908, when, in stepping off the train on the platform, French slipped, fell, and, it is claimed, sustained serious injuries to his back, making him unfit for work. He claimed that the company was negligent in that it did not furnish a suitable stool on which to step from the train to the platform below.

NEW MARK FOR DURUM

May Option Touches High Water Mark for Duluth Board.

A Quiet Day in Both Wheat and Flax Options.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 26.—The flight of the May option of durum wheat to $1.04¾, said to be the highest point ever touched by that grade of wheat on the Duluth board of trade, was the feature of today's market. It was the only noticeable feature, in fact, in the later hours of the session, for though May flax took a spurt at the opening and moved upward, it settled down and was uninterestingly dull after the first hour of the session.

The soar in durum was remarkable. Several years ago durum wheat was known to have reached $1.04 and since then the impression has grown that the figure would never again be reached. Today's spurt left the former mark behind, and the close today was 1¾c over yesterday's figure and ¾c over the best previous price paid for durum on the Duluth board.

The general market in wheat was steady in the exchanges of the country, with a slight advance in all markets. The May option was ¾c up in Duluth, ⅞@⅞c up in Chicago, ⅞c up in Minneapolis, ⅞c up in New York, ⅞c up in St. Louis, ⅞@⅞c up in Kansas City and ⅞c up in Winnipeg. The July option was ¾c up in Duluth, ⅞c up in Chicago, ⅞c up in Minneapolis, ⅞c up in New York, ½@⅝c up in St. Louis, ½c up in Kansas City and ⅞c up in Winnipeg.

Wheat closed ½d lower to ¾d higher in Liverpool, and corn ¼d higher. In Antwerp, wheat closed ⅝c higher and in Budapest 4½c lower. May wheat closed ¾c higher in Berlin.

The Argentine shipments this week were: Wheat, 2,512,000 bu.; last week, 4,848,000 bu.; last year, 6,248,000 bu. Corn, 16,000 bu.; last week, 8,000 bu.; last year, 24,000 bu.

The Argentine visible supply is: Wheat, 2,920,000 bu.; last year, 4,480,000 bu.; last year, 6,176,000 bu. Corn, 163,000 bu.; last week, 187,000 bu.; last year, 374,000.

The Modern Miller says:

"The backward growth of the plant and the unfavorable effect of severe weather changes during March, cause complaints of damages to the crop in some sections of several soft winter wheat states. It is too early to determine the condition of the crop and it will take growing weather to reveal it. Hard winter wheat prospects are reported generally good. Some complainits of poor growth come from Nebraska."

Broomhall cables from Liverpool:

"The weakness in American cables was offset by the light offerings here, stimulated by the light Argentine shipments, a decrease in the visible there, which prompted good speculative buying, and values at the opening were firm and ⅝d higher. Following the opening there was free liquidation in March, which carried this option off ½d, and the other months were affected with a decline of ⅝d. Arrivals here continue liberal and the grading shows an improvement, and there were liberal tenders on contract. At midday the market was irregular, with the undertone in the distant months steady and values ½d to ¾d higher, with the exception of March, which was ⅝d lower than yesterday.

"Prices in corn at the start were unchanged, and later there was an advance of ½d. There was a fair demand for spot and an improved inquiry for La Plata parcels."

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 29 against 31 last year, and at Minneapolis 192 against 228 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 221 against 259 last year. Chicago received 32 against 20 last year. Winnipeg received 173 against 80 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 461,000 bu, last year 326,000 bu. Shipments 191,000 bu, last year 235,000 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour were 306,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 328,000 bu, last year 553,000 bu. Shipments, 443,000 bu, last year, 452,000. Clearances of corn were 18,234 bu

Trading in both wheat and flax was quiet on the Duluth board today, with the early spurt in May flax and the subsequent advance in durum wheat as the only features of the day. The visible supply of wheat in Duluth is estimated at an increase of 525,000 bu. this week, with an increase of 25,000 bu. in the visible supply of flax.

May wheat opened ¼c up at $1.14, advanced to $1.14¾, dropped off to $1.14½ and advanced again to $1.14⅝ at the close. July wheat opened ⅛c up at $1.14⅜, advanced to $1.15¼, dropped off to $1.15⅛ and advanced to $1.15⅜ at the close.

May flax opened unchanged at $1.62½, advanced to $1.64⅝, dropped off to $1.64, advanced to $1.64¼, and fell off again to $1.64 at the close.

July flax opened ⅜c up at $1.62½, advanced to $1.64, dropped back to $1.63¾ and closed at $1.63½. September flax opened ⅝c up at $1.42, advanced to $1.42¼, and closed at that figure. October flax opened at $1.37, advanced to $1.38½, dropped back to $1.38 and closed at $1.37¾.

Durum wheat was 1¾c up, and oats ⅜c off. Barley closed at 60@62 in place of 60@61½c yesterday. Cash spring wheat was 1¼c over May wheat. The closes: Wheat—No. 1 hard on track, $1.16⅞; to arrive, No. 1 northern, $1.15⅞; No. 2 northern, $1.13⅞; on track, No. 1 northern, $1.15⅞; No. 2 northern, $1.13⅞; May, $1.14⅜; July, $1.14⅝; September, $1.04¾B; durum on track, No. 1, $1.05¾; No. 2, $1.03¾; May durum, $1.04¾B; July durum, $1.04¾B.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Traders in the Pit Generally Inclined to be Bearish.

Chicago, March 25.—Traders in the wheat pit were generally bearishly inclined today, and the market was rather weak early in the day. The advance of the last three days drove a large number of shorts to cover, which left the market in position to react on any show of selling. The Liverpool market was not so firm as expected, following the sharp advance here yesterday, and this had a weakening influence. Prices at the start were ¼@⅜c to ⅜@½c lower, May being at $1.17¼ to $1.17½, and July at $1.04 to $1.04⅛. For a time May held within the opening range, but July eased off to $1.03⅞ to $1.04.

The market rallied a little toward the middle of the session. May advancing to $1.17¾ and July to $1.04½. Prices declined again during the final hour on selling by pit traders and commission houses, May dropping to $1.17 and July to $1.03¾. The close was weak with May off ⅝c at $1.17@⅛. July was down ⅝c at $1.03¾.

The weather bureau prediction of fair weather throughout the corn belt prompted moderate selling of corn, which caused considerable weakness early in the session. May opened a shade lower to ⅛c higher at 66¾@66⅞c to 67c and sold off to 65½@65⅝c.

The market rallied with wheat, May advancing to 67½c, but eased off again late in the session. The close was easy with May a shade higher at 66⅞@67c.

Oats were subjected to heavy selling pressure at the start, resulting in sharp declines. Much of the selling was based on favorable conditions for seeding in the southwest. May opened unchanged to a shade higher at 54⅝@54¾c to 54¾c, and declined to 54½c.

Provisions were quiet and steady. A 5c decline in live hogs offset, for a time, the weakness of coarse grain.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Break Toward End of Session, When May Wheat Lowers.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 25.—Minneapolis elevator stocks of wheat decreased 200,000 bushels for five days.

The early session was very quiet and uneventful, but toward the end there was a break. May went as low as $1.12⅝, and closed at $1.13⅝@⅞, 1c lower than yesterday's closing price. Minneapolis got 174 cars against 175; Duluth, 58, against 48; Winnipeg, 170, against 122. May opened at $1.14⅛; high, $1.14⅝; low, $1.13⅝; close, $1.13⅝@¾. July opened $1.15⅛; high, $1.15⅝; low, $1.14½; close, $1.14½. Cash wheat was in strong demand. Local millers were the best buyers, and elevator interests and country millers were in the market. Offerings were light, and some wheat to arrive was sold. No. 1 northern went for 2¾c over May, and No. 2 for ¼c over May price. Close—No. 1 northern, $1.15⅝@⅞; to arrive, $1.15⅜@⅝; No. 2 northern, $1.13⅝@⅞; to arrive, $1.13⅜@⅝; No. 3 wheat, $1.09⅝@⅞; No. 3 yellow corn, 60¾@61¼c; No. 3 white oats, 50⅜@51⅞c; No. 2 rye, 72¾@75¾c.

Flax—Receipts, 10 cars against 37; shipments none. Again today the lack of offerings made the market inactive. Demand was strong and prices held firm with the Duluth May quotations. Close, $1.62¼.

Barley—Receipts 39 cars today against 20; shipments 24. The market was steady. Demand only fair and prices were the same. Inquiry was about equal for both the feeding and malting grades. Close 60½@62c.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,527 tons. Demand was strong and in excess of the supply. Shipments were heavy and prices held firm. Bran in bulk $23.00@23.50.

Flour was in only fair demand at the best. There was no foreign inquiry. Country millers are doing a better business than the local market. Shipments increased and prices held firm. Shipments, 47,873 barrels. First patents, $5.45@5.55; second patents, $5.35@5.45; first clears, $4.35@4.45; second clears, $3.15@3.25.

HEARD ON THE FLOOR.

Gossip of the Trading Room and the Pit.

The foreign demand for durum and Manitoba wheat continues, local exporters working parcels about every day.

Durum wheat closed firm in Duluth, although the spring wheat options were soft. Durum was unchanged from yesterday.

Argentine shipments of wheat last week were 4,848,000 bu. The estimate of this week's shipments is 3,500,000 bu. This, from Broomhill, furnished about the only bullish news of the session.

Minneapolis puts were $1.12⅞, and calls $1.14⅛.

Chicago July ups were $1.04⅜@⅛@¼, and $1.04¼, and downs were $1.03.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., March 25.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: Horses of all classes found ready buyers at today's big sale, and the demand for big mules exceeded the supply. Three loads of farm farmes and horses arrived on the market just in time to get them into the ring and, although they were shrunk out and tired from the long shipment, they, nevertheless, met with easy clearance to bidders from the Dakotas and Canada. The market is a disappointment to shippers and dealers, as values fail to make the usual spring advance and dealers who bought expecting to make their profit on the higher spring prices will have to stand a loss. Horses are selling cheaper on the market today than they are out at the country crossroads among the farmers.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Market Opened Higher and Moved Within a Narrow Range.

Drifted Downward Toward the Close, Which Was Steady.

New York, March 25.—Prices of stocks advanced quite uniformly throughout the list in the opening transactions today. The dealings, however, were on a moderate scale. Utah Copper rose 1, Consolidated Gas ¾, and Reading ⅝. Wabash preferred sold at a decline of ¾.

Weakness in Reading and the Hill and Harriman stocks caused the list to fall below yesterday's final prices. Offerings were small and when several specialties began to show strength the general market became steady.

Prices backed and filled within a narrow range without any very consistent tone. A scattered demand for some of the low priced railroad stocks stiffened the list. Bonds were steady.

The Erie stocks and bonds sold higher, the buying being stimulated by a report that the public service commission would make some modifications in the terms of the proposed bond issue. The gain in Erie reached 1½. The rest of the list was unaltered and semi-stagnant. Metropolitan Street Railway sold at a decline of seven points.

The market closed steady. The market drifted downward again and then became practically motionless. Allis-Chalmers preferred rose 1 and Wabash preferred 1⅜.

THE LID MAY BE REMOVED FROM CAMPAIGN EXPENSES BY STATE LEGISLATURE

Bill Taking County Officers Out of Primary Elections Killed.

House Passes Bill Allowing Gilbert to be Reincorporated.

Opsahl of Bemidji Is Sat Upon Again by the House.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lid will probably be taken off campaign expenditures by the legislature at this session, the house committee on elections having recommended for passage the bill which has already passed the senate, repealing that part of the corrupt practices act which fixes maximum expenditures in campaigns. The committee killed bills taking county officers out of primary elections, providing the Oregon plan of popular election of United States senators, and providing a new convention system for nominating state officers and congressmen.

Representative Austin of Chisholm, at a time when suspension of the rules is hard to get, got through the house this morning, immediately after its introduction, the bill allowing the village of Gilbert to re-incorporate and take over the rights and obligations of the organization which the courts have held invalid. Senator Pugh introduced the bill in the senate. Neil McInnis of Eveleth and John Saari and A. E. MacInnes of Sparta were here in behalf of the bill.

KILLED BY THE SENATE

All Plans for Separate State Land Department Rejected.

Bill Regulating Railroad Stock Issues Passed by House.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate did a great day's work yesterday.

After killing reapportionment in the morning, as predicted by The Herald, it killed all pending plans for creating a separate state department to have charge of the state's natural wealth in land, timber and minerals in the afternoon.

This means that not only will there be no reapportionment at this session—and that involves no reapportionment at the next session, because then the senators that will be elected in November, 1910, will have to cut their terms in two to bring about reapportionment—but that there will be no department created to give its undivided attention to the preservation of the state's natural resources.

Three different plans were pending in the senate, and the bills covering them were made a special order for yesterday afternoon. The entire afternoon was devoted to their considera-

ST. PAUL PHYSICIAN IS KILLED BY CHLOROFORM.

St. Paul, Minn., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. E. F. Horst is dead from the effects of chloroform, taken to relieve the pain of neuralgia. He had often taken the drug at different times before to ease his suffering, and it is thought that he accidentally spilled the contents of the bottle, for he had died from an overdose. Coroner W. A. Miller was called and decided that death was the result of an accident.

DAY'S WORK LENGTHENED

House Decides to Work Overtime on Tariff Bill.

Clark Fails to Learn How Long Debate Will Last.

Washington, March 27.—To expedite discussion of the tariff bill in the house's unanimous consent today was given that the sessions hereafter shall begin at 10, instead of 11 a. m. that recess shall be taken at 6 and that, resuming at 8 o'clock the sessions should continue until 10:30 p. m. The request for unanimous consent was made by Mr. Payne, who said that there were already forty or fifty members who had indicated their desire to speak.

Mr. Clark of Missouri, the minority leader, asked how long general debate would continue. He said he was much embarrassed by his lack of information. When his Democratic colleagues asked for time in which to speak he found it difficult to make allotments. Mr. Payne replied that he was suffering under a similar embarrassment, but did not supply the information desired.

Without any intimation having been given as to when the general debate on the measure shall cease, the bill was then laid before the house.

Rome, March 27.—Many Americans in Europe are anxious to meet Theodore Roosevelt during his short stay at Naples, where he is due April 4, and Ambassador Griscom and Caspar Crowninshield, the American consul at Naples, are receiving numberless inquiries concerning Roosevelt's movements. To all they answer that it is the desire of Roosevelt to make his stay in Italy as a private person.

THREE DROWNED IN A LAUNCH

Pleasure Steam Craft Is Washed Over a Dam.

Richmond, Va., March 27.—A triple tragedy occurred on Dan river at South Boston, when a pleasure steam launch was washed over a dam.

Joseph Mebane, Easley Owens and James Clark were drowned and two other occupants of the launch, E. R. Farmer and Henry P. Wilder, escaped.

The launch sank, Mebane, Owens and Clark going down with it.

Thousand Passengers, Including 600 Children, Unaware of Peril.

Newport, R. I., March 27.—With the greater part of her 1,000 passengers unaware that an accident had happened, the steamer Providence of the Fall River line was towed into Newport early this morning from the vicinity of Point Judith, where, during the night, the steamer had become disabled through the breaking of her port paddle wheel.

Of the passengers, 600 were school children bound for Washington from New England.

When the Providence became disabled, wireless telegraphy was employed to call the steamer Commonwealth of the same line, which was in the vicinity, and she stood by the Providence until the tug Leaser put in an appearance and took the Providence in tow for Newport.

All of the Providence's passengers were transferred to a special train, which took them to New York.

Lad Rescues Twenty-Four Families Down the Shaft.

First 'Phones All Apartments, Then Works His Car.

New York, March 27.—Through the quick work of an elevator boy the twenty-four families in the fashionable Robert apartments on West One Hundred and Seventh street, were gotten out early today, when fire, which had started on the fourth floor, filled the big apartment house with dense smoke.

The elevator boy, William Vanderhorf, went to the switchboard on the ground floor, rang the telephones in all the apartments, telling the occupants to hurry to the halls and come down by the elevator.

Then he ran the elevator up and down until every one on the six floors were taken down safely.

FOUR-FIFTHS OF NEW BANK'S STOCK OWNED BY INDIANS.

Spokane, Wash., March 27.—Indians of the Nez Perces tribe will be owners of four-fifths of the stock of a new bank, which is being organized in Lapwai, Idaho. All the directors but one will be Nez Perces. The capital will be $15,000. One purpose is to take care of funds coming to the Indians from national government as interest on land payments. This year's interest will be about $147,000.

MANUFACTURERS JUST WAKING UP

Send Vain Hurry Messages About New Tariff Bill.

Washington, March 27.—Although the house ways and means committee is considering certain amendments which it may offer to the Payne bill, it is by no means reopening the tariff question. No hearings are being held and those changes under consideration are minor.

The members of the committee are greatly amused over the receipt of letters from manufacturers and importers who are only awakening to the fact that the tariff is to be revised. These writers say that they understand that the ways and means committee intends to draft a new tariff bill and, if that is true, they would like to be heard in regard to the articles in which they are interested.

The large dry goods and department stores that import articles of merchandise on which the Payne bill places a higher rate of duty will make a strong effort to have these duties repealed and the schedules maintained, as in the Dingley law.

JAMES BOYLE.

MRS. JAMES BOYLE.

Mrs. Boyle Makes Wild Dash for the Car Door.

Then Tries to Gain Her Liberty Through a Window.

Husband Is Kept Under Close Guard All the Time.

Mercer, Pa., March 27.—While the Bessemer & Lake Erie train, bearing Mrs. James H. Boyle, implicated in the Whitla kidnaping case, was making thirty miles an hour at Valencia, twenty miles north of Pittsburg, Mrs. Boyle made a daring, but unsuccessful attempt to either escape or seriously injure herself. She arrived here at 11:01 a. m. and was placed in a cell.

Mrs. Boyle was en route to the county jail, and was in charge of Sheriff Gumbert of Allegheny county and Detective W. W. Perkins and Gilbert B. Perkins, Jr., of Pittsburg.

The train had reached the Bakerstown hill, one mile south of Valencia. William Campbell, a railroad brakeman opened the rear door of the chair car in which the woman and officers were riding. The next instant Mrs. Boyle jumped from her seat and ran toward the platform of the car. Some one made a sharp cry and Brakeman Campbell slammed the door and faced the women.

Mrs. Boyle quickly stepped into the lavatory and was attempting to open the window when Sheriff Gumbert forced his way into the little room and seized her.

The woman was taken back to her seat and the three officers arranged their chairs in a circle. Mrs. Boyle was placed in the middle.

Mrs. Boyle was not handcuffed and was taken from jail to the depot in an auto. Her husband was taken to the

WOMAN ABDUCTOR IS ORIGINAL IN JOKES AND CONVERSATION

These are some of the original remarks of Mrs. James Boyle, made to the officers, newspaper men and others since her arrest in Cleveland for complicity in the kidnaping of Billy Whitla:

(On being arrested.)—"There'll be hell in Sharon when Millionaire Buhl hears of this!"

"I want you to put in the paper that I have never been on the stage. And they say I have big feet, too, but I haven't."

"At last my chance has come, and I can go on the stage if I get out of this."

(On being confronted by little Billy Whitla.)—"Hullo, Willie. How do you feel after it all?" (Caressing him.)

(When the police chief asked: "Why don't some of the crowd look at your husband?")

"Because he is not as charming as I am."

This aroused Boyle himself to make a display of humor. He retorted:

"Mrs. Boyle has three leather medals from tan shoes for being charming."

The rumor which for some time has been in the air that a railroad will soon be built from the Cuyuna range to the Head of the Lakes, has today been substantiated on good authority.

It was learned today that the money for the construction of the road has been raised through the efforts of Cuyler Adams, who is among those most heavily interested in the new iron range. From what sources the money

Hoosiers Blink as Stranger Handles Roll of Bills.

Crawfordsville, Ind., March 27.—A "mysterious stranger," who says his name is J. D. Cunningham and that he lives in Rossville, Ill., so excited the village of Wingate, near this city by displaying a bank roll of a size heretofore unimagined, that the landlord of the Wingate hotel, to restore peace in his house and the community, has ordered him to leave.

The disturbingly wealthy guest told his new acquaintances that he had been looking for the kidnapers of Willie Whitla. He went from this city to Wingate in an automobile, which he bought here for $1,500.

The dealer would not let him take the car out, however, until he had been assured at the bank that one of the purchasers $500 bills was real.

Report Was Circulated of Explosion on the Mississippi.

Guantanamo, Cuba, March 27.—A report of an explosion on the warship Mississippi is false. Telephone messages from the naval station report that the Mississippi is lying at anchor with all the other men-of-war and that there is no indication whatever of any disturbance of the fleet.

THE ANNUAL REPORTS

Statements of Calumet & Arizona and Superior & Pittsburg Companies.

Very Favorable Showing Was Made During the Year.

What to the stockholders of the two companies is a very satisfactory annual report, has been issued by the Calumet & Arizona Mining company and the Superior & Pittsburg Copper company. During the year the Calumet & Arizona Mining company has paid $800,000 in dividends, completed payments on options, expended much in development work on options and increased its equipment and holdings considerably. The surplus earnings of the Superior & Pittsburg company have been applied to paying off the indebtedness, which has now been reduced so that the liabilities of the company exceed the assets by but $479,581.71.

During the year the Calumet & Arizona company produced 14,024 tons of refined copper and the product in gold and silver was $234,538.07 in value, averaging $16.72 per ton of refined copper. The highest average price per month was received for refined copper in February, 1908, 13.57 cents. The lowest average was in August, 12.65 cents. The average price for the year was 12.948 cents, which was from sales made of copper produced from Oct. 1, 1907, to Sept. 30, 1908. The average number of men employed during the year was 1,051, of which 567 were at the mine and 484 at the smelter.

The directors say:

"The policy of your management has been to treat as low a grade of ore as can be handled at a reasonable profit, in order that all values should be recovered and saved to the stockholders. This has resulted in a lower production for the year, but at a very satisfactory cost.

Conserving Ores.

"The market and industrial conditions have not been such as to justify any attempt to increase production, and we believe that the ultimate profits of stockholders will be materially increased by a conservation of the ores.

"During the year we completed payment upon the main group of claims at Copper Giant in the Mammoth district, being satisfied that they would prove a valuable asset to the company. We still hold an option on some adjacent claims, which may be exercised during 1909. Our total openings on this property amount to 9,543 feet and have shown quite extensive bodies of a good concentrating ore.

"We call your attention to Mr. Powell's report upon the claims in the Courtland district, payments on which are spread over the coming year. These properties are only thirty-two miles from our smelter at Douglas and already we have blocked out quite a large tonnage of ore.

"It is expected that during the present summer the railroad will be completed to Douglas and regular shipments made as soon as the railroad is ready to receive them.

"Your directors feel that in the properties at Courtland, they have a very valuable property, both on account of its convenient location and the character and extent of the ore already developed.

"We still hold options upon claims amounting in all to $530,000.00, payments of which are spread over the next twelve months. Demand loans will be called in to meet these payments.

"The amount expended in developing lands under option in 1908 was $274,731.06, and for payments on options $99,900.00, a total of $374,621.06."

The receipts of the Calumet & Arizona Mining company for the year was $3,949,392.56 and the cash on hand Jan. 1, 1908, was $224,216.02. The expenditures for the year were $4,121,368.94, leaving cash on hand Dec. 31, of $73,259.65 The assets of the company consist of: Cash and copper on hand at 12½ cents per pound, $1,230,782.78; ore in stock at mine and smelter at $10 per ton, $87,310; supplies on hand at mine and smelter, $470,988.67; accounts receivable, $236,913.63; notes receiable (demand), $1,382,054.83; stock in other companies, $167,500; total, $3,675,549.91. The liabilities consist of $252,280.37 in accounts payable, leaving an excess of assets over liabilities of $3,423,269.54.

The report of L. W. Powell, third vice president of the company, on the operations and development at the property is interesting and somewhat exhaustive, the extent of the operations at each of the different properties being covered. He says in regard to development:

"There still remains a large amount of Calumet & Arizona ground to be developed and the results, so far as our work has advonced, indicate well for additional ore finds and permanency of the mines.

"The company during the year suspended operations and surrendered options on all of our outside explorations except two, the Copper Giant Exploration and Courtland Exploration."

During the year 1908, the Superior & Pittsburg Copper company produced 10,962 and 259-2,000 tons of refined copper. The product in gold and silver was $121,295.49 in value, averaging $11.06 per ton of refined copper.

The highest average price per month received for refined copper was 13.57 cents in February last, and the lowest in August, 12.65. The average price for the year was 12.948 for copper produced between Oct. 1, 1907, and Sept. 30, 1908. The average number of men employed during the year was 691.

The board of directors say:

"The developments on your property during the pasth year have been pretty satisfactory. The water level has been permanently lowered and extensive bodies of characteristic ore opened up, insuring a fair margin on profit on operations hereafter.

"Our production during the last quarter of the year was 6,439,049 pounds blister copper. It is expected that the production will be increased during the ensuing year. All surplus earnings of the company will be applied upon its indebtedness, which should be materially reduced before the end of the year."

The financial condition of the company is summed up in the following tables:

"Our present rate of production shows a very material increase over last year, and with the favorable ground we are opening, continually adding to our ore reserves, there is every reason to expect a continued increase in our production."

The Difference.

What is the difference between high-grade and low grade baking powders?

All baking powders are white and are sold in round cans, with bright labels. They look alike, but in contents they are very different.

High grade baking powders are made of pure cream of tartar, derived from grapes. They are healthful and economical to use.

Low grade baking powders are made of alum, an astringent mineral acid.

COPPER MARKET IS STRONGER

Amalgamated Leads in Advance of Listed Issues —Curbs Inactive.

The copper market took a brace today and under the leadership of Amalgamated, the listed market had a good upward movement. There was more activity in the market than there has been for some time and nearly all of the issues shared in the general strengthening of prices.

Amalgamated opened at $71, advanced to $71.37½, dropped back to $71 and by easy stages went to $74.12½, closing at $74.12½ bid and $74.25 asked. Anaconda opened at 45 and, following the lead of Amalgamated, advanced to $44.87½. Butte Coalition opened at $24.25 and closed at $24.37½ bid and $25 asked, with very little activity in its trading. Calumet & Arizona had a dull day, opening at $101.50, dropping back to $101, advancing to $102 and closing at $103 bid and $101.50 asked. North Butte opened at $70.25, advanced to $72.25 and closed at $72.12½ bid and $72.25 asked.

current prices, somewhat in excess of the requirements of the actual orders they have on their books. Foreign speculative interests are reported to have been considerable buyers recently.

"In some quarters the talk on the metal market continues exceedingly bearish. One producer is quoted as predicting that copper will sell at 12 cents soon, and that the market will continue weak until some of the mines are forced to close down. The largest producing interest has an opportunity now to settle an old score, and I believe it will. It can borrow money readily and carry its production until such time as there is a higher market, and allow those smaller competitors, who were able to take fullest advantage of the high prices two years ago, to go on supplying the rather limited demand for metal at current low prices. New York banks are offering to lend money on copper.

"There is not the shadow of a doubt that there will be a demand later on at much higher prices for all the copper the mines can possibly produce. When the copper situation changes, the change is always an abrupt one. I believe it will turn for the better very soon; that within three months all of the surplus supplies will have been taken up by consumers, also that the price of copper will be above 14 cents per pound by Sept. 1. This is to be a year of expanding business activity and growing prosperity."

HEARING ON ORDINANCE

Council Committee Wants Public's Views on Overloading Question.

Opportunity for Horse Lovers to be Heard Monday.

The council committee on ordinances and resolutions will meet at the city hall next Monday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, to consider the proposed ordinance to prevent the overloading of teams on Duluth hills. Members of the committee are anxious that everybody interested in the matter be on hand to express their views on the subject.

While it is almost unanimously agreed that there is urgent need for an ordinance of the kind proposed, there is a difference of opinion as to just what form the measure should take, and committee members are at present at somewhat of a loss to know just what recommendation to make to the council.

The ordinance, as introduced in its original form, provided that it should be unlawful for any person to load a horse to more than twice its own weight. Active opposition developed to this provision, however, and some of the aldermen themselves are inclined to believe that the provision in question does not adequately cover the situation. The claim is made that where the horse might scarcely be able to haul twice its own weight up hill, another could easily haul three or four times its own weight up the same avenue.

The committee is granting a public hearing on the question, so everybody with suggestions, as well as those opposed to any ordinance at all, may be heard. Anyone with a reasonable solution of the problem will be welcomed by the committee with open arms. While an ordinance will be introduced to prevent overloading, it probably will take a different form than the one first introduced.

Since the agitation for the ordinance started, people generally have been paying more attention to the struggles of horses on local hillsides, and numerous reports of cruelty have come into the Humane society headquarters. The agitation has had its beneficial effects also, for many teamsters have been taking warning, and now load their horses more lightly than formerly.

There are still more than enough left who haven't taken warning to make the adoption of an ordinance to prevent overloading an urgent necessity. It is a common sight to see horses slip and fall on the steeper avenues, in their heart-breaking struggles to haul big loads up the grades.

SUPERIOR NEWS

ISSUE MAY NOT BE SUBMITTED

Superior "Drys" Signed No License Petitions on Sunday.

Owing to the fact that a large number of the signatures secured for the no-license petitions which, for some time, have been circulated in Superior, were obtained on Sundays, it is believed that steps will be taken by the liquor interests to have the petition declared invalid. The signatures of 632 residents have been secured on the petition, and many of these were secured at churches on Sunday.

The law requires the proposed amendment making Superior "dry," be published for two weeks preceding the election. If the liquor interests fight the petitions, they may delay them so that this condition cannot be compiled with.

ATTALIA ON THE COLUMBIA

Irrigated orchard and vineyard land in the world-famous Walla Walla Valley, the original home of the red apple. More prizes were taken by this valley at the recent Spokane Apple Show than any other section exhibiting.

EXCURSION APRIL 6

Special Car. A Pleasant Trip. Free Fare to Buyers.

Attalia's future depends upon no mushroom boom. It is staple and fixed. Its future is assured to an absolute certainty, for it is situated at the junction of four railroads and on the beautiful Columbia river, a very large and navigable water, plied by large boats the year around. It has the rich volcanic ash soil and the deepest in Washington or adjacent territory, and is underlined with a subsoil that insures excellent natural drainage. It has an inexhaustible water supply by gravity through the Columbia canal, fourteen miles long, with everlasting concrete dam and headworks, pronounced by engineers as "one of the finest systems under operation." It has the longest growing season, maturing the crops from two weeks to a month earlier than any other district. CROPS—Exceptionally fine grapes (American and European), apples, pears, peaches, walnuts, cantaloupes, watermelons, celery, asparagus and berries, etc., grow luxuriantly, yielding returns of from $300 to $2,000 per acre annually. Two crops of strawberries and potatoes and five cuttings of alfalfa (8 to 12 tons to the acre) can be raised and all "THE FIRST on the MARKET." Poultry stock thrive amazingly. Attalia has an enviable climate. The Walla Walla climate is not excelled anywhere. The pure and perfect air is immediately noticeable as one arrives there. The many cures that have been effected from asthma, rheumatism and catarrhal troubles bespeak this ideal climate. It is marvelous to note the difference in people after they have lived in this climate for a year. The beautiful sunny days with a very comfortable winter and summer temperature, due to the famous Columbia Gap, and the leeward side of the Columbia river. Attalia does not have to reckon with drought, flood, cyclone, frosts, or with artificial fertilization, or with facilities for transportation to the extent of promise only, for we have three railroads now operating through our town; the fourth, the North Coast, is now building; and besides, an electric line is now under way, thus making for Attalia a quick market and most convenient travel.

It's America's Valley of the Nile

It has no gambling on the future. It has the climate, soil, waterway and railroads. It is sanely preparing for wealth and home life that, after this wonderful soil has been subdued from its virgined state can no more be denied it than can its daily genial sunshine and balmy health-giving climate. I am just back from Attalia, after having taken out an excursion, and, extensive improvements are now being made by many of our buyers, and by the company. Booming is not the proper word to express the development that is now taking place and will soon take place in and about Attalia. The country is simply growing by leaps and bounds. It is safe to say that no place in the great state of Washington or elsewhere is so active at this time as is Attalia on the Columbia.

Don't Wait—Investigate Now

Attalia is selling rapidly and building up fast. Terms are easy and prices are advancing. Settlers can nearly always obtain work at good wages. Come and settle in Attalia, the district that has the most to offer from every standpoint, and become independent for life.

Read What One of Many Say of Attalia.

Duluth, Minn., March 25, 1909.

Mr. E. Hultquist, McKay Hotel, Duluth, Minn.:

Dear Sir—I wish to say that since leaving with your excursion on March 2 last, I have visited and looked over your lands at Attalia, Wash., very carefully and found everything exactly as represented to me by you before going. The climate is certainly ideal. The drinking water excellent. The soil I found to be a rich volcanic ash and very deep. That volcanic ash all over the various fruit sections seem to be a dubious one at first to an Easterner, but one must be forced to believe the wonderful productive qualities that soil has. At Attalia, I found one of the best constructed concrete waterworks and a water supply for irrigating their lands very plenty for all time to come. Another thing which I found at Attalia was the fine and really unexcelled railroad service and boats for shipping on the river. I went through nearly all the different sections in Washington and found not one as well supplied with service for rail and water. Most of them had no railroads at all, or far off from one. Attalia in my opinion has a good future. The class of settlers who have located and are locating there are of a high standard. From inquiries I made, I found that Attalia lands have an early production, much earlier than any other. There had been no frosts since about Feb. 1. They had almost finished planting. Taking everything into consideration, I consider it the ideal fruit country and home life and have no hesitation in recommending it to any one. I beg to remain yours very truly,

TO TAKE BOOTH & CO. BUSINESS

Plans Are Outlined for New $7,000,000 Fish Concern.

Chicago, March 27.—With the arrival today of P. A. Valentine fresh from conferences in New York, plans for the organization of a new company with a capital stock of $7,000,000 to take over the business of A. Booth & Co., including all debts and assets, were outlined.

Mr. Valentine is a brother-in-law of W. Vernon Booth, head of the fish trust, which went into the hands of a receiver last summer, with liabilities estimated at more than $5,000,000, and with assets, which have not yet been definitely ascertained.

Mr. Valentine is a heavy stockholder in the old company. According to his plan, he will take $1,000,000 from his own pocket, which will be distributed pro rata among 150 banks, which hold $5,000,000 worth of Booth & Co. paper The remaining 80 per cent of their claims will be satisfied with $1,500,000 in first mortgage bonds of the new company and $2,500,000 in common stock. As the issue of stock will be $2,000,000 in preferred and $5,000,000 in common, a liberal margin will remain to satisfactory stockholders of the old company and to carry on the reorganized business. This margin, $4,500,000, Valentine further agrees to have underwritten.

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS

Are the Results of Curing Lingering Diseases. Chronic and Formerly Believed Incurable Diseases Cured by Medical Scientists.

There is hardly a day when the offices of Duluth's scientists are not crowded with men who have suffered for years. Some come from distances hundreds of miles away because they have been told by some friend what marvelous skill these experts employ in the treatment of even the rarest diseases. They get their patients practically from all parts of the West, some even coming from as far as Wyoming, others having returned from Hot Springs, after finding that Syphylitic blood poison is not as quickly curable as they thought.

They only accept patients which are curable for they think too much of their reputation to experiment on cases which are too far gone. To get a guarantee of a cure seems to be rather risky, yet their art of healing and in their skill of handling these hard and obstinate cases that they give a legal contract of a cure to every one whom they accept.

These Specialists have been working with the greatest success the last twenty years and from the enormous number they have cured in the last two years, one may form an idea of the energy they are expending in their work.

If you are suffering the pangs of some dread disease what do you gain by ignoring it? You are only piling up future great agony that must eventually be laid before your physician. You will make the task harder for him—the cost to yourself much greater.

Remember, you alone cannot subdue disease—while you hesitate it goes on in its frightful ravages, tearing down your health, racking you with its pains to eventually leave you an object of loathing to yourself and all mankind. We want you to come and see us. Perhaps you are trying to deceive yourself and others into thinking that "everything is all right."

Young man, these Doctors can cure you.

Are you suffering from piles, fistula, stomach troubles, eczema, skin diseases, impure blood, ulcers you are invited to consult, free of charge, the Specialists of the Progressive Medical association, corner Lake Avenue and Superior Street, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m.; Sundays, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m.

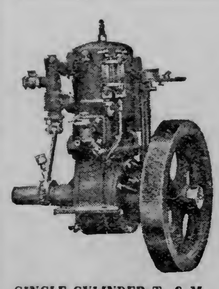
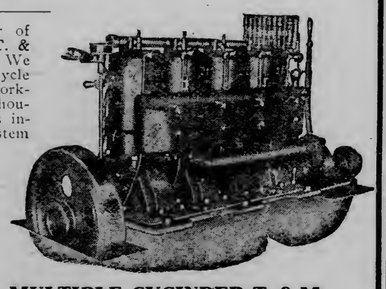
4-CYLINDER SCRIPPS

The Scripps is an engine of quality, merit and fame Can you beat it? If so, come in and tell us. The Scripps holds the long distance championship of America. In this race the engine turned up over 1,000 R. P. M. for 3½ hours without a miss or in any way giving any trouble. Her excellent water circulation kept everything cool. All wearing parts, including cylinders and pistons, are accurately ground Economy and efficiency of operation are due to this careful fitting and correct design of parts and valves; perfect auto control—starts just as easily, runs just as noiselessly and keeps running just as certainly and with as little vibration as the motors in such splendid cars as the Packard, Peerless, etc. Did you ever see one of these cars stalled by breakdown or balky engine? A few years ago a marine motor was a pretty crude thing (and some still are), but today there are a select few that have been refined to the automobile standard. Among this small "Quality Bunch" stands the Scripps—1 to 6-cylinder, 4 to 100-horse power, all 4-cycle.



SINGLE CYLINDER T. & M.

Another prominent member of the "Quality Bunch" is the T. & M. REVERSIBLE ENGINE. We believe it to be the best 2-cycle motor made today. Every working part is fitted to the one-thousandth part of an inch and is interchangeable. The oiling system is absolutely perfect, the crankshaft is fitted with oil rings, which insures perfect lubrication. The larger sizes have double pump mechanical oilers, which are far superior to the older styles. We positively guarantee the reversing of this engine. The T. & M. people are large makers of gasoline engines, making besides their marine motors, large stationary engines and locomotives, and their guarantee can be depended upon. The Alamo, with one of these engines, holds a Western speed record, with 29 miles an hour, made at Oshkosh on Lake Winnebago. While the Pioneer, with a T. & M. engine holds the 100-mile endurance record in a free-for-all on this same lake last August.



MULTIPLE CYCINDER T. & M.

We have both engines in actual operation on our floor. Come and see them.

On Sundays the tenants have a great many visitors and the janitor discovered that these visitors paid the tenants 2 cents each for the privilege of taking a hot bath; 5 cents if they did not bring their own towels.

GREAT VICTORY

At the great Cuban Exposition just closed at Havana after lasting nine days, in which every judge was a Cuban, tobacco from the Isle of Pines was awarded the first prize over all Cuban grown tobacco, including the famous "Vuelta Abajo" district of Pinar del Rio. Among many other prizes, the little island also took both first and second prizes on grape fruit. The present price of our selected land at $40 an acre isn't a patch to what it will be soon.

NEW TRICK ON WOODSMEN

"Buy Goods or Be Arrested," Bowery Merchants' Threat.

One Young Woodsman Claims Threat Was Carried Out.

Wilbur Rider, a young woodsman, told the police this morning that a Bowery merchant had him arrested because he refused to buy a pair of shoes. The merchant claims he tried to steal them. Rider's hearing was set for next Monday morning, and his bail was set at $50, which amount he was unable to furnish.

"I was walking along the street last evening," said the man, "when I saw a pair of driver's boots in front of a store at 516½ West Superior street. I stopped to look at them, and felt of the tops with one hand. At this point the proprietor came out of the store and asked me to step inside. When he got me there he asked me to buy the shoes and I told him I didn't have enough money. He said if I didn't buy them he would tell the police I tried to steal them, and have me arrested. He carried out his threat, and here I am."

The police are inclined to believe the man's story, "for, if guilty, he could easily have broken away from the diminutive merchant, rather than be arrested. The police say some of the Bowery merchants are capable of just such tricks.

SINGS TO KEEP IN GOOD HUMOR

Eveleth Song Bird Furnishes Sweet Sounds at County Jail.

Viola Allen, not the actress, but a woman who keeps a restaurant in Eveleth, was brought down from her home town yesterday and locked up in the county jail. She will remain there for forty days, and it is all because she gets drunk with great regularity.

The fact that she has a long time to serve weighs but lightly on her shoulders, however, for she sings continually. Sometimes it is popular music that she sings, and other times it varies from church hymns to the classical.

Her voice is high, and when she sings there is nobody within the block who has to strain his ears to hear. She says she wants to keep in good humor herself, and she thinks that she can make life for the other prisoners less monotonous.

REPLIES TO THE ATTACK

Weyerhaeuser Asserts That There is No Lumber Trust.

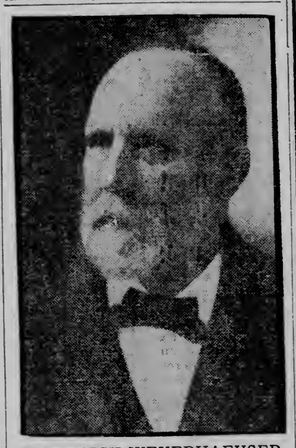
Claims That His Wealth Has Been Much Overstated.

St .Paul, Minn., March 27.—"There is no lumber trust and never has been."

This was the reply made yesterday by Frederick Weyerhaeuser, the St. Paul lumber baron, to the statement made by Representative Champ Clark of Missouri, in the course of a speech in the house of representatives Wednesday to the effect that he, Weyerhaeuser, was the head of the greatest lumber trust in the United States.

"I do not know of any lumber trust, and I think I would know of it, if there were one," Mr. Weyerhaeuser added with a smile.

Mr. Weyerhaeuser received the interviewer in his private office and talked freely about his business affairs, merely requesting that he be not misquoted.



FREDERICK WEYERHAEUSER.

Hasn't Exclusive Control.

"How would you define a trust?" he asked. "I call a company a trust, when it has exclusive control over some article, and I know that I haven't that."

Continuing, Mr. Weyerhaeuser stated that he was interested in forty-six lumber and timber companies, but that many of these were not operating companies, and that the interest in many of them was small.

"I do not control three of them," he said.

Mr. Weyerhaeuser asked his chief clerk how many sawmills there were in the United States, and, by referring to statistics, the latter found that there were 28,746.

"Out of that number I am interested in just sixteen," said Mr. Weyerhaeuser.

His Wealth Exaggerated.

"The public would be very much disappointed if I were to tell them," said Mr. Weyerhaeuser, in answer to a question regarding the amount of his wealth. "If I owned all the property I am handling I would be a very rich man, but I have over a hundred partners. Some of these partners have been with me for forty years, while others are the sons and daughters of men who joined me during my early business career and some have come in later."

Referring to the statement of Congressman Clark that he had testified before the ways and means commission during the hearing on the tariff schedules in an endeavor to have the tariff on lumber retained, Mr. Weyerhaeuser said:

"Mr. Clark is mistaken. I have not been in Washington since they began the framing of the last tariff bill. In fact, I have not been in Washington for eight years."

Prices Have Fallen.

As tending to show that there was no lumber trust controlling prices of lumber, Mr. Weyerhaeuser said lumber had fallen in price from $4 to $6 per thousand since the financial troubles of the fall of 1907.

"There has been no demand for low-grade lumber since the panic," he said.

LONGWORTH DEFENDS THE PAYNE TARIFF BILL.

Washington, March 27.—Declaring that the Payne bill is a practical fulfillment of a pledge made eight months ago to the American people by the Republican party, Representative Longworth of Ohio spoke today in defense of its various provisions. He reviewed the campaign promises of the Democratic party and said that the minority members of the ways and means committee had just as much opportunity to prepare a bill as the majority.

He declared the Republican members of the committee do not claim the Payne bill is in all respects perfect. "We differed ourselves about many of the schedules," he said. "No one of us believed that there is everything in it which ought to be in it and nothing in it which ought not to be. We do claim for it, however, that it represents a bona fide revision of the tariff from top to bottom."

DECLARES TARIFF BILL HITS AMERICAN WOMEN.

Washington, March 27.—Declaring there will be no dissension in the Democratic ranks of the house with regard to the tariff and that the Fitzgerald amendment to the rules made it possible for the minority to express its views upon amendmens to the bill by a record vote, Representative Harrison, of New York, today discussed various features of the Payne measure.

"This bill contains heavy taxes upon the women of America," he continued. "The new taxes upon tea and coffee, upon woman's gloves and cotton stockings, are a direct provocation to womans suffrage. If this tariff bill does not bring about the franchisement of women, they cause is homeless." While expressing gratification that iron ore had been placed upon the free list, Mr. Harrison claimed that the rates in a majority of cases on the metal schedule are still prohibitive.

TWO MILLION FIFTEEN CENT POSTAGE STAMPS.

Washington, March 27.—Postmaster General Hitchcock has requested the secretary of the treasury to give the director of the bureau of engraving and printing authority to prepare 2,000,000 additional 15-cent postage stamps, to be held subject to requisitions of the postoffice department for issue to postmasters.

HOUSE-CLEANING BY PROCLAMATION

How New Yorkers Were Taught to Keep the Zoological Park Free From Refuse and Rubbish--A Lesson for Every City With a Park.

By William T. Hornaday,
Director New York Zoological Park

(Exclusive Service Charities and The Commons Press Bureau.)

In the past three years the rubbish wilfully and inexcusably thrown upon the walks and lawns of the Zoological park in the Bronx, New York, became more and more irritating to the nerves of those responsible for cleanliness and good order. During that period we were so busy with the annual rush of construction work that we had no time in which to make a determined campaign against it. Last spring, however, the war that so long had been intended was formally declared. Today we are prepared to write the first chapter of its history.

The making of wholesale arrests in the Zoological park and the haling of a large number of pleasure-seekers before the night court, were painful to contemplate, and they would have been still more painful to carry into effect. We decided to avoid those measures, so far as might be possible, by a preliminary campaign of education. To this end we carried out the following program:

In 1907 we finished the placing of about 100 well-appointed rubbish baskets. If the whole truth must be told, the "Bronx Park Basket," an imitation tree-stump in metal, with a movable basket inside, was invented by the director with special reference to its use in public parks. Over each basket was placed a sign, saying "Deposit Here All Refuse." Many other signs had been posted, previous to 1907, forbidding the throwing of rubbish on the walks.

On May 25, 150 special cloth signs, printed in English, Yiddish Italian and German, forbidding the scattering of rubbish and directing that it be placed in the baskets under pain of punishment for neglect, were posted so conspicuously that it was impossible for a visitor to enter the park without seeing at least one. On May 29, a manifesto by the director formally declaring war on the rubbish throwing habit and warning all possible offenders to obey the la wor suffer arrest and punishment, appeared in several newspapers.

On Sunday, May 30, hostilities began in the park. Ten men were detailed to do patrol duty and instructed to admonish all throwers of rubbish, and compel them instantly to pick up whatever they threw down. It was ordered that the campaign for the education of the public should be carried on without making arrests so long as substantial progress was perceptible. At the same time, officers were in readiness to act and had the law been resisted arrests would have swiftly followed.

The results were immediate and gratifying. Within a month the amount of waste paper, fruit skins and lunch boxes thrown upon the walks and lawns and under benches diminished about 75 per cent. Within two months the decrease amounted to about 95 per cent of the original total; and all this without even one arrest. It proved necessary, however, to prohibit all persons from sitting or lying upon the grass, for the reason that it was found quite impossible to prevent them from leaving rubbish behind. Owing to the presence of 300 park benches on our grounds, it is not at all necessary for any one to lounge upon the grass.

Last year, on every Monday morning, the park was a disgraceful sight, and it required the labor of ten men until about 2 o'clock in the afternoon to gather up the rubbish. Now by 10 o'clock on Monday mornings, four men make the park thoroughly clean and presentable. What is still more important, the park is clean during nearly the whole of Sunday, instead of becoming by noon of that day, a distressing scene of disorder under foot.

An important lesson has been learned. It has been clearly observed by many persons that the disorderly period attracted disorderly crowds. When the reform was fully established the disorderly element seemed to withdraw and go elsewhere, and there followed a great influx of visitors of a better class, who believe in law and order and prefer to go only where they can enjoy cleanliness.

Our warfare has received constant encouragement from the best element in New York. We have on file many letters commending our efforts and wishing us success. Beyond question, the people of this city pay for, and are entitled to, clean streets and clean parks. Those who disgrace New York by strewing rubbish broadcast in spite of warnings should be sternly dealt with. Our streets still are garnished with waste paper and the bad habit that leads to it should be taken in hand by the police department and broken up. The first step should be the posting of about 5,000 warnings, printed on linen, as an educational effort. The laws on the subject are ample. The unhindered throwing of rubbish in streets and in parks promotes a spirit of lawlessness and disorder that easily leads to more serious offenses. In view of all that this city is spending and doing for the comfort and pleasure of the people, the lawless 10 per cent should be forced to obey the laws of decency and good order.

POTS THAT QUACK AND BARK.

New Orleans Times-Democrat: "Yes, these pots are all right," said the potter. "They don't talk, though."

"No pots do."

"Don't they? Look here."

He turned from the shelf a strange, crude pot, daubed yellow and blue, that had the shape of a duck. He filled it with water, then he poured the water out again.

"Quack, quack, quack!" said the pot distinctly. Every gurgle was a quack.

"There's art for you," said the potter. "Every gurgle of that duck pot is a quack. Wonderful Aztec art. And I have an Aztec pig pot that grunts like a pig and a dog pot that barks like a dog. Wonderful chaps, those Aztec potter fellows! I wish I knew their secret.

"Imagine an Aztec banquet," he said after a pause. "Pots filled, you know, with wine. And every time you pour yourself a drink 'quack' go the ducks, 'bow wow' go the dogs. Regular pandemonium."

MISSION OF A HYMN.

Catholic Telegraph: There is no more popular hymn in the English language than Cardinal Newman's "Lead, Kindly Light." It has soothed thousands of hearts beclouded by sorrow, and inspired hope when faith had vanished. A few days ago it once more performed its beautiful task of lifting despair.

A disastrous explosion occurred in a mine near Durham, England, imprisoning 150 miners. One of the thirty-two men recovered from the living tomb was asked how he passed the sixteen hours he was buried in its darkness. He replied that he and his companions sang a great deal. Further questioned as to the songs he answered: "Five or six hymns. I don't remember them all. There was 'Lead, Kindly Light.' We sang that a good many times. It helped to keep our spirits up."

COMMITTEE OF MAYORS

All Large Towns Represented on Delegation to St. Paul.

No new developments have taken place today in the matter of presenting the case of St. Louis county in the fight against the tonnage tax bill before the senate.

The matter of securing a delegation to go before the senate committee next Wednesday afternoon and secure a hearing for St. Louis county, has been left in the hands of Mayor Haven. The delegation will probably consist of the mayors of all the large cities, towns and villages in St. Louis county. It is believed that a delegation of this kind will be most effective in securing a hearing, and the mayor is busy getting in touch with the mayors of the range towns. They will go to St. Paul Tuesday night and demand a date for a hearing for the county. The public affairs committee of the Commercial club will then arrange to present the county's case. The committee has many plans in view, and if the hearing is secured nothing will be left undone to present the county's side of it in an effective manner. Meanwhile, everything hinges on securing the hearing.

WOMAN KIDNAPER TRIES TO ESCAPE

Mercer prison yesterday afternoon, but Mrs. Boyle was left here because of insufficient accommodations for women prisoners in Mercer. Boyle was greatly relieved when he saw only a scattering of people at the Mercer station. He was hurried into a bus and taken to the jail, where he was locked in a cell on the second tier. An armed guard was placed in front of his cell and a patrolman was stationed outside the jail at night.

NEW INDEPENDENT ROAD WILL BE BUILT TO THE CUYUNA RANGE THIS YEAR

has been obtained, and the names of the men interested in the proposed road, have not been made public, though it is understood that the Rogers-Brown interests of Chicago, a big mining and smelting concern, which through subsidiary companies is exploring and mining extensively on the Cuyuna, have a representative on the board of directors on the new road.

The road will be called the Cuyuna Iron Range railroad, and will have its terminals at Deerwood and the Head of the Lakes. It will be a line entirely independent of any other railroad company, though at first the tracks of another road may be used by the Cuyuna road to enter Superior, which will probably be the lake terminal of the road, though this is not known for a certainty.

The Cuyuna Iron Range road will be less than 100 miles in length, will be a direct ore line from Deerwood to the Head of the Lakes, and its main function will be the transporting of iron ore from the mines there, which are now in the course of development.

The building of the ore line proves positively that the exploration work which has been carried on about Deerwood for the past few years, has opened up bodies of ore of such size and value, as to warrant the owners in providing themselves with a means of transporting their product to a shipping port. Eventually, ore docks will be built at the Head of the Lakes to handle the tonnage. It is understood that the building of these ore docks will closely follow the completion of the road, which will be accomplished within the next twelve months. They will, in all probability, be built by the people who are financing the railroad.

Reports have been persistent from the Cuyuna of large bodies of high grade ore being shown up there. Recently it has been reported that the Rogers-Brown company, which has been drifting from the shaft on its property on Rabbit lake, has struck the body of ore which its drill reports indicated. This ore body is said to be a large one and of high values. If this is true, that company is now in a position to begin shipping ore. Other properties are also said to be in an advanced stage of development, and soon will be ready to produce.

In order to be ready to handle all this ore tonnage which promises to be ready soon to be transported to furnaces on the lower lakes, the new road will be built. Much of the ore may also be used in local furnaces. It is stated that as soon as it can be arranged, engineers will be on the ground, and grading and laying steel will follow very closely, not later than this summer.

The head office of the company will be in Duluth.

GETS $1,000 FOR A BROKEN LEG

Charles Swanson Is Given Damages by Jury in District Court.

Charles Swanson was awarded $1,000 by a jury in district court late yesterday afternoon, for a broken leg and other injuries sustained as a result of a street car accident at Thirty-first avenue west last fall.

Swanson got off the car and was about to cross the street from the point at which he alighted, when a car coming from the opposite direction at a high rate of speed struck him, carrying him a distance of several feet on the fender and injuring him as stated above.

Passengers who saw the accident testified that the car was moving at a very high rate of speed, and that the motorman did not stop before crossing the street as he should have done when a car was already at the crossing ahead of him, discharging passengers.

The case was tried before Judge Cant.

MOORE TESTS ICE IN THE LAKE

Little Steamer Is Forced to Return to the Harbor.

The Booth line steamer Moore tested the ice in the lake this morning, but found it too tough to buck successfully, and returned to the harbor. The little steamer has had fires under her boilers for rseveral days and this morning went out in the lake to empty some ashes, and to test the ice.

John Coventry, manager of the local office, stated this morning that the boat would probably not be able to make her first trip before a week or ten days. The harbor at Port Arthur is reported to be open, which is rather unusual, as this port is generally the last one the lakes toopen. The ice has been backed up to this end of the lake this year, however, and Duluth is closed tighter than any harbor on the lakes at present but a southwest wind would work wonders, and under proper weather conditions, it would not take long for the ice to disappear.

MASHER GIVEN BIG SURPRISE

Girl Lands Stiff Right Arm Jolt Upon His Nose.

A young woman giving her name as Genevieve Cutler last night adopted strenuous measures to prevent the unwelcome attentions of a "masher." With all the energy at her command, she landed her right fist upon his nose, and then screamed at the top of her voice. This combination was more than he had bargained for, and the man turned and ran off at top speed.

Officer Youngberg was attracted by the scream, and located the girl at the corner of Fifth avenue west and Superior street. She said she had just arrived from Minneapolis to visit a cousin living on East First street. She noticed a young man observing her in the waiting room of the union depot. The same man followed her, and before going a block, undertook to carry her suit case, accosting her as "Little Bright Eyes." Then followed the right-arm punch and the scream. The police officer was too late to nab the offender.

JAPS BOYCOTT AMERICAN GOODS

Act Under Guise of Enforcing Pure Food Law.

Victoria, B. C., March 27.—That a boycott of American goods under the guise of enforcement of a pure food law has been started in Japan, is the statement of a weekly newspaper in Yokohama, according to advices received here. The paper says:

"For some unexplainable reason, excepting that action had been taken under the 'food law' Japanese officials backed by police officers, have been calling upon foreign and native grocers and confiscating their stocks of certain brands of goods. Strange to say the goods confiscated have been American goods only, and the officials do not even look at the British, German and French goods that were strongly in evidence.

"Another feature of these strange proceedings was that nearly all the articles confiscated bore the stamp of the American health board, and each package was printed with all the names of the ingredients contained."

TARIFF DEBATE HEAVY ON TRADE

Iron and Steel Progress Confined to Structural Lines.

New York, March 27.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade today says:

Favorable conditions in crop growing sections promise well for the future and the seasonable weather generally prevailing is helpful to trade, advices from the Northwest being particularly cheerful. The tariff discussion in congress bears heavily upon many trades and the end of the debate is variously estimated at not before May 15 to June 1.

Whatever progress is making in iron and steel is mostly confined to structural lines. The recent slight improvement in this division is being maintained. A better inquiry is received from the railroads, the tonnage pending aggregating a good volume. Further reported reductions in price of material have also broadened the demand for construction work and undertakings that had been deferred are again appearing. Business in steel rails is still limited although several small contracts are noted. Stocks of pig iron continue to accumulate in the principal sections of the country and there is still talk of reduction in active capacity.

In the primary drygoods market demand at present is entirely confined to immediate requirements. Locally there is little activity among distributers and although the volume of business transacted shows a moderate increase as compared with the corresponding period of 1908, sales by no means approach normal.

LOST IS FOUND.

Watch, Missing Two Years, Located by Detective Terry.

Detective Terry yesterday returned to its owner a watch that had been stolen in the holiday season of 1907. A young woman, who was then a saleslady in one of the leading department stores, and who has since married, had her handbag, containing $8 cash and a gold watch, stolen.

The loss was reported to the police, and Detective Terry took the matter in charge, but worked under a big handicap, because the girl was unable to furnish a complete description of the timepiece. Yesterday morning, in going over some old papers, she discovered the manufacturer's guarantee, giving numbers of case and works. She turned this over to the police, and later in the day, with the assistance of the numbers, Mr. Terry located the watch in a pawn shop.

INTERESTS THE WOMEN

At Least One Phase of the Tariff That Appeals to Them.

Added Duty on Gloves and Hosiery Strongly Opposed.

The Payne tariff bill, which provides for an increased tax on imported gloves, hosiery and certain lines of dress goods, has the women and merchants of America greatly agitated, and the Duluth women and business men are anxious with the rest of the country concerning the outcome of the bill.

If the Payne bill becomes a law, it means that there will be a considerable increase in the cost of those very necessary articles of dress, and the increase will, of course, have to be borne by the purchaser, and in many cases an added tax to the already high prices will make imported gloves and stockings luxuries which only the very wealthy may afford.

"In the proposed new tariff schedule on kid gloves," said a Duluth merchant today, "the duty has been raised from $3 to $4 a dozen, and as it is, the duty of $3 is almost prohibitive and certainly affords plenty of protection for the American manufacturer, when it is considered that his leather comes in duty free.

"Former Congressman Littauer, woh is largely interested in the Gloversville district, where most of our gloves are made, framed a bill to increase the duty on short gloves, such as we are selling at $1 a pair. We sell this glove at a very small profit, but we want to give the American people a first-class article at a nominal price. This is for lambskin. No first-class house would handle an inferior article, such as Samchen, although, of course, it can be sold. If this tariff goes into effect, with us it would put the short glove out of business.

"The plea used in behalf of the increased tariff, as I understand it, is to enable the American manufacturer to pay higher wages, but that is not it. The American manufacturer is not employing American labor, but foreign labor, the foreign cutters refusing to impart their knowledge to American workmen, and a majority of the expert cutters at Gloversville are foreigners.

"The enormous increase in the tariff on imported stockings seems even more vicious than that on gloves, when it is considered that about 70 per cent of the stockings used in this country are made of cotton grown here and exported to the factories of Europe.

"The popular-priced stocking, which now sells at 25 cents per pair at retail, is taxed on import in the Dingley law at 50 cents a dozen pair and 15 per cent ad valorem. This means a tax, even now, of 65 cents on every dollar of imported hosiery. And this burden rests with the consumer.

"Similiar prohibitive increases are provided on various lines of imported dress goods."

It is possible that an organized protest may be sent in from the women of American against the acceptance of the proposed tariff, and if this is done the women of Duluth will gladly add their voices to the remonstrance, for many of them are deeply concerned about the tax. In any event, many of them will doubtless write to Congressman Miller, asking him to oppose this feature of the bill.

WANTS LUMBER UPON FREE LIST

Howland Calls Talk of Cheaper Canadian Product Buncombe.

Washington, March 27.—Speaking in favor of placing lumber on the free list, Mr. Howland of Ohio, declared in the house yesterday that the continuance of a lumber tariff on the statute books as a protective tariff, casts discredit on the entire system of protection. He said those who favor the tariff on lumber oppose its removal because it keeps up prices and makes it pay to work up the entire tree and not leave the tops in the forests to burn.

Claiming Canada is one of the largest purchasers of American lumber and forest products, Howland said this would lead to the conclusion, if we are able to compete now in the Canadian markets that the need for the tariff no longer exists. He said the talk of cheaper Canadian lumber and cheaper cost of production in the Canadian mills is buncombe.

"The argument that high prices for forest products tend to conserve the forests is an attempt on the part of the lumbermen," said Mr. Howland, "to bring themselves within the scope of the public sentiment for forest conservation, with the hope that the public will fail to distinguish the difference between the conservation of the forest products and the conservation of the forests themselves."

FOLLOWING WESTON

Buffalo, N. Y., March 27.—Edward Payne Weston left here today on his walk to the Pacific coast. A drenching rain was falling at the time mixed with snow. The roads are very heavy. Weston hopes to reach Olean tonight and to spend Sunday there.

Dr. P. S. Conner Dead.

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 27.—Dr. P. S. Conner, one of the most prominent surgeons in this city and known to the medical profession throughout the United States, is dead of heart disease.

He was born at West Chester, Pa., in 1839.

NEAR FIST FIGHT IN HOUSE OVER TARIFF; TAFT'S DINNER SMOOTHES WARRING FACTIONS

Washington, March 27.—The monotony of the tariff debate in the house was relieved for a time by a clash between Fordney of Michigan and Byrd of Mississippi, which came near ending in blows. Fordney had been making an extensive discussion of the lumber schedule, when he was interrupted by the Mississippian, who insisted that the lumber manufacturers of which Mr. Fordney was one, were in a trust. Mr. Fordney peremptorily denied the statement and said that Mr. Byrd "didn't know a damn thing about it."

The Mississippi member made a move toward Mr. Fordney and was in the act of removing his coat when some of his Democratic colleagues took hold of him.

Both men later made explanations and apologized.

President Taft brought representatives of all the warring factions in the house together at the first formal dinner he and Mrs. Taft have given in the White House.

The personnel of the guest list was something of a tribute to the president's capabilities as a diplomat and his ambitions as a peacemaker. Representative Champ Clark, Democratic leader of the house; Representative Fitzgerald of New York, the Democrat who broke away from his party in the notable fight on the house rules; Representative A. P. Gardner of Massachusetts, insurgent leader among the Republicans in the house, and Representatives Payne of New York and Dalzell of Pennsylvania, stalwart members of the Cannon machine, were among the noted figures about the table set in the state dining room. The decorations were Killarney roses.

Drawback Feature Condemned.

Mr. Macon of Arkansas, in the house yesterday, condemned the 99 per cent drawback feature of the bill and censured the provision putting such articles as uncut diamonds, rubies, sapphires and other precious stones and old works of art on the free list. He demanded to know what class of labor their free importation to this country would benefit. Laborers hardly ever wore diamonds, he said, and they never bought rare old paintings.

Mr. Macon ridiculed the free list of the pending bill and said that while it was known as a sop to the American people, it ought to be received as an insult to their intelligence. He said that acorns, balm of Gilead, dried blood, worn gut, and divi-divi, kindling wood, leeches, manna and pulu have no more right to be on the free list than English sparrows and African baboons.

Macon concluded by saying he was overpowered with the belief that when God made man and placed him upon the earth he intended for him to have a free and unobstructed race with his fellows and that if he could by his individual efforts reach the goal in advance of his competitors, he ought to be permitted to do so unhindered by any one of them.

By the Senate Committee.

Various system of regulating our tariff intercourse with other nations so as to give to the executive a margin in the application of rates as between friendly and unfriendly countries are being considered by the senate committee on finance.

The minimum and maximum principle in the Payne bill is unsatisfactory to many of the senate leaders and a reversal of this principle likewise will not be received with favor. It has been suggested that some entirely new principle may result.

Just what are the objections against the principle of the Payne bill, which makes the rates established as the minimum and permits the executive to apply a 20 per cent retallatory increase to any nation which fails to give to the United States the advantage of her most favored-nation clause, has not been made clear. All of the proceedings had thus far, by the senate committee, however, make it evident that the provisions of the Payne bill respecting this administration feature are likely to be disapproved.

Senator Aldrich, chairman of the committee, has given this question a great deal of thought, and several senators are looking to him to suggest some proper means of applying the tariff rates to the different countries. From some sources there has come a demand for a reversal of the Payne system so as to make the established rates the maximum and, give a reduction of 20 per cent to the nations giving us the greatest advantage, but opposition to this method developed on the ground that such a plan would upset the estimates of revenues to be derived from the new tariff. It is said that the reciprocal arrangement might be more popular if it were not for the fact that reciprocity treaties met with so much ill-fortune during the McKinley administration.

INDORSED BY UNION LABOR

Trades Assembly Wants Alfred Jaques for District Judge.

At the regular meeting of the trades assembly held last evening in Kalamazoo hall, a resolution was passed recommending that Governor Johnson appoint Alfred Jaques, fourth judge of the Eleventh judicial district.

The resolution was introduced by C. B. Uncapher, who spoke a few words praising Mr. Jaques, who, he said, is a fair-minded man, and unprejudiced against organized labor. In any trouble between capital and labor he would be unbiased in his decision.

The secretary of the assembly was instructed to mail the resolution to the governor today.

Peter Regan, representative of the International Hatters' union, addressed the delegates on the big strike the hatters are engaged in.

He said that the union would win out in the end, unless the manufacturers starved the strikers to death. "We have 20,000 members," said Mr. Regan, "and during the eleven weeks of the strike we have not lost a member.

"The union controls 90 per cent of the skilled hatters of the country, and all of them, with the exception of about 10 per cent, are striking. We have the sentiment of the public behind us in the East, but we need the backing of the whole country. We need financial and moral support. At least $70,000 a week is needed by the strikers to carry on their fight."

The meeting of the trades assembly was well attended last evening, twenty-five locals having delegates present.

The following credentials were received: Charles Migh, O. B. Anderson, Fred Thibedeau, tug firemen and linemen's association; Joseph O'Neill, E. J. Adams, International Brotherhood of Steam Shovel & Dredgemen; W. R. McCullum, H. J. Gibbon, Electrical Workers' union.

KILLED BY THE SENATE

tion, and after their respective authors had told how good their plans were and how bad all the other fellow's plans were, the senate voted them down one after another.

First was the Nelson bill, embodying State Auditor Iverson's plan of taking the present land department, now in his office, bodily out of that office and making it a separate state department. There was to be a state land commissioner at a salary of $5,000 and an assistant land commissioner at a salary of $3,000. The commissioner was to be elected by the people, and he was to appoint his assistant and other help and to have full charge of all land matters, including forestry.

That bill received five votes and there were thirty-six against it.

Next came the bill by Senator Works of Mankato, Democrat, which created a board of public lands, to be appointed by the governor. The board was to consist of three members, who were to get $5,000 each, and who were to take the places of the state land commissioner, the forestry board, the board of immigration and the state timber board.

There were fifteen votes for this bill, and thirty-five against.

The third bill, being a Republican measure, did better, but not well enough. It was by Senator Canfield, and it provided that the state auditor should appoint three deputies, to have charge of these matters, and draw $3,500 a year each. One was to have charge of lands and immigration, one was to have charge of timber and forestry, and the third was to have control of the state's minerals.

There were twenty-seven votes for this bill, five less than enough to pass it, and twenty-five against.

Whereupon, confident that its day of slaughter was full, the senate adjourned.

The house furnished a surprise for the railroads incorporated in this state —which means the Great Northern and the Soo—when it passed the J. N. Johnson bill regulating stock and bond issues, yesterday afternoon, by a vote of 63 to 44.

To make sure that the action should be final, and that there should be no chance for a change of heart, the author of the bill moved that the vote whereby it was passed be reconsidered, and asked that this motion be voted down, in order that it might not be made again by opponents of the bill. The motion was voted down, and the bill now goes to the senate.

This bill was introduced two years ago by A. J. Rockne of Zumbrota, now speaker of the house, and it was defeated in the house after one of the hottest fights of the session. There has been no great interest in it this time, and the railroads had no idea it would pass.

It provides that before issuing any stocks or bonds, railroads must apply to the state railroad and warehouse commission for permission, giving full explanations of the purpose for which they are issued. They can be put out only for certain specified legitimate purposes, and they cannot be sold for less than par, nor can the proceeds of such sale be devoted to other purposes than those for which the issuance was authorized.

The opposition to the bill protested that this was putting a handicap on Minnesota railroads, because it would force them to disclose their purposes for the benefit of competitors. For instance, if a railroad were issuing bonds or stock for the purpose of raising money to build an extension into a valuable territory, it would have to apply to the railroad commission, and by giving publicity to its plans would give competing railroads a chance to get into the coveted territory first, because they would not have to go through the process of getting permission from any commission.

The fight against the bill was led by R. J. Wells of Breckenridge, who led the fight in the house for the tonnage tax bill, and Representatives Sawyer, McGrath and Lennon spoke against it. J. N. Johnson of Canby led the fight for the bill, and he was supported by Representative Spooner and others.

The vote on the bill was as follows:

For—Austin, Bendixen, Bicknell, Borgen, Brown, Buck, Burnquist, Campbell, Carley, Carlson, Congdon, Conley, Davies, Dorsey, Doyle, Duea, Ferguson, Friedmann, Gartside, Gates, Graham, Grant, Haugland, Henry, Hinds, Holmberg, Horton, C. E. Johnson, J. N. Johnson, Kling, Kneeland, Lee, Lende, Lobeck, McGarry, Melby, Murphy, Nagel, Herman Nelson, O. B. Nelson, Noble, Nye, Opsahl, Perry, Peterson, H. A. Putnam, W. H. Putnam, Rines, Rodenberg, Rosenwald, Rustad, Sampson, Spooner, Stuart, Sulerud, Swendsen, Wallace, Ware, Washburn, Webb, Welter, White, Rockne—65.

Against—Allen, Anderson, Baldwin, Bjorge, Brady, Conroy, Daizell, Davis, Denzer, Dower, Emmel, Goodspeed, Greene, Handlan, Herzberg, Jorgenson, Kelly, Krause, Lennon, MacKenzie, Matson, McGrath, McMartin, McNeil, Mork, Minocks, Nolan, O'Brien, Peters, Pfaender, Phillips, Robertson, Rowe, Saugstad, Sawyer, Selb, Sikorski, Spence, Sullivan, Virtue, Wells, Westcott, Wohlhuter, C. J. Wright—44.

The county assessor bill, substituting for the present system of local assessment a plan proposed by the tax commission, has another chance for life.

Yesterday afternoon Representative Melby moved that the vote whereby the bill was killed Wednesday be reconsidered, and his motion was adopted.

Representative Rines moved that the bill be placed at the head of general orders.

Representative Nolan moved, as a substitute, that the bill be considered at once. His object was to kill it.

To prevent this action, Mr. Rines moved that the house adjourn, and this was carried, 57 to 36, and the bill is still in the air.

Before adjournment the bill increasing the personal property exemption from $100 to $200, and making it apply only to heads of families, was also rescued from defeat by a motion to reconsider the vote, whereby it was killed Wednesday. This was on motion of Representative Rines.

The special order on the Stuart workingmen's compensation act, which was before the house yesterday afternoon, was postponed to Tuesday March 30, on motion of its author. This practically means that the bill will be allowed to die. The legislature may possibly adopt the commission plan, but if it does not there will be no legislation whatever on this important subject at this session.

Representative Pfaender introduced a bill in the house yesterday afternoon increasing the fee for marriage to $2.25.

To "encourage the establishment and continuance of game preserves," Representative Rowe introduced a bill in the house yesterday afternoon prohibiting anybody from discharging a fire arm within 300 yards of a public or private game preserve.

There is located near Finlayson, in Pine county, a spring of marvelous potency in the cure of human ills, and Representative Webb of Sandstone has a plan to make a state park around it, which he embodied in a bill introduced in the house yesterday afternoon. The bill declares that the waters of this spring are good for hardening of the arteries, rheumatism, diabetes, Bright's disease, mal-nutrition, auto-intoxiction, and similar complaints, and that the waters ought to be available for the public good. There is a chance to buy the spring for a reasonable price, and the bill empowers the governor to buy it, and if he cannot get it for a fair price, to condemn the property, which is the north half of the southeast quarter of section 8, 43-20. This land is to be turned into a state park, to be known as the "state health springs park and camping grounds." The bill provides for the election of a pavition and other buildings, at a cost of $2,000, and the employment of a caretaker at $300 a year.

Largely because Representative Opsahl of Bemidji was its author, the house came near killing a bill yesterday afternoon which gives the state a chance to add a considerable area of valuable land to the Itasca state park, at a cost merely nominal. The land lies in the park territory, and is owned by the Weyerhaeusers. They are willing to give it to the state, if the state will give them ten years in which to cut all pine over eight inches in diameter, and will pay the taxes on the mine during that period. The house was about to kill the bill when others who understood its provisions and benefits jumped to its rescued and saved it. It was advanced to the calendar.

The house also recommended for passage the Anderson bill adding manure spreaders to the list of farm implements to be made at the state prison by convict labor. Some opposition developed, and Representative Anderson informed the house that bigger woodchucks had passed the legislature than his bill contained.

The defeat of the reapportionment bill was practically accomplished before it came to a vote in the senate. In the first place, senators from the districts which would lose representation were against it, and they get their neighbors in line. In the second place, the bill presented to the senate, while it was the best that could be brought out of the committee, was deliberately loaded for defeat. Practically all of the Democratic counties were gerrymandered by being attached to large Republican counties, which would have greatly reduced the Democratic vote in the senate, so all the Democrats apposed the bill.

Reapportionment is now out of the way, so far as the legislature is concerned, and other matters will occupy the boards henceforth.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

Why Not Widen Fifth Avenue?

To the Editor of The Herald:

Would it not be a good plan for the city to widen Fifth avenue west by condemning twenty-five or fifty feet on the west side of the avenue, from Michigan street to the courthouse, before any expensive buildings are erected? It would add to the appearance of the city very materially.

The county has started the grouping plan right, by building an elegant courthouse, and the United States government is preparing to build in conformity with the above plan. The first appearance of the city to strangers is generally the most impressive and lasting.

If the avenue should be widened, it would make it very much easier for teams hauling heavy loads up the avenue, as they drive from side to side, gradually working their way up the hill. Everyone will admit that the avenue is not wide enough for the large amount of traffic on it. I believe that it would do away with a great deal of the complaints about the abuse of horses on this avenue, and add greatly to the appearance of the city.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE'S MEASURE IS INTRODUCED.

Washington, March 27.—The bill prepared by the Anti-Saloon League of America, which is supposed to avoid the objections of unconstitutionality of the Littlefield bill, was introduced by Representative Langley of Kentucky yesterday. It is more drastic and broader than the Knox amendment to the penal code bill, which prohibits all shipments of liquor from outside a state where such shipments would be unlawful if made from another point within the same state. It does not delegate the matter of shipments of liquor to the individual states.

Big Ditching Contract.

Winnipeg, Man., March 27.—St. Paul contractors have secured another big piece of work from the Canadian Pacific railway, which awarded them a contract to build 600 miles of canals and ditches in Southern Alberta's dry farming district, principally around Calgary. Three million feet of lumber will be used. The contract price amounts to several million dollars.

SOUL MATE THEORY GETS RUDE JOLT; MRS. AFFINITY EARLE SEEKS SEPARATION

Middleton, N. Y., March 27.—Ferdinand Penney Earle, artist, poet and foremost exponent of the "affinity" idea, has been served with papers in an action brought by Mrs. Earle, formerly Miss Julia Kuttner, of New York city, for annulment of their marriage.

Mrs. Earle alleges that Earle is of unsound mind and was so at the time of their marriage, although she did not become convinced of this until about Jan. 12 of this year.

Furthermore, she says, Earle is incapable of legally contracting marriage, because at the time he had a wife living, to whom he was married in Paris in 1903. The plaintiff at the time believed Earle's assertion that he had secured a divorce from a court of competent jurisdiction, but she is now convinced that the first marriage is still valid and in full force.

Mrs. Earle asks that she be awarded the custody of their infant child, Edmund Erwin Earle, and be allowed to resume her maiden name. Earle returned only a few days ago from a long Western trip. It is believed he will fight the suit.

Earle, who is a son of the late Gen. F. P. Earle of New York, married his first wife, a French woman, in Paris, in 1903, while completing his art studies. After they had lived together for some time, Earle met Miss Kuttner, a settlement worker in New York. She visited the Earles at Monroe and shortly afterward announced that he and he and Miss Kuttner were "soul mates." It was arranged that his wife should take their child and return to France to obtain a divorce. She left in September 1907, and afterward Earle and Miss Kuttner were married. They went to Monroe to live and there their child was born. Shortly after the birth, Earle was arrested and spent some time in the Goshen jail, accused of assaulting Mrs. Earle.

Why Paint?

Natural Roses

are far more beautiful than artificial ones, and though it may be fashionable for pale people to use the rouge pot, the results are more attractive and lasting, if you will follow the more natural fashion and take Cardui.

Cardui enriches the blood, through the nervous system, the main connecting link of which, is in the womanly organs, like the exchange board of a telephone line.

No medicine can keep continuously before the public, like Cardui, for half a century of time, constantly increasing in popularity and sales, as Cardui has done, unless, it does the work, as Cardui does.

"Cardui is all the doctor I want," writes Mrs. Amanda Frye, of Montoya, N. Mex. "It is the finest medicine for women that ever was. I cannot say too much for it. It helped me and also my mother, who had been suffering for three years from the change of life. I advised her to take Cardui and now she has taken one bottle and it has helped her and she feels like a different woman."

MINNESOTA

TO HONOR BRAVE ONE

Statue of Col. Colvill To Be Unveiled Next Wednesday.

Governor Johnson, J. J. Hill and Others to Deliver Addresses.

St. Paul, Minn., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the bronze statue of Col. William Colvill, the hero of Gettysburg, is unveiled at the state capital next Wednesday afternoon, it is probable that Mrs. George Backus of Minneapolis, who modeled the statue, will not be present. Mrs. Backus is ill at her home on the East side and will scarcely be able to stand the fatigue of the program.

The statue will be unveiled in the rotunda by Miss Mabel Marvin of Winnena, daughter of Capt. Matthew Marvin, who was a member of the First Minnesota. Miss Marvin is a great favorite with the old soldiers and has attended many re-unions, so that it is considered especially appropriate for her to draw the veil from the bronze statue of the regiment's leader.

An interesting program is arranged to be given in the house chamber from 2:30 to 4 o'clock. J. M. Searles of Stillwater, a member of the commission, will present the statue in behalf of the commission, and Governor John A. Johnson will accept it for the state.

James J. Hill, who was a member of the old Pioneer Guards, that later became Company A of the First Minnesota, will deliver an address, and there will be music.

ON MILLE LACS LAKE.

Duluth Men in Company That Will Operate Boat Line.

Wahkon, Minn., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Several Duluthians are interested in the Mille Lacs Lake Transportation company, which has been organized by local and Duluth men, with a capital of $50,000 to operate a freight and passenger service on Mille Lacs lake.

This proposition has been the subject of renewed interest since the new Soo line was built along the southeastern shore of the lake. The company has bought one steamer and expects to add several steamers and freight barges the coming season.

Substantial wharves will be built at seven points on the lake. Large quantities of wood products have been accumulated at leading points through the winter in expectation of the new freight service, practically the first steam service on the lake. The passenger business is expected to be large also, because many Twin City and other Northwestern people have been building on the lake shore and others have bought property for summer residences. The tourist business is also expected to be good.

DROPPED FROM THE LIST.

Three Minnesota Schools Lacking in Sanitation and Other Matters.

Chicago, March 27.—At the meeting of the North Central association of colleges and secondary schools, held here Friday, forty schools were dropped from the accredited list for inefficiency in sanitation and other violations of the rules, and 123 schools were added.

Michigan took the high mark for new candidates, securing twenty-two. Indiana was second. Kansas, North Dakota and Colorado were the only states in which schools were not dropped.

The list of schools dropped included the following:

Michigan—Delray, Evart, Flint, Michigan military academy, Owosso.

Minnesota—Blue Earth, Ely and Little Falls.

South Dakota—Madison.

Wisconsin—Berlin, Black River Falls, Lodi, Bedford, Menasha, Portage.

TO BE INDEPENDENT.

New Creamery Is to be Located in Pine River.

Pine River, Minn., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—A creamery has been organized for this village, and just as soon as a site can be obtained, the erection of the building will be commenced. The butter factory will be an independent one, and will be financed and conducted by Charles D. Ingersoll of Maple Plain, Minn., who is interested in a number of other points throughout the state in the creamery business.

BIG CAR REPAIR ORDER.

Great Northern Shops at St. Cloud to Fix Up 8,000.

St. Cloud, Minn., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—An order for the repairing of 8,000 freight cars has been received at the local Great Northern shops. This is the largest order in the history of the shops. The order has to be filled by Sept. 1, so that the cars may be used for the handling of the fall wheat trade. The roofs of the cars are made of two layers. This top layer will be ripped off the 8,000 cars and a plaster roof will be put on and the new roof built over the plaster layer. This means an immense amount of work and requires an additional crew of men.

VERDICT AGAINST SOO.

Jury at Red Lake Falls Gives $1,000 Damages.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The personal injury suit, Sophie Schusser vs. Soo Railway company, was before the district court this week and went to the jury Thursday evening. Yesterday morning the jury brought in a verdict for $1,000 for the plaintiff.

Miss Sophia Schusser was injured last fall in alighting from the Soo train at Thief River Falls, and brought this suit to recover damages for the injury sustained. She asked for $4,500.

RAILROAD HAS PAID DAMAGES

Northern Pacific Gave $30,000 to Winnipeg Junction People.

Barnesville, Minn., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The long drawn out controversy between the Northern Pacific Railway company and the residents of Winnipeg Junction was finally brought to an end this week, when their attorney, Charles S. Marden of Barnesville, turned over to the claimants the cash, which as their agent, he had received from the company.

At the outset of the controversy as to abandoning Winnipeg Junction, the property owners placed their claims for compensation at $35,000. This the company declined to pay. Through the intercession of Judge Mills and the work of their attorneys, Messrs. Douglas, Marden & Witherow, the company was finally induced to offer $25,000. The company then made a second offer of $30,000 in the way of a settlement during the last hearing at St. Paul. This evidently looked good to Winnipeg Junction property owners as compared with a one train a day service between their village and Summit, on the main line to the north, and the compromise offer was accepted.

Mr. Marden went down to Winnipeg Junction Wednesday and made a distribution of the funds. The railway company does not buy the Winnipeg Junction property: it simply pays to the Junction people $30,000 and secures from them a release of all claims for damages consequent upon the abandoning of the line through the village. The railway company now has clear sailing and the old line will be abandoned.

ON INSPECTION TRIP.

Ishpeming Man Accompanies T. F. Cole to Mexico and Arizona.

Ishpeming, Mich., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—George A. Newett, editor of the Iron Ore, left Wednesday evening for Chicago, where he joined T. F. Cole of Duluth and other prominent mining men, who are to inspect a number of mining properties in Arizona and Mexico, in which they are interested.

The Sultana gold property, which is a part of the holdings of the Giroux Consolidated Mines company, control of which a short time ago passed into the hands of the Cole-Ryan interests, will be thoroughly inspected, as will the properties of the Bonanza circle at Bisbee. The trip from Chicago and return is to be made in Mr. Cole's private car. It will take a week to reach their destination, and another week returning.

CREAMERIES PROSPER.

Four New Ones Being Built in Red Lake County.

Thief River Falls, Minn., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Not less than four new creameries are now in course of construction in Red Lake county. The receipts of all the existing creameries have doubled in the last year and the farmers are most enthusiastic supporters of the creamery proposition. In no part of the state does this enterprise flourish as it does here, and this by reason of the abundance of upland hay and the great growth of clover in this section.

WISCONSIN

KNIFE FIGHT MAY HAVE FATAL END

Heated Argument Among Lumberjacks Results in Serious Stabbing.

Mellen, Wis., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lester Giarling, a Finn, is in a critical condition here as the result of being stabbed in the neck and breast by another Finn, named William Sallo, in a lumber camp near here.

Sallo and two other Finlanders became involved in a heated argument at the noon hour, when the men had just finished eating and were starting for the woods again. The controversy finally developed into a fight, during which Sallo drew a big knife out of his pocket and stabbed one of his antagonists, Giarling, in the neck and breast.

Sallo claims that Giarling and his confederate attacked him first and that he used the knife with such deadly effect only as a matter of protection.

By the time the fight had progressed to this point, the men about interfered with the further progress of the cut up, and Sallo was brought to Mellen and arraigned before Judge Simmons, who bound him over to the circuit court.

Sallo was taken to Ashland and placed in the county jail, where he will remain until the fall session of circuit court. Sallo showed a deep gash on his right hand, where the blade of the knife closed after he delivered the second lunge into Giarling.

THROWS SELF FROM CARS.

Insane Hungarian Succeeds in Attempt at Taking His Life.

New Richmond, Wis., March 27.—After no less than half a dozen attempts to commit suicide, Matt Polic, aged 33 years, a Hungarian en route from Seattle to his home in Hungary, threw himself from a Wisconsin Central train near Schleisingerville, and was ground to pieces under the wheels.

Polic acted queerly when he boarded the train in St. Paul, and when the train had reached a point beyond Chippewa Falls, he suddenly became violently insane. Drawing a knife he attempted to stab himself, but fellow passengers interfered and took the knife from him. A few moments later he attempted to take his life by drinking poison from a bottle, but was again restrained. Just out of Schleisingerville, Polic jumped from his seat in the smoker and made a dash for the door. He was closely followed by a brakeman, who attempted to stop him, grabbing him by the coat tail just as he leaped from the train. Polic fell under the wheels and was terribly mangled.

On his person were found transportation to Hungary, naturalization papers and $40 in currency. Efforts are being made to locate his relatives.

Newberry, Mich., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Awaiting trial in the Schoolcraft county circuit court, Mrs. James Loucks and Richard Curson face the possibility of extended terms in prison.

It is charged that an attempt was made to poison the husband of the woman, who is a prominent farmer living near Germfask. It is alleged that a bottle of whisky from which Loucks drank, and as a result of which he was made violently ill, has been found to contain arsenic in liberal quantity. Loucks drank from the bottle Dec. 17 last, it is claimed, and it is asserted that on that date the farmer's wife and Curson, who was employed on the farm, went to Southern Michigan together. They were arrested only recently, after an extended search. Mrs. Loucks is aged 29 and Curson is 40. The woman denies all knowledge of any attempted poisoning.

WISCONSIN CENTRAL TRAIN JUMPS TRACK.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., March 27.—No. 3, westbound passenger train on the Wisconsin Central jumped the track as it was coming down the hill to the Stanley depot early yesterday. A mile east of the depot, the mail car went off the rails and bumped over the ties at a lively rate for a mile. When the car struck the frog in the switch it jumped into the ditch, taking two other cars with it. The train came to a sudden stop and it presented a peculiar sight.

The engine and tender remained on the track and the mail car, baggage and smoker were in the ditch and half toppled over. The cars remained coupled to the rest of the train, but they were broken somewhat. The passengers were jarred, and to be so rudely aroused at that hour of the morning, created great consternation. No one was hurt, but the mail clerks were rudely bumped. Mail Clerk George Riddell was on the train coming from Chicago. He was not in the mail car, but in one of the coaches, as he had finished his run at Chicago, and was returning home, off duty.

DAKOTAS

LOVER'S YOUTH BARS MARRIAGE

But Brilliant Idea of Judge Gets Around Legal Quibble.

Jamestown, N. D., March 27.—When August Serla, who resides in the vicinity of Courtenay, presented himself at the office of the county judge for a marriage license he met with difficulties. Serla is not 21 years of age, and the laws of North Dakota require that a minor must have the consent of his parents before a marriage license can be lawfully issued to him. The would-be bridegroom's parents reside in Oregon, and it would be impossible to reach them for several weeks.

Serla is almost 21 years of age but two months and two days stood between him and connubial felicity. His tearful bride stood by and pleaded with the judge to make an exception and grant him the license without his parents' knowledge.

Just as the disappointed couple were preparing to leave his office the county judge was struck with a brilliant idea. He suggested that Serla petition him to appoint a guardian for himself, thereafter obtain his guardian's consent to his marriage, and the law would be complied with. The clerk of court consented to act as guardian, the papers were hastily drawn up—and an apparently insurmountable difficulty was overcome.

Beach, N. D., March 27.—While Rev. Alex Douglas, who lives about seven miles northeast of Beach, was leading a horse across some plowed ground near his place, he stumbled and fell, breaking one of the small bones of his ankle.

He fell in such way that his foot was cramped under him, causing the break, which, although not a serious fracture, is a very painful one, and was much more so in Mr. Douglas' case, as he was compelled to lie forty-eight hours before the bone was set, he being all alone and unable to get word to any one for some time.

WANT DUTY ON TOW.

Minneapolis Firm Points How This Section Will Benefit.

Grand Forks, N. D., March 27.—In a letter to the Commercial club of Grand Forks the McGuire-Atwood company of Minneapolis urges that pressure be brought to bear on North Dakota's representatives at Washington to secure a duty on tow. It is pointed out that in 1908 Minnesota and the Dakotas raised 2,580,000 tons of flax straw, and of that amount it is estimated North Dakota raised 1,377,000 tons, all of which was burned. It is urged that a duty would mean many factories in the state and would be of immense benefit to the farmers.

MURDERER IS LUCKY.

South Dakotan, Who Killed Mankato Girl, Given Eight Years.

Highmore, S. D., March 27.—Aurelius Bowen, on his second trial, has been convicted of killing Katherine Kihle, his neighbor on a homestead in Stanley county, on the west side of the Missouri river. The jury returned a verdict of manslaughter in the first degree, notwithstanding the fact that there were no mitigating circumstances, if he really was the slayer.

The court imposed a sentence of eight years in the penitentiary.

Bowen was infatuated with Miss Kihle, but she was not responsive, and, in a fit of anger, he is alleged to have shot her when she was in her cabin. The exact circumstances of the murder have never been disclosed, but the authorities believe Bowen went to her home at night and assassinated her, shooting through a window. The bullet wound shows that the shot entered the back of her head.

Miss Kihle was a former school teacher, residing near Mankato, Minn., and was among those who took up homesteads two years ago when the land in Stanley county was thrown open for settlement.

JOHN MILLER MURDER LOOKS LIKE DREAM.

The authorities here found no Miller that had ever been murdered in Grand Forks county and have wired Denver for more details, which have been received.

MILWAUKEE ROAD HIT.

St. Paul Jury Gives $27,000 Verdict for Personal Injuries.

St. Paul, Minn., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the largest verdicts ever awarded in Ramsey county in a personal injury suit against a railroad was returned yesterday when the jury which tried the case of Edward M. Weeks against the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road, gave him $27,710. The case was tried before Judge Hallam.

Weeks has been in court in a wheel chair, with an attendant during the three days of the trial, and on his behalf it was argued and evidence was presented to show that he would always be unable to use his right leg because of the injury.

He was a brakeman in the employ of the road last July on a train, running between Milwaukee and Chicago. At Warburton, Ill., the train was handled so that the cars were jerked about with force, Weeks was thrown from the caboose to the ground and run over.

Could Not Sleep. Nerves and Stomach.

Mr. John Loiseau, a well known and prominent business man of Atlantic City, N. J., five years ago was a very sick man. His nerves and stomach were in bad shape, could not retain anything nor could he sleep. He tried doctors in vain. He went to European specialists. He kept getting worse and his purse lighter. On his return home he was advised by a neighbor to try Duffy's Malt Whiskey. He did so. Today he is strong and vigorous, eats and sleeps like he did when a boy, thanks to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

The following is Mr. Loiseau's own way of telling of his illness and recovery: "About five years ago I got some bad trouble with my stomach and nerves, and could sleep but very little. I went to see plenty of doctors, but they did me no good. All the time I kept getting thinner, till finally I looked like a skeleton. I had no appetite, and if I did force ever the lightest food down, my stomach just turned upside down and up she comes again and I shake like a boy who knows he is going to get a "licking." Then I went to France and Germany to see what you call specialists, and I like to know why you call them specialists, for they do me not so much good as our own doctors. Maybe it is because they charge special big prices to look at you. Then I come back home again feeling worse than when I went away. The night I arrived home a lot of my friends called to see me and all seemed surprised to see me look so badly. One says, "John, why don't you try Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey? My brother Jim was as sick as you, and he take it and it make him well just the same like new." The next day I think 'If Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey cure Jim, it won't kill John' So I buy a bottle and commence taking it. Soon I begin to feel better and feel hungry and don't shake so much I gained flesh every day and soon was as hearty and healthy as when I was 20 years old. From that day to this I have never been troubled with any of my old ailments. I can eat and sleep as good as ever and hold a gun as steady as I could when a boy in Canada. I shall never be without Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey whether at home or abroad, for I consider that I owe my life to it."

Every testimonial is guaranteed genuine and is published in good faith with full consent.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is invaluable for overworked men, delicate women and sickly children. It strengthens and sustains the system; is a promoter of health and longevity; makes the old young and keeps the young strong.

Captain Merritt Will Call Out High School Athletes Next Week.

Question of a Baseball Team Is Still Undecided.

Monday, Captain Merritt of the high school track team will issue his call for candidates for the team, and ask that they get out for practice each day thereafter.

There will also be a meeting of the athletic association shortly after school opens and the date of the local spring meet will be decided upon. It will be at this meet that the captain will pick his men for the Minneapolis meet, and as the time is getting short, stiff practice will be the order from now on.

The material for a swift track team this year is said to be of the best. There is more enthusiasm over this branch of athletics than ever before, and this, in itself, is a good sign of a successful season.

Many of the boys have taken advantage of the spring vacation to work out, and every morning a number of them can be seen on London road trying out for the long run. Some have been working in the gymnasium for some time. Others have not started as yet. There are still two months to train, and by the first of May, all those who are to enter the events, should be in first-class shape.

The question of a baseball team is still unsettled. There is said to be in the school, the best baseball material in history. The boys hate to pass up the idea, when they have the making of such a good team, and still they wish to devote most of their time to track events. Some on them argue that even though the team should be organized there would be nobody to play. Also of the high schools have dropped baseball and only the Superior schools are left. This matter will be thoroughly thrashed out at the meeting of the association to be held early in the week, and it is probable that a team will be organized to play a series of games with the Superior schools for the possession of the cup donated by the Northern Hardware company. This, it is thought, will be the limit of baseball in the school this year.

Already the students have begun to talk about the football team for next fall. A number of the boys will soon visit all the eighth grades of the city to get a line on who may be counted on from the Freshman class of next year.

There is some talk of inaugurating a new system of practice. Captain Stevens may ask the candidates to get out for spring work. This is done at all the Eastern colleges, and is said to be very satisfactory as it gives the captain an early line on the men.

The matter of a coach will be taken up soon and disposed of. Coach Chauncey Colton, who last year coached the team so successfully, has said that he would not have time to coach the boys again. An organized effort will be made to get him to consent to work with the team one more year, and if he refuses, the association will at once begin casting around for a new man. It is a matter that cannot well be left until the last moment, and an effort will be made to get it out of the way before it comes time for fall practice.

SUNDAY BALL IS SURE TO WIN

Many States May Legalize Playing of Game on Sabbath.

New York, March 27.—Since the passage of a bill legalizing Sunday baseball games by the Indiana legislature, plans have been formulated for the introduction of similar measures in two other states. At Harrisburg, the Pennsylvania legislature will soon consider a bill legalizing Sunday games between the hours of 3:30 and 6:30 p. m., and providing for a scale of licenses from $25 to $500, according to the size of the grounds. It is said that the new owners of the Philadelphia National league club, including several state senators, are behind the measure and that it stands an excellent chance to become a law.

A bill legalizing ball games on the Sabbath will be introduced in the New Jersey legislature at Trenton shortly. It will provide for fixed hours and may also call for the payment of a state tax on gate receipts. Sunday games have been player for several years in various Jersey towns, including Hoboken, Newark, Patterson and Elizabeth, without interruption. It is reported that Jersey City and Trenton politicians who are indirectly interested in the national game, will advocate the proposed bill. In New York state, there is apparently no chance for a Sunday baseball law covering professional games, but the amateur clubs have been fighting for legislation at Albany for several years.

Sutton Defeats Cutler.

New York, March 27.—George Sutton defeated A. G. Cutler last night by a score of 500 to 233. Sutton was in excellent form and gave a rare exhibition of clever nursing. Cutler played a plucky game at the end, but was in hard luck during the early part. His run of eighty-nine was of the sensational order.

Italian Champion Downed.

O'BRIEN IS DEFEATED

Philadelphia Man Is No Match for Champion Stanley Ketchel.

Bell in Last Round Saves Jack a Clean Knockout.

New York, March 27.—Not since the repeal of the Horton law, which stopped the big fistic bouts in this city, has such a fast and furious contest been seen here in the squared circle as that last night in which Stanley Ketchel, the middleweight champion, defeated Jack O'Brien of Philadelphia, at the National Athletic club.

Many thought that O'Brien would do some stalling in his fight, but everyone who saw the fight was agreeably surprised, for it was a hot bout from start to finish.

In the final round O'Brien was knocked down in three times, and the last time was practically a clean knockout, for the timely clang of the gong found the Philadelphian in a hopeless state. It was Ketchel's fight for the greater part of the contest and O'Brien had no excuse to make over the outcome.

O'Brien was the first to enter the ring. He wore bandages on both hands. One of his prominent handlers was Anthony Biddle of Philadelphia. Kid McCoy was among the seconds.

Ketchel, accompanied by Willie Britt and another group of handlers, went alongside of the Western man when he entered the ring. Tim Hurst lost no time in introducing the men and explaining the rules to govern the bout.

Ketchel also had bandages on both hands and Biddle closely watched the Western man put on the gloves.

The Fight is On.

Round 1.—Both men stripped evidently in the best of condition. O'Brien wore green trunks and Ketchel wore long red trunks. Ketchel landed a low left hook but O'Brien's objections were not considered by the referee. They clinched several times, Ketchel forcing O'Brien around the ring. A left hook raised a lump over Ketchel's eye. O'Brien sent in a hard right under the heart and a left hook to the jaw which stopped Ketchel. O'Brien with a hard right to the face sent Ketchel back a bit, but the Philadelphia man was blowing the worst after the windup at the bell.

Round 2.—O'Brien forced the milling but Ketchel blocked cleverly. Then Ketchel started to force the fighting but he was short on right and left swings. O'Brien sent left and right hooks to the jaw and was fast on hand and foot work, but in the middle of the round he began to hold. Ketchel landed a hard swing on the eye and O'Brien hugged for safety and was groggy at the bell. All Ketchel's round.

Round 3—Ketchel rushed and forced O'Brien to the ropes. The Philadelphian was holding. Ketchel was calm and deliberate while O'Brien showed signs of nervousness. O'Brien uppercut with right and left to the face, but there was no force behind the blows. O'Brien missed a left and right for the head and then hugged his opponent.

O'Brien's Round.

Round 4—Ketchel rushed O'Brien to the ropes with body blows and then with a hard left swing opened a gash over O'Brien's right eye. O'Brien tried two left hooks ineffectually. O'Brien straightened up and sent in two surprisingly fast left hooks to the jaw, knocking Ketchel groggy. He repeated this a moment later and Ketchel, though weakened from the effects, fought back like a demon with a left hook to the face and O'Brien slowed up. Both men were strong, but O'Brien closed the round with two rights to the jaw. It was O'Brien's round.

Round 5—They came to a clinch coming with a rush. Ketchel landed a telling left hook to the jaw. O'Brien jabbed his left twice to the face and the blood started from Ketchel's nose. O'Brien outgeneraled his man in fast work and hooked a left to the jaw which stopped Ketchel. He then sent two lefts to the face, making Ketchel groggy. It was O'Brien's round.

Round 6—Up to this round Ketchel's famous left shift had not been in use. They again rushed to a clinch and hammered each other at close quarters.

Although Ketchel was the slower, he was game and determined. Ketchel landed a hard right over the heart and O'Brien hugged again. O'Brien sent left and right hooks to the jaw at the bell. This was Ketchel's round.

Men Were Wild.

Round 7.—Both men were wild when they met, but Ketchel sent in two lefts to the face, following them up with a hard left on the stomach. O'Brien uppercut heavily on the face, but broke ground when Ketchel again began forcing. O'Brien after a breathing spell sent back right and left to the jaw, stopping Ketchel. A right uppercut followed by a left to the face and two right swings to the jaw turned the tide against Ketchel and he staggered to his corner at the bell.

Round 8.—Both were slow at the opening of this round. O'Brien sent two left hooks to the jaw and swung his right over, staggering Ketchel. O'Brien was too tired to take advantage of Ketchel's distress and the middleweight champion stalled him off. At this stage O'Brien's ring generalship was apparent and he landed a stiff left hook on Ketchel's injured nose before the bell rang.

Round 9.—Ketchel swung wildly with his left and they clinched. Both were slow. O'Brien hooked his left to the jaw and then fell down after getting a hard left to the wind. Ketchel then forced the pace with rights and lefts to stomach and O'Brien showed distress. Ketchel was forcing with his right and left as the bell sounded.

Round 10.—Ketchel was the quicker to begin, and put two left hooks to the jaw, which forced O'Brien to clinch. O'Brien could do little more than block and clinch at this stage. O'Brien tried his left jab, and slowed Ketchel up a bit. Right and left swings to the jaw from Ketchel sent O'Brien to the floor for five seconds, and he went down again from a right swing to the jaw for nine seconds. Two more smashes on the jaw, a left uppercut and right swing sent O'Brien down again for four seconds, before the bell ended the bout.

The bout brought a big crowd to the National Athletic club.

The men weighed in at noon, each tipping the scales at 160 pounds. There were three preliminary bouts, one of which resulted in a knock-out, Freddy Dipples of Brooklyn stopping Andy Parker of New Haven in less than two minutes of the first round.

Harvard President Says Students Devote Much Time to Athletics.

Cambridge, Mass., March 27.—There was some appreciable improvement in Harvard athletics during the year 1907-08, according to the annual report of President Charles W. Eliot, which was made public last night. He finds that the amount of time devoted to baseball and football by the players of these games is already too great. President Eliot again advocates a three-year course.

The Floodwood team lost the only two games played against the "Big Bemidji" team this year, both of which were played here, and while not overwhelming victories for the locals, were still so decisive that no doubt was left as to the supremacy of the "Big Bemidji" five. The games were played on Dec. 4 and 5, last. The first contest resulted in a victory for Bemidji, score 20 to 11. The second game went to the locals, 15 to 9.

No other games were played between the two fives, and the claim which is made by the Floodwood boys is declared unfounded.

THE TURK SMILES.

Sees Champion Wrestler and Makes Up Mind He Is Easy.

Chicago, March 27.—Yusiff Mahmout, the Turkish grappler, who has defeated the best this country has thus far produced, got his first glimpse of Frank Gotch at the Empire theater last night and the Turk is confident that he can pin the champion's shoulders to the mat. Mahmout sat in a box as Gotch and Eddie Cutler wrestled. Yusiff watched Gotch's every move and every once in a while he would smile. It was a smile of joy, for he satisfied himself that he could throw Gotch.

THE EVELETH HIGH SCHOOL BASKET BALL TEAM HAS GOOD RECORD

The above is a good picture of the Eveleth high school basket ball team, which has made one of the best records on the range this season. The team has defeated every team it has met on the Eveleth floor except the Grand Rapids team, which won by the narrow margin of three points, when one of the Eveleth men was ill. The Eveleth team defeated Virginia in two games; the Eveleth militia, three games; Hibbing, one game; defeated Chisholm at Chisholm, and lost to Hibbing at Hibbing. The team, reading from left to right is: Andrews, captain and center; Cerveny, right guard; John Shoemaker, coach and manager; Floyd, left guard; Wilk, right forward; Pryor, sub; Bayless, left forward. The high school has not had a basketball team for some time and the record of this year's team is certainly a good one for the short time the boys have been together.

SUNSHINE IS NEEDED

Wolverine Nine's Work Held Back by Chilly Atmosphere.

Battles With the Hoosiers Considered Most Important on Schedule.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 27.—With the approach of the opening game of the season Coach McAllister of the Michigan baseball team and his candidates are beginning to fret at their inability to begin outdoor work.

For more than six weeks the squad has been working out in the cage and as little can be done by any of the men except the battery candidates, the work is getting irksome. Moreover, there is considerable fear that the team will be in no shape for the games which are scheluled for the Southern trip, including the battle with the Notre Dame nine at Notre Dame. Michigan cares little for the games to be played in the South, as most of them are with minor teams, but with Illinois and Chicago missing from the schedule the series of four games with Notre Dame is an important one and the Wolverines are anxious to capture the odd game of the four.

McAllister had hoped to be able to get the men at work on Ferry field early next week, but at present the plan seems destined to be upset. The weather, except on one or two days, has been much more suitable for football than baseball, and eager as the men are to get at real work the coach is unwilling to take the chance that necessarily would be involved in beginning outdoor work with the air as cold as at present.

The chief difficulty McAllister has been facing is the inability of the pitchers to develop control. Three of the leading candidates, Blandig, Dean and Kerr, have shown wonderful speed, but none of them has been able to locate the plate, and accordingly even the hitting practice has had to be neglected, since the batters do not care to take a chance of being put out of the game for the rest of the season by reason of a fast one on the side of the head.

Despite Luthicum's assertion that only the press of college work has kept him away from practice for the last two weeks, there is good ground for believing the big pitcher is sulking because the newspapers have failed to say the complimentary things he would have liked and that he will not be with the team when its starts for Lexington, Ky., a week from Friday.

In that case there will be a better chance for several of the new pitchers, as, although Luthicum is not the best pitcher Michigan ever has had, he is gifted with almost perfect control and is always cool, which, together with the fact that veterans on Michigan's teams are seldom displaced by new men, probably would have given him a place even if some of the other candidates had shown as much in practice as did he.

Michigan's baseball schedule, as completed, follows:

April 10, Kentucky at Lexington; 12, Tennessee at Knoxville; 13, Tennessee at Knoxville; 14, Castle Heights at Lebanon; 15, Vanderbilt at Nashville; 16, Vanderbilt at Nashville; 17, Vanderbilt at Nashville; 19, Notre Dame at Notre Dame; 24, Michigan Aggies at Lansing; 27, Wooster at Ann Arbor.

May 1, Notre Dame at Ann Arbor; 5, M. C. A. at Ann Arbor; 8, Notre Dame at Ann Arbor; 13, Syracuse at Ann Arbor; 15, Syracuse at Ann Arbor; 20, Beloit at Ann Arbor; 22, Penn State at Ann Arbor; 25, Wooster at Wooster; 26, Cornell at Ithaca; 27, Syracuse at Syracuse; 28, Syracuse at Syracuse; 29, Brown at Providence.

Clothing House Bowlers Take Three Straight Games From Nationals.

Not only do the Fitwell bowlers seem determined to win the pennant in the City Bowling league, but they also have attained a habit, lately, of winning all their games, showing no mercy for their opponents whatever.

Last night, on the Central alleys they met and defeated, in three straight games, the team representing the First National bank. This makes eleven consecutive games they have won since they struck their winning streak.

They are far in the lead just now, and their chances look good to repeat last year's performance, when they won the championship of the league with ease.

Sam Olson of the clothing house team, took the high score, 223, and Carl Berini rolled the high average, 196.

JACK LIKES TO TOG OUT

Colored Champ Is a Great Fellow for Swell Rags.

Something About Man Who Beat Burns to a Frazzle.

Since James J. Corbett has to some extent shoved Jim Jeffries out of the spotlight and now occupies the coveted glare with Jack Johnson, the ring record of the colored champion has added interest to fight fans.

It is a surprising fact that Johnson is known personally by comparatively few persons in the boxing game. He has never made a tour of America, as did Peter Jackson, George Dixon, Joe Walcott and other noted colored pugilists. But he has an interesting history just the same, and is a character.

Johnson is as black as your hat. When he is in good humor his big round face lights up with a pleasant smile. His teeth are perfect, and he knows how to show them to advantage. When he goes out on parade Johnson is a real swell—a genuine treat for the black fraternity. He usually wears a large white plug hat, plaid clothes, a noisy vest, a shirt of many colors, green or gray spats, pointed patent leather shoes and a big diamond headlight. He also lugs around a young tree for a cane and fairly covers his knotty knuckles with jeweled rings. He weighs about 200 pounds, stripped to the buff. His arms are unusually long, like those of a gorilla and the muscles of his back and chest are like bunches of steel wire.

Johnson was born in Galveston, Tex., and will be 29 years old on March 31. He has been in the prize ring for eight years, but it was no until he met Joe Choyniski, the California heavyweight, in the fall of 1901, that he showed any real worth as a pugilist. After that he showed steady improvement and in 1903 he was matched with Denver Ed Martin. They met in a twenty-round bout at Los Angeles, and after a gruelling mill Johnson got the decision on points.

This victory was so well earned and Johnson's performance was so aggressive that he was at once pitted against Sam McVey, the big negro now all the rage in Paris. McVey was a tough proposition, a hard hitter and fairly clever, but, as in the battle with Martin, Johnson displayed unusual skill and received the referee's verdict at the end of twenty rounds.

The big colored man did not have many matches in 1904, and his opponents were all black men. He defeated Black Bill in a six-round bout at Philadelphia, and in a third mill with McVey in Frisco he put the latter to sleep in the twentieth round with a heavy right-hand clip on the point of the jaw. After that he took the measure of Frank Childs in a six-round battle in Chicago and then knocked Denver Ed Martin out in three rounds.

On March 28, 1905, Johnson met Marvin Hart in a twenty-round mill in Frisco. It was a hard fight and Johnson's friends at the ringside declared that he had won by a wide margin on points, but the referee decided that Hart was the winner and a tremendous outcry. Johnson said that he had been "robbed" and that the gamblers had fixed the referee, and was so disgusted with the methods on the coast that he came East immediately and resumed his ring work in Philadelphia.

Johnson met Sam Langford, with whom he is now matched to fight twenty rounds at the National Sporting Club of London on May 24. This battle took place at Chelsea on April 26, 1906. Johnson weighed 190 pounds and Langford only 158. In the second round Langford caught the big fellow with a tremendous right on the jaw and knocked him to the floor. Johnson was so much more scientific than his small antagonist that the latter lost the battle on points.

Johnson's prowess prompted Alex McLain, a Boston boxing promoter, to take him to Australia in 1907, where Texas Jack made a clean sweep. He knocked out Peter Felix in one round at Sydney, and later sent Frank Lang to dreamland in the seventh round, the fight taking place at Melbourne. Bill Squires, the Australian heavyweight champion, evidently knew what he was about when he dodged the big negro's challenge and hurriedly sailed for America, to make a match with Tommy Burns. Johnson followed Squires here, but could not get a match, so in July, 1907, he made a match with Bob Fitzsimmons, the aged Cornishman, for six rounds in Philadelphia. Fitz said before the mill that he had an injured hand, but he declined to disappoint the crowd at the ringside. As soon as he toed the scratch it was seen that Robert was up against it, for Johnson with his shifty cleverness, went around him like a cooper around a barrel, throwing in jabs, uppercuts and swings until Fitz was in serious trouble. In the second round Fitz was knocked down and was in such a helpless state that the referee interfered.

By defeating Fitzsimmons so easily Johnson jumped into the limelight for fair, and all of the other big men steered clear of him. John L. Sullivan thought he could beat him, however, with Kid Cutler, his young sparring partner, so Johnson took him on. The mill took place in Reading, Pa., and Cutler wasn't in it, for Big Jack smothered him with punches and knocked him cold in the first round. Soon after Johnson met Sailor Burke at Bridgeport, in a six-round bout, and Burke did the Tug Wilson act, dropping to the floor repeatedly in order to escape a knockout.

Johnson then went back to Frisco and finished the year by stopping Jim Flynn in the eleventh round. By the time Sam Fitzpatrick was sure that Johnson could beat Burns, but the latter ignored all challenges and went to England. For just one year Johnson and Fitzpatrick kept on Burns' trail until the latter was cornered in Australia and was beaten to a standstill in fourteen rounds.

GOOD OLD FISHING DAYS WILL SOON BE HERE

If weather conditions continue auspicious, it will not be long now before the disciples of Isaac Walton will bring forth their laid-away rods, reels, and tackle boxes, in anticipation of April 15, the opening of trout season.

The early trout fishing in the streams near Duluth promises to be good this year, as the snow in the woods, though much heavier than about the city, is fast dwindling under the rays of the early spring sun, and can not long swell the streams, making them discolored and unfavorable for angling.

There are many good fishing grounds on the streams which flow into Lake Superior near its head. Good sport can be had with but a few hours' journey beyond the city limits, and some rare speckled beauties have been taken within the city, during the first days of open season. Tischer's creek and Lester river have never failed to give up a number of "big ones" during the first weeks of the season. Going farther there is Talmage creek, French river, Sucker and Knife rivers, which each season have not failed in their duties towards the sportsmen. In the meadows of the Sucker and Knife, where the waters run unrippled and deep, between low banks covered with alder bushes, many a creel has been filled with good sized specimens. Knife is probably the most popular stream with the local anglers, who can only get out for the day, as it is only a few minutes' ride from the city on the Duluth & Iron Range road, and is a fine broad stream, clear of overhanging trees for some distance from its mouth, making it ideal for the advocates of the fly. It rushes in rapids over smooth sheets of rock and beds of gravel, here and there eddying about a bolder, and stretches out into foam flecked pools, in whose dark cool depths, the members of the finny tribe lie close to the bottom, constantly watching for a juicy worm, yet with one eye on the surface so as not to miss an unfortunate insect, which might fall into the water. The stone bed makes wading easy for the enthusiast, who is not content unless he is up to his waist in frigid water.

Beyond Two Harbors, there are also a number of good streams, which are not entirely out of the reach of the man, with only a day to devote to the sport. The D. & I. R. crosses these, so that fishermen can plunge right into the sport immediately upon leaving the train. There are also a number of smaller streams to the west of Duluth and in Wisconsin, which are accessible for a day's sport. The Duluth, Missabe & Northern crosses some of these on the Minnesota side, and the others can be reached on the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern. On the Omaha road, the Brule of the South shore, has always been a favorite resort for local fishermen, a number of whom have lodges and cottages there, but that is too far away for the man who can only leave town for the day.

The middle of April will find the same crowds leaving the city Saturday afternoons and Sunday mornings, some on foot, others driving, and still more by train. The automobile has made more distant and out of the way fishing grounds possible. These same crowds will leave the city for week-end fishing trips until the close of the season, Sept. 1.

THINKS JEFF CAN WHIP JOHNSON

Fitzpatrick, Former Manager, Says Jeff Is the Better Man.

San Francisco, Cal., March 27.—Sam Fitzpatrick, who piloted Jack Johnson to the heavyweight championship and to the afterward came to the parting of the ways with the now famous colored heavyweight, is resting for a few days in San Francisco before proceeding East. Fitzpatrick has very little to say on the subject of his several relations with Johnson. He tells briefly that the negro was very hard to manage after he reached the top of the heap, and that the breakup was inevitable.

Naturally, American sporting men are anxious to know how Jeffries and Johnson compare in Fitzpatrick's opinion. When asked the question point blank, Fitzpatrick smiled. Then he spoke as follows:

"I am in a peculiar position, inasmuch as having spoken with Johnson, anything I might say that was not a boost for Johnson's fighting qualities might be considered a knock. For this reason I have been very cautious, but now I am going to speak right out and tell what I think. I always thought that Jim Jeffries, in his best development, was the greatest heavyweight the ring has known. He was great in every way, and particularly great for the reason that no one could hurt him. When a man like Fitzsimmons could hit Jeffries a dozen times on the jaw and not feaze him, there is small chance of any of the men who came after Fitzsimmons putting Jeffries out of commission.

"Now, as to Jeffries' chances with Johnson. I think that if training will make Jeffries half as good as he was when he quit the game, he will defeat Johnson to a certainty. I almost fancy I can hear some one say, 'Oh, this because of Sam's split up with Johnson.' But those who know me better will give me credit for speaking honestly. If Jeffries feels he can stand training, he should not hesitate an instant about fighting Johnson. I might add that the Johnson-Burns fight in Sydney helped to lead me to these conclusions. Johnson is not a puncher. He had no difficulty in reaching Burns, but he could not beat him down.

"I notice that some of the American critics say that I, as Johnson's manager, did not have much to say about Jeffries after the Burns-Johnson fight. Open confession is good, and the reason I kept silent on the Jeffries subject is that I felt, after seeing Johnson in action against Burns, that Jack would not stand any very great chance of defeating Jeffries. If I had continued as Johnson's manager, part of my policy would have been to steer him clear of Jeffries.

"I don't know whether Jeffries has any intention of fighting Johnson, but this I do know, or at least think I know: If Jeffries wants the match he had better grab Johnson right away and make the negro sign before he goes to England. If Johnson once reaches England it will be all off. He will then say: 'I gave Jeffries a chance and he overlooked it. I will not bother with him any more.'

"If, on the other hand, Jeffries forces Johnson into an agreement before Johnson goes to England, the English sports will turn on Johnson if he refuses to keep his contract. London has great attractions for Johnson, and I think he wants to live there. He has the entree to swell restaurants, which is denied him in New York. And he is treated generally in a way that allows him to forget he is a colored man. If he gets to England without being tied up in some way, I doubt whether he will return here."

MAROON TRACK MEN ARE BUSY

Chicago Athletes Prepare for Hard Series of Outdoor Meets.

Chicago, March 27.—With the indoor season out of the way, University of Chicago track athletes are beginning to turn their attention to the schedule of outdoor events already arranged for them by Director A. A. Stagg. Contests with Wisconsin, Purdue and Illinois have been dated by the Maroon coach, and these, with the addition of the Pennsylvania tryouts, Pennsylvania relay games, and the annual Inter-collegiate conference meet in June, complete the list of events for the Midway athletes.

Director Stagg has decided on April 17 as the date for his tryout to select a relay team to compete in the Quaker relay carnival. One week later the Maroons will participate in the first Intercollegiate competition of the season at Philadelphia. All the meetings with the Western colleges have been set for Saturdays in May. On May 8 Captain Lingle will take his runners and jumpers to Madison to meet the Badgers. On May 15 the Illini will be seen on Marshall field, and on May 22 Coach Wilson of Purdue will invade the Midway camp with his squad of Boilermakers. June 5 is the date set for the conference meet on Marshall field.

Much enthusiasm is being expressed among the students over the prospect of developing a winning relay quartet for the Quaker games. In years past the Maroon runners have been eminently successful whenever they appeared against the Eastern cracks and the Midway enthusiasts decide the quality of the material at the university was never better. Davenport, the star freshman 440 man, Capt. Lingle, Comstock, Timbiln, Mennal, Stophlet, Shuart and Baird are all first class distance runners, and it is believed an unbeatable squad could be picked from these candidates.

At present there is much doubt in Director Stagg's mind as to whether he should send a mile relay team, in which each man would run 440 yards, or a four mile team in which each runner would have to cover a mile. Stophlet, Comstock, and Baird are better at let, Comstock, and their records made during the winter meets classify them as first-raters. For a fourth man Lingle or Timbiln would probably be selected but the mile requires an altogether different pace from that to which the latter two are accustomed, and it is a question whether they could stand the longer grind.

On the other hand, a classy combination is possible for the mile event, but here again at least one athlete would have to be used who would be unfamiliar with the distance. Davenport, Lingle and Menaul are the three best 440 men and they could be counted on to hold their own in any company, according to the rooters. For a fourth man Comstock and Timbiln would be the eligibles, but neither one is a quarter miler. Comstock prefers the mile, while Timbiln has always competed in the half mile.

It is probable that Stagg will follow out his custom of taking athletes to compete in several of the individual events. Although the trials are a long way off, it is almost certain that Jacobs and Schommer will go East to take part in the pole vault and high jump. Schommer has finished his term of athletic competition as far as the Western conference is concerned, although, according to the rules of the Pennsylvania games, he will be permitted to enter that event.

LONGBOAT, HAYES, SHRUBB AND DORANDO TO MEET

New York, March 27.—Five entries have been accepted for the Marathon derby of $10,000, which will be decided at the Polo grounds on April 3. These five include Tom Longboat, the Indian who has twice defeated Dorando and has a victory over Shrubb to his credit; Johnny Hayes, the Olympic Marathon winner, who has since been beaten twice by Dorando; Alfred Shrubb, the great English professional; Henri St. Ilves, the French runner, who has just arrived in this country, and who, it is claimed, has never been beaten, and Dorando Pietri, the Italian, who finished first in the Olympic Marathon, only to be disqualified, and who defeated Hayes over the Marathon distance in Madison Square Garden.

The race is an invitation affair, and there is some question about allowing any runners to take part, although Maloney, White, Svenberg, the Swedish five-mile record holder; Simpson, an Indian; Fowler, Corey, Dineen and a small army of the long distance runners are clamoring for a chance to run.

DORANDO PIETRI.

JOHNNY HAYES.

Get Two Victories.

New York, March 27.—When the play ceased for yesterday in the eleventh annual Anglo-American chess match, begun at the rooms of the Brooklyn Chess club and Hotel Savoy, London, the Americans had succeeded in piecing the two victories to their credit and the outlook was that the Sir George Newnes trophy might be saved by a narrow margin.

The two victories were scored by A. B. Hodges of Staten Island and H. B. Voight of Philadelphia at the third and fourth boards, respectively.

CORBETT REALLY WANTS TO MEET JACK JOHNSON

Chicago, March 27.—Jim Corbett means business. The man who lost the world's championship to Bob Fitzsimmons twelve years ago wants to fight Jack Johnson, and is leaving no stone unturned to get the match. Corbett is now at Indianapolis with his show, and is planning to cancel all engagements on the stage if he can get Johnson's signature with his to a set of fight articles.

In response to a telegram informing him that Johnson could be glad to post $1,000 to bind a match with him, Corbett sent the following reply:

Indianapolis, Ind., March 15.—R. C. Cornell, Sporting Editor of the Examiner: Sent $1,000 to Al Smith in New York, but if Johnson puts up forfeit in Chicago I will cover it there.

JAMES J. CORBETT.

Nothing could be more convincing than that. And Corbett can get a fight with Johnson, despite the fact that the champion is going to fight Ketchel. Johnson is ready to meet all, and says he would like nothing better than a chance to prove he is a more clever man than Corbett.

The champion has wads of money with him, and declared that as soon as Corbett got his $1,000 into somebody's hands he would cover it at once.

"I mean fight," said Corbett over the long-distance telephone. "If there is one man in the world whom I think I can beat, that man is Jack Johnson. I've been training privately for a year and already am in pretty fair shape. Don't worry about my not being able to go a distance when the time comes. If I get the chance I'll bring the championship back to the white race. Close the match and I'll cancel all my stage engagements and start training at once."

NO DECISION IN FIRST BOUT BETWEEN MAYOR OF CITY MADE FAMOUS BY BEER, AND PRESIDENT OF METHODIST COLLEGE

Milwaukee, Wis., March 27.—One of the most remarkable debates ever held was that last night on "Resolved, That prohibition as applied to the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages is right," with Mayor David S. Rose of Milwaukee defending the negative and Dr. Samuel Dickie, president of Albion college, a Methodist institution in Albion, Mich., as speaker for the prohibitionists.

The great Hippodrome, with a seating capacity of 4,000, was jammed to the doors, and although admission was by card, great throngs of people were turned away.

There were five applicants for every ticket, and although the admission was free, tickets being issued to the various civic associations, offers of substantial sums for tickets were frequently made. People from all parts of the United States clamored for seats, inasmuch as this was the first of three debates, the second to be given at Chicago and the third at some city in the South.

Drys' Best Orator.

Mayor Rose at a recent Louisville convention challenged the National Prohibition party to produce its best orator to meet him on the question, so the debater was the accredited representative of the National Prohibition party against Mayor Rose, who is generally known as the advocate of "sane" regulation of the saloon. There was no decision.

Mr. Dickie was the first speaker. He said in part: "The prohibition of the liquor traffic is right, if considered only from the economic standpoint. The saloon is the foe of capital, but pre-eminently the enemy of labor. It paralyzes the arm of the working man, shortens his life, excludes him from many lucrative callings, decreases his power as a producer and throws into the labor market a vast mass of debased and unintelligent laborers who compete disastrously with the sober and industrious workmen. No line of manufacture gives employment to so few men in proportion to the capital invested as does the liquor traffic.

"The liquor business breeds criminals. The testimony of prison chaplains, of wardens, sheriffs and judges of the criminal courts warrant the assertion that from 80 to 90 per cent of crime is directly or indirectly traceable to the use of intoxicating liquors.

"Not only is the liquor traffic a breeder of criminals, but it is, itself, largely composed of men who do not hesitate to break the law. The great majority of retail liquor sellers are open and notorious law-breakers. The restrictive features of the Wisconsin statutes as to selling on Sunday and on legal holidays are openly, shamefully and flagrantly trampled under foot.

Most Efficient Method.

"Prohibition is right because it has been found to be the most efficient method of restraint.

"The friends of the liquor traffic are such as to condemn it by their own character and conduct. Conceding that a few men of fair respectability are its apologists, it nevertheless remains true that the lawless classes, the thieves, the gamblers, the thugs, the blacklegs, the outcasts, the harlots, the low and vile and degraded of both sexes can be depended upon to the last man and the last woman to stand with Milwaukee's mayor in opposing prohibition and advocating the saloon."

In arguing that prohibition is wrong, Mayor Rose treated the subject from three viewpoints, the Biblical, ethical and material. He showed that while in ancient times the evil existed, when the ten commandments were written no attempt was made to inject prohibition, and he challenged anyone to find one word in the Bible advocating the theories of the Prohibitionists. Treating the subject from the ethical side, he took the census of the government and records of cities and states to prove that prohibition increased crime, insanity, deaths, domestic infelicity, pauperism and stagnated business.

He took the criminal records of Milwaukee, a wide-open town, and showed that the arrests there per capita were less than in the prohibition states of Maine, Kansas and Georgia. He showed that more drunkards existed in Maine than Wisconsin. He quoted census figures to show that more insanity existed in prohibition states than in neighboring "wet" states and that the death rates in Maine and Kansas were higher than the rates in the "wet" states adjoining.

Whooping Cough Worse.

Much was said about thousands of drunkards dying every year, but the mayor again quoted census figures to show that more people died from whooping cough and measles than alcoholism. Of the latter disease 6.4 per 1,000 died, while of persons in each 1,000 in every 100,000 digestive diseases, 231.3 in every 100,000 died. He quoted figures to show that there were more divorces in Kansas and Maine than in Wisconsin, a wet state, that prohibition states also had more paupers. He showed that the bank deposits of dry states were smaller than in wet states, and said that prohibition had been a failure wherever tried because it was impossible to correct the ills and weaknesses of man by laws. In the South the theory had failed, liquor was to be had not only by whites, but by blacks, and that a marked increase in the drug habit was noticeable.

Nation-wide prohibition, he said, would mean a loss of $215,930,000 of revenue, year to the government, would seriously affect the farmer and laborer of the country because the brewers and distillers consume $109,000,000 of grain a year. It would paralyze railroads, cripple railroads, and be felt in every walk of life. It would deprive people of personal liberty—all for no purpose except the fanaticism of the Prohibitionists. The mayor urged sane regulation as the true solution of the drink problem.

An Ideal Cough Medicine.

"An an ideal cough medicine I regard Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in a class by itself," says Dr. R. A. Wiltshire of Gwynneville, Ind. "I take great pleasure in testifying to the results of Chamberlain's Cough Medicine. In fact, I know of no other preparation that meets so fuly the expectations of the most exacting in cases of croup and coughs of children. As it contains no opium, chloroform or morphine it certainly makes a most safe, pleasant and efficacious remedy for the ills it is intended." For sale by all druggists.

AT THE LYCEUM

"PARSIFAL" MONDAY; VIOLA ALLEN IN "THE WHITE SISTER" TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY, AND "THE WOLF" THE REST OF THE WEEK.

VIOLA ALLEN will be seen here in a new play, the title of which is "The White Sister." Her latest vehicle is the work of F. Marion Crawford, whose novels are world-famous, and Walter Hackett, author of numerous plays and short stories. The date for this performance is announced by the management of the Lyceum as Tuesday, March 30, and the engagement will continue for two nights.

"The White Sister" is the dramatic story of a nun, Sister Giovanna by name, and when the curtain rises on the first act of this remarkable play we find her happy and contented living her life in an ivy covered convent just outside the confines of Rome. Her life work is before her and she is known the length and breadth of the province of her generous sympathy. Her existence is ideal from the standpoint of the church. She has loved and her life has been much the same as that of any young Italian woman of high birth, prior to her taking the veil some five years before the action of the play begins. The lover to whom she was betrothed went away to war, and every man in his regiment had been reported lost. He has not been heard from for five years, and there is no doubt in the mind of the Italian girl but that he has perished. Without warning she is brought face to face with her betrothed, who has escaped from the prison, where he was confined after being captured on the battlefield.

The wonderful dramatic tenseness of this meeting in the sunlit garden of a romantic old convent, is one of the most startling situations conceived by a playwright of any time, and its effect cannot be imagined unless one sees this inspiring performance.

The second act of "The White Sister" commences with the struggle between the church and the man for possession of Sister Giovanna, and the masterly manner in which Mr. Crawford and Mr. Hackett have dealt with their extremely delicate subject is a revelation in the art of writing. It is a struggle between love and duty. The love of the soldier beckons her to forsake her vows, made in ignorance of his escape from death, and the honor of her pledge argues that duty and love of her church command that she remain within the bonds of her order. This emotional strife forms the basis for the introduction of subplot and incident which gives to "The White Sister" a continuous interest not to be found in any other similar play.

"The White Sister" has that interest maintained without cessation throughout its entire course, and its greatest claim for what may be called "popularity," lies in the fact that the authors have kept the element of suspense alive throughout every act and a satisfying outcome is not suspected until just before the final curtain.

"PARSIFAL."

Dramatization of Old Legend Coming for One Night Only.

The legend of "Parsifal," which will be seen at the Lyceum theater, crystalizes around two mystic objects, a spear and a cup or chalice, called in mediaeval speech "grail." The old romancers loved to weave song and story about these sacred objects. They used to tell how the Roman governor, Pontius Pilate, gave them to Joseph of Aramathea. That spear they accounted to be the cruel shaft which pierced the heart of Jesus as he hung dying on Calvary. That crystal cup they dreamed of as the chalice which He had used in the parting supper, and in which was caught the blood which streamed from His wounds as loving hands removed His body from the cross. This blood-dipped spear and this grail haunted the thoughts of the middle ages as the emblems of that life-giving and redemptive energy bestowed upon the world through the death on the cross. From them streamed a talismatic virtue. The touch of the spear wrought health; sight of the grail gave life. They glowed with light celestial. The devotee who gazed upon them found the shadows lifted from his heart. They were charged with a heaven-born vigor which rejuvenated the wasting springs of mortal life. When they were unveiled a super human vitality was imparted, which could more than offset the drain of mortal years.

Three characters in this story center the attention—a king, an enchantress, a deliverer.

The king is smitten with a grievous wound. Venturing within the precinct of the abode of evil he is entrapped; the sacred spear is snatched from his hand, its point is thrust into his breast, and he makes his way back to the sanctuary of the grail to drag out a crippled existence of lingering torture, which all resources of human skill, and even the mystic, unearthly life-force of the grail are powerless to relieve. A being of royal capacity and bearing all the tokens of kingliness in mind and heart, and yet how weak and ignoble; tortured with pain, lashed by conscience, wrung by mental anguish, in the throes of a perpetual struggle with itself, defeated degraded, a king, but writhing with a wound which no art can medicine, no skill can staunch, and the ravages of which the holy symbols of the divine quickening sometimes seem to have lost their power to stay.

The second character is Kundry, a strange woman, gifted with the power that unnerves resistance and enchains the faculties as with magic—a tool of evil. Kundry has not always been a slave and instrument of evil; a mockery of the Redeemer brought her under a curse which compelled an age-long servitude as an unwilling temptress until her chain should be broken by one whose purity could withstand the terrific force of her fatal blandishment. While she plies every art to drag a fresh victim into the toils of her master, she prays that her lure may be conquered and that the tempted one, clothed with the strength of victory, may rend the diabolic snare in which her own soul has been entangled. The seductive allurements of evil, which the constraint of her sad fate compels her to exert, are made to serve as a background which is projected the magnificence of the complete triumph over evil; the chaste heart is shown to be clad in complete steel; vice is demonstrated to be weaker than virtue; sin is revealed as impotent to beat down the guard of holiness, though it call into the field all its subtlety and energy. The will to do right is exhibited as a Gibraltar that cannot be carried by assault.

The central character in the story is a deliverer—a mere youth, utterly untutored in the actualities of life, reared in forest depths, nested in a mother's guardian love, ignorant of the touch of pain, of the cry of woe and of the sleep of death. The singular title given to him is that of a "Guileless Fool." This crisp and tantalizing epithet is modeled on the quaint conceits and the odd names with which the old-time characters delighted to christen themselves. The meaning is more than it seems and lies deeper than the surface. "Guileless," the dictionaries tell us, means "free from deception," "honest," "sincere." The deliverer of man must be honest to the core, genuine to the center, imbued with reality to the very soul.

The relation of these three characters is unfolded in a story, which consists of four chapters—first, "The Sorrow;" second, "The Deliverer Beholds the Sorrow;" third, "The Deliverer Tastes the Suffering," and fourth, "The Deliverer Heals the Woe."

"THE WOLF."

Canned Cries of Real Wolf Pack Add Realism to Play.

In "The Wolf,' which will be presented at the Lyceum during the latter half of the week, there is told not only an interesting and well-acted story of the great outdoors of the Canadian fur country, but there is produced a story of dramatic realism.

The reproduction of the howling pack of timber wolves whose yelps and wailing cries are made more real by the accompanying voice of a genuine wolf, has never been excelled. The strange effect of the cries of the wolf pack, was secured during an afternoon at the Bronx Park Zoological garden in New York. Experts from the recording forces of a big phonograph company, armed with necessary apparatus, stationed themselves in front of the cages of the wolves in the zoo and waited for the captive Ishmaels of the Northwest to howl into the big horn. Eugene Walter, the author of "The Wolf," was there to say when and how, and finally a concert of cries from the throats of the shaggy beasts gave the operator his cue, and he began to record the voices of the wolves.

At every performance of "The Wolf," during the stirring and exciting duel in the dark, between the hero, Jules Beaubien, and William McDonald, the villain, the howl of the pack is heard, while accompanying it note for note, a real timber wolf whose mate was killed on account of her ferocity, gives wild voice to his lonelinses.

"Teddy," the lone timber wolf, who nightly cries aloud his sense of wrong and loneliness to heaven, was presented with his mate, Nanette, to Miss Lorie Palmer, who plays the pretty Swede girl, Hilda, during a recent engagement of "The Wolf" in Oklahoma City. She accepted them as pets, but one of them, at least, has become a valuable adjunct to the realism of the play. Nanette's untamable spirit was so fierce that the management was forced to kill her, and so "Teddy" is left to give his nightly cry alone.

During the last act of the drama, when the terrific duel in the dark is fought amid the howlings of the hungry wolves in the forest, "Teddy's" voice adds many thrills.

Nightly when the curent is turned on in the phonograph and the cries of the pack are heard, which is his cue, "Teddy's" voice mingles and blends with those of his absent brothers.

Lyceum Notes.

No other play of modern years has become famous as suddenly, or so swiftly raised its author from comparative obscurity to the first rank of the leading newspapers and magazines in the United States and Canada have proclaimed "The Servant in the House" the greatest play of modern times. In one year, the Kennedy drama has become known to every theatergoer and magazine writer in America, and the play is now being prepared for presentation in every capital in Europe. The famous comedy-drama will be presented at the Lyceum theater for one week, beginning Monday, April 12, with Wednesday and Saturday matinees, by Henry Miller's all-star associate players, a cast that includes Creston Clarke, Clay Clement, George W. Wilson, Lizzie Hudson Collier, Wilfred Roger, Gwladys Wynne, and Henry Dornton.

Chorus girls have automobiles and poodle dogs and other luxuries, but Lucille Reynolds of "The Red Mill" company, which comes to the Lyceum soon, is the first who has brought with her a masseur.

Miss Reynolds is not an ordinary chorus girl. She's an expert dancer, and she is kept busy at seven and eight performances a week, doing gymnastic work as strenuous as a ball player in a training camp.

She keeps in training all the time, looks after diet as carefully as a prize-fighter, and has "rubdowns" regularly after her hard work.

"The Lion and the Mouse," with what is said to be the best cast ever presented in the Klein play, is scheduled for the Lyceum on April 9 and 10.

"A Stubborn Cinderella," soon to be presented in this city, is the latest musical comedy by the authors of "The Time, The Place and The Girl," "Honey Moon Trail" and "The Girl Question." It was produced for the first time by Mort H. Singer, at the New Princess theater, where it is still running with a record of over 500 consecutive performances. It has been a phenomenal and brilliant success, and the dramatic critics without an exception were loud in their praise and predicted many years of prosperity for it. It authors have supplied an ingenuous and amusing book and a series of tuneful and bright lyrics.

The story of "A Stubborn Cinderella" is divided into three scenes, the first showing the campus of the Columbus university, which is changed for the second act to a railroad wreck in the Far West, and the third act discloses a view of the Natatorium of Coronada Beach hotel, California, while an orange fete is in progress. The attraction is here on April 5, 6 and 7, at the Lyceum.

Richard Carle in "Mary's Lamb" is booked for the Lyceum this season. The tall comedian has been singularly successful in this sprightly musical gambol, which ran for three months in New York this summer, and also enjoyed two long engagements in Chicago. Mr. Carle brings a splendid company of principals and a chorus that is said to be the finest in musical comedy.

Now that "Ben Hur" has come and gone and the engagement has been such a successful one, Klaw & Erlanger have determined to offer to local theatergoers their own big production, "The Right of Way." The play is a dramatization of Sir Gilbert Parker's famous novel, by Eugene Presbrey. Guy Standing plays the role of Charley Steele and Theodore Roberts is cast as Joe Portugals. As the French habitant, Mr. Roberts has the best part in his career, surpassing such excellent interpretations as Col. Canby in "Arizona" and Tabywana, the Indian chief, in "The Squaw Man."

It is an indisputable fact that in the great crisis of the average human life, not more than four people figure vitally. Playwrights are beginning to realize this fact and concentration of individual interest is now recognized as an essential to first class dramatic writing. Seymour Oberner, author of "The House of Bondage," which Florence Roberts will produce at the Lyceum late in April, is this respect is said to have conceived an ideal play. Aside from the role portrayed by Miss Roberts, there are three other characters that are of nearly equal prominence in the story. These are played by Thurlow Bergen, Ann Warrington and Mary Bertrand. Others noticeable in Miss Roberts' support are Hallet Bosworth and Harry Gibbs.

Tourists returning from abroad after seeing "The Merry Widow" declare that the famous waltz and the dance that goes with it in the second act make up a love scene of such high temperature that the Nethersole kiss, the Bernhardt embrace and the Duse soulful eyes are as mild as a Boston girl's caress in comparison, when Henry W. Sapage's American production of "The Merry Widow" is shown at the Lyceum early in May.

"When Old New York Was Dutch" is the title of the play provided this season for Al H. Wilson. The scenes of this play, which was writen by Sidney R. Ellis, are laid in and around what is now New York city during the sixteenth century, and the dialogue tells an interesting story of the quaint people who inhabited the island of Manhattan in the long ago.

AT THE BIJOU

POPULAR NEW YORK COMEDIANS, THE FEATURE OF WEEK'S ATTRACTIONS, AND MABEL McKINLEY COMING NEXT WEEK.

THE program of vaudeville offered at the Bijou commencing Monday afternoon will be fully up to the standard of the excellent shows presented this season. Heading the list will be Sydney Grant, one of the most popular comedians of New York. Mr. Grant will introduce for the first time to Western vaudeville theaters his funny stories, originated and told only by himself. The following is a recent notice from the New York Telegraph, when Sydney Grant was appearing at Hammerstein's: "Never in the history of New York vaudeville has a comedian become so popular and made such a decided hit as Sydney Grant at Hammerstein's this week. His stories are new, and the audience is hungry for more of his clever comedy at each performance."

A musical treat of exceptional merit will be Zay Holland, the violinist, who is considered one of the best women violinists in America. Her tones are artistic and her technique perfect. Her selections are classic and of the kind that require a master hand. Mrs. Holland has a charming stage presence and always becomes a great favorite where she appears.

In the sketch line the clever comedy playlet, entitled, "Home Sweet Home," will be presented by the well-known and talented artists Ernest Anderson and Madge Burt. The sketch was produced at the Bijou a year ago, and was a big success, and from press reports the act is better than ever this year.

A good singing and dancing act will be presented by Kessler and Dunn, two clever comedians, who introduce a line of comedy, original songs and expert dancing numbers that are exceptionally good As an added feature attraction the management offers the premier comedy cyclists of the world, Count De Butz and Richard Tossell, who has just returned from a two years' tour of European vaudeville houses. This act has the reputation of being the topliners of all comedy bicycle acts and had the honor of appearing before royalty in England four times within one year.

Isadore Silver will sing a popular illustrated song, entitled, "Under the Evening Star."

A complete set of Edison's best motion picture subjects will be shown. Matinees are given daily at 2:45 o'clock and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved by either telephone. School children's matinee will be given Saturday at 2:30. Performances Sunday afternoon and night.

One of the big feature attractions that will be seen at the Bijou in April will be Miss Mabel McKinley, the only living relative of President McKinley. Miss McKinley is a beautiful singer, and has composed many of the most popular song hits, among which is "Golden Rod," which has been adopted in nearly all the public schools of America.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

CLYDE FITCH'S NEW PLAY, "THE BACHELOR," A FLIMSY AFFAIR—THE SUFFRAGETTE PLAY SPLENDIDLY ACTED — THE HENRY JAMES COMEDY : : : : : : : : : :

New York, March 27.—Clyde Fitch's comedy, "The Bachelor," has succeeded Carlotta Nilsson at Maxime Elliott's theater. It features Charles Cherry, the English leading man who supported Miss Elliott so admirably as the German princeling in "Her Great Match," some years ago, and more recently played the intruding young lawyer in "Girls." In the cast with him is Ruth Maycliffe, the pretty youngster in this latter farce, in which she made quite an impression along the Great White Way. Now she is playing a sweet typewriter girl in the office of George Goodale, broker, who is the bachelor in the case.

It is one of the most inconsequential stories that ever formed the slender skeleton of even a Fitch play, but it is richly embellished with Fitchian local color and the peculiar Fitch touches and effects, stage decorations, etc., which do more to make his ware go than the deepest plot and the subtlest psychology doubtless would. The girl is in love with her employer, who, of course, is a woman hater, or at least a confirmed cellbate. Out of pity for the girl's infatuation for him, Goodale engages himself to her on the the mere say-so of her veal of a young brother that Millicent secretly pines for him. His heart is not in the deal. But when Millicent jilts him because she has just learned that she is indebted to her ubiquitous and zealous young brother for her betrothal, he wakes up and discovers that he really is in love with her.

And so, when he makes her come to the office again after the split-up, he dictates a love letter to her on the typewriter, melts her heart and has her dissolve in his affectionate embrace, whereupon the curtain falls. The piece is hastily written, and you would not be able to descry the psychology with a microscope. But somehow Fitch exercised his usual infallible conjury, and for all any one is safe in saying, the piece will run 300 nights, though one takes long chances in betting that way. One never can tell.

Mary Shaw plays the heroine of "Votes for Women," the suffragette play staged at Wallack's, and if it rested with her alone the piece would have made one of the biggest hits of the season. She is so sure and so thorough in whatever she undertakes that she forms half the attraction. But the fate of the suffragette play hangs in the balance. If the wonderful mob scene in Trafalgar Square, put on by the Actors' society with amazing realism and fidelity to nature, is able to make up for the conventional material which Miss Elizbeth Robins has woven into her play in the nature of a plot, it is not improbable that it will be running at Wallack's when the roses bloom again in midsummer. So far as acting can make it go, it is sure of approval. And the great suffragette meeting in Trafalgar Square is, after all, the nerve center of the interest.

For the rest, the story deals with a woman with a past who becomes prominent in the woman's movement after ten years have drawn the curtain of forgetfulness over the unhappy love affair with Geoffrey Stonor. Then she turns up as the dark angel of retribution between her betrayer and a young girl he wants to marry. He is within reach of a cabinet portfolio. The woman with the past can crush him. The younger woman discovers the truth and insists on Stonor making reparation. He submits and offers his hand to the wronged one. But her heart is greater than we bargain for. This suffragette leader gives up her claim and lets the younger woman dream out her love as Stonor's wife.

The piece had a wonderful first night. All the suffragette leaders in town were present. The lobby looked like a military camp with its profusion of banners and flags, and the boxes were occupied by the champions of the cause, who applauded to the echo.

Your humble servant is gradually coming to the conclusion that there are more good plays excluded from Broadway than are produced along that sophisticated, but indiscriminating, travel-worn thoroughfare. We had two occasions last week to revel in the glory of simple primroses at the river's brim, of which the unusual professional managers had taken no notice. One was Henry James' comedy, "Disengaged;" the other was "A Struggle of Souls," by Pierce Hyacinthe Lyson, a French writer, a play which, I believe, has made some stir in Paris. Both were presented at special afternoon performances, the first for the benefit of a hospital, at the Hudson theater, and the other by the pupils of a dramatic school at the Empire. Dorothy Donnelly, who has been chafing under the suspicion that she may pass her young life in the roles of adventuresses and such like people, was responsible for "Disengaged." But for the ambition to show her friends what she could do in the light comedy part of a young widow with a turn for parlor intrigue, it is possible that we should never have seen Mr. James' comedy, which is written in the good, clean, crisp English we should expect on the part of society people, and for that reason alone would be considered unavailable for Broadway. The piece has a light, frothy consistency, and depends for its effect on the spirit in which it is interpreted. Miss Donnelly surrounded herself with a picked cast, from half the theaters in town, and managed to give her audience a real treat. Incidentally she showed that she is very clever in light comedy and her infectous laugh is as potent in a good as in a sinister cause. The play pleased, too, in spite of its English setting and rather thin thread of plot.

Although "The Struggle of Souls" was done by undergraduates, it was done well enough to make it thoroughly interesting, and it held the audience in a state of profound suspense which I have seldom seen equaled. It is a thesis play, dealing with the conflict between religion and scientific materialism in the household of a distinguished naturalist who has written an immortal work on the origin of man, bringing back proof from Java, which is a direct contradiction of the teachings of the priests to whom his wife and child are slavish subjects. The 16-year old daughter of the savant becomes a convert to her father's theory after a terrible domestic conflict between the father and mother, backed by the priest and the fanatical grandmother. The mother loves her distinguished husband, but the teachings of the church are more than paramount. When she sees her own child in danger of apostacy, she arraigns herself on the side of the church.

The father is a noble man, indifferent to the influence of the priest in his household until this relation threatens to discredit him in the eyes of the scientific world. The schism begins over a trifle, but it widens till it forms a line of distinct cleavage. With infinite skill and finesse the author has applied on details and worked in his incidents and clever touches, always intensifying the suspense, and, regardless of theatrical conventions, working out the story to its tragic solution of which the daughter is the victim.

The question has been put to her to choose between the parents, and heart disease supervenes as a result of the ordeal. The father is told that there is little hope. He begs his wife to admit as many priests as wish to come, but h never swerves from his belief that death ends all. He cannot kneel when the agonized wife implores him to pray that the greatest blow of all may be averted.

And the child? She longs for her father's studio, to be near his books and in the atmosphere of his presence. There has been a tremendous scene between the child and the priest. Her ideals have been destroyed; she believes in her father, and as he holds her hand for the last time she tells him he has triumphed. There is a scene of ineffable tenderness when the end approaches. She longs to know the decision of the doctors.

"Is there no hope?"

The distracted attitude of the father reveals the truth to her. But she is resigned to die; only—are they never to meet again hereafter? Is this the end? Shall she never be united with her dead father beyond the grave?

And this is the crucial problem at issue between faith and science. Think of the poor father's feelings, when there is no affirmative reply to be made to this question of his idolized child. The author is not a pleader. He represents both sides with absolute fairness. The play moves with the gravity of fate; events follow one another as they do in life without theatrical interludes and convenient shifts to heighten a situation. Yet everything is intensely dramatic, for souls are laid bare and we see the working and the mechanism of human minds and hearts in all their nakedness.

And the end? Hope and light—the light that so often illumines the mind when the film of death is already drawn over the eyes; the great light that seems to shine out from the darkness beyond the grave. And on that note the strange tragedy ends, with the mother at one side, the father at the other side of the bed, and the stoled priest with candle near by.

The performance made a wonderful impression on the spell-bound audience, which hardly breathed through the four acts. It seems strange that such a play, full of vital ideas and so splendidly rounded out with dramatic details, no conception of which can be conveyed in a recital, should not find a place and an audience on Broadway. It is an inspirational work, so well balanced between the two questions that neither side can be offended, but—it is not for Broadway. It might and ought to find a place in the repertoire of the New Theater; but it is only a modest primrose now among the season's few really substantial offerings.

The boys refused to leave the theater, and the house manager put them in orchestra seats. And "The World and His Wife," originally written thirty years ago by Eschegaray, was time and again refused by the astute managers of American theatricals.

The gowns worn by Miss Grace Filkins in Charles Klein's masterpiece, "The Third Degree," now playing at the Hudson theater, New York, represent Parisian styles that will not be seen in America for a year hence. Miss Filkins, who has always been recognized as one of the best dressed actresses on the American stage, when she was engaged for this play, sent to Paris and bought such dresses as would represent the latest effects by the most famous Parisian modistes.

In the first act she is seen in a creation of Paquin. It is a blue pastel with a tiered skirt and long train. It represents the Louis Phillippe period. To add distinguishment it has a vest of black and white striped silk and a collar of black chiffon velvet. The hat is made of maribou with jet trimmings. The costume of this act is an absolute street gown. Four hundred dollars represents the price of the dress and $70 for the hat.

The second act shows Miss Filkins in a Drecoll model, absolutely directoire. It is made of black mireau silk with lapels on the front, buttoned separately to form a jacket effect. These buttons are hand embroidered in gold and blue. It has a high turnbroldered collar, edged with a very narrow gilt band. The skirt clings to the figure and is full at the bottom. A sash hangs from the left side. With this dress is worn a cabriolet hat, trimmed with bird of paradise feathers. A boa and muff of pointed fox is carried. The boa extends to the knees, and is lined with white satin with quarter-inch blue stripes, of fur two inches wide between the stripes. The entire muff is twenty-six inches in width. The gown cost, in Paris, $400, and the hat $85, while the furs represent an outlay of $300.

A most glorious creation is Miss Filkins' third-act gown. It was made by Ducet. The material is sky-blue mireau satin clouded with smoky gray tulle with a Grecian border of silver around the over-skirt to give it a tunic effect. The bodice is covered with a pale blue net, which is hand embroidered with heavy silver flowers. The bodice is completed by two magnificent rhinestone Empire buckles, one on the left shoulder and the other at the back. The back is cut in one piece with the seams on the side, with nine large buttons of the same color as the material on each side. A large hat with black lynx fur trimmings adds to the picturesqueness of the gown. This gown cost $600 and the hat $75.

A cloak that Miss Filkins wears in the fourth act is also worth describing. It was made by Callot. It is a combination of directoire and Roman. It is made of darkest bottle green chiffon velvet and is trimmed with shirred bands of same with rosettes of velvet on these bands about eight inches apart. It is slit up the sides and is lined with a mahogany pink satin. This cloak cost $300.

With the laudable motive of having on hand statistics such as are often in demand, Liebler & Co. have sent out a set of blanks to every actor and actress in their employ, requesting a complete disclosure of all secrets and achievements of the past. Of course, the question has been generally neglected in the replies received to date, more often by the men than by the women, by the way, though the burning problem of the average age of ingenues is hardly any nearer solution now than before. The statisticians employed in filing away these blanks, have already noted one interesting fact, however. Every one of the Liebler companies, that has returned blanks, has a representative who at some time has appeared either with Booth or Barrett. Wilton Lackaye, the star in "The Battle," at the Savoy, New York, made his debut with Barrett. Ida Vernon of "The Man From Home," at the Astor, in the same city, was at one time Booth's leading lady, as was Minna Gale, who, after seventeen years of retirement from the stage, is now playing with Viola Allen, in "The White Sister," in Chicago.

Fuller Mellish, who is with Eleanor Robson, in "The Dawn of a Tomorrow," at the Lyceum theater, played with Booth in England, and Albert Bruning of "The Strong People" company, played with him in Germany. Ada Lewis represents "The Head of the House" company herself, for she acquired early experience in Booth's mohs, while "Cameo Kirby" is represented by Thomas Coleman, who was considered a reliable old-stager even when he played with Booth. For good measure, Mrs. Neil Warner, of Viola Allen's company, supported both Booth and Barrett, at various occasions, and the apparently youthful Charles Abbe, who plays the boyish Joe in "The Battle" at the Savoy, made an excellent Osric in the support of the greatest of Hamlets.

In the meantime, blanks are coming in at the rate of several a day, and an interesting lot of statistical, geographical, and historical information may be expected when the information thereon has been thoroughly digested.

Fannie Ward has purchased from Channing Pollock the English rights of a one-act play, entitled "With Her Back to the Wall," which she will present next summer in London. The piece was especially written for Miss Ward because of Mr. Pollock's recognition of her work in his dramatization of "In the Bishop's Carriage."

Klaw & Erlanger and Joseph Brooks have accepted a play by Mrs. Gertrude Andrews entitled "Through a Window," which they will produce early next fall.

Lillian Russell in "Wildfire" is doing phenomenal business on the Pacific coast. Her season will not close until the middle of June. She will open in her new play, "The Widow's Might," by Edmund Day, in New York the middle of September. Will Archie, who is playing the part of the stable boy, will be featured in "Wildfire" next season.

Joseph Brooks has engaged Eleanor Moretti for the part of the Egyptian, Iras, in "Ben Hur" next season. Klaw & Erlanger and Joseph Brooks are organizing an exceptionally strong company for this play for next season and will present it in the larger cities, such as New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Washigton, Baltimore, Chicago and Pittsburg.

"The Right of Way," Klaw & Erlanger's dramatization of Sir Gilbert Parker's novel, in which Guy Standing and Theodore Roberts are starring, is one of the successes of the season on the Pacific coast, despite the fact that the play was not received with the cordiality it deserved in the East. Messrs. Standing and Roberts remain together next season, appearing in an American play in which there are two big roles.

"The Round Up," Klaw & Erlanger's big play of the Arizona desert, by Edmund Day, has captured the West. Next setson it will be sent through the South and out to the Pacific coast, with a strong cast. Maclyn Arbuckle, however, will not play the role of the sheriff, as he has been called upon to create the leading role in Eugene Prsbrey's new play, "The Circus Man," which will be produced by Klaw & Erlanger and Joseph Brooks in Chicago next August. "The Circus Man" will be one of those big productions for which Klaw & Erlanger have become famous.

It is stardom for Harry B. Warner next season, a reward that the handsome young English actor has earned by his excellent work in various Liebler & Co. productions. This year Mr. Warner is playing the part of Philip in "The Battle," at the Savoy—the boy around whom the battle wages. His starring vehicle will be constructed by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson, who wrote the century's success, "The Man From Home." Preliminary to the period of Mr. Warner's electric letters, he will be jointly featured with Miss Percy Haswell in "Foreign Exchange," a new play by this same prolific pair of playwrights, Tarkington and Wilson.

In a recent interview given to the newspapers of San Francisco, David Belasco speaks of the tendency of plays as a class, to vary with the requirements of the times and the demands of the public. He said:

"The making of plays moves in cycles. Just now I doubt if any play would catch the New York public, which did not have a simple, direct story told dramatically without scenic embellishment and without extraneous characters or situations. The people want the plays of simple scenes, showing something in life that they themselves know about. They want the small-cast plays, in which every character has some vital concern with the telling of the story. How long it will require for the vogue to pass, no man can say, but it will pass surely. And then will come another flood of big productions carrying many people, with elaborate scenery and costly effects. This is inevitable.

"My first success in New York—oh, seventeen years ago—was during a vogue of plays such as are being produced now. I presented my own play, 'La Belle Russe,' at Wallack's. It had only four characters, with two scenes. It caught the wave of popular favor, because at that time plays with short casts and direct stories were being played everywhere.

"But that vogue passed and there came an era of melodrama with mechanical effects. Then we produced 'The World,' 'The Lights o' London,' 'Romany Rye,' and those old melodramas. They gave way to the French school, and after a season or two such plays from the French, as 'The Two Orphans' and 'The Celebrated Case' were in highest favor.

"Following these came the domestic plays, including 'Hazel Kirke,' 'Esmeralda' and 'Mayblossom.' The society plays followed—'The Wife,' 'The Charity Ball,' 'Men and Women,' and many others.

"Then we had a mixed age, with a sprinkling of Civil war plays. It was at that time that I produced 'The Girl I Left Behind Me,' and introduced the first Indian to the stage. People found that was a novelty, although all my associates—this was at the Madison Square theater—argued against it. Since then the American Indian has become a familiar figure behind the footlights. Next followed the big productions, such as 'The Darling of the Gods.'

"Finally it got so that the managers were spending large fortunes on the production of plays. They carried it to an extreme, each in his effort to outdo the other. A reaction was inevitable and the pendulum has swung right back to simplicity again. So you see, I began in New York producing plays with small casts, and now the cycle has been completed and that is what I am producing now. 'The Easiest Way' has five characters. 'The Fighting Hope' my other production of this season, also has five, with only one scene. A few years ago all of my productions were massively gorgeous. Now they are simplicity itself. But they will be gorgeous again, when the reaction sets in. That is certain.

GRADUATING CLASS OF THE DULUTH NORMAL SCHOOL FOR 1909

THE HERALD'S HUMANE CORNER

Conducted by T. E. GRAE.

THE CARE OF CHILDREN AND THE POLICY OF THE HUMANE SOCIETY IN DEALING WITH CASES BROUGHT TO ITS ATTENTION : : :

Much is being said about the care of children in these days, and much more can be said. The public is beginning to realize that the way to lessen crime is to take care of the boys and girls. Strictly speaking, the care of the children belongs to the parents or guardians, but in many cases society has to step in and demand better training on the part of some parents. While there is not a parent living who wants to raise a criminal, yet the fact is that many become so, which is evidenced by the number in our penal institutions of various kinds.

Parents are primarily to blame, their lax methods of discipline, the comparatively little time given to the children's entertainment at home, and the little love bestowed upon them by parents, being largely responsible for the early delinquency of children. I do not mean to say that parents do not love their children, but they do not manifest it nor make the children feel their parental love until the child is in trouble, and then only while they are being taken by an officer or are before the court. Demonstrations at such times may be misinterpreted by the children as a mere matter of saving the family from the disgrace of having a child in a penal institution. The child has good reason for so interpreting the acts of the parents at that particular time, as they have not manifested such a feeling or interest and solicitation for the child's good and perhaps never show it again if the child is allowed to remain with them. Parents should be more demonstrative of their affection toward their children in every day life and in that way get and hold their devotion.

As a humane society, we seek to promote good feeling in the family and thus keep them together rather than to separate children from parents. Oftentimes we are called upon to go and take children away from their parents because of some alleged crime of the parents. Of course, the public understands that we cannot take away anybody's children without an order from the juvenile court. We can investigate and if there seems to be sufficient cause for a petition, we petition the court to have such children removed. This we have done in many cases, but we can not and will not arbitrarily take children away from home. We believe with the members of the White House conference that met at the call of President Roosevelt, January last. The conference reports and recommends as follows: "Home life is the highest and finest product of civilization. It is the great molding force of character. Children should not be deprived of it except for urgent and compelling reasons. Children of parents of worthy character, suffering from temporary misfortune, and children of reasonably efficient and deserving mothers who are without the support of the normal breadwinner, should, as a rule, be kept with their parents, such aid being given as may be necessary to maintain suitable houses for the rearing of the children. This aid should be given by such methods and from such sources as may be determined by the general relief policy of each community, preferably in the form of private charity than public relief. Except in unusual circumstances, the home should not be broken up for reasons of poverty, but only for considerations of inefficiency or immorality."

These sentiments coming from the best authorities on child caring, that we have in the land, are worthy of our consideration and approval. This haphazard way of dealing with children and dealing in children should be stopped by legislation. That some work done by institutions dealing in children, is questionable, there is no doubt. Reports come to us from such institutions that are of a revolting nature. That such institutions are simply dealers in children, there is no doubt. That the public stands ready to come to the relief of children and children's societies is well known and is taken advantage of by some. That men should become so mercenary that they will solicit funds under the mask of caring for the sick and the fatherless, is a desperate condition and the public should be informed.

FEAST OF PASSOVER

Jewish Festival Will be Observed in Duluth April 5 to 13.

Many Odd Customs Are Followed During That Period.

"Pesach," Feast of Passover, or Unleavened Bread, commemorative of the deliverance of the Jews from Egyptian bondage, which will be celebrated by Orthodox Jews in Duluth and all over the world for eight days, beginning with sundown on the fourteenth day of "Nissan," April 5, and ending with the approach of twilight on the evening of April 13, is one of the most holy and stringently observed holidays in the Jewish calendar.

Aside from the synagogue services, observed on the first evening of the holiday and followed by services both morning and evening of the two following days, with two more days of synagogue services after an intermission of four days from the first two days, the observation of "Pesach" is also replete with most impressive and beautiful home services on the first two evenings of the holiday.

Among the features of the home service, "seder" is the reading of the "Haggadah shel Pesach," (Story of the Passover), read aloud while the household is gathered at the family board, and the tasting of various dishes, specially prepared for the occasion, and each symbolical of the observance of the feast.

Preparations have been made by the housewife for this part of the ceremony, and when the head of the house, with his sons, returns from the synagogue, the table is found spread with the snowiest of linen and the soft gleam of candle light, from brightly shining candelabra, throws a soft shimmer over sparkling wine glasses and silver.

It is during the reading of the "Haggadah" that the different dishes are tasted and the wine sipped, all bearing significance toward the time when Judaism slaved in the Egyptian brick yards.

One of the peculiar dishes is "matzos," unleavened bread, which is served with every meal during the holiday.

These "matzos" are in the shape of giant soda crackers and are made without salt or yeast and are the unleavened bread of the Passover, prescribed for the table during the holiday and according to rabbinical law it is considered one of the most serious religious infractions not to observe the eating exclusively of this product in the place of the ordinary wheat or rye breads consumed during the rest of the year.

So stringent was the observance of this feature of the holiday in the olden days that very severe penalties were inflicted for infractions.

And today it is no uncommon occurrence for commercial travelers, even in quarters where the spirit of tradition is not so strong among the younger generation as in foreign climes, to return to their homes for at least the first two days of the holiday, or in as proper a manner as circumstances will permit, to observe the holiday while out on the road.

Another feature of the holiday is the setting aside of utensils used the year around, and their replacing by others, set aside from year to year or bought for the occasion, which are used exclusively during the eight days of the holiday, for it is absolutely against rabbinical prescription that any dish which has even been brought in contact with "hamaz" (leavens), should be used on the Passover table or in the kitchen.

But to make up for the barring of leavens from the table, many unique relishes and palatable dishes are served during the week of denial.

Aside from the fact that the holiday is commemorative of the deliverance of the Egyptian Jews from bondage, it is also observed because of the supposed passing over the house of Israel of death and destruction, which were visited upon the Egyptians for their extreme cruelty to the Judaic slaves.

That is also why the holiday is called the "Feast of Passover—death and destruction passed over the house of Israel."

That part of the story is recited in the "Haggadah" and during the time that it is being read, a goblet or glass of wine is set aside and untouched, in honor of the Prophet Elijah.

It is a tradition that on the evenings when the "seder" is being observed and during a certain time in the reading of the story of the Passover that the Prophet Elijah is making the rounds of the Jewish homes, and at this point the door of the home is left open for a short time, to show the spirit of welcome.

CARMAN'S HISTORY BY CASEY

Answers "Circular Letter" by Asserting He Has Protected Stockholders Against "Famous Triumvirate" ---Over-Issue of Stock Charged to Power.

Bisbee, Ariz., March 27.—J. P. Casey, who is largely interested in the Carman properties, has sent to the Review a letter explaining the status of that company's present difficulties and laying before the public what he asserts to be the true facts in the case. Mr. Casey's communication follows:

Bisbee, Ariz., March 16, 1909.—A "so-called" circular letter has recently been issued purporting to be by the Carman Consolidated Copper company to its stockholders, but which has in fact been issued by the now famous triumvirate, Messrs. W. J. Power, C. B. Bell and D. A. Richardson, three men who, from the very outset of the organization of the company, have adopted every device known to questionable and slippery dealings to wrest the control of the property from J. P. Casey and the stockholders, whose interests Mr. Casey has guarded with untiring energy.

The "so-called" circular letter simply bristles with the name of one D. A. Richardson, of which a mere reference to the recent unpleasantness of the Lucky Tiger Combination Gold Mining company will be sufficient.

The "so-called" circular letter cites as its principal reason, which will appear later as being misleading and a subterfuge for the purpose of pulling the wool over the eyes of the stockholders who have purchased in good faith, that W. J. Power, president of the Carman Consolidated Copper company, "blames J. P. Casey for the troubles which the company is having with him."

A review of the history of the Carman company will show that the difference between Mr. Power and Mr. Casey are based on the following:

The Carman company was organized under the laws of Arizona for 200,000 shares at $2.50 per share; 90,000 shares of treasury and 110,000 shares of capital stock, of which Mr. Power received one-third or 36,600 shares, and deducting the stock given away there were issued to J. P. Casey 77,400 of capital stock, which he still holds and which has not been bartered or traded in by him.

In addition to this 77,400 shares of capital stock there was also due Casey cash payments aggregating $26,870, of which only $9,600 were ever paid by Mr. Power or the company whereby the original contracts were forfeited.

Of the 90,000 shares of treasury stock there were authorized to be sold at par at the first meeting of the board of directors 39,600 shares only, which is shown by the minutes of the first meeting, and which board still stands, and have never resigned, and Mr. Power's purported board was never legally elected, according to Arizona laws, under which this company was organized.

Upon auditing the books of the com-

BISBEE NOT TO CUT OUTPUT

Warren District Mines Continuing Copper Production on Usual Scale---Low Costs Enable Companies to Operate at a Fair Profit.

Bisbee, March 27.—While other camps throughout the Southwest and other districts are curtailing production because of the low price of copper, the Warren district is continuing operations just as if the red metal was selling at 18 cents instead of in the vicinity of 12. There have been rumors current to the effect that there would be a cut in working days, such as became effective in Globe about ten days ago, but there is apparently no foundation for such stories.

General Manager Douglas of the Copper Queen company stated that he knew nothing of any such intention on the part of the big companies of the district and that so far as the Copper Queen company was concerned work would be continued just as it is at present "even if the company went broke," which is somewhat improbable—that is the going broke part.

Warren district copper is produced at a lower cost than in probably any mining district in the country and the companies operating here can continue production at a profit at a considerably lower price for the refined metal than the present one.

While working forces have been lessened in other districts they have been increased in this district, as in spite of the depression in the copper market, there has been a considerable increase in the development activity, the Dona-Arizona having resumed work and new development has been started by other companies.

MILL CLOSED FOR REPAIRS

Cactus Mill of Newhouse Property Being Repaired So That Tonnage May be Increased---Strike on Iron Blossom in Tintic.

Salt Lake, Utah, March 27.—In discussing the closing of the Cactus mill for repairs and the rumors that followed, Samuel Newhouse said of the property (the Newhouse in Beaver County): "The mill was in bad condition and was making an unsatisfactory saving of values. It will cost $17,000 and take sixty days' time to overhaul it in order that the tonnage sent through may be vastly increased and the saving also greatly increased. We have 200,000 tons of slime tailings which will be reworked in the mill when it is put in shape. In the mine itself, Maurice M. Johnson, the chief engineer, reports that there are 2,000,000 tons of ore actually blocked out."

The connection of the Ohio Copper company's shaft with the Mascotte tunnel level has been completed at a vertical depth of 1,967 feet and about 14,000 feet from the mouth of the tunnel.

Colorado and Sioux Consolidated, both Tintic mines, have posted their March dividends. Colorado will pay 8 cents a share, a total of $80,000 making the dividends of the company reach $1,330,000. Sioux Consolidated drops from 8 to 5 cents, making its dividend $27,269, or a total of a trifle over $287,000 in the six months since the mine struck pay ore.

At a depth of 250 feet in the Skylark shaft of the Utah-United Copper company in Beaver county, what is believed to be a big body of ore has been struck which assays $1.20 in gold, 2.4 ounces silver and 11.8 per cent copper. A crosscut run from the 250 station is several feet in ore with no wall in sight.

Three veins have been cut by the tunnel of the Utah Gold & Copper company operating in Washington county. Two of the veins carry four feet of galena ore and the third two feet. The ore averages about 25 per cent lead and 10 to 15 ounces silver to the ton. The old workings include a vertical shaft 140 feet deep and an inclined shaft sunk 110 feet, in both of which promising veins have been opened.

Another strike of ore has been made in the Iron Blossom in Tintic. It was in a crosscut from the north drift from the new shaft, and is said to be identical in quality with the strike in the east drift a short time ago. This strike is accepted as proving the continuity of the ore shoot from a point near the south side of the Sioux Consolidated for practically 200 feet north and south.

In the Old Dominion mine in the Silver Island district, a strike has been made of ore which carries 3 per cent bismuth, worth $1.75 a pound, in addition to 70 ounces of silver and 17 per cent copper.

The Tintic Standard in its south drift on the 450-foot level has run into a body of ore which carries 10 per cent lead, 14 ounces silver and $3.60 gold a ton. The drift had previously penetrated 135 feet of rock, which looked like ore but failed to carry any values.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Miners in Bear Lodge District Excited Over Recent Finds in Placer and Lodge Work---Tinton Tin Company to Resume.

Deadwood, S. D., March 27.—There is considerable excitement among the miners in the Bear Lodge mining district north of here over the recent finds in both placer and lode work. Some specimens of the ore found are on exhibition here. The property of Alfred Nobs and Charles and Lloyd Adams is showing up well with depth. This is among the oldest properties in that section, but more than the usual amount of work was accomplished this winter. Copper and other metals are found in the ore and the mine is expected before many months to be producing.

The Warren Peak Mines company on whose ground near Sundance more work has been done than on any other in this district, is showing some splendid rock recently encountered. The Bear Lodge Gold Mining company, composed of Wyoming men, has some good ground. Several of the smaller companies are running into good finds and the future of the district is promising.

New machinery is being installed on the Johnston ground on Iron Creek. The shaft, which has been sunk forty feet, will be continued down 100 feet more before any drift work will be started. The ore disclosed in the upper workings warrants development.

At the Tinton Tin Mining company's property, preparations are being made to resume this month.

The new shaft on the property of the Gold Eagle Mining company at Maitland has reached a depth of twenty-five feet. It will be put down 200 feet and is following the vertical ledge which is expected to dip away from the shaft within the next fifty feet. A crosscut will be commenced at the 100-foot level to tap the ledge.

A. M. Masters of Jacksonville, Ill., will commence this month to develop the Golden Girl group of claims in the Roubaix district. This ground was formerly known as the Pasha group and adjoins the old Clover Leaf property. Prospect shafts are to be sunk in the ledge, which is from 600 to 800 feet wide.

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

Explorations by Ontonagon County Companies Continue—Success of Majority in Disclosing New Beds of Copper—Keweenaw Actively Engaged in Work on Medora and North Lodes.

Houghton, Mich., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The exploratory campaigns inaugurated last summer by the several active Ontonagon county mining companies continue without interruption. Not all have been successful in locating new copper ground, but the success of the majority of the companies in disclosing heretofore unknown beds of copper of apparent commercial value has added considerably to the known resources of this end of the Lake Superior district, and promises still greater activity in the further exploitation of the "finds" during the coming summer.

Adventure.

Adventure has temporarily ceased diamond drill explorations, owing to an accident to the diamond drill outfit necessitating the abandonment of the hole at a depth of 1,650 feet. Since the discovery last summer of the three so-called Adventure lodes, operations have been confined to diamond drilling with the object of further testing the discoveries for copper and correlating the data gained in previous diamond drill borings. There have been no important developments recently.

Mass.

At the Mass mine a diamond drill is sinking a vertical hole through the discoveries made last fall by the machines then working in "A" shaft. The new hole is down considerably over 1,000 feet, which depth has been gained without adding anything of importance to information previously gained. Mining operations by the company continue with results much the same as in years past, good copper ground alternating with exceedingly poor ground, the latter being a rather predominant feature. Last month's output amounted to ninety-seven tons of mineral, of which thirty tons was in the shape of mass copper. The output was secured at a cost of $1.32 per ton of rock mined, a very creditable figure. Ten machines drills are regularly in service.

Lake.

Developments at the Lake mine, aside from the somewhat twisted and irregular strike of the lode with the attendant difficulties in following it, are highly encouraging. The north drift on the second level has again passed into vein rock carrying a small amount of barrel work after driving through upwards of 100 feet in barren trap rock, and is apparently working into the rich copper measure opened by the drifts south of the shaft. On the level below a cross-cut is driving westward to intercept what will probably prove to be the main working bed of the Lake formation. The cross-cut is in about sixty feet and breasted in trap rock similar to that found lying between the main and west lodes of the Baltic bed. The shaft is sinking in healthy vein matter fairly charged with copper at a depth of 520 feet. New openings are being made rather slowly, and although the ground opened to date does not carry copper at all points, the general average is, nevertheless, exceptionally high in copper content.

North Lake.

North Lake's diamond drill exploratory operations continue without interruption. Two drill outfits are engaged in securing a complete cross-section of the company's property preliminary to active mining operations. Results are quite closely guarded, but from information at hand nothing of importance has developed.

Wyandot.

Wyandot's operations to date disclose five amygdaloid lodes, three of which have been exploited to a limited extent without revealing copper in commercial quantities. The particular lode for which the cross-cut contract was obtained showing copper in considerable quantities, lies well in the horizon of the Lake lode, approximately 1,200 feet from the shaft. The cross-cut has traversed a little over half that distance, and is being extended at the rate of about 100 feet monthly.

Keweenaw.

Keweenaw is actively engaged in development work on the Medora and so-called North lodes. The results to date are rather discouraging. On the thirteenth level, the west drift has reached the west fissure vein and is turned to follow the fissure with the North lode as the objective point. The fine showing of copper ground expected at this depth did not materialize. The showing at the intersection of the fissure with the lodes on the level above was quite promising. The mill is treating an average of 110 tons of rock per day of twelve hours, and securing an output of about 35,000 pounds fine copper monthly.

Isle Royale.

Isle Royale's "A" shaft opened on the Baltic lode is sinking steadily at a depth of 200 feet. The ground at this depth is epidotic in character, and apparently barren of copper. The rock greatly resembles that on Superior's stock pile, which was obtained from the upper levels of that mine. At the No. 6 shaft on the Isle Royale lode, conditions underground remain unchanged from the excellent showing of the past. The shaft is rapidly approaching the seventh level. The big hoist at this point has been lined up and will probably be in commission early next month. At the No. 4 shaft to the north, recent developments on

BUTTE MINES' MARCH OUTPUT

Production Will be in Excess of 28,500,000 Pounds—Amalgamated Turning Out Copper at Low Cost—East Butte Opening Fine Vein on the [illegible]00-Foot Level.

Butte, Mont., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Butte mines will produce in excess of 28,500,000 pounds of copper in March. While production is not being pushed to the capacity of the mines, it is being kept at the normal rate without any evidence of intention to curtail. It is a fact well known that the Amalgamated officers, when it became evident that the copper surplus was piling up rapidly, canvassed the situation and made overtures to other producers for a curtailment of the output. As was the case several years ago, when similar overtures were made, the rivals of the Amalgamated company refused to join in an agreement for a restriction of production. The Amalgamated company, concluding that copper was worth more in the ground than on the market when sold at or below the cost of production, closed a number of its mines, while other companies continued normal production and reaped the benefit of the market that was sustained by the Amalgamated company. As an officer of the company said afterwards, they held the umbrella for the other fellows, but don't propose doing it again. Instead, the Amalgamated company prepared for just what is happening. It set about to reduce the cost of production and is now turning out copper at a cost as low as it can be produced by any other producer, and the statement is now made, in a threatening and defiant tone, that the Amalgamated company is in a position to continue production and sell copper as cheaply as it can be sold by any one. That the Amalgamated company is in good financial condition is evident in the fact that in addition to the ordinary development work carried on in the mines, much money is expended in new development and exploration work, work that could be dispensed with if now in about 900 feet and will go 300 feet further. When the cross-cut is completed some of the other veins that have been cut will be explored.

The Ophir Mine.

The information is that work will be resumed before long on the Ophir mine in Butte by the reorganized company, called the Butte Central Copper company, which succeeds the bankrupt Central & Boston Copper corporation. The Ophir is a developed mine and has been a fair silver producer. On the lowest level, the 500, the vein gives good copper assays, and the opinion of mining men is that the mine can be developed into a good copper producer. It is understood that strong financial interests in London, Boston and Ottawa are back of the new company, which has a capitalization of $2,500,000, divided into 250,000 shares, having a par value of $10 per share. Sir Frederick W. Borden of Ottawa is on the board of directors. The other members of the board are William H. North, Robie W. Tufts, W. R. Tillinghast of Providence; Willard E. Robinson, George F. Wooley, Sr., W. Harry Thompson and Freeman I. Davison of Boston. W. H. North is president, R. W. Tufts treasurer and William G. Burns secretary. Half of the capital stock will remain in the treasury. The other half has been issued to pay off the obligations of the old company.

Greenwater Copper Mines.

The stockholders of the Greenwater Copper Mines & Smelting company have just received copies of an annual report of the year ending Dec. 31, 1908, bearing date of Feb. 13. The company was organized by Schwab interests and represents a consolidation of the Greenwater & Death Valley Copper company, the United Greenwater Copper company, the Governor Greenwater Copper company, El Capitan

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Forces at Some Properties Reduced and Few Idle Mines Being Restored to Active List—Improvement in Physical Condition of the South Dunn Property is Reported.

Straws which indicate that, for most mines, the coming season in the Lake Superiar iron region will be comparatively dull, are found in a tendency to retrench, a cropping out of which has been noticed latterly. With the various ranges combined, capable of producing in excess of 50,000,000 tons of ore per annum, without difficulty, and with the likelihood that only approximately 30,000,000 tons will be sent out this year, it is doubtless not surprising that some curtailment is taking place. Neither is it surprising that there is shown little inclination to restore idle properties to the active list. Indeed, it is not impossible that there will be further suspensions. There are very considerable stockpiles at a large number of mines, as a result of operations conducted throughout the winter, and with stocking ground limited at some properties, it will be necessary to diminish the amount of ore in storage if mining is to be continued. Few sales have yet been made.

The United States Steel corporation has reduced the working force at the Champion mine, a Marquette range property, to considerably below 100 men. Mining has not been conducted actively for some time past, the operations being confined principally to development work. There is a heavy tonnage of ore in stock, some of which was mined by the Clarion Steel company prior to the purchase of the property by the big corporation, some years ago. The Champion has the distinction of being the deepest iron mine in the Lake Superior region, although some properties on the Gogebic range are close rivals for the honor; mining is conducted at depths greater than 2,500 feet. The mine is a very valuable proposition, having large reserves of ore of excellent grade, and the price at which it was acquired by the Steel corporation has proved a bargain figure.

Force at Youngs Cut.

The Huron Iron Mining company, in the control of which Ohio furnace interests are associated, has cut the working force at the Youngs mine, at Stambaugh, Menominee range, to the extent of 100 men. Practically all the available stockpile room has been filled with ore and, besides, it is a question just what will be the requirements of consumers of the product. The Youngs is well opened ahead, and is in position to make a big shipment whenever the ore is needed. At Ferdinand Schlesinger's Bonnie mine, a Gogebic range property, only about fifty men are now at work, and these are engaged in shaft-sinking. A fortnight ago 300 men were employed. About half of the force laid off have been taken on at the same operator's nearby Newport mine, and others will be similarly cared for as fast as room can be made for them. The Bonnie has on hand a very considerable stock of ore, the most of it of a grade not readily saleable in a dull market.

Most of the Crystal Falls group of mines of Corrigan, McKinney & Co., of Cleveland, remain on the idle list, with poor prospects of resuming operations for some time yet. The principal producers of the group continue in commission—these the Great Western, the Tobin and the Dunn—but at all three of them truly mammoth stockpiles have been accumulated, a large proportion of which was carried over from last year. Ogiebay, Norton & Co.'s big Bristol property, which is in the same district of the Menominee range, also has an immense pile of ore in stock, all of which has been hoisted during the winter season, the tonnage available last year having all been shipped prior to the close of navigation. A new shipper in the territory tributary to Crystal Falls this season will be Pickands, Mather & Co.'s Red Rock property near Amasa. It is likely that some ore also will come from Rogers, Brown & Co.'s Gibson mine, in the same field, the developments at both of these tracts having been satisfactory. Pickands, Mather & Co. have been pushing operations at their Hemlock mine at Amasa, and will shop a good-sized tonnage from that property this season. Development work is now in progress on the twelfth level, sinking to which was completed during the winter. M. A. Hanna & Co.'s Hollister mine at Crystal Falls is being operated as vigorously as permitted by the comparatively limited openings.

Improvement at South Dunn.

A material improvement in the physical condition of the South Dunn property is reported as a result of recent developments. This property is in the Crystal Falls district and has been explored the last two years by the Buffalo & Susquehanna interests. The showing latterly has not been entirely satisfactory, notwithstanding that what appeared to be a large deposit had been met with close to the surface. Ore has now been encountered in drifting, however, and the property once more bids fair to develop into a mine. The outlook at the old McColman property, near the abandoned village of Atkinson, and which Pickands, Mather & Co. have been testing, has become disappointing, and it would not be surprising were the work to be definitely abandoned. The showing was excellent on the first level, but the value failed to continue into the second level, and unless the diamond drilling now in progress is productive of desired results, the property will be surrendered. The McColman is remote from producing mines, but the formation is excellent and has been considered to well merit the considerable expenditure to which Pickands, Mather & Co. have gone to properly explore the tract.

Renewed exploration of the territory lying between Corrigan, McKinney & Co's Baker mine and Pickands, Mather & Co.'s Baltic property, in the Stambaugh or Spring valley district of the Menominee range, has been productive of important results. Ore of good grade has been found to exist

SAVANNA COPPER COMPANY

Manager Wayne Practically Decided to Abandon Pinas Altas Property of Comanche Company and Confine All Work to the Burros.

Silver City, N. M., March 27.—General Manager E. A. Wayne of the Savanna Copper company has practically decided to abandon the Pinas Altas property, belonging to the old Comanche company and confine all his work to the Burros, where he knows the valuable ore lies. It is possible that the rolling stock and equipment of the railway up to Pinas Altas may be utilized later in the Burros. Where there were over 3,000 acres of mineral land previously owned, mostly by the Comanche company, there are less than 15,000 acres now. Several hundred acres of what was deemed worthless mineral land, at least no good to the present company, were thrown overboard, and the payment of taxes thereon stopped. The present holdings are 210 claims, and most of these have been patented.

Some time ago the two companies had engineers go over the property in the Burros and report on the development work, with the following findings: Copper Gulf, 10,218 feet of under ground work in the three big shafts, the Gettysburg, Virginia and Copper Gulf; Comanche, 6,449 feet at the Boone, Klondike and Ouwawaka shafts. The Pinas Altas had 29,250 feet of work done, but that is given no consideration at all, as it is considered as worthless. Seventy-nine claims were allowed to expire, and it is probable that some more will be added to the list.

The Savanna mine is in a position right now to supply the concentrating mill, which it owns at Silver City, for one year with milling ore, and the mill can handle 350 tons a day. The Savanna people can start shipping at a moment's notice; they only await the railway into the Burros. And it can also be stated that the Chemung has over 4,000,000 tons of ore blocked out now that will average between 3 and 4 per cent while the Leopolds have as much or more in sight.

The work of late has been confined almost exclusively to the Copper Gulf shafts, as General Manager Wayne thinks he can accomplish more there at the present time with the limited force he has at work. There are just sixty men working now, doing mostly development work. Mr. Wayne has always contended that the famous Sampson ore dyke of the Leopold and Chemung mines extended to the Savannah property and he started drill men to work on the Fulmer claim with the result that ore was struck at a depth of sixty-five feet. The indications are most gratifying and Manager Wayne is jubilant over the work. The Virginia and Copper Gulf shafts are not being worked just now, but both have extensive ore bodies at a depth of 500 feet. In the Gettysburg shaft the most work has been done; in fact, much of the underground work was done by the Chemung people before the panic came a year ago when the lease was allowed to expire for economical reasons and which has since proven a big thing for the Savanna company, which secured the claim.

MUCH WORK AT JUNCTION

Mine Being Made One of the Best Properties in Bisbee Camp --- Levels Have Been Connected by Three New Raises.

Bisbee, Ariz., March 27.—The Junction mine of the Superior & Pittsburg company is being made one of the best properties in the camp. During the past few weeks three raises have been completed, No. 1 from the 1,400 to the 1,300 level; No. 3 from the 1,400 to the 1,300 level, and No. 13 raise is all in ore which averages 5½ to 6 percent copper. The ore is a sulphide. No. 1 went through forty feet of sulphide which will average between 7 and 8 per cent copper. No. 4 raise from the 1,400 to the 1,300 level is being rushed through at present and the lowest assay obtained in the raise is 7 per cent, while other assays run 30 per cent copper. When the raise is connected with the 1,300 level stoping will be begun and this high grade ore shipped to the smelter.

At present 3,400 gallons of water are being pumped to the surface every minute of the day, but this amount will soon be increased because a larger flow of water will be encountered when drift No. 4 is cut towards the Hoatson. This drift has begun and the management of the Junction expects to have more water pumped than ever before in the past few months.

Some work has been done recently in drift No. 2 on the 1,500 level, and at present the distance attained from the shaft is 90 feet.

A crank and fly wheel Prescott pump is being installed on the 1,500 level. This is the third pump of this pattern installed at the Junction and they are proving very satisfactory.

The new Powell shaft of the Calumet & Arizona has reached a depth of 250 feet. The formation is lime and altered lime with some iron. Some copper stains are also encountered at various intervals. The new electric hoist, which was purchased some weeks ago, has arrived and is at present being prepared for installation. An 80-horse power motor will drive the hoist. The new building for the hoist has been begun. Three shifts are employed at the Powell.

GRANBY FURNACES RUNNING

Boundary Copper Property Continues to Produce Red Metal at Lively Rate---Snowshoe Mine of Consolidated Company Curtailing Shipments.

Spokane, Wash., March 27.—Seven furnaces are at present in operation at the Granby smelter, the enlarging of the second section of the battery not being completed. The prices have been more than supplying the requirements of the smelter in ore, all the bunkers being filled at present and some seventy-five loaded cars on a siding. For this reason the tonnage from the mines is being slightly curtailed. Shipments during the last few weeks have been fairly heavy, the ore being mined from large blocks.

Manager Hodges was in camp at Phoenix, B. C., from Grand Forks last week after an absence of a month or more. He had just returned from Victoria, where he and R. H. Stewart, manager of the mines of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting company, had been interviewing the government in connection with some changes the provincial department of mines has been asked to make in the code of mine signals now in use.

Previous to going to Victoria Mr. Hodges had been on an extended trip to Arizona and Mexico, where he inspected some of the large smelting plants. At the Greene-Cananea, Calumet & Arizona and the Copper Queen of Bisbee he was interested in many novel mechanical contrivances.

O. B. Smith, superintendent of the Granby mine, leaves shortly on an extended trip to California. Mr. Smith has been connected with the mines here for over ten years, and will take an earned rest. During his absence C. M. Campbell, mining engineer, will be acting superintendent.

The Consolidated company's Snowshoe mine has been cutting down its operating force and curtailing shipments. This has been occasioned by a shortage of coke at the company's Trail smelter, where Snowshoe ore is treated.

The provincial government has granted a charter for a tram line to the Greenwood-Phoenix Tunnel company. The long tunnel scheme is still a live project in the Boundary.

REPUBLIC MINE SURPRISES

Richest Gold Find Ever Made in the State of Washington --- Bonanza Bought at Tax Sale for Small Sum of $40,000.

Seattle, Wash., March 27.—The richest find of gold ever reported in Washington has just been made on the New Republic mine at Republic. The find was made on the second stope, between Nos. 2 and 3 levels. Sufficient work has not yet been done to show the extent of the ledge. Some of the ore taken from the ledge was so rich that it was locked up in the vault of the bank at Republic.

This strike is the last of a series of remarkable finds made in areas of the Republic ground contiguous to the old workings. The ore is precisely like that taken from the mine a decade ago, and in part comes from continuations of the old shoots and in part from new veins, the existence of which were not suspected. The strikes have put new life in the old camp of Republic.

Patsy Clark of Spokane developed the mine, and though he hauled ore sixty-five miles by wagon, he took hundreds of thousands in profits from the property. He sold out for $3,000,000, and the new owners built on the property the largest cyanide plant in the world at the time, expending all told, $1,000,000 in improvements. It was only the ore in the upper levels that would cyanide, however, and the extremely rich ore shoots apparently played out. After losing $1,500,000 in operations, the company finally closed the mine and dismantled the mill. The owners were in, all told, $5,500,000. The company let taxes go unpaid until it was indebted to Ferry county to the amount of $10,000. Ferry county sold the mine under tax foreclosure and there was just one bidder, a blacksmith, named Mulroy, offering the amount of taxes due. It was knocked down to him.

Mulroy was the agent of J. L. Harper and L. W. Anderson, both pioneer mining men of the camp. They located and developed the Belcher and then lost it through a stockholders' row. Anderson and Harper are brothers-in-law. They have worked together in and around Republic camp for a dozen years or more. They had organized a little company of men, who were able to put up only enough money to bid in the property and start operations by hand.

Just outside the stoping ground, on which their predecessors had quit millions in the hole, they ran into a new ledge of rich ore samples, which assayed up to $5,600 a ton. The ledges mainly parallel, were connected by rich stringers, and these stringers were followed with the result stated above. The shoot that carries the $50,000 ore is sixteen inches wide and the drift has penetrated it seven feet. Republic mine is back in the pay richer than ever, after nearly a decade of reverses, misfortune and idleness, and the men who lost millions through bad management have let the property go for a song to a group of men who had the courage to stay with the camp.

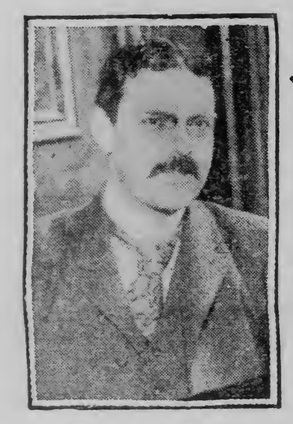
UNCLE SAM'S RESERVE CORPS OF TRAINED WAR LEADERS

MACDONOUGH CRAVEN

SENATOR FRANK O. BRIGGS OF NEW JERSEY

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY.



LEWIS NIXON.

By JOHN S. HARWOOD

(Copyright, 1909, by the Associated Literary Press.)

PARADOXICAL as the statement may seem, it is nevertheless a fact that no other nation — not even the most warlike of Europe's quarrelsome family—possesses a finer reserve corps of highly trained fighting leaders, both for land and sea battling, than peace-loving America. And in these days of much talk about a proper reserve force of fighting men for the country, it is not inappropriate to call the country's attention to the existence of this body of men, of whom the vast majority are now occupying positions of more than usual responsibility in civil life.

This important corps, which proved its value to the nation during the Spanish-American war, though the opportunity to do so was not sufficiently large to attract close attention from the people generally—is made up of quite a few hundreds of former army and navy officers—graduates of West Point and Annapolis—who voluntarily went back to civil life after serving with their commissions for a limited time, who are still of the fighting age, and who—because it has become a sort of second nature with them—keep up to date in military and naval matters, and so are ready, as far as efficiency goes, to take the field at a moment's notice in defense of their country.

It is a reserve that bears on its unofficial roster the names of many men who are leaders in their respective vocations—men with large city, state, national and international fame; and not infrequently there appears a name to emphasize the fact that an appreciable quota of this unique reserve is made up of descendants of some of the doughty fighters who helped to shape the country's early history.

Frank O. Briggs, junior United States senator from New Jersey, is a member of the reserve corps by way of West Point. Francis T. Bowles and Lewis Nixon, two of the country's most noted shipbuilders, and Cyrus Townsend Brady and Winston Churchill, two of the country's best known novel-builders, rank high in the corps by way of the naval academy. By the same road came Congressmen Richmond P. Hobson, the much-kissed hero of Santiago harbor, and John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, whose knowledge of naval matters is so thorough that he was talked of as President Taft's secretary of the navy. John B. Jackson, representative of Uncle Sam at the court of the Persian shah, was on duty at various naval stations before he resigned his commission to take up law. Three prominent civil-life alumni of West Point who consider themselves members in good standing of the reserve corps are Theodore Bingham and Francis Vinton Greene, present and former head of New York city's police army; Charles A. Totten, who gained considerable attention some years ago by his pronouncement of the theory that the American Indians are descendants of the Ten Lost Tribes of Israel; and Oscar T. Crosby, the well known electrical pioneer and Asiatic and African explorer. McDonough Craven, descendant of the hero of the battle of Lake Champlain, is an ex-navy man.

Former Middies.

In this corps there should be included, perhaps, those men of fighting age who went to the military or naval academy, but who did not complete the course for some reason other than inability to keep up to the scholastic standards required by that strictest of all national schoolmasters, our very own Uncle Sam. Representative of this group of men are George Gibbs, the well-known illustrator, who spent three years at Annapolis, and James H. Scott, also a former middy who subsequently as a member of the revenue service, received from the navy department the only letter of regret ever sent by the department to an officer on receipt of his resignation. Include these ex-middies and ex-cadets in the graduate reserve of the nation's two war academies and the corps is appreciably augmented without any appreciable evidence of reducing its quality thereby.

The sort of service that this highly trained corps of fighting men is capable of rendering the country in time of need is well illustrated in the Spanish-American war feats of some of its members.

James H. Scott, who was forced by ill-health to forego his ambition to graduate from Annapolis into the navy, later became a lieutenant in the revenue service, and as executive officer of the cutter Hudson, won the thanks of congress by shielding and towing the badly battered torpedo boat Somers slowly from the fire of the enemy at Cardenas. Sometime after the end of the war, and while he was navigator of the revenue cutter Gresham, he was the principal figure in the rescue of the Portuguese bark Fraternidada, thus saving 113 souls from a watery grave. Thus, a hero of peace as well as of war, he was signally honored when he returned to private life in 1901. Today he is in a New York office of a famous railroad.

Of course, every American of reading age knows that Hobson's futile, but undeniably heroic attempt to bottle up Cervera's fleet, was one of the wonders of the war with Spain. During the same struggle Congressman John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, was a lieutenant in the volunteer navy, commanding its second auxiliary division. For the important services he rendered the country at the capture of Manila Francis Vinton Greene, who had gone to the front as a volunteer colonel, was promoted to the rank of major-general of volunteers. Mortimer E. Cooley, dean of the department of engineering of the University of Michigan, left the chair of mechanical engineering at the same institution to serve his country aboard the Yosemite. William Dixon Weaver, known in the electrical world as the editor of its leading periodical, was volunteer chief engineer of the Glacier all through the war. Dr. George T. Stout, one of Philadelphia's most famous specialists, jumped back into service again at his country's call as a naval lieutenant; William Ledyard Cathcart, who graduated from Annapolis with distinction, and was a past assistant engineer when he retired to civil life, went back to the navy as a chief engineer, accomplishing valuable results while on special duty; and Francis T. Bowles, in charge of the construction and repair departments of the New York navy-yard, performed invaluable work by lifting out scores of vessels for the conflict. The services he rendered during this trying period helped materially to win for him in 1901 the position of chief constructor of the navy with the rank of rear admiral, making him the youngest bearer of that lofty title then in that branch of the service.

Bowles and Nixon: Famous Shipbuilders.

Admiral Bowles is also distinguished in the service in several other ways. Though he is only 50 years of age, he is looked upon as one of the fathers of the new navy, having been associated with its building from the very inception of the work in the early eighties until his resignation, five years ago. He and a naval academy classmate were the first Americans ever sent by the government to study at the school of architecture of the Royal Naval college in England, and it was the expert knowledge gained by him during the three years that he was on duty there that made for him a place on the naval advisory board immediately on his return to this country in 1882.

This hoard it was that had control of the designing of the first ships of the new navy, and though he was then only three years past his majority the views of young Bowles not infrequently won out over those put forth by older heads. Thus, it was Bowles' advocacy of twin screws that led to their adoption in the Chicago, and when the board decided against sheathing the new war dogs with wood, another victory was scored to the credit of the youth from Massachusetts with a long line of distinguished New England ancestry. The Newark, the Charleston and the Yorktown, all famous vessels of the new navy, and whose names were on the lips of every American twenty years ago, were designed with the material aid of Admiral Bowles, at that time a member of the Walker board, which has gone down in history as one of the bodies of naval officers largely responsible for the creation and proper maintenance of the basis of our present sea fighting equipment.

For twenty-light years Admiral Bowles, a little man physically, who is eloquently silent except in the presence of friends, did big things for the country as a member of its naval force. Then, with a suddenness that took by surprise even his intimates, he sent in his resignation to his superiors, having decided only a short time previously to take this action. But his ability has not been lost to the country, for as the head of one of its greatest shipbuilding plants, he is engaged year in and year out in adding up-to-date fighting boats to the navy that he so materially helped to make the second strongest floating fighting force in the world today.

In a general way the naval career of Lewis Nixon, the one time Tammany boss, parallels that of Rear Admiral Bowles. The year that Bowles returned to this country from the Royal Naval college at Greenwich, Nixon graduated at the head of his class at the naval academy, and was despatched to the Royal Naval college to study naval architecture for a period of three years. This task performed, he too, on his return to America, was transferred to the naval construction corps, and as one of its members designed several of the famous successors of the first ships of the new navy which had been designed in greater or less details by Admiral Bowles. And like the latter, Nixon resigned from the navy to associate himself with a great shipbuilding plant.

Designed the Oregon.

It was through the failure of John Roach, who built the first vessels of the new navy, that young Nixon got his opportunity to prove his full value to Uncle Sam. Detailed to the Roach shipyard after the government had taken charge of it, he learned the practical side of shipbuilding, and later as a government inspector at another shipyard and at the new Brooklyn navy yard, he gained still further experience, all of which was one day put to a sudden and most severe test when Gen. B. F. Tracy, then secretary of the navy, asked the chief constructor of the navy to detail one of his best men to draw plans for three new battleships, the Oregon, the Indiana and the Massachusetts.

There was little time to do the work and the man to whom it was to be assigned, the secretary specified, must be both rapid and accurate in his work. Nixon was selected for the task—and ninety days later he delivered the plans complete, a record for speedy battleship designing that stands today. How well the vessels were designed, the wonderful voyage of the Oregon around South America to the scene of fighting off Cuba during the Spanish-American war, told better than any pen could do. Until the Atlantic fleet went around the world, this voyage of the Oregon was the most sensational voyage venture of a warship in the history of the American navy.

It was this ninety-day task that turned the current of Nixon's career from official to civil life. Not very long after he had handed in his designs for the trio of battleships the contract for building two of them was awarded to that shipbuilding firm of Philadelphia which was then supreme along the banks of the Delaware, famous as the cradle of many ships of both the old and the new navy. The head of the yard knew full well who had made the designs, and he also knew full well the ability of the designer. Therefore, no sooner had he received word of the awarding of the contract to him than he sent a telegram to Nixon asking him to a conference in Philadelphia. The two men met at dinner. Before the meal was over the young naval officer had been offered, and accepted the position of superintending constructor of the works, and the next day he resigned from the navy.

During the fourteen years that Mr. Nixon has been building ships on his own hook he has garnered an international reputation and is probably better known abroad than any of our other shipbuilders. Certain it is that he has a wide acquaintance among Europe's royalty; he and the present prince of Wales were classmates at the Royal Naval college; he has been presented to King Edward, and during the Russo-Japanese war he and the Czar were on what might be called almost intimate terms, Nicholas II granting him special audiences with a frequency that kept the newspaper men of the world guessing as to their meaning. At the time you probably read that as one result of these little talks with the czar of all the Russias Mr. Nixon built and shipped to Russia a number of sectional detachable torpedo boats, and for a time took charge of one of the Russian government's navy yards. His activity in New York city politics has given him a wide acquaintance among the prominent men of this country, so that it may be said of him that he probably numbers among his friends and acquaintances as many, if not more "big" men, both here and abroad, than any other American in civil life today.

Senator and Explorer.

Nixon got his appointment to the naval academy because a member of congress from Virginia saw the boy, liked his looks and sent in his appointment; until he was 18 Nixon, living in the backwoods of the Old Dominion, had never seen an ocean-going ship. Through the fancy of a member of congress from New Hampshire, Frank O. Briggs, now United States senator from New Jersey, got his appointment to West Point, and until he reached that government institution he was almost as ignorant of the arts of war as Nixon was the ways of the deep, and the ships that go down into it.

The Briggs family, when the future Jersey senator was a likely appearing lad, lived in the capital city of the Granite state. One day, when the scion of the house was home for the school holidays, Congressman Stevens, a friend of the family, dropped in for tea, and told of the bother of having at his disposal an appointment to West Point, and of being appealed to perpetually by fond parents and relatives who wanted some callow youth of their particular kin selected to fill it. He spoke of one boy having failed ignominiously in the entrance examinations. Then, his eyes lighting on young Briggs, he said to the father:

"Here's this boy of yours. Why not send him up? I'll wager he will do credit to both of us—eh, young man?"

Up to this moment Frank O. Briggs had never thought of going to West Point; indeed, he had been planning to enter Harvard as soon as he was through preparatory school. But no sooner had Congressman Stevens put the idea in the 17-year-old youngster's head than it got a firm hold there, the ambition to receive a degree from Harvard was cast aside, and the army claimed this son of New Hampshire as its own for th next nine years, or until he resigned from the army and associated himself with the celebrated bridge building firm of Roebling, of which he remains today the assistant treasurer.

Thus becoming a Jerseyman, Lieut. Briggs naturally took to politics, after the manner of every true son of Jersey, whether native or adopted. But not until twenty-two years after his retirement from the infantry branch of Uncle Sam's fighting force did he come prominently before his fellow-Jerseymen. Then, the year after the close of the war with Spain, he became the Republican mayor of the state's capital city, and from that day to this he has been a political figure to be reckoned with from one end of the Jerseys to the other. Also, since he became Trenton's chief executive he has held office continually, either by election or gubernatorial appointment. He has been a United States senator for something more than two years now, succeeding to the seat of John F. Dryden; and to fortify himself for his senatorial duties it is his custom to take a horseback ride every morning for an hour or two before partaking of the day's first meal at 8 o'clock. From then on until late at night he sticks to his official tasks, a habit which has earned for him the reputation of being one of the most diligent workers in the upper body.

Had Many Adventures.

Another well known West Point member of the corps is Oscar Terry Crosby, who resigned from the army twenty-two years ago, became a pioneer in the field of electric transportation, within a comparatively short space of time provided himself with a comfortable fortune, and since then has spent a large portion of his time conducting important explorations in the three continents of North America, Asia and Africa. He has devoted himself to such unfrequented regions as the Soudan, Abyssinia, Turkestan and Tibet, and has experienced many adventurous moments, to say the least.

Lieut. Crosby's narrowest escape from death occurred when he was trying to reach a high Tibetan plateau which commands the most extended panoramic view of the Himalayan scenery and which had never before been attempted by a white man. Crosby and his only white companion, a Frenchman of the name of Anginian, were the first white men to visit the Central Asian city of Khotan, and, encouraged by this exploit, they set out to reach the plateau in question, accompanied by a few native guides and an old Afghan servant whom they at first thought of leaving behind on account of his age, fearing that the rigors of the trip might prove too much for the old fellow.

Everything went well with the little expedition until it had reached the heart of the Himalayas, when the Tibetan guides suddenly disappeared in a body, leaving Crosby and the Frenchman utterly alone, except for the Afghan, in the vast wilderness of snow-shrouded heights. For about two weeks the three made every effort to retrace their steps, but only succeeded in becoming more and more hopelessly lost.

Finally, the old Afghan, whom Crosby had been on the point of leaving behind, begged his masters to remain where they were while he went in search of help. The explorers hardly expected to behold the faithful old fellow alive again, but several days later —by which time the provisions had given out and Crosby was vainly endeavoring to kill some game with his pistol—he and the Frenchman heard a gun shot in answer, apparently, to his pistol shot; and not long thereafter the Afghan returned in triumph and in the nick of time with ample relief, men, horses and provisions.

Beginning with Mayor Strong's administration, New York city has had in its employ rather regularly in some high position at least one graduate of West Point. Under Mayor Strong, Avery De Lano Andrews, who resigned from the army in 1893, was the city's police commissioner from 1895 to 1898, and in May of that year he became a volunteer lieutenant colonel for the period of the war with Spain. Under Mayor Seth Low, Gen. Francis V. Greene, whose experiences in the Russo-Turkish war as the United States military observer, were replete with adventure and led to his decoration by the czar, headed New York's "finest;" and today the same body of men is under the discipline of Theodore A. Bingham, who got in the habit of invoking the nine gods of war during the fifteen years that he drew a salary from Uncle Sam following his graduation from West Point in 1879.

About two and a half years ago McDonough Craven, descendant of the fighting family of that name, and of that Commodore McDonough who won the battle of Lake Champlain, became head of the street cleaning department of the metropolitan government; and prior to that event he had been connected with the department for upwards of a decade. As an engineer he was called into consultation on the Nicaragua canal project and the great Croton dam, built by New York city to impound for its use billions of gallons of water. Craven was taken into the street cleaning department as its sanitary engineer by another graduate from the army, the late Col. Waring, and he planned and carried out many of the improvements which his chief put into operation in this important department of the city government.

A Diplomat From the Navy.

Like most of the more prominent graduates of army and navy officers in civil life today, John B. Jackson, this country's minister to the Persian court, declares that his training for war has been of material help to him in private life. Minister Jackson is our most prominent trained fighter in the diplomatic service, the taste for which he cultivated when he was serving his country in European waters following his graduation from the naval academy in the early '80s. You will probably recall that at the time of the assassination of King Peter and Queen Dragma of Servia, Minister Jackson's name was frequently in the news, as at that time he was our minister to that country, and as such insisted that the new king, in order to gain this country's recognition, should formally disavow the awful act of the conspirators.

Minister Jackson is one of the world's best posted men on affairs in the Balkans and the countries lying to the south of them in Europe; he has served as our minister at the court of every one of these countries except Turkey, and because of his ability in handling ticklish situations in this ticklish part of the world he was given a promotion to the Teheran post a little less than two years ago. But though he is pretty far removed from "God's country" at the present time, there is no doubting the fact that if war were to break out between America and some foreign power tomorrow he—like practically every member of this highly trained reserve corps of war leaders—would at once offer his services to the government and make preparations to head hither accordingly.

Because of their willingness to go to the aid of the government which trained them for life's duties—and also because of the more than ordinary prominence the vast majority of the corps have secured in private life—every patriotic American should be proud of these trained war leaders—as Uncle Sam undoubtedly is.

SIBERIA'S GREAT FUTURE.

Its Soil Rich and It Has Vast Timber and Mineral Resources.

Journal of the American Asiatic Association: The vast area of Siberia is as yet scarcely touched commercially, when we consider the richness and capability of production of its soil and its constantly growing population.

In 1900 it was estimated that out of a total of 19,727,000 acres of cultivated land 11,625,000 acres were under crops in Siberia. Crops greatly fluctuate in Siberia, the yield in a good year is two or three times that of a bad one.

Siberia's exports of dairy products are rapidly increasing and have a most promising future. In 1898 4,000 buckets of butter, each containing thirty-six pounds of butter, were sent as an experiment to the London market; 30,000 buckets of butter a week were sent thither in 1901. The pasturage in this butter producing region, which lies chiefly in the district of Tomsk, is so good that there is 7 per cent of butter fat in the milk.

In 1902 a Danish firm was the first to export salted beef, mutton and pork from Siberia to London. Its success showed that Siberian mutton was good enough to compete with the best Icelandic mutton and may in the future become an important factor in the meat markets of Western Europe.

In 1902 the first canning establishment in Asiatic Russia was opened at Omsk. Exports of hides and skins from Siberia increased from 2,800 tons in 1899 to 5,200 tons in 1902. More than 1,600 tons of Siberian eggs are exported annually, many of them finding their way to the London market.

The fisheries of Siberia are very important. The River Amur is especially rich in salmon. The amount of preserved fish exported from Sibera grew from 640 tons in 1899 to 2,000 tons in 1902. The high price of salt and tin plate and the lack of skilled knowledge are retarding the Siberian canned fish industry.

The vast coniferous forest zone of Siberia is yielding ever increasing quantities of timber. On Jan. 1, 1906, the state forests of Russia in Asia covered 650,687,497 acres. The timber industry has scarcely begun to be developed in Siberia.

Mining has the greatest future of any Siberian industry. Gold in placers is the chief mineral product at present. No statistics as to the amount of gold produced in Siberia can be obtained, as the figures are contained in the total output of the Russian Empire.

The average annual production of pig iron in the Ural and Siberia (separate statistics for Siberia not given) from 1902 to 1906, inclusive, was 657,440 tons. The Siberian output of coal, chiefly from the province of Amolinsk, rose from 660,779 tons in 1902 to 1,325,400 tons in 1905. Copper is mined in small quantities. More and more foreign capital is becoming interested in the mineral wealth of Siberia, and American miners are prospecting in those parts of the Primorskaya, opposite and near Alaska.

Chinese are discarding the old oiled paper umbrellas, in use for centuries, in favor of the kind of umbrellas used in Europe and America. Germany and Japan are fighting for the trade. Last year China imported 1,102,333 umbrellas and the year before 1,380,111.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

It is not very gratifying to our pride to know that in older countries this nation is regarded as great and powerful, but boyishly rude and uncertain. Although America has been represented in the courts of foreign nations by many men of great merit, able to hold their own and to command the admiration of the best men of an older civilization, yet we have not always been faithful to high ideals in the choice of our representatives abroad, and in late years there has grown up a popular idea that for this country to have the weight that it should in the courts of Europe we must send to them men of great wealth who shall be able by reason of their social accomplishments and powers to exercise an influence in politics and society. So it has come about that many of our ambassadors have been brilliant men, particularly men versed in the arts of diplomacy, and endowed with a wealth which enabled them to maintain a magnificent position. In many cases it has been the magnificent position that has impressed the foreign court and not the worth of the man who represented America.

This country did not get its standing among the nations of the earth in any such way. It got it by sending such men as Benjamin Franklin to France. It was not the grandeur of his establishment that made Franklin admired of the French people and a power with the men when he spoke. He had no establishment except the stateliness of his manhood and his high ability. He lived in lodgings but he was more sought after than have been many American ambassadors who have lived in palaces. He was a man and France knew it, and deferred to his opinions as the world always defers to greatness of intellect and as it never defers to, but only fawns upon, wealth.

The possible appointment of President Eliot of Harvard University as ambassador to Great Britain gives rise to these thoughts. Dr. Eliot is not a man of wealth and this country does not provide reasonably for the maintenance of its representative at the court of St. James. Yet we venture to believe that should Dr. Eliot be sent to England and live in lodgings, he will be honored by the English people as we in this country honor James Bryce, and that his influence with the English people and with the British nation for good for his country will be far greater than the influence which we have had in times past when we have been represented at St. James by men of great talents withal. Dr. Eliot is conspicuously a great American, as James Bryce is conspicuously a great Englishman. Like Benjamin Franklin he is not only a great man, but he stands distinctly for that distinctive something which characterizes his nation, and as such he will be honored by people and royalty of Great Britain even as Franklin was honored by France.

Nor have we been without precedents at St. James for the appointment of such a man as Dr. Eliot. James Russell Lowell was not a man of wealth; Motley and Bancroft did not command the respect of the English people by lavish entertainment. A great name is more esteemed in Downing street, as it is everywhere, than great riches. That very society which is usually the most thoughtless and accepts a grand establishment as the expected concomitant of a minister plenipotentiary is just as quick to recognize the man of real worth as is the more serious and thoughtful portion of the nation.

If Dr Eliot is appointed ambassador to Great Britain this country will not suffer, but will take on a higher and nobler dignity in the eyes of the English people and of all other civilized people, while Dr Eliot's position at the court of St. James will be such as will enable him by pure force of character to accomplish more for his country than any ambassador, however able, could accomplish with wealth.

MAXIMUM AND MINIMUM.

A noteworthy feature of the new tariff bill is its maximum and minimum provision, whereby the executive is authorized and instructed to increase the duty on certain articles imported in case of discrimination against the United States by the countries from which they are imported. In like manner in case of favorable trade agreements it will be in the power of the executive branch of the government to apply the minimum rates of the bill.

The principle of the maximum and minimum was earnestly contended for by President McKinley and it was made a provision of the Dingley law, when it was enacted eleven years ago. The operation of the maximum and minimum provision was limited to two years, however, and proved to be entirely useless, as the senate neglected to confirm trade treaties negotiated under the law within the two-year limit. This time it is not proposed to limit the time of the application of the maximum and minimum provision.

This provision of the law should prove a great stimulus to trade, providing it leaves the executive sufficiently free to apply it with discrimination. If hard and fast rules are laid down for the enforcement of the maximum and minimum provision, however, it may be the source of infinite trouble. Properly applied, the principle will result in the negotiation of many valuable reciprocity treaties, until the most favorable trade relations are secured with every country. At present the United States is discriminated against by almost every other nation of the world in some particulars.

Considerable fault is being found with this provision of the tariff bill, because of the fact that it provides that the maximum schedules must be enforced within sixty days against any country which shall discriminate against us. The president will have no option under the sixty-day rule. No matter what may be the circumstances, he will be allowed no time to treat with the offending nation, but will be compelled to resort at once to harsh measures. Congress, in other words, sets by law a time limit for all diplomatic negotiations with regard to trade. Sixty days shall the government have to carry on its negotiations and no longer. Such a rigid rule will certainly result in disaster. It is not possible to settle such matters between nations in sixty days. Diplomacy can not be hurried. It must have time, and it is proverbial that it must have a great deal of time. Moreover, the executive branch of the government will have no discretion as to the nature of the discrimination which may be exercised against this country. If the discrimination be but technical, or an oversight, or upon a single article which is of no practical consequence to us, the president must nevertheless apply the maximum rates at once. Such harsh action would be in the highest degree unwise.

It is evident that there is need to revise the maximum and minimum provisions of the tariff bill to the extent of making their enforcement, not obligatory upon the executive, but largely discretionary. It is impossible for congress to make hard and fast rules about a matter which must necessarily be the subject of much negotiation between the countries affected, about a matter which may require one method of treatment at one time and another treatment at an another time. The same rules cannot be made to apply to all nations. The maximum and minimum rule should be a power entrusted to the executive by which it may in its discretion, secure the greatest concessions possible and establish in amity the most favorable trade relations.

WHAT DID IT PROFIT HER?

Mrs. Pierre Lorillard, Jr., went the pace that kills and is dead. Dead by her own hand.

Hers was a fair test of what there is to be got by the pursuit of pleasure. She gave all her time and her powers to it, but it was insatiable. It demanded her life's blood—and now she has given that, too. That is what is to be got from the pursuit of pleasure.

Returning from a fashionable dinner, where she had been of right as one of the queens of the most exclusive social circles, and retiring alone to her apartments, whose spaciousness and luxury betokened the greatest wealth, Mrs. Lorillard deliberately turned her back on all the pleasures of this world, all of them to be had for her taking, and plunged unbidden, and in defiance of the will of her Maker, into eternal—eternal what? life or death?

What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and have given no thought to the things of life that are really worth while? Mrs. Lorillard had all that society could give, all that money could buy, yet she was utterly unhappy. She was subject to "fits of despondency" the family admits. She led the butterfly life and all she got out of it was despondency and death. She had gained "the whole world." What did it profit her? The street laborer who has but a shack high up on the hillside and a pipe after the evening meal, is happier than was Mrs. Pierre Lorillard, Jr.

Hers is but the case we know about. Thousands of women, and men, like her, before whom every door swings noiselessly open and to whom wealth is the most common of all things, drag out their desponding and despairing lives, too feeble of courage to choose death.

Man has first of all to learn to live. Wealth and society are cruel gods. They kill. To those who live for some real purpose, wealth and society become not gods but useful servants. All cannot have them, but all can be useful and consequently happy without them, and of those who have them few are strong enough, it seems, to wisely use them.

TWO QUEER ARGUMENTS.

Here and there one finds a Minnesota newspaper demanding the tonnage tax "because the steel trust ought to be made to pay its share of the state taxes." Outside of this very indefinite argument it is difficult to find anything in the shape of reasoning advanced in favor of the tonnage tax.

The Herald has been fortunate this week in discovering two arguments advanced in favor of the measure. One of these is set forth by the Rochester Post and Record, which finds fault with The Herald for putting Representatives Conley and Fitzpatrick of Olmsted county in the "roll of dishonor for voting in favor of the Bjorge bill. "If voting for a measure that will add $800,000 to $1,000,000 annually to the state's income, without putting an appreciable tax on the taxpayers is dishonorable, Conley and Fitzpatrick are well placed," says the Post and Record. This is the sum total of its argument. If the state can hold up one section of its territory and get a million dollars from it without its costing the rest of the state anything, that is the thing to do, is the Post and Record's argument. Whether the million that is forcibly taken away from this section for the benefit of the rest of the state belongs to the rest of the state is a trifle not worth discussing. Also the effect that such stripping of this section will have upon the people who live here is too insignificant a matter to speak of.

The second "argument" that The Herald has succeeded in finding in a search of all the newspapers of the state is from the Northfield News. Says the News: "The Duluth Herald repeats the argument first advanced by Mr. Dunn, that the iron interests should not be required to contribute their fair proportion to the state's revenues, because the money would be squandered and serve no good purpose. It is only necessary to apply this reasoning to other tax dodgers to see how silly it is." The Herald certainly would be silly if it had made any such argument, but it never did advance such an argument. The Herald does not care how much the iron interests are taxed and it has frequently said so. The argument made by The Herald to which the News refers and which it has so twisted from its true form was this: that it is an unwise policy which attempts to collect from a few counties of the state all the revenue necessary for the support of the remaining eighty counties of the state; that such a system of taxation, whereby eighty counties can enrich themselves at the expense of five counties is a constant temptation to take more and more from the helpless five, and to reckless extravagance in state expenditures. It is easy to spend when all the money comes out of some other person's pocket.

Here are two arguments in favor of the tonnage tax: one that it is right because it will bring to the state treasury a million of money, the other that it is right by virtue of a misrepresentation of what a newspaper in the iron country had said about it.

These are queer arguments, but such arguments are all that has been advanced thus far to uphold a system of taxation that has been proved wrong in principle and that is absolutely certain to inflict the most grievous injury upon the people living in the country from which the tax is taken.

TAXING POVERTY, NOT WEALTH.

Perhaps the most remarkable thing found in the new Payne tariff bill are the increases provided by this measure in duties on gloves and hosiery. The amazing increases made in the duties to be levied upon these two articles are worthy of the careful consideration of every person to whom the cost of living is a matter worth thinking about.

The present and the proposed rates on gloves and their relation to each other are clearly shown in the following table:

Description.	European value per doz.	Present duty per doz.	Duty proposed per doz.
2-clasp schmaschens	$3.50	$1.75	$4.00
2-clasp lamb gloves	4.25	2.50	4.00
2-clasp real kid	6.00	3.00	4.00

These are the cheaper gloves, the gloves worn by the multitude. Upon the better class of gloves, still other duties are imposed, but upon the gloves worn by the poorer people, and upon those worn by the people of moderate means, increases running as high as 150 per cent are made. What effect will this have upon the price of gloves? It will increase the price of the cheapest glove imported into this country 33 cents per pair. Who will get the 33 cents? Practically every penny of it will go into the pockets of glove manufacturers in Fulton county, New York. Who will pay the 33 cents? Every penny of it will be paid by the working classes. The man who has to wear cheap gloves in his work will pay it. The working girl will pay it. The farmer's wife will pay it.

Investigation of this glove matter shows that gloves are already protected by a tariff which is much higher than is necessary to cover the difference between the cost of producing these articles in this country and in foreign countries from which the articles are imported. The glove industry, in other words, already has more protection than it needs to ena[illegible]gn manufactures. Th[illegible]nal duty is solely and [illegible]orming a trust and gra[illegible]ly to it. The increases [illegible]t foreign gloves will be [illegible]market, even when th[illegible]ially increased in pric[illegible]

As to hosier[illegible]poses to increase the du[illegible]cent to 80 per cent. Is [illegible]rease? From 1900 to 19[illegible]iosiery increased 100 pe[illegible]resent time the increase [illegible]right in the face of th[illegible]manufacturers sufferin[illegible]? It hardly looks as if [illegible]- that in addition to the [illegible]have made to their busi[illegible], the importation of for[illegible]practically the same d[illegible] past ten years. Two years ago a million dollar corporation was formed in this country for the manufacture of hosiery and one of the largest mills in the country was erected. Would this have been done if hosiery were insufficiently protected?

These increases in duty upon gloves and hosiery are amazing in light of the promise of the Republican party to give the country a real revision of the tariff. Is a real revision a revision that taxes poverty instead of wealth? Cotton stockings and cotton gloves are not luxuries. If increases in rates must be made the country wants them made on luxuries, not upon articles of necessary consumption by the poorer and the moderately well-fixed classes.

Some things about tariff making are so complicated that it is hard to know the truth. But it is not hard to know the truth about these things. The protest of the people should be prompt and emphatic. It is not enough to leave this matter to the newspapers. Members of congress should hear from their representatives. A letter from some farmer or some working girl will make the member of congress think harder about this matter than will a letter from some prominent business man. The people should act at once.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Duluth hotel clerks and proprietors are already receiving many inquiries relative to prospects for fishing in the territory tributary to Duluth. The trout season opens the middle of next month, and the season for other varieties of fish will open the first of May.

The hotels are largely depended upon by outsiders for information relative to hunting and fishing in the Duluth district. There isn't a hotel in the city or any consequence that hasn't one or more enthusiastic sportsmen connected with its staff, who, for their own interest, keep pretty well posted on fishing and hunting conditions, and who, therefore, are in a position to post others.

The hotel men are well situated to get this sort of information, for they are in daily contact with men who come from the different hunting and fishing sections tributary to Duluth. One cannot go into the St. Louis at any time, for example, without encountering some one from the north shore, which is generally regarded as one of the finest trout fishing districts in the United States.

The average Duluthian does not realize what a heavy business local hotels do with transient sportsmen during the spring, summer and fall. From the time the fishing season opens in the spring, until the hunting season closes in the late fall, there is a constant stream of sportsmen passing through the city, and stopping here a day or two on their way into the woods and again upon their way out.

The influx of fishermen is not very heavy immediately after the opening of the trout season, for, as a rule, the streams are in poor condition to be fished. They either still contain ice, or else are swollen and muddy.

A new field for bass, pike and muskallonge fishermen is opened up by the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake road, and it is expected that this fact will attract a larger number of sportsmen than ever to Duluth, on their way to some of the famous pike, bass and muskallonge lakes to the north of the city. Heretofore, while it was known that these lakes existed, they have been accessible to all save the Indians and settlers who lived near them.

Some of them are fairly alive with game fish, it is said, and this will be the first season that they ever have been fished to any extent. The new field offers opportunities to local fishermen as well, for it doesn't take long to reach some of the lakes from Duluth.

"This is an old story, and you may all have heard it," said a theatrical man to a group of friends in the lobby of the Lenox last evening. "An actress was riding in the day coach, carrying a dog upon her lap.

"'Madame,' said the conductor, 'I'm very sorry, but you can't have your dog on this car. It is against the rules.'

"'I shall hold him in my lap all the way,' she replied. 'And he will not disturb anyone.'

"'That makes no difference,' said the conductor. 'Dogs must ride in the baggage car. I'll take him in and fasten him for you.'

"'Don't you touch my dog, sir,' exclaimed the young lady, excitedly. 'I will trust him to no one, and with indignant tread, she marched to the baggage car, tied her dog, and said:

"'Remember, please, I don't want a soul here to touch my dog or untie him; you understand?'

"The baggage crew said they did.

"As the train approached her station, the young lady, hailing the conductor, asked: 'Is my dog all right?'

"'I don't know, miss,' replied the conductor.

"'Don't know? Why don't you know? It's your business to know. You haven't touched him or untied him?'

"'No, we didn't touch or untie him. You tied him to a trunk checked for two stations back. The trunk had to be put off, so we threw the dog off with it.'"

In Memoriam

Of little Rosamond Barrett of Cloquet, Minn., who departed this life Feb. 14, 1909, aged 4 years and 9 days.

Mourn not, dear friends, that she is gone,
And will return no more,
Cherish the ever hopeful thought
Your loss is her eternal gain.
Arrested in her childhood's joys,
And in her loveliest bloom,
Seized by the great destroyer, Death,
And to the darkened tomb.
Afflictions sore, long time she bore
Physicians were in vain,
Her Savior's voice He called her home
And relieved her from all pain.
Her ransomed spirit soared away
Just after the rising of the sun,
Surrounded by her dearest friends,
Her earthly race was run,
Little Rosamond, thou art gone before us,
Thy earthly sun forever down.
Changing the fleeting songs of earth,
For thy Savior's golden crown.
No more of earth or sorrow,
No more of pain or death,
A day without a morrow,
Eternal, ever blest.

—A FRIEND.

THE WEATHER.

The cold weather still lingers, and there is a raw chill in the air this morning. The weather man looks for cloudy weather tonight with possible snow flurries.

A year ago today it was windy and cold.

The sun rose this morning at 5:37 and will set this afternoon at 6:39 making twelve hours and thirty-three minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The barometer is below the normal over most districts. Centers of low pressure overlie Lake Superior, Wyoming and Eastern Texas. These have caused snow or rain in the Red River and St. Lawrence valleys, the Lake region, New Mexico, Arizona and Southern California during the past twenty-four hours, besides warmer weather in the Eastern and Southern states. A slight rise in pressure in the Northwest is attended by lower temperature southward to and including Colorado and Kansas. The barometer is highest over Florida and Northern Alberta. Indications favor rather unsettled weather at the Head of the Lakes tonight and Sunday, with possibly occasional light snow flurries."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures:

To Ease Your Mind.

Washington Herald: You cannot make heads or tails of the tariff problem, can you, now?

"Maximum and minimum" means no more to your poor, befuddled mental equipment than the Fourth of July means to old dog Tray. Is that so?

Well, we half-way suspect we know just how it is; and we might make our confession broader even, were it not for certain qualities of highbrow attributes we feel we should gravely maintain, regardless. Anyway, how does this item from the Macon County Citizen, a fine old-fashioned weekly newspaper of Georgia, strike you as a topic worth while just now:

"Has the fishing fever struck you yet? Do you dream of water shaded by trees, and creek banks alive with snakes and 'skeeters' and red bugs? Do you see a ripple here and there, and throw your line and hold your breath while your line goes nibble, nibble, nibble, and then—look out! It's gone! Do you wake with a jerk and bounce out of bed and wonder what it means? Go fishing at the first full moon."

That is right; go at the first full moon—or better still, go before that interesting period, if you can arrange. When you begin to dream things of that kind, there is only one remedy that will bring you perfect peace of mind again—you must wet a line. That is the alpha and omega of the treatment.

There is no duty on fish bait; at least, not the kind this particular fisherman down in Macon county uses. And he uses the only kind that brings a full and complete reward. Red bugs are on the free list; and real, honest, wholesome enjoyment of simple, homely recreation cannot be held up by any custom house officer in this world. We may contribute to the national exchequer every time we drink our coffee, send our clothes to the laundry, or indulge our appetite for fine eating and dressing, but when we yank a fat, plucky, protesting bream from the creek down beyond the old barn, we pay tribute to no living human being; we merely thank the Lord fervently that we are permitted to be alive and know such grand emotions on occasions.

Unfurl the Stocking!

Chicago Tribune: If every woman directly concerned in a reduction of the wool and cotton tariffs could march on Washington the schedules, however, strongly they may be buttressed by the great interests behind them, would come down.

The schedules stay up because their props are well built in house and senate, and the American woman—to say nothing of the American man of the great purchasing class—sighs, perhaps, and goes over her accounts again. She doesn't know her power.

But let her raise the standard of revolt and the earth will shake with her voteless might. Let her make the stocking her banner. Unfurled to the wild winds of spring it will bring terror to the hearts of the politicians. The high tariff strikes a double blow at her pocketbook, for, having none other, it makes her pocketbook both costly and empty, or, if not empty, at least empty of what a pocketbook ought to contain—namely: good money of the realm.

Let her make the stocking her banner and the stocking filled with sand or shot her weapon. Every village and town should have its Stocking club—a club in both senses of the strenuous word—and every farm, flat and palace should have its members of the army of the Stocking.

Upon the stocking let the embattled ladies of the land take their stand and the triumphant tramp of the stocking will shake down the tariff walls.

Unfurl the glorious stocking. Rally, all American women, to the Stocking club.

Joe Chapple's Idea.

Ashland Daily Press: Why not solve the question of taxation by placing a tax on candidates for office? The treasury department would not be facing a big deficit, if candidates for public office had been taxed.

Atmosphere Becomes Normal.

Pine City Poker: It took two specialists and a helper a plumb day to coax back to use the newspaper press in The Poker shop this week. A slip in the clock work of the machine caused the trouble. The office atmosphere has resumed its customary color, although the office towel is badly bent.

An Appreciation.

Doc Bixby in Nebraska State Journal: An old friend of ours in Mantorville, Minn., has been writing imperishable verses for forty-seven years, and, so far as we can judge, his last work is his best.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Human Types—The Meliorist.

Midway between the optimist and the pessimist stands the meliorist. Did you ever hear of him before? If not, take your Century dictionary and look him up. He is really a pretty useful individual, even though he may not be popularly recognized under the designation, and he himself may hardly be aware of his classification. Far from being satisfied with the world as it is, he does not dream of some distant Utopia. Content he is to strive simply to better things, which is the root idea of the word meliorist.

The meliorists are sometimes called half-a-loaf men. They will take the best they can get under the circumstances. They are sometimes looked upon as compromisers. But they do not deserve any measure of odium, for without them the world could hardly get along at all. If there were only pessimists who despaired of doing anything, and optimists who aimed at such fine, distant things that they lost power to take the slow, tedious steps that finally carry one to the goal, the world would be in a pretty fix. The pessimists would be constantly throwing on their buckets of cold water, and the optimists would be setting so many impossible tasks that the ordinary man would sink back into inertia and indifference.

But just here comes the man who believes that something can be done to better the situation. Things are in a tangle in the state, the church, the home. People are shaking their heads gravely, and asking how we shall untie the knot? Then comes to the front our hero with his single suggestion or two. He is like the little boy. The little girl cried out, "Oh, Tommy, let's stop and pray," but Tommy replied, "Let's pray and keep on running." It is almost impossible to conceive of a situation into which no rays of light enter. There is no city so misgoverned, no neighborhood so depraved, no home so unhappy, no church so discouraged that some one concerned cannot propose some individual or collective action in the direction of betterment. Don't try to solve the entire problem, but see the course of action that means some sort of an advance.

I have attended a good many committee meetings, and I am struck with the fact that the man with a definite program, however limited that program is, often wins out as against a do-nothing policy.

Doesn't the thought of single steps in betterment appeal to those of us who are too brave to be pessimists, and at the same time hardly brave enough to be optimists? Pessimism we have rejected. Thorough-going optimism we have not been able to bring ourselves to accept. But here is safe middle ground which, if we take firmly, may prove but a halfway house toward the heights of optimism. There is magic in the word "better." Perfection seems to be beyond our reach, but we can be and do a little better than we have been and have done. We can contribute to the betterment of the home, the community, the world. Good, better, best, that is the divine order. We are already in a bettering world. We shall not live to see it perfected; but we can give it a little push from day to day, as Huxley said to Spencer. We can acquire and deserve the reputation of being men and women who never rested content with wrong conditions, who never aimed at targets impossible to hit; but who were facile in devising practical measures whose work accrued to the uplifting of their neighbors and the welfare of mankind.

The one crucial, vital question for all of us is what can we do notwithstanding the limitations that surround us.

THE PARSON.

MEANT TO BE FUNNY.

New York Sun: Knicker—Did Jones give himself away?

Bicker—Yes, he called the side door of the subway car the family entrance.

New York Sun: Doctor—You have some sort of poison in your system.

Patient—Shouldn't wonder. What was that stuff you gave me?

New York Sun: Mrs. Knicker—Did the doctor advise a diet?

Mrs. Newbride—Yes; he said I could eat anything I could cook.

London Opinion: "You see," said the professor, "the science of chemistry depends on the discovery of certain affinities—"

"Pardon me," interrupted Miss Prym, "I trust the conversation can proceed without drifting into scandal."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "I happened to mention that two can live as cheaply as one, and he got furious."

"He's paying alimony."

Chicago News: "Has this foreigner who wants to marry your daughter a title?"

"He has," replied the old man grimly. "I gave it to him."

Chicago News: Customer—This soda is lukewarm. Didn't you say it was off the ice?

Soda Clerk—Yes, sir; I did, sir."

New York Sun: Knicker—Maxim has invented a noiseless gun.

Bicker—Can he invent one that a fool knows is loaded?

Kansas City Times: "And you really don't mind paying the alimony?"

"Not a bit. It enables my ex-wife to make a fine appearance, and I am sure she will soon catch Will Bustemupp, whom I detest, for her second spouse."

Mr. Cleveland on Mr. Roosevelt.

George F. Parker in McClure's Magazine: Roosevelt is the most perfectly equipped and the most effective politician thus far seen in the presidency. Jackson, Jefferson and Van Buren were not, for a moment, comparable with him in this respect. When I was governor he was still a very young man, and only a member of the assembly; but it was clear to me, even thus early, that he was looking to a public career, that he was studying political conditions with a care that I had never known any man to show, and that he was firmly convinced that he would some day reach prominence. I must, however, confess that I never supposed the presidency would come within the scope of his aspirations so early in life.

In 1893 (said Mr. Olney), when the question of choosing a president of the civil service commission was presented to the cabinet—every member of which was in favor of the promotion of Mr. Roosevelt, then a member of that body (that is, the commission)—President Cleveland was strongly opposed to this action, and said: "I want to tell you, gentlemen, now that you are making a mistake. I have known this young man Roosevelt since 1883, and I tell you that, without exception, he is the most ambitious man and the most consummate politician I have ever seen. However, as you all favor this nomination I will not oppose it; I only want you to bear my words in mind. The time will come when you will see that I am right."

Song of a Bright Day.

Away with your problems! The seed
we're a-sowin',
The corn cracks the soil, an' the melon is growin':

Away with your problems! The bright
sun is shinin',
An' Spring for Love's sweetheart, the blossoms is twinin'!

The bird near the bloom sings his soul to the sky,
An' this green world of God's is too sweet for a sigh!

Birds, blossoms and streams in the light o' the day,
Sunshine an' starlight and music of May!

THE UNITED STATES AND JAPAN

Discussion of the Root-Takahira Treaty--Exclusion the Remedy --Good Treatment of the Japanese Urged.

By WILLIAM E. CULKIN.

The relations between this country and Japan, superficially at least, seem to change with kaleidoscopic speed. On one day, representatives of the two countries are exchanging congratulations on the happy condition of affairs and referring with warmth to the ancient friendship existing between the countries and particularly to the fact that it was the United States which "opened up" Japan. Within a brief period after these happy exchanges, there are anti-American fulminations in the Japanese parliament and anti-Japanese bills pending in different legislatures. Washington sends out suggestions of ominous intent. We hear of movements of ships; strengthening of fortifications and the storing of supplies.

These continued rumors and continued discussions certainly are having a very bad effect. They cannot but prejudice the minds of the people of both countries to war and make such war seem inevitable and indeed necessary. And yet, in this time that 99 per cent of the people of each country is absolutely indifferent in the controversy and is in no way incensed against the other country, has specific knowledge of the facts and does not desire an armed collision. This 99 per cent of the people in both countries would, as usual, in the most docile manner follow the 1 per cent which dominates public opinion. These are days when wide statesmanship is necessary and certainly in view of the present irritation, a vigorous remedy should be applied.

The United States has the usual treaty with Japan and the rights of the two countries are defined in this treaty. Its stipulations are in no wise different, speaking in a general way, from the usual treaty of commerce and friendship existing between civilized peoples. But treaties do not make good relations between nations. Good relations exist because of mutual good will, common interest and common convenience. There has been no war during the long history of modern wars, before the beginning of which there was not a treaty of cordial friendship between the nations that went to war. Moreover treaties are not perpetual and the American-Japanese treaty contains a provision that it may be terminated by either party on a notice of twelve months.

The Root-Takahira Compact.

The present treaty is however in full force and is the supreme law of the United States under the Constitution. But this country, not abrogating or changing the treaty on the 30th day of November, 1908, and four months since through the department of state entered into a certain special agreement with the Japanese empire in the following terms:

"1. It is the wish of the two governments to encourage the free and peaceful development of their commerce on the Pacific ocean.

"2. The policy of both governments, uninfluenced by any aggressive tendencies, is directed to the maintenance of the existing status quo in the region above mentioned and to the defense of the principle of equal opportunity for commerce and industry in China.

"3. They are accordingly firmly resolved reciprocally to respect the territorial possessions belonging to each other in said region.

"4. They are also determined to preserve the common interests of all powers in China by supporting by all pacific means at their disposal the independence and integrity of China and the principle of equal opportunity for commerce and industry of all nations in that empire.

"5. Should any event occur threatening the status quo as above described, or the principle of equal opportunity as above defined, it remains for the two governments to communicate with each other in order to arrive at an understanding as to what measures they may consider it useful to take."

Secretary of State Root, now senator-elect from the state of New York, signed on behalf of the United States, and the Japanese ambassador, K. Takahira, signed on behalf of Japan. The foregoing is certainly an extraordinary document and the maker of it on behalf of the United States is quite universally held to be a man of extraordinary ability. It is manifest of course that the foregoing agreement is not a treaty because notwithstanding the recently assumed elasticity of the Constitution, it has not as yet assumed a sufficiently elastic form so that a secretary of state acting for a president, has the right or power to make a treaty with foreign nations which shall be the supreme law of the land, and it may be said in passing that it is well that the secretary of state, acting for the president, has not this power. Speaking broadly, no department of state has this power at the present time in any really civilized country. The premier of Great Britain practically can enter into treaties only with the consent of his associates in office who number at least a score, and in addition to that he is immediately responsible to the direct representatives of the people in parliament, who are themselves immediately responsible to the electors. The American president, the real head of the department of state, is not directly responsible to the electors and cannot be expelled from office, as he holds office for a fixed period of time.

But what is the meaning of this agreement? It cannot be doubted that Secretary Root did not consider that he was entering into an agreement which might involve the United States in a tremendous war and call for the expenditure of billions of dollars and tens of thousands of lives. Mr. Root would not assume that responsibility, and yet it cannot be assumed that the document above quoted was regarded by him as a matter of no consequence. The fact may be that the agreement was entered into by our department of state at the request of the Japanese to meet some exigency of Japanese politics. With this premise, the five articles in the agreement may be glanced at.

The first proposition is simple enough and recites that the two nations wish to encourage the free and peaceful development of their commerce on the Pacific ocean. This is one of those meaningless courtesies which are found in all treaties. If it was not expressed in the treaty, it would be regarded as stupid. It would seem unnecessary for Japan to say that it desired to develop its commerce on the Pacific ocean or any other ocean and there is no greater reason why this country should make such a declaration.

The Japanese Guarantee American Possessions.

The second paragraph of the agreement is, however, of vastly more importance. It contains two very important questions. After disavowing any aggressive intention, the nations agree that the status quo is to be maintained "in the region of the Pacific." If this is a binding stipulation, it means that this country guarantees to Japan the continuous possession of all her dominions and Japan reciprocates by guaranteeing to the United States its possessions on the Pacific coast. This is a trifle humiliating to American taste. What special reason can there be for this country to guarantee to Japan the continued peaceful sovereignty over the territories she now possesses? By what possible reasoning are we bound, for instance, in case Japan be attacked by Russia and Russia should triumph to join hands with Japan to fight Russia? And on the other hand, it is exactly sound Americanism for this tremendous power, this republic, to accept from Japan a guarantee of the continued possession of our own coasts? It is improbable, for instance, that England would accept from France or Germany any such guarantee or agreement that the shores of Great Britain should remain inviolate. And, particularly, to repeat, why should the United States of America guarantee to Japan the peaceful possession of all its territory?

A New Monroe Doctrine For Asia.

But passing from this point, this second paragraph agrees that both nations are bound to the defense of the principle of equal opportunity in China. What does this mean? By what authorities does the United States and Japan pretend to lay down law for another sovereign state? China is not a party to this agreement, and in case China desires to discriminate against Japan will Mr. Root have this country exercise force to compel China to treat the Japanese the same as China wishes to treat the United States, or some other sovereign?

These stipulations, entered into by Mr. Root on behalf of the United States, extend an American protectorate over all the possessions of China and Japan. That is to say, they do this if the agreement has any validity whatever. It seeks to maintain the status quo over all the islands of the Pacific and half of Asia. It really seems that one would have to search far and wide and high and low for that matter for reasons which would justify this policy on the part of the American department of state; and the search would have to be much more extensive to discover some reason why this country should go to war to preserve inviolate the dominions of these two great Mongolian powers. The solidarity of China and Japan could be broken, if at all, only by nations, whence the people of the United States, their literature, their institutions and their history have had their common origin. The average American has no particular desire to see China and Japan wronged but it is undoubtedly true that the average American would rather see China, British, German, French or anything than what it is. But we must not pass from the point. Mr. Root proposes in this agreement that the policy of the United States shall be to preserve in solido this great yellow power. He desires this power to become strengthened; he desires to see it increase in wealth, in armies, in warships and in all forms of force. One cannot but ponder for the reason why. It is only against this country that this power can be directed in a hostile way. War may never come on and Mr. Root's policy is persisted in, he will have rendered in advance a great service to the future enemies of his country.

The United States already has a semi-protectorate over all of North and South America, under what is called the Monroe Doctrine. This doctrine is really a favorite of the American people and was in line with the views of the people of the country at the time of President Monroe. It was a noble ideal which produced the Monroe Doctrine. The thought was that the western hemisphere should be preserved as the home of democracy and that the nations of Europe had no right to exploit these regions. It was the idea of the American republic that the Almighty had preserved the western hemisphere as the home for democracy and that here in all of its vast extent, republics might be erected, governed by the people themselves and that these republics might be an example which, in due time might be followed by the "prostrate people of the old world." But there was no second party to the potentiate of Mr. Monroe. There was no agreement: there was no treaty and there is not now. That distinguished president simply announced a view. The people recognized it as their own and it became and was and is a matter of national policy.

Root-Takahira Compact Not Binding.

Mr. Root's announcement must be regarded only as the view of those for whom he spoke. It is not a treaty and is not binding on any one. It is not binding on this country, because Mr. Root has no power to make a binding compact in a matter like this, and it is not binding on Japan because the other party to it is not bound. Nevertheless, it may be said to be practically binding if the American people agree with it. If the people do not agree with the views set out it is merely a pleasant exchange of compliments. For instance, in case of war between Germany and Japan, Germany should triumph and should insist upon the cession by Japan of the island of Formosa and the recession to Russia of the island of Saghalin. Would this country feel so disturbed and so affronted by such an arrangement that our people would declare war upon Germany? Hardly, and yet Mr. Root pledges this country's support to Japan in such a crisis. The chances are that the American people would be glad to see a little more of Europe on the western side of the Pacific. They begin to perceive that a great rival, an enemy in posse has arisen in western waters. The average American citizen feels that the strengthening of England, Germany, France or Russia in "the region of the Pacific" on the western side of it, would be a much more effectual guaranty of the continuance of the status quo than any verbal interchanges, however amiable.

And if England should see fit to extend her dominions along the banks of the Yang Tsi Kiang, we would at once be bound to go to war to prevent this change in the status quo. Certainly we would not do it, and it really seems as if this agreement the more it is analyzed the more vacuous it appears to be.

The paragraph numbered three in the stipulation may be passed over lightly. It says no more than that each of the two contracting nations are "firmly resolved reciprocally to respect the territorial possessions belonging to each other in said region." In short, by this stipulation each power says to the other that they do not intend to attack and wrest from the other any part of its present territory. Such a declaration between two men who were neighbors to each other would be unusual and rather absurd. Two former neighbors are never found agreeing that they would never steal one another's crops of forcibly appropriate each other's land. But as above stated, a statement like this is perfectly suitable in a treaty, because it is usual and customary. Mr. Root vows on behalf of the United States, that it does not intend to rob Japan, and Mr. Takahira vows reciprocally to Mr. Root and it is telegraphed all over the world that these countries do not intend to rob each other.

Shall We War With Europe for the Sake of China?

The fourth provision of the treaty is to a great extent a repetition of an important part of the second sub-division. In the second sub-division, both governments agree to maintain the status quo, and in the fourth paragraph, this idea is amplified by a common declaration that this country and Japan are determined to preserve the common interest by preserving the integrity of the Chinese empire. This integrity of the Chinese empire is something to be preserved, this Chinese empire is certainly not very attractive. The continued increase of the power of half a million semi-savages is a fine thing to contemplate! Certainly the United States ought not to encourage this growth. Caucasian ideals are very distinct from those of the Chinese, and while it would be unbecoming in a civilized nation to inflict upon the Chinese any injustice or any injury, certainly it would be much to the advantage of the Chinese and to the untold millions yet to be born in China, if a little Westernism, a little of Caucasian civilization could be injected into their lives. Such a result cannot be obtained by the policy agreed upon by our department of state. As a matter of fact, the old idea of partitioning China and giving parts of the same to the various civilized powers is not only strictly in the interest of the United States, but it is the interest of the people of China. The injection of the English, American, German, French, and even Japanese civilization would be a distinct advantage to the great yellow empire. The territory of China can never be conquered, the people of China can never be conquered, using that word in the ordinary sense. That race and its language will continue as long as any existing race. Their possession of the soil of their empire cannot possibly be disturbed except by a tremendous slaughter. So the spread of morality and civilization, the abolition of old superstitions and barbarisms can only be brought about through governmental agency. It, of course, is claimed, and generally it is true, that one people have no right to undertake the government of another, and that the poorest government by the people of themselves is better than the best government by strangers. Yet it is to some extent a question of self-preservation, and that law dictates that it should not be the policy of this country to strengthen politically or in a military or naval way the great yellow empires already so menacing and dangerous. The white and yellow peoples cannot live side by side in the same community without enormous compromises, if they are to live in harmonious. By Americans must become less American and Mongolians less Mongolian if peace is to prevail. It is far better that the races be kept separate. There are enough mongrel half-castes in the world now. The cheerful and optimistic gentlemen in Boston, Duluth and elsewhere, who are urging the people of the Pacific coast states to dwell in close contact with the yellow races would not practice what they preach. None of them would for a moment allow their own children to associate and live with Japanese and Chinese. They are prescribing medicine which they would not take, for a disease from which they do not suffer and about which they know nothing at all.

The next idea advanced in the fourth paragraph states that the powers are for the "principle of equal opportunity" for commerce and industry of all nations in that empire. This is decidedly cheerful. It is a law for China made by the United States and Japan. It is either that or nothing at all. Presumably China an independent empire, would have a perfect right to make her own tariff regulations and trade with whom she pleased on the conditions she pleased. She has a right to favor one country or another if she pleases to do so or if she thinks it is to her advantage to do so, and it is scarcely consistent with the idea of an independent China that Japan and the United States should undertake to regulate what she shall do in reference to foreign trade. Moreover the United States has no jurisdiction in China. Nor has Japan.

The United States and Japan do not undertake to regulate Holland, France, Spain or even Turkey, but the two powers propose to regulate China and China is not a party to the agreement and does not acquiesce in it in any way whatever. This agreement between the secretary of state and Japan is either meaningless or it will amount to a new Monroe doctrine extending over one-half of Asia. There were a fine set of moral and patriotic reasons for the old Monroe doctrine. It was enunciated in favor of liberty. It was enunciated in favor of liberty. But this new doctrine is really in favor of barbarism and its perpetuation.

The new Asiatic Monroe doctrine assumes the form of a treaty or compact, more or less binding on the people of the country. That is the whole matter excepting the fifth paragraph which contains an implied menace of war, war by Japan and the United States on any nation which should controvert the terms of the Root-Takahira compact. They agree that in case any violation of that compact inpends, they will confer as to what they will do. The armed nations will confer, deliberate and act. All this is clearly implied. As before intimated this part of the declaration is not very serious. No country contemplates interfering with Japan or China just now.

Russia has had enough and although all Americans were glad to see Russia beaten by Japan and although this country financed that war to a considerable extent, yet the time has now arrived when a large number of Americans begin to regret the fact that Russia was driven from her advanced post on the Pacific.

Germany has not the slightest desire to do any more partitioning in China, to do any more partitioning of China. She seized a sea-port a few years ago, but has gone no further and in fact seized that sea port only for the purpose of showing that she too was a great power and could seize as well as others.

Great Britain, the ally of Japan, with her world-wide possessions is perfectly satisfied with the status quo.

France is out of it. Her internal affairs and her relations with the powers of Europe forbid any Asiatic enterprise.

Nothing has been gained by the United States by this agreement but China and Japan have gained enormously. They are guaranteed security while they develop the force which may menace our country later.

The future policy of this country should be to seek by every proper means to prevent the further augmentation of the power of the yellow nations. There is no immediate danger from those powers and it may be that even a hundred years may elapse before such danger becomes imminent, but certainly the United States should not seek deliberately to build up a great armed camp of enemies against itself. Certainly the government of the United States should not neglect the ordinary considerations of duty due to its own people.

The Remedy.

What ought to be done to put an end to this unpleasantness? The end in view, so far as this country is concerned, is the welfare of its own people. To them its first duty is owing. Charity must begin at home. The idea that anything short of actual war will have much permanent influence on Japanese-American trade should be abandoned because it is erroneous. Trade is not patriotic. It does not love any country and it does not have any country. Its object is profit, gain, money. Trade will take a profit from an enemy as quickly as from a friend. Business knows no nationality. This is just as true of one country as of another. Japanese statesmen will promote trade with the United States so long as it benefits Japan and not one moment longer, and they are perfectly right in this. The same rule should regulate the United States, and it would be right in that course.

An Englishman in Liverpool buying a bushel of wheat somewhere else in the world does not care a toothpick whether the wheat was raised on a Minnesota prairie, on a Russian steppe or on one of the plains of the Argentine confederation. He simply wants to get the most for his money. He feels about the same as the American housewife does when she is out shopping. She is looking for bargains and not inquiring as to international relations.

The German purchasing a bale of cotton does not inquire whether the person from whom he purchases the cotton belongs to a nation which is friendly to Germany. He is thinking of private gain and not of public concerns.

An American purchasing a pound of tea doesn't care where it comes from, except that it may be that, knowing that it comes from a certain country, he may prefer it, not because he prefers the people of that country, but simply because he prefers the tea as tea.

It is apparent, therefore, that no matter what sort of exclusion laws may be passed, trade will rest, as always, upon the questions of profit, and it might be remarked, in passing, that the injury to trade between the United States and Japan might be almost fatal to Japan, while the injury to this country would not be appreciable. This question, as all other questions, should at once recognize the absolute right of the other to exclude emigration from the other country to its shores. Japan has no right to complain of this. From time immemorial until a few years ago, Japan maintained the most rigorous exclusion laws and the universal practice was, with some modifications as to put shipwrecked mariners reaching the shores of Japan to death. But Japan claims that for us to exclude the Japanese is to attach to that people a badge of inferiority. They say that we admit all other peoples freely except the Chinese; that the Japanese are a great nation; that their people are cultured and refined and should not be discriminated against. But this country has a right to discriminate, and for this country to admit this contention of Japan is to allow the Japanese a sort of sovereignty on American soil, a compulsory right of entry against our will because we choose to admit others.

This Country Is a Child of Europe, Not Asia.

Japanese students and statesmen should remember that, after all, the United States is a child of Europe. This country is joined to Europe by innumerable bonds of blood, history, literature, race, habits. No such relations exist between us and Japan. It is impossible for us to consider any part of our territory to the possession of the Japanese, and this rule should be placed upon the ground that the civilizations are incompatible and that an amalgamation of the races is, if possible, not desirable, and, furthermore, it may be placed upon the ground that our people will not have it; and that a further influx of the Japanese will result in as possible armed conflict and the destruction of the peace which the American nation so fondly desires. The Japanese should be excluded in the interests of both peoples.

The foregoing are a few of the considerations which lead to the conclusion that reciprocal exclusion laws should be passed by both countries, based on the incompatibility of the civilizations and without derogation from the dignity of either. Having reached a conclusion that exclusion is necessary, every step should be taken by this country to cultivate the friendship and good will of the Japanese; that is, every step consistent with dignity and self-respect. Nothing will be gained by cheap adulation or overestimation of the Japanese, but a sincere appreciation of their merits should be shown, and to that end the following measures should be taken:

At the present time foreign-born Japanese are not eligible to become citizens of the United States. Congress should pass a law admitting all Japanese now in the country to full citizenship, on the same terms as other aliens are admitted. The Japanese that are here should have our schools opened to them on terms of perfect equality, a practice which would not be permitted if their numbers were greater. Every effort should be made to cultivate the Japanese trade, and having this in view, Japanese merchants should be permitted to do business in this country under some form of license or passports for a moderate term, and the same privilege should be extended to Americans in Japan.

Education in all of our schools and colleges should be extended to the Japanese. Japan to reciprocate by opening the doors of her institutions of learning to Americans. A rigid exclusion law, for future application only, should be passed, based upon the principle to be accepted by both countries that the peoples and civilizations are incompatible and cannot exist peacefully intermingled, and that the mutual welfare of both countries demands the separation of their masses. It cannot be doubted that with this question of exclusion out of the way, the fear of conflict with Japan would disappear and the business, social and political relations of the two countries would safely rest upon a basis of mutual friendship and good will. All occasion for bickering would promptly disappear.

HINTON ROWAN HELPER

BY SAVOYARD

It was some ten years or more ago, on a sultry summer afternoon, when congress was not in session, I happened to walk into the reading room of one of the leading hotels of this town, fronting to the north, with several windows all open to the air outside. There were some nine or ten persons lounging in the place, and over in a corner were some four or five old gentlemen in rather animated conversee, the leader a man of striking personality. Now and again he would rise from his chair to make more emphatic a gesture, and I discovered a very athletic man, above six feet in height, straight as an arrow, broad-shouldered as a giant, and long-armed as Rob Roy MacGregor. His face wore the florid of an Englishman, his eyes were sky-blue, and his hair was white as cotton, but a vigorous, ivory white. His beard was the same. He would have been a distinguished presence in any company, though his physique was suggestive of the coarse. He was not a fine-grained man like John C. Breckenridge, or Roscoe Conkling, and yet he was symmetrical. His features were large and heavy, but there was an expression of unmistakable resolution written all over his countenance, and an air of manifest sincerity in his every utterance. Everyone had the closest attention to what he said, and all accorded him something very nearly like deference.

His theme was that humanity was going to the dogs, and the main cause of it was novel-reading. He contended that it was a crime for a teacher to depart from fact in the instruction of youth, or for anyone to deal in fancy in discourse, written or spoken, with his fellow-man. As he dilated on this line I partially quoted,

"What is truth?"

'Twas Pilate's question put to Truth itself,

That deigned him no reply."

I then reflected this way: Charles Dickens heard this man talk that somewhere, and the fertile genius of the author of Martin Chuzzlewitz immortalized him in the Gradgrind of "Hard Times." I am yet confident I am right in that impression.

After some half an hour a friend came in, and I eagerly asked him who that remarkable person was. He answered, "That is Hinton Rowan Helper."

Soon thereafter the party broke up; but I was determined to have a talk with Mr. Helper the first opportunity, and I had not long to wait. Within a dozen successive days I brought him to discourse on his philosophy of fact and found the same road he had trod the first time I saw him. I asked him if he had ever read Charles Dickens's novels, and with an accent of impatience he thanked God he had never opened a novel in his life. I then spoke of "Hard Times" and said that Dickens made one of the characters of that novel preach the precise philosophy as to facts that he had just uttered. He looked very much surprised and I thought I detected that he was rather pleased; but he would not promise to read the book.

Dickens had the genius of Scott in that he could get a hint from a trivial circumstance and turn it into a masterpiece of fiction, and I am satisfied that he saw and heard Helper when on his visit over here and overheard him deliver the sentiments he makes Gradgrind profess in "Hard Times." Helper did not get them from Gradgrind, therefore Gradgrind must have appropriated them from Helper.

Fifty years ago, lacking a few months, Hinton Rowan Helper was the most talked of man in the United States, all because John Sherman endorsed "The Impending Crisis," a book Helper had written advising the South to emancipate the slaves. Born a citizen of North Carolina, of English parentage, Helper was not opposed to slavery for any transcendental or altruistic consideration. If he had not believed the South would be infinitely more prosperous without slavery than with it, he would never have advocated emancipation. There was nothing of the sentimental in his make-up. "Facts, facts, give me facts!" was his motto. He looked on Garrison, Phillips, Beecher and that set as a lot of fanatic lunatics. He regarded John Brown as a midnight assassin, who sought to put the knife to every white throat and the torch to every white residence of the South. For these folks he had nothing but contempt, scorn, hatred.

Helper was a plain blunt man, who sought the emancipation and the deportation of the negro from our country. He was a man of superior intellect, who clearly saw that unless the negro was freed, by the advent of the Twentieth century the cotton states east of the Mississippi river would be populated by twenty negroes to one white, and that would mean Hayti for those states, whether slavery survived or perished. It was to avoid that, to preserve Anglo-Saxon civilization, that Helper appealed to the South to abandon slavery. Had his advice been taken there would be no "race problem" in our country today, for there would be no negroes to make it.

If the Garrisons, the Phillipses, the Beechers, the Sumners and things had not intermeddled, by 1860, every border state would have been rid of slavery; but they would not emancipate on compulsion. North Carolina and Tennessee would have followed within a decade, and thus the thing might have died a natural death.

Lincoln's idea of slavery was precisely the Helper idea. He was for emancipation for the benefit of the whites of the South. Had the negro only been concerned, he would not have permitted the fire of a gun.

The Thirty-sixth congress has never been surpassed for parliamentary ability in our country. The Republicans had a plurality, that was little short of a majority, in the house of representatives, and the old Whigs and Know-Nothings of the North, and the old Whigs and Know-Nothings of the South, who were opposed to the Democratic power. The house was not organized till after the Christmas holidays, but on many of the ballots John Sherman, the Republican caucus nominee, was very nearly elected, and it was all Helper could do to elect him by Whig and Know-Nothing votes from the South, five of them from Kentucky, when one morning the papers came out with a list of the Republican signers of "The Impending Crisis," and John Sherman's name was one of them.

Every Southern Whig or Know-Nothing knew it was political suicide to vote for Sherman after that expose, and his cause then became hopeless. The John Brown raid had occurred the October previous, and Sherman made a speech bitterly denunciatory of Brown, as did nearly every other Republican in both houses. What would happen in the Sixty-first congress if Owsley, Stanley, or Henry Clay, or Bob Henry were to memorize a speech of any one of a score of Republicans in the Thirty-sixth congress on John Brown, and deliver it on the floor? We would be hissed on the Republican side and the eloquence expunged from the Record.

Sherman explained that he had signed the "Helper Book" without knowing its contents. When I cited that to the old fellow, who has just passed away, it made him furious. He declared that Sherman had read every word of it, heartily approved it, and that he permitted in the vain hopeto get the speakership. You could always get Helper into a passion by a mention of John Sherman's name.

The last year of Hinton Rowan Helper's life were spent chasing a rainbow—a railroad from Bering sea to Cape Horn. It may be accomplished some day; but it will never transport, on a single train, a ton of through freight. Thousands of miles of the road are now bunit, and are parts of different systems. But the old man was infatuated with the idea, spent all he had in the promotion of it, and then surrendered to it a mind once powerful in its reasoning faculties. Next to the last time I saw him he argued with me to put $2,500 in it and he would insure me $50,000 in five years. I told him all right, that if he could find $2,500, my property, just to put her in and send me the certificate of stock.

Only the day before his death, or rather the day of his death, for he died that night, I walked a few steps behind him in a full block of Pennsylvania avenue, and I could discover no loss of vigor in his tread, or any less erectness of that stalwart frame.

But the world had wrestled with him and thrown him. His mind was shattered and his heart was broken. Friendless, penniless and alone, he took his own life and died at the age of 80—this man who had shaken the Republic from center to circumference, and who, at a critical period, had held and filled the center of the stage.

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

"Pelleas and Melisande."

Mrs. Stella Prince Stocker will give the last lecture in the Lenten course Wednesday afternoon of next week at her new studio, in the Edison building, at 214 West First street. "Pelleas and Melisande," the mysterious and wonderful opera by Maeterlinck-Debussy, which Mary Garden has made famous in Paris and New York, will be the opera discussed by Mrs. Stocker in the closing lecture. The musical sources of the opera will be spoken of, and the "Hymn to Apollo" will be sung. The hymn is of especial interest, as it was but recently discovered by members of the French Archaeological society while making excavations at Delphi. It was engraved on stone, and is said to be the only complete musical composition which has come down from the early Greeks. The Georgian music carried on the Greek spirit, and Debussy, in this opera, has taken the old Gregorian scale and built upon it the most weird and interesting harmonies.

Mrs. Stocker will review the entire opera, playing and chanting the music, making such abbreviations as will bring the recital within an hour and a half.

Lecture by Mrs. Seymour.

The Matinee Musical has secured Mrs. Robert Morris Seymour for a lecture, to be given at the Y. M. C. A. hall, Monday afternoon, April 5, at 3 o'clock. It has been the regret of Mrs. Seymour's many admirers that they have not had the privilege of hearing her this season, her time having been entirely taken up with courses of lectures in St. Paul and Minneapolis. Her one lecture here, a week from Monday, is, therefore, of more than ordinary interest.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

St. Paul Freshman Is Accused of Stealing Another Student's Watch.

St. Paul, Minn., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.) — An academic freshman, who comes to the university from St. Paul, has been accused of stealing a gold watch from the armory and selling it to a St. Paul pawnbroker. His name is withheld until action is taken by the university authorities or the police. Last week G. M. Orr, freshman engineer, had his watch taken from his trousers, which he had carelessly left outside of his locker, while drilling. He reported the fact to the Minneapolis police department at once and the watch was located in a St. Paul pawnshop, where it had been pawned for $4.35. As usual, the name and address of the seller was taken by the pawnbroker. The name and address given by the person who disposed of the watch is that of a freshman academic, a member of Orr's company, and every evidence points to his guilt. The disposal of the case has been placed in Dr. Cooke's hands. A warrant will probably be gotten out for the student's arrest.

Seniors have ordered their graduation invitations and announcements.

Dr. Robinson and Dean Downey left Wedesday for Chicago, to act as delegates at a meeting of the association of colleges and secondary schools of the North Atlantic Central states. Dean Downey stopped at Madison to be present at a meeting of the deans of academic departments of state universities, and met Dr. Robinson at the association meeting on Friday. Dr. Robinson acted as chairman of the committee on commercial subjects. Last year this committee drew up a series of seven definitions on subjects to be taught in secondary schools, and the present committee discussed important modifications of these seven definitions.

In order to establish a custom similar to one which is now in tradition in many Eastern colleges, a May day fete will be given this year by the Y. W. C. A. The attractions planned for the occasion are unique and artistic, but preparations are, as yet, secret. A May queen is to be chosen from the senior girls in the near future, and many of the '09 co-eds will compete for the honor, which will be decided by popular election.

The Minnesota Magazine for March appeared this week. The editors have dedicated this number to the future dramatists of Minnesota. To emphasize its dramatic nature much of the space is given to two plays of unusual merit. Gerard Van Etten's "The Gateway of Life" is the first. It is a poem drama in one act displaying real poetic feeling and an original style. Joe Donaldson's "Bluebeard" follows a very imaginative and vivid piece. A short narrative, "A Matter of Principle," by J. E. Dorsey, has a well drawn situation.

"Editorial Writing and Newspaper Policy" was the subject of the fifth lecture in the course of journalism. The lecture was delivered by Mr. Wheelock of the St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Prof. J. J. Flather delivered an illustrated lecture on "Rope Transmission" before the School of Mines society Thursday evening. The transmission of power is one of the most important problems before the engineers of today, and Prof. Flather is an authority on rope transmission. His lecture was most instructive and interesting.

Lynn Haines, secretary of the Citizen's league, addressed the students yesterday afternoon on "The Legislature—An Inlook and an Outlook."

FREE CONCERTS.

Mayor Hopes They Will be Provided in Parks.

Mayor Haven said yesterday that under the present charter he wasn't sure that the park board has the power to appropriate any large amount of money to provide free band concerts in the parks of the city, but said there were several ways in which funds could be raised to give the project a tryout this season. He expressed the hope that something along this line would be done. The mayor is enthusiastically in favor of the free concert plan.

NOTES ARE PUT INTO HER GRAVE

Mrs. Pierre Lorillard, Suicide, Buried on the Hudson.

Washington, March 27.—The death of his wife by suicide has proven more of a blow to Pierre Lorillard than his friends feared. With it all, however, he has maintained his equilibrium and has suffered no nervous breakdown. As the body was removed from the house, Mr. Lorillard walked swiftly to his carriage unassisted and unattended.

In the folds of her shroud, the material evidence of the death secret of Mrs. Pierre Lorillard is sealed with her body in the grave. The funeral party left the Lorillard residence at 5 yesterday afternoon for New York.

At the old home of the Lorillard's at Irvington on the east bank of the Hudson, the casket was interred today. Dr. J. Ramsey Nevitt, coroner, laid away in the folds of the shroud two notes and the mysterious trinkets found on Mrs. Lorillard's body after her death. Contrary to the general understanding, Mrs. Lorillard wrote neither of the notes after she returned from the Townsend inner. The only words she wrote on the morning of her death were on an envelope that contained the notes and trinkets. They were:

"Bury this with my body, unopened."

Girlie, The Wicked Witch and the Cloud Fairy.

BY HELENA DAVIS.

GIRLIE was not the right name of the little maid of whom this story is written; but as some of you might know her, should I write her correct name—for she figures in very ancient history, so I have been told—I merely call her Girlie, and let it go at that, for the story will fit one little maid's name as well as another.

Girlie lived in the long, long, long ago, in a country whose name I shall not give for the same reason that I do not give the name of our little heroine. Indeed, it is quite necessary to keep the whereabouts of the little maiden a secret. Otherwise the story would not be so interesting.

Girlie was an orphan living with a dear old Grandmother in the outskirts of a mountain village. The dear old Grandmother was a weaver of cloth, supplying the richest families of the village with their linens. In this way the old lady earned a meagre living for Girlie and herself, but they had never a luxury. Only the barest necessities were theirs.

As there were no schools in those days for girls (and few for boys, except for the sons of the rich) Girlie had nothing to take her from home, save to go to the chapel on Sunday morning, and to the neighbors on errands through the week, or down to the market place in the village to buy food for their table. So she and the old Grandmother were very close companions, Girlie sometimes assisting at the great loom which almost filled the small weaving-room. Only one other room had the cottage, and the loom room was the living-room and bedroom also. The second room served as kitchen, dining-room and storeroom.

One day poor old Grandmother was ill, too ill to get out of bed, and as there was an order for a piece of linen from one of the rich ladies of the village the old lady was very loath to lie idle.

"I must get out of bed, Granddaughter," declared the old lady, trying to rise from her cot. But from sheer weakness she fell back on her pillow, groaning with the pain the exertion had caused her.

Girlie, seeing the feeble condition of her Grandmother, felt a heavy heart and begged her to lie still, saying that she—Girlie—would do what she could at the loom that day.

"No, no, Granddaughter, you cannot weave well enough to work on the piece of linen that is ordered by Dame Golden. She pays well and expects the finest work. You so often get little knots in the thread, dear, and that makes a rough place in the cloth. No, my lass, the cloth must wait till I am on my feet again. Oh, this pain in my back is very trying!" And the poor old lady groaned in her agony.

Girlie sat beside her, rubbing the afflicted back till at last the old Grandmother slept. Then, stealing tiptoe to the door, the little maid looked out at the setting sun. All day long she had waited at the bedside of old Grandmother, and she was surprised to see that the day was already gone. As she stood looking afar off towards the great mountains that loomed like a wall about the village her fancies set to work. "I wonder if the fairies are about in the mountains now," she whispered to herself. "It is said that in the early springtime the fairies come from the clouds to the trees, where they stay during the summer. Ah, I wish I might visit the mountains and see a fairy, for I would tell her of poor old Granny's illness and she would heal her and make her strong again."

Then, seeing that old Grandmother slept soundly, Girlie decided to walk a little way down the street leading to the village, for she felt the need of some exercise in the open, having been housed so closely all day. But as she walked along her mind became so busy with thoughts of fairies that involuntarily her steps turned towards the mountain instead of following the village street, and within a few minutes she had passed the last hut on the border of the town and was in the midst of a deep and beautiful wood.

Now, some children are afraid of the dark, especially when alone, and in a deep wood, but Girlie was not afraid of anything, for she knew the night was made by the Great God as well as the day, and that there was nothing to fear from one more than from the other. So, finding herself in the wood, she sat down on a flat rock to rest a bit and to look up through the treetops at the stars that were just coming out.

"Granny will sleep a long time," she said to herself, "for all last night she was wakeful, and all this day she has not closed her eyes till now, so she'll get a good sleep and will wake, after many hours, refreshed. So I am in no hurry to return to the cottage, for the night is lovely and I will wander about here on the mountain side and enjoy the cool breeze and the fragrance of the pine trees. And—and—I wonder if a fairy will chance this way. I should be so happy. Let me see—what was it my old Aunt Susan used to say would bring the fairies? Oh, yes, I remember. I'll try to repeat it."

Then upon her knees little Girlie dropped, and holding her hands clasped high over her head, her eyes bent on the ground, she repeated in a solemn voice: "Fairies rich and fairies poor, won't you hear me. I implore? Come this night and visit me and listen to my entreaty." Then, after a moment's pause, Girlie repeated the rhyme, and, sitting very still, raised her eyes to the sky, hoping to see a band of fairies coming, full wing, toward her. But nothing intervened between her and the stars above. Just as she was about to repeat for the third time her little plea to the fairies she heard a slight stir in the bushes behind her, and turning about beheld a white-clad figure approaching her. Girlie immediately thought the form that of a fairy, and bowing low, said: "Ah, good fairy, you have responded to my call. I am in sore trouble. My dear old Granny is very ill, and I beg of you to come to our cottage and make her well. Will you do this for a poor little girl, good fairy?"

"Ah, yes, my child, I shall get my wand and go with you. But where do you live?" Thus replied the figure in white.

Girlie gave the information asked for, and the white-clad figure said: "Well, it is quite a walk from this spot to the village, but from my cave there is a shorter route. Will you accompany me to my place, where I shall get my wand? Then we will go on to your grandmother's home."

"You speak of living in a cave," said Girlie, a feeling of fear coming over her. She had heard that only wizards and witches lived in caves, and that fairies never dwelt in such places, inhabiting the clouds and mountain tops only.

"Ah, yes, my child," replied the white-robed figure," keeping her face covered by a white veil. "Sometimes we fairies go into caves for a little secret study. Even fairies must have privacy at times. I am studying the stars, and must steal away from the other fairies of my band."

Girlie, half afraid, decided to follow the white-robed figure to the cave, and thence to her own cottage, where she hoped to have her dear Grandmother restored to health.

They walked rapidly up the mountainside, and after going a considerable distance the white-clad figure—still keeping her face veiled—turned suddenly into a great shadowy clump of trees. Then above Girlie's head appeared a huge ledge of rock, in the side of which yawned a small black hole. The white-draped figure started to climb up some rude stone steps toward the black hole, which Girlie knew to be the entrance to a cave. Girlie followed, for she was now too much afraid to refuse to obey her strange leader, and the command had been: "Follow me, my child."

Once inside the cave Girlie could see nothing, for total darkness reigned. "Be not afraid," said the voice that had been conversing with her; but it had suddenly grown harsh, and grated on Girlie's ears. Then there flashed a dim light in the further corner of the cave, and Girlie saw that her companion had struck fire from a piece of flint, catching it in some bits of dried grass, after which a piece of rotten wood was ignited, and smouldered gloomily.

Then to Girlie's horror she beheld for the first time the white-clad figure's face. It was aged, wrinkled, hideous, cruel! Girlie sank into a corner of the cave, hiding her face in her hands. She was in the cave of a wicked old witch. She realized her danger, and trembled with fear, not daring to take a second look at the horrible face which was turned toward her, and which was plainly visible in the firelight.

"Ha, ha, ha! Do you know me, little lamb?" asked the now harsh and cracking voice of the witch. "I have a nice home here in this cave, my dear. All I needed was a young companion. And you shall be that desired person. You will grow up to be a fine witch, and while you are young your power will be unlimited. It is only after one has grown old and ugly like I am that one has to keep one's face covered by a veil when going about in the disguise of a fairy. Ah, ha, ha! Didn't I trap you nicely, my child?"

"But—but—but you will not keep me here?" pleaded Girlie in trembling tones. "Let me go to my dear old Granny, who is ill and needs me. Please let me go at once!"

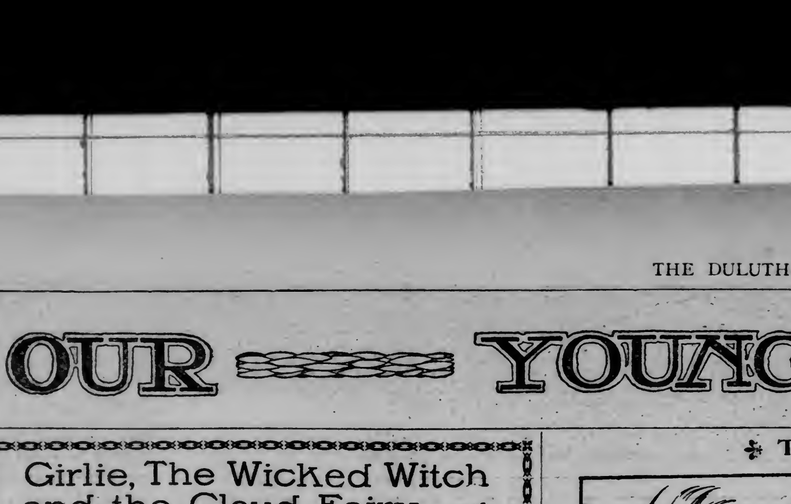
"No, no, no!" declared the old witch, grinning terribly. "I have waited long for a young companion. I must keep you now that I have you safe and sound. I'll teach you all my tricks, and you'll soon be a fine young witch. Ah, the mischief we two can do in the world!" And the old witch smacked her thin lips, and gurgled in ecstasy. "Ah, you are a pretty little one! After a few years of confinement in this cave you will be glad of the chance to practice the black art, if for no other reason than to get out into the fresh air."

"But I must go to my Granny!" cried Girlie. "I cannot—I will not—become a wicked witch! Let me go, I implore you!" And running to the cave's entrance Girlie attempted to pass out, but she came against a solid stone cover to the opening. The witch had rolled a huge flat stone there, and barred the exit. Beating her hands against the stone Girlie began to cry out with all her might: "Fairies rich, and fairies poor, won't you hear me, I implore?"

She got no further, for the witch had her by throat and was choking the very breath out of her body, when of a sudden the great stone rolled from the entrance, and a beautiful fairy stood in the cave. With a wave of her wand the fairy cried out: "Perish, wicked witch!" And before Girlie could understand what was taking place the old witch lay dead at her feet.

"I saw that old witch lead you to this cave," explained the good fairy, and I followed as fast as I could. I have been watching for her for years, and tonight is the first time I have found her. She is the last witch in this country, and now the human beings as well as the fairies may sleep without fear."

And the good fairy went home with Girlie, and by her magic made old Grandmother well and strong, and also made her and Girlie rich, and soon thereafter Girlie became a great and good princess.

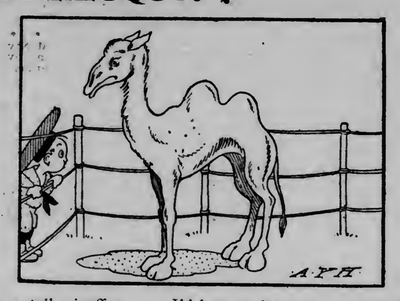


"You will grow up to be a fine witch, and while you are young your power will be unlimited."

TOMMY'S SOLILOQUY.

I'D hate to be an elephant,
Or a poor squealing pig,
For one is always eaten up
And the other is too big.

I'd hate to be a roaring lion,
With the hunters after me;
I'd hate to be a monkey queer
A-hanging from a tree.



I'd hate to be a tall giraffe,
I'd hate a wolf to be,
I'd hate to be a camel slow
In a men-ag-er-ie.

I'd hate to be a common toad
That sits 'neath a toad-stool,
I'd hate to be a dray horse,
Or a poor unhappy mule.

I'd hate to be most anything
That would myself destroy,
And find I am quite satisfied
To be a little boy.

An Accident.

"Why, Earlie, you've got a big lump on your hand! Have you been fighting again?"

"Fightin'? Me? I guess not."

"But somebody struck you?"

"Nobody struck me. It wasn't fightin' at all. It was an accident."

"An accident?"

"Yep; I had just trun Jimmy O'Brien down an' was sittin' on him, an' I forgot to hold his feet."

Paddy and the Telephone.

FATHER Halley had a telephone put into the parsonage in connection with the church, parochial school, etc. Paddy McKay, the Father's handy man, was instructed in the use of the instrument, and the next day while Paddy was dusting the church he heard the telephone bell ring, and hurried to take down the receiver. He was happy to hear Father Halley's voice asking him a question. Paddy, in preparing to answer the Father, remembered that his Reverence was a long way off and raised his voice accordingly. He screamed into the speaking trumpet, then waited the result.

"I don't understand a word you say, Paddy," came the voice of the Father. Paddy, raising his voice still louder, almost burst his lungs repeating his answer. Again came the Father's voice, saying: "I can't make out what you say, Paddy." Paddy, impatient, and possessing a quick temper, turned his face aside and said in low tones: "May the divel take the auld fool fer his deafness."

"Ah, I heard you perfectly that time, Paddy," came the Father's voice, and a promise was in its tones, too. And Paddy, leaping away from the instrument, swore he'd "silver monkey with that divilish consarn agin, niver!"

Our Puzzle Corner

ZIGZAG PUZZLE.

All the words in the zigzag contain the same number of letters, and if rightly guessed, the zigzag, beginning at the upper left-hand letter and ending with the lower left-hand letter, will spell the name of a once famous and most erratic English poet. The cross-words are: 1. A word meaning large. 2. A Scotch word used in the affirmative. 3. A rod of iron. 4. Meaning the present. 5. A word used in the negative.

ILLUSTRATED PRIMAL ACROSTIC.

If the illustrated words of the above acrostic are rightly guessed and written one below the other, their initials will spell a kind of living creature that is greatly in evidence in the springtime.

BEHEADINGS.

(1) Triply behead to be vanquished and leave to devour. (2) Behead the exercise engaged in by soldiers and leave a little brook. (3) Doubly behead a fine fur and leave a place from which mineral is taken.

CURTAILINGS.

(1) Doubly curtail a precious stone and leave a boy's toy. (2) Doubly curtail to make secure and leave to move in a rapid manner. (3) Curtail a number and leave a stronghold.

The Finger Family and Their Punishment.

A STORY FOR LITTLE TOTS. BY MAUD WALKER.

THE Finger Family were in dishonor. They had been guilty of grievous conduct. And now they were suffering the penalty of their wrongdoing.

The Finger Family consisted of 10 members, and all were equally guilty. And now I shall tell you about the Finger Family, and about their conduct which brought them into ill repute.

The Finger Family belonged on the two hands of Little Jack Arrow. And Little Jack Arrow was a seven-year-old boy who had a very dear mamma and papa. But Little Jack Arrow had no sisters or brothers, therefore he often got into mischief. I say "therefore he often got into mischief," for had he possessed a sister or a brother it is very probable the Finger Family would have been kept so busily engaged with play that they would have behaved themselves very nicely. But, of course, there can be no good excuse for a Finger Family's bad behavior, even though their owner has no brothers or sisters to keep him out of mischief.

Well, this is the way it all happened: One day Little Jack Arrow's mamma said to him: "Sonny, I am going shopping, and shall be away from home all afternoon. As cook is very busy in the kitchen, and Jane has an afternoon off, you will be your own master during my absence. Will you behave very nicely while mamma is away? I shall question you closely on my return, and I hope you will do nothing you will be ashamed or sorry to confess. Remember, however eager Finger Family is to get into mischief, and do your best to induce them to be good." Then mamma kissed Little Jack goodby and was off on her shopping expedition.

After mamma had departed Little Jack sat by the window for several minutes, watching the passersby. But soon he grew tired of this, and determined to "go exploring" in the library. Now, Little Jack's mamma never denied him the liberty of the whole house, and he felt free to visit any room whenever his fancy prompted him to do so.

Once in the library he fell to examining various great volumes which he found piled upon a table. Some of them contained very interesting pictures, but Little Jack thought these might be improved by some color. He ran to his own room and got his box of watercolors and a brush. Then he went to the dining-room and procured a glass of water.

But on returning to the library Little Jack heard a wee small voice saying to him: "Watch the Finger Family. They might ruin the beautiful pictures in the fine books." For a moment little Jack listened to the wee small voice, and remembered what his mother had said to him about the Finger Family. But the Finger Family conquered, for five of the members held the box of watercolors, while the other five members clutched the paint brush. And on the floor rested the glass of water. So down sat Little Jack on the floor, dragging one of the huge books beside him. Then the Finger Family set to work with a will. And before little Jack hardly knew what was in progress the pictures in one of the books had been gaily colored. And more than that had happened. The cover of the book had suffered an accident. Once while dipping the brush into the glass of water Little Jack tipped the glass and some of its contents went on the floor, running under the book and staining the cover very badly.

From one book Little Jack went to another, and the Finger Family kept the paint brush busy till the illustrations had been colored in a very crude way in three great handsome volumes. Then the Finger Family became tired—or maybe Little Jack's stomach made a protest against further work by the Finger Family, insisting that it perform some work on its own account. So, putting the books on the table again, and removing his paint box, brush and glass of water, Little Jack strolled out of the room and went in quest of food.

At the kitchen door he was met by a very stern face, for Cook knew by instinct what a little boy visited the kitchen for, and she had no time to be preparing lunches for any one just then. There was a cake in progress of making, and a chicken to be dressed for dinner. So, her face was not inviting when Little Jack looked into her realm.

"What do you want, Master Jack?" The question was sharp.

"Sumthin' to eat," Little Jack made bold to inform her.

"Well, you must wait till I've done my cake and dressed that chicken," replied the Queen of the Kitchen and Pantry. "No time to be fixin' stuffin' for small stomicks between meals. Besides, it's a bad habit."

Little Jack understood the Cook, and knew there was no appeal after she had passed her verdict. So he marched away from the kitchen portal, going to the big dining-room where he hoped to find a cracker on the table. But the table was already set for dinner, and not so much as a crumb remained on it. Little Jack's stomach gnawed, and he went to the pantry, walking on tip-toe so that the cook might not hear him. On a top shelf Little Jack could see many small jars and glasses of jam and jelly. Also there were big-mouthed bottles full of pickles, and many other fancy edibles Little Jack's palate knew and loved.

Then the Finger family became restless, and ached to get hold of one of the glasses of jelly and a bottle of pickles. So, Little Jack, in obedience to the Finger Family (which was no doubt influenced by the greedy stomach), climbed upon a chair, then upon a shelf, and then got upon the breadbox which lifted him still higher, and found that he could just touch the row of jars and glasses with one member of the Finger Family. It was Mistress Fore Finger, who could reach and caress a glass of jelly, and after many moments of straining to lengthen his arm Mistress Fore Finger succeeded in passnig her slender little head around one side of the glass, thus drawing it forward. And when the glass was just at the edge of the shelf Mistress Fore Finger gave it a pull, and down it came, passing Little Jack's head like a flash of lightning, hitting him on the shoulder and bobbing off to fall smash on the floor.

"Oh, it broke!" moaned poor Little Jack. "But I can find enough of it in a lump to spread on some bread. And here's the breadbox under me. I'll help myself to a slice."

So saying, Little Jack got off the breadbox so that he might get into it, and there he found two big slices already cut. Pretty soon these slices of bread were spread with jelly—all that Little Jack could gather up without getting with it broken bits of glass, for he was very particular to avoid any particles of glass, knowing that should he swallow one he might die of it. His mamma had told him of the dangers of broken bits of glass.

After the bread and jelly were eaten Little Jack found that he had gotten his nice new suit all smeared with jelly, and that one of the members of the Finger Family was bleeding where it had been cut by the broken glass.

Just as he was wondering what to do about the muss on the floor and on his clothes the front door opened and someone entered. Then Little Jack's mother called out: "Where are you, sonny?"

Little Jack did not answer at once, for he felt that he had been into mischief, and shame caused him to wish to put off meeting his mother as long as possible, so he did not call out, but waited for his mother to enter the dining-room, when she did pretty soon, calling to cook, "Where is my little man, cook?"

Then Little Jack was obliged to come from the pantry, and with his head hanging said: "I'm here, mamma. But—but the Finger Family——"

He could say nothing more, and waited till mamma took in the situation. She did so at a glance. Then she took a peep at the pantry floor. "And what else did the Finger Family do?" she asked in a very stern voice.

"Painted some pictures in some books," admitted Little Jack.

Then mamma and Little Jack went to the library to see the pictures which had been painted in the books, and it is needless to say that mamma saw several of the finest volumes of the library ruined. Leading Little Jack to her own private room mamma sat down and talked to him.

Half an hour after the confidential talk, in which mamma pointed out the fact that Little Jack had been the real influence behind the bad conduct of the Finger Family, it was agreed that not only should the Finger Family be punished, but that Master Stomach and Master Little Jack himself—all of him, feet, head, body—should pay penalty for the mischief done during mamma's absence. Each member of the Finger Family was tied up in black rags—all save the wounded one, which was carefully wrapped in white linen—and Little Jack was then put to bed with this sentence: "No dinner tonight, and tomorrow a task of writing the words 'Bad Boy' 100 times. Not alone must Finger Family suffer, but their companions in mischief must suffer with them," declared mamma. And lying there in his bed, lonely, hungry Little Jack decided he would never, never allow the Finger Family nor Master Greedy Stomach to lead him into mischief again.

Down it came, passing Little Jack's head like a flash of lightning.

A CORROBORATION

Of Interest to Duluth Readers.

For months Duluth citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills by Duluth residents. Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? No stronger proof of merit can be had than cures that have stood the test of time. The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Duluth reader.

H. G. Hibke, 1123 Woodland Avenue, Duluth, Minn., says: "I suffered for a long time from kidney trouble which I believe was brought on by constant driving and exposure to all kinds of weather. Severe pains in the small of my back made stooping or lifting difficult and every cold I caught settled in my kidneys, aggravating the complaint. I was subject to headaches and the kidney secretions often became highly colored and irregular in passage. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and today not a symptom of my trouble remains."

The above statement was given on Oct. 20th, 1904, and on Nov. 20th, 1908, Mr. Hibke, added: "Since using Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago, I have had no need of a kidney remedy. I willingly confirm all I have previously said about this preparation as I know it is very effective in cases of kidney complaint."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

NOTES ON GARDENING

In notes on gardening so far I have written almost entirely of vegetables. This week I will speak of flowers, as there are perhaps more people interested in flower-growing than the raising of vegetables. I once heard a lecturer say that no one could be really bad who loved flowers.

The Hollyhock.

One of the most satisfactory, imposing and easily grown plants is the hollyhock. The old fashioned hollyhock was always a favorite, and being a perennial, came up year after year and flowered without fail. When once established, being very hardy, it requires little or no attention.

There are now several different kinds. The old fashion (improved), which produces double, semi-double and single flowers, in many colors, from deep maroon (almost black) to scarlet, pink, white and yellow, with many intermediate shades and markings. They do not flower the first year from seed. This makes the new Allegheny strain more desirable for general use, as it will flower the first year from seed, growing equally as tall and robust as the old style. The flowers of this kind are not quite so double as the old ones, but they are equally as large, and, being beautifully fringed and crinkled, produce equally as showy a spike of flowers. I have a photo of one I grew some years ago, which attained the height of eight feet six inches in one season from seed and was beautifully branched. They may be depended upon to grow six or seven feet. The flowers last longer and are not so easily damaged by rain or wind as other kinds. The range of colors is equal if not superior to the old sort and the flowers look as if made of Chinese silk or satin, which makes them very attractive. Then there is the annual hollyhock, which is comparatively new, and if sown during March or April in the hotbed or house and transplanted in May to the open ground will flower, in August and continue flowering till frost. They are strong, robust growers, seldom attacked by disease, but don't grow quite so tall as the others. The Allegheny is perhaps better treated as an annual, as it does not winter quite so well as the old kind, even when protected. They are liable to rot in the center or heart of the root, throwing up a number of small side shoots in the spring, which are weak and do not produce the fine large flower spike of a main or center shoot.

The seed of hollyhocks should be sown in early February or March and in April in flats and transplanted into small pots, using good rich soil. When transplanted into the open ground, which can be done as soon as the ground can be worked, very rich soil should be used, kept well cultivated and free from weeds. Being a heavy feeder plenty of water should be given. A top dressing of well rotted manure will hold the moisture and strengthen the plants. The perenbils should be well covered with litter over the first frost in the fall, which is hard enough to freeze the plants and the ground to about one inch in depth. While I am speaking of top dressing in the fall, I may as well explain the object of this custom. Many people seem to think it is done simply to prevent the roots from freezing. It is a mistake. It is true top dressing will stop freezing to some extent, but this is not the main object. It is to prevent freezing and thawing and freezing again which will kill almost any plant, which if kept covered as not to thaw out two or three times during the winter would come out alright in the spring. Therefore coarse litter or leaves should be used for fall top dressing and not rich damp manure. Manure can be applied in the spring or even in the fall if well covered with litter and forked in early in the spring. Another mistake I have noticed is that as soon as a few fine days in the spring have thawed the surface of the ground all protection is taken off as soon as possible. This is a great mistake. All top dressing used for the protection of plant roots, even top dressing of lawns, should not be removed until all danger of night frosts is passed. If taken off too soon growth will commence on fine days and a sudden slight frost would throw everything back and do more damage than a hard frost in winter and may even kill the plants. Small fruit trees covered with straw to be kept back as late as possible as most of them blossom as soon or even before the leaves are fully developed. Gooseberries and currants are of this kind and most seasons get caught by late frosts. I have never seen a good crop of gooseberries in this country. I think owing to the above cause. The blossoms come out before there is enough leaf to protect them and they get destroyed by late frosts. The gooseberry is one of the most useful and healthful of all garden fruits and in places where they do well are perhaps used more than any other small fruit. I have seen gooseberries as large as pigeon eggs and as sweet and luscious as a fine grape.

Sweet Peas.

The Sweet Pea is perhaps the most universal favorite of all flowers, being useful for all decoration purposes. For ladies' corsage bouquets, gentlemen's button holes, or for vases in the house there are no flowers so much used and few have so great a diversity of colors and so fine and pleasing a fragrance. Therefore they should be grown with the greatest care so as to be as sure as possible of a good crop. There is no certainty of a good crop. The season may not be favorable and all one's trouble may amount to little or nothing. Many had bad luck last year. Yet it nearly always pays to take great pains.

There are so many new kinds of sweet peas coming out every year, that it is almost impossible to keep posted as to which are the best and as it is important to get the best of seed, the most reliable seedsman, who makes sweet pea growing one of his specialties and order what you want either in mixture or separate colors; or named varieties.

It is very interesting to grow sweet peas by name and anyone who wishes to be thought up-to-date will do so. The shades of color and the shapes of the flowers are very interesting to study. It is wonderful how many different styles and colors there are now. When Henry Eckford began improving and developing the sweet pea there were only three or four colors and about one shape of flower. Now there are hundreds of shades of color and many different shapes of flowers. If desiring named varieties the best plan is to get a catalogue from a sweet pea specialist, such as W. Atlee Burpee of Philadelphia, John Lewis Childs of Floral Park, N. Y., or Vaughan's seed store, Chicago. There are many other good firms, but I have dealt mainly with the above, and found them reliable. W. Atlee Burpee of Philadelphia, and Henry Eckford of England have introduced more new kinds and colors than perhaps all others put together. The new Spencer & Unlvin types are particularly fine, being larger and of quite a distinct form of flower. If I could grow only a few sweet peas I should confine myself to these two in their various colors. John Lewis Childs of Floral Park, N. Y., advertises none other in his catalogue. Most of the above have three and often four blossoms on one stem, all facing one way.

Preparing the ground for sweet peas is very important. Sweet peas should never be grown in the same soil two years in succession. If there is only one place in the garden suitable and sweet peas have been grown there the previous year, the soil should be dug out at least a foot deep and a spade wide so as to make a trench. In the bottom of this three or four inches of well rotted manure should be placed; then three or four inches light sandy loam, mixing it thoroughly with the manure. Then a layer of sandy loam, of at least two inches deep. There will still be a trench left in which the seed should be sown at least two inches deep and about two inches in the row and as soon as possible, as soon in fact, as the ground can be worked. Care must be taken the trench is well drained so that there will be no standing water in wet weather. This can generally be done by leaving one or both ends of the trench open. If this cannot be done some other method must be used. When the sweet peas have grown above the trench two inches deep and begin to fill it so as to fill it, just leaving the crowns or tops of the plants above ground. In this way a good crop may be relied upon. In any case the ground must be rich, deeply cultivated and well drained. Keep free from weeds. The seeds should never be sown less than two inches deep and in very light soils three or four inches won't hurt. Sweet peas can be grown against a wall or board fence, but if possible they should be grown in the open with a full circulation of light and air all around them. Brush or wire netting should be placed along the rows for the vines to grow up. This should be done at the time of sowing the seed. Sweet peas grow five to six feet high.

With above directions anyone ought to grow a fine lot of flowers. Plenty of water in dry weather is necessary and the flowers should be gathered every day. If once allowed to go to seed the flowering season will be over and better seeds can be sown than raised by amateurs. There are a great many poor grades of seeds on the market especially of sweet peas. Hundreds of acres are grown in California and dumped on the market at low prices, which are very cheap but cannot be relied upon. Better pay a fair price to reliable, known seedsmen than run any chances.

Asters.

Next week I will give some notes on Asters, another favorite flower, and perhaps tell something that everybody does not know.

Some country people say my methods are too troublesome and expensive. All I have to say is let them compare the crops I have raised with these they raise and decide for themselves which are the largest and best. Two acres well cultivated will pay better than ten carelessly managed. How is it so many gardeners near large cities like New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, St. Paul, and others, make a good living and some save money on two, three or five acre lots? Because they know their business and attend to it in the smallest particulars. My notes are not for such as these, most likely they know as much or more than I do, but for such amateurs and private gardeners as wish to have a good garden for their own use and pleasure.

JOHN WHELAN.

SOCIALISM AND WEALTH

It is surprising to note with what indifference the people treat the subject of the distribution of the wealth of our nation. They seem to enjoy, or I may say glory, to know that a few persons own the greater portion of the wealth, while the many are suffering for the needs of life. One of the unsolved riddles is, why should those who work the hardest, have the least, and those who do the least, have the most? And yet we are told the world was given unto all men, yet the opposite seems to be true. The question may in all fairness, be asked, why should the workingman, who is the producer of wealth, be denied the right to enjoy the rewards of his labor? Few have ever attempted to give answer to the question.

We are told, the rich are becoming richer, and the poor becoming poorer. The burdens of the world have been carried upon the backs of the workers for ages past, but should that be a reason why we should continue to do so at the present time? Was wealth produced at that time produced in abundance, as it is today? They, at that time, had no modern machines, as we have at the present time. The worker of the past was not enlightened as are the workers of the present time. Brains were not sold upon the market at so much per, as is the rule today. We can produce enough for all and yet we have people starving for plain crusts of bread in our midst.

What must be our thoughts, those of us who are conscious of the fact that little children, the buds of God's pure sunshine, sent from the land of bliss to gladden the reclining years of our aged lives, are forced to work? Yet we know that there are 1,780,000 of these children who aid in the production of our wealth. It is said figures will not lie. That may be true, but there are few of us who can realize what the figures used in the counting of our wealth mean; they are so large that we, as workers, seldom use them, and for that reason it is hard for us to understand them. Our population for 1908 was 88,000,000 people, our wealth $116,000,000,000, and it is safe to say that 30,000 persons own $70,000,000, or two-thirds. That one-third of 1 per cent own more than do the 99 2-3. Our wealth, $116,000,000, is as much as is owned by France, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Spain, Netherlands and Switzerland. We own as much as do the other six countries.

With all of this wealth some are living in idleness and ease, degenerating, becoming immoral and seemingly losing their semblance of an intelligent mankind, and yet we laud them, we praise them, we worship at their shrine, and at times we seem to become imbued with the thought that they are made of better clay than we; but after all they are not so much to blame. We have voted them into power time and time again. We have conferred upon them the right to be what they are. We have simply said: "We like you; we will give unto you the keeping of the government; we will allow you to make the laws; you need not think of us; do as you please; we will get along some way; take what you want, then if there is anything left we will divide it amongst ourselves; we would not be guilty of doing other than that which you instruct us to do."

It seems logical for us Socialists to assume the right to believe that, in the very near future, the people will do a little thinking for themselves; that they will not allow some one else to think for them, and it remains true that until the workers become more vividly conscious that they are the disinherited owners of the world they have built by their own labor, until they can clearly see that there can be no common cause that can exist between men who do not produce and those who do produce, until these things can be clearly seen, all betterment will be blind and unintelligent, betrayed and baffled. It will lack the comprehension which should mark the greatest cause to which man has ever been summoned.

It follows as a logical conclusion that the betterment of all the people can come through the collective ownership of the tools of production, and if those who cant and rave would destroy their ideals of hypocrisy, would divest themselves of their stupidity, if we could all of us come to an understanding that the laborer is worthy of his hire; if we could unite upon the common ground of a mutual understanding, following the teachings of Jesus, drive the money changers out of the temples and the seat of government, then and only then can we, the members of the working class, ever expect to come to our own.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT

New Vein and Ore Shoot Opened on the Vindicator---Blue Bird Mine Producing Thirty Cars of $30 Ore Monthly.

Cripple Creek, Colo., March 27.—A new vein and ore shoot have been opened in the 1,200-foot level of the main shaft of the Vindicator mine. The vein is four feet wide between walls. Assays show $100 a ton values. The Hull City placer, also a Vindicator Consolidated company property, is in an ore shoot in the 900-foot level, with screening values of $60 a ton. The company's properties have produced $8,200,000, of which $712,740 is credited to 1908. Total dividends, including $45,000 disbursed Jan. 25, 1909, aggregate $1,950,000.

The Blue Bird mine is producing thirty cars of $30 ore monthly. Development work is progressing on the 1,200-foot level.

The Trilby Mines company is producing 750 tons of mill grade ore monthly from the Ben Harrison and Trilby mines.

A three years' lease with graded royalties has been secured on the properties of the Prince Albert company (limited). Lessees will continue the Prince Albert tunnel to the south end lines of the Black Belle Gold Mining company's properties, also a crosscut will be driven east from the tunnel level under the immense open cut on the Prince Albert, which has yielded big profits. The mine's gross production to date is $253,322.

The Roach-Fogleman lease on the W. P. H. mine is in a vertical vein encountered by crosscutting to tap a flat vein on the fourth level. The new body is four feet wide and carries a rich shoot. It has been followed thirty feet, and an upraise carried twenty feet above the level has been shown continuous with high values in quartz, sylvanite and rusty gold. A first shipment of four cars has been made.

The Pony Gulch section, south of and adjoining the properties and mill of the Little Giant company, is attracting interest because of the discovery of ore with values ranging from $4 to $6 a ton. A 200-foot shaft has been started down through the outcroppings. The Little Giant mill will be restarted to treat the product.

The Co-operative company, owning a lease on school section No. 16 on Bull Hill, is profiting from royalties paid by sub-lessees which resulted in a dividend of $8,000, covering a part of 1908.

The Stratton's Independence (Ltd.) mill, in addition to the low grade ores of the mine, has begun the treatment of dump stock. The tonnage, which was 1,000 in February, is now 5,000 monthly. The dump is averaging $3 a ton, with $1 profit.

The Ruby mine is in a narrow seam of quartz carrying $1,000 a ton. Surrounding rock of a two-foot vein carries $40 a ton. The Princess Alice Gold Mining company, Buffalo, N. Y., is owner.

the fifth level disclose exceptionally fine copper ground, a considerable proportion of the mineral at that depth, running to barrel work and small mass copper. The present showing is fully equal to that in No. 6 shaft, which latter unquestionably is Isle Royale's banner shaft, in point of riches.

Trimountain.

The greatly improved conditions in the Trimountain mine, first noted about one month ago, continues to hold. The best showing is probably being made in the No. 4 shaft, where exceptionally rich rock is in evidence on several levels below the eleventh. This shaft together with No. 1 shaft, opened on the extreme south end of the property, furnishes the bulk of the rock at present going to the stamp mill. Further good ground is noted on the fourteenth level drift north, in No. 3 shaft, and on the fourteenth and fifteenth levels in the No. 2 shaft. Drifting below these levels in this shaft is expected to be in progress about the middle of April, or soon after the skipway has been built to the eighteenth level. The present bottom of the shaft. About fifty machine drills are in service, thirty of them being engaged in stoping. None of them is in the rich ground recently cut in the bottom of the mine. The opened in the bottom of the mine. The several drifts are being extended at the rate of fifty feet monthly, and at least one year will be required to open enough high class stoping ground to put the rock coming from opening work in the bottom has increased the average content of the rock from the past general mine run of fifteen pounds to better than sixteen and a-half pounds of fine copper per ton of rock milled.

pany in November, 1907, Mr. Casey found an over-issue of 24,616 shares of treasury stock. Mr. Power promised Mr. Casey to make good this over-issue of 24,616 shares to the company, and later turned over to Casey, as security therefor 31,250 shares of La Union Consolidated (Copper company, Sierra Cordilla) stock, and which is still held in trust by Casey for the company.

Upon auditing the books in November, 1908, it was discovered that of the treasury stock issued, none of the stubs had been filled in; that the 30,066 shares remaining in the treasury as shown by the November, 1907, statement had been sold, and 50,000 shares additional, aggregating an over-issue of 104,872 shares of treasury of which no accounting was ever made to the treasury by Mr. Power. This was the game Mr. Power relied to work on the Canaca-Duluth company, which will be remembered by those interested here.

Mr. Power has paid into the treasury only $27,500, as the books show, out of which amount there was done by Mr. Casey over 2,000 feet of development work on the properties. The remaining money of the $27,500, after the 2,000 feet of development work, amounting to $33,400, was deducted, was by Casey turned back to Power, together with 1,050 shares of La Cinspas stock bought by Casey out of the treasury fund, and which were appropriated by Power.

When Casey discovered the overissue of stock and the false dividend as acknowledged by Power to have been paid, and in addition to which he claimed to have paid out of his own pocket $12,000 to make good the false dividend, Casey refused to transfer the property to Power and his dummy board not only on this ground, but on the ground of the non-completion by Power of the original contracts.

From the foregoing it will be seen that the scheme of the now famous triumvirate, Power, Bell and Richardson, was to oust Casey, have themselves in control, leave the illegal over-issue of stock afloat, knock the stock down and later buy it in for a song, then transfer the properties to themselves and leave the innocent stockholders without recourse. This is clearly shown by the contract of Jan. 22, 1909, by which the triumvirate attempted to trap Casey by leaving the stock of the Mexican corporation indorsed in blank, so that they might in future safely transfer same to themselves, thereby leaving the bona fide stockholder without remedy.

All that J. P. Casey asks is that the stockholders stand with him and not sell one share of their stock, and to force Power to a full and complete accounting. Casey is forcing the fight in old Mexico, and promises the stockholders that D. A. Richardson will not be able to take armed possession of the property, as he attempted in the famous "Lucky Tigre" case. Respectfully, at much greater depth than was thought possible. Overlying this ore is a strata of jasper carrying small metallic values. Formerly drilling was suspended after a few hundred feet of this material had been cut, and in general it was considered a waste of time and money to test the formation. However, issue with this theory was taken by Supt. Richards of Corrigan, McKinney & Co., and he determined to bore to much greater depth than had ever been done in the field. The drill had penetrated to a point 1,200 feet beneath the surface, when ore of good grade and apparently of very large extent was cut into. This led to the redrilling of the Correy lands, and with excellent results, a fine body of ore being encountered after several hundred feet of the lean material had been passed through. The prospects now point to the development of a number of important producers.

J. P. CASEY.

Iron River Development.

The Menominee range territory to the north of the village of Iron River is receiving a great deal of attention just now, and with results that are considered highly promising. The Mineral Mining company has opened a fine mine at the James property in this field, and ore has been found at a number of other tracts. Among these tracts is the Donohue property, in Section 23, 43-35, west of the James, and which the Buffalo & Susquehanna interests are exploring. Two diamond drills are in commission, operated by the St. Clair company of Duluth. In Section 23, 43-35, northwest of the James, the Gleason Exploring & Mining company is opening what is believed to be a continuation of the James ore body. Drilling has been in progress for nearly a year. In addition a shaft has been put down to a depth of 200 feet, at which point drilling is under way. Both shaft and drift are in ore. In Section 24, 43-35, adjoining the James, Pickands, Mather & Co. were understood to have cut ore on the Spies forty. Three diamond drills have been operated. In Section 13, which also is adjacent to the James, the exploring firm of Coe, Piper & Morrison of Iron River has shown up a fine grade of ore, the deposit containing which is now to be opened by a shaft. Nearly 100 feet of ore assaying some 51 per cent was cut through. This district to the north of Iron River is yet in its infancy, but there seems little doubt the field will become a decidedly important source of ore production.

Negotiations are in progress whereby it is likely that the Werner property in the Cascade district of the Marquette range will be tested by one of the big operating companies. The tract is owned by the German Mining corporation, composed of thirty-nine Germans of the city of Negaunee. The property is 280 acres in extent. Ore outcrops at a number of points and in a test pit put down last summer ore was found at a depth of eight feet. The Volunteer mine lies directly west of the tract, and the Swanzy district is to the east. All but one of the several mines in the Cascade field are idle at present and it is unlikely there will be any considerable resumption this year. Most of the ore is of siliceous grade, for which the demand is limited. The property at which work is in progress is the Empire mine of Oglebay, Norton & Co. This property is an underground proposition, operated on the milling system, and the operations under way are largely of a development nature.

In the presence of a number of experts from the East, another very successful test has been made of the Jones step-process furnace at Iron Mountain, Ore assaying only 35 per cent in metallic iron was used. The success of Mr. Jones' radical inventions was demonstrated to the satisfaction of the visitors. All that remains now to place the furnace in active operation is a few mechanical changes of minor importance. The big charcoal iron furnace of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company at Marquette is to go out of blast shortly, to permit of repairs to the stack. This means that no iron will be turned out for four or five weeks, as it will take a fortnight to cool down the furnace and an equal length of time to make the needed repairs. Few men will be laid off.

Copper Mining company, Ironclad Copper Mining company, and the Eagle Mountain Water company. The Greenewater Copper Mines & Smelting company is a stockholding company and is capitalized for $25,000,000, divided into 5,000,000 shares of the par value of $5 per share. The report shows that for more than a year the work has been confined to Copper Queen No. 2 shaft, owned by the Greenwater & Death Valley company, and it is the only property in the once active and noted district on which any work is being done at present. There are seven shafts on the property of that company, running in depths from 80 feet to 1,080 feet, which latter was the depth of the Copper Queen No. 2 at the close of the year, but it is now nearing the 1,200-foot point. Last year there was sunk 496 feet of the shaft, and 3,339 feet of crosscuts and drifts have been driven on the property. 1,382 feet having been driven the past year. About the first values of account that were found were on the 500-foot level, where some drifting was done on a stringer, which widened from two to six feet, but the average value did not exceed 1 per cent copper. On the 1,000-foot level a number of such stringers were found in a crosscut, and these have been considered encouraging. One of these, a half an inch wide, carried 20 per cent copper. However, the report indicates that if there is a copper mine in the Greenwater district, it will yet have to be discovered. The balance sheet shows that the company has received from the sale of treasury stock $254,500 since Dec. 12, 1906, and has a balance of $258,814.94 in the treasury. The amount of stock outstanding is 3,015,828 shares, and there are 1,860,734 shares in the treasury, the remainder of the capital stock not having been issued. The stock is quoted on the New York curb at 5 cents per share. The report also shows that only a few men are employed by the company, and practically no other work is being done in the district.

Snowstorm Company.

The Snowstorm Mining company gave its stockholders a surprise by announcing that the March dividend would be passed. It is not certain that one will be paid in April. Following the statement made by one of the Greenoughs recently that even at present copper prices the company would be able to pay 3 cents per share per month for twenty-six months on ore in sight in the mine, the passing of the March dividend was a rude shock and unexpected. The story also comes from the mine that developments in No. 4 tunnel have been disappointing, but in view of other statements that have come from the mine and management in the past the stockholders are skeptical on anything coming from them. When the tunnel entered the vein formation and released a great body of water it was announced that some fine ore had been disclosed. It is now stated that the tunnel has not yet reached the vein, and one of the Greenoughs says it may be 300 feet away. The company, he says, has also curtailed its ore shipments on account of the low price of copper. The flood from the tunnel has been so great that it caused a serious cavein and it will be weeks before the damage can be repaired and work resumed in extending the tunnel.

The Panhandle Smelter.

The Greenoughs, who recently took over the management of the Panhandle smelter at Ponderay, Idaho, and secured the appointment of a receiver, have instituted suit against J. Herbert Anderson, president of the company, owning the smelter, charging him with over-issuing smelter stock to the extent of 840,000 shares. It is charged that the stock so over-issued was in certificates which had been surrendered by owners for transfer, and were abstracted from the files of the Panhandle Smelter company. The Greenoughs assert that this fraudulent stock was hypothecated and pledged by Anderson and associates for funds in their individual business. The affairs of the company are badly involved. It has obligations to the amount of $400,000 and assets valued at $250,000.

Davis-Daly.

The Devis-Daly Copper company is engaged in opening a level at a depth of 1,400 feet on the Colorado claim. A lot of diamond drilling has been done and it is claimed that an ore body twenty feet wide running 3½ to 5 per cent copper has been located about 335 feet west of the shaft. It is a cross fissure vein, and may prove extensive, but if it does it is contrary to the rule of cross fissure veins in the Butte district.

Good Cough Medicine for Children.

The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. F. F. Starcher of Ripley, W. Va., says: "I have never used anything other than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for my children, and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

INVISIBLE INFLUENCE

In Interior Department Working Against Rights of Settlers.

H. H. Hoyt Discusses Northern Pacific Road Indemnity Cases.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Many of your readers are interested in the lands situated within the limits of the grant by act of congress of July 2, 1864, to the Northern Pacific Railroad company. They are no doubt looking forward to the time when they will acquire title to these lands. If the adjudication of their claim rested with the land department, it could with safety be predicted that the title to their land would in the end be awarded to the Northern Pacific Railroad company; fortunately for the claimants, however, the land department is not the final arbitrator of their rights.

It is apparent that there is nothing in the heaven above, nor in the earth beneath, nor in the waters under the earth, that would induce the government to change its rulings which have the effect in the final analysis to establish the title so far as the department can do so, in the Northern Pacific Railway company. The rule of the department, which governs its decisions in these Northern Pacific cases, appears to be modeled on the laws of the Medes and Persians, they are not to be altered, innovated, or even discussed. There seems to me to be some intangible, invisible, incomprehensible influence that permeates the land department to the advantage of the Northern Pacific Railway company, and to the destruction of the claimant's right. The department knows that the scheme to reorganize the Northern Pacific Railway company was conceived in sin and born in iniquity, but this knowledge instead of detracting, appears to add glory to the past, and is fruitful in promises for the future. All over the West where government lands are to be opened for settlement, men and women are now stepping, eating and living in the corridors of the land office, awaiting the opportunity to obtain forty acres of land, while the department is disposing of thousands of acres of the public domain to these land grant railroads which, in my opinion, have neither the legal nor equitable right thereto.

In 1896, the secretary of the interior fixed the eastern terminus of the Northern Pacific Railroad company at Duluth. In March, 1897, he ordered the cancellation of the railroad selections on all the lands east of that point, and under his direction restored these lands to the public domain, and held them subject to disposal in the same manner as other public lands. These lands being considered as belonging to the public domain, a large number of persons filed applications for the same. Some received patents for their claims, some paid for their lands and received receipts for the same, while others by reason of contest, were unable to perfect their title to the same. Some years afterward the supreme court of the United States, having the matter of the grants of the Northern Pacific Railroad company under consideration, decided that the eastern terminus of the road was at Ashland, Wis., instead of Duluth. The court said nothing about the selections made for indemnity for losses within the place limits of the grant which had heretofore been canceled, but after said decision the secretary without a hearing, or allowing the applicants to show cause why their claims to land should not be cancelled, made an order restoring the former selections to the record, and cancelled all the applications made between the restoration of the land to the public domain and the decision of the supreme court. In the mean time the act of July 1, 1898, was passed, the intention of the act being to quiet the title to all those lands that had been applied for under the secretary's order restoring the lands to the public domain. The rule of construction of an act of congress is that such act should be construed strictly against the grantee, and favorable to the government. But when the act came before the secretary, he construed the act strictly against the government and in favor of the railroad company, which left the act of little benefit to the applicants for the land which they had applied for.

The supreme court in the case of Sjoli vs. Iverson held that the Northern Pacific Railroad company had no title whatever to the lands by reason of its preliminary selection of the same until the selections were approved by the secretary of the interior; that until such approval by the secretary, the land belonged to the public domain and was subject to be disposed of in the same manner as other public lands. The secretary was not satisfied with that decision, so he wrote to the attorney general and requested his opinion as to whether or not the secretary was obliged to follow the law as expressed by the court in that decision. The attorney general replied that he was not obliged to follow such decision. In accordance with the attorney general's opinion the secretary has continued adjusting these claims in accordance with his former rulings. This is the first instance that has come to my notice where the opinion of the attorney general has overruled a decision of the supreme court of the United States.

In order to save the expense that otherwise would occur to the applicants until the supreme court of the United States had decided the legal or equitable rights of claimants to land within the indemnity limits of the grant to the Northern Pacific, two cases involving this question being on the present docket of the supreme court, I requested the secretary to suspend action on cases before him of similar character until the court had determined the rights of these parties. This the department agreed to do. In January the late secretary directed that all cases in his department and pending on appeal, except those in which the contesting party felt aggrieved he could go into court and have his rights determined. As an excuse for these proceedings the secretary said that the attorneys for the Northern Pacific Railway company were anxious to have these cases decided. Why should they not be? They knew that if a decision was made by the department before the cases on the present docket of the supreme court were reached, all of the cases would be decided in favor of the Northern Pacific Railway company, and that a patent would follow; and the only remedy left to the claimant would be a suit in court, which would be not only expensive, but covered with all the burden that a great and rich corporation could add thereto.

The Northern Pacific Railway company complained of the delay that was caused by the suspension of these cases. These cases had been suspended for a year or more, but such suspension was for the purpose of awaiting the action of the supreme court of the United States to the two cases above referred to. I cited in answer to this delay, a case pending before the department involving some 15,000 acres of land within the Duluth land district that had been suspended for some ten years, but that appeared to make no difference in his opinion. Can it be that the request of the Northern Pacific Railway company has more weight than the request of all the claimants for these lands within the Duluth land district?

If the facts stated herein are true, am I not justified in saying that those claiming title to land within the lateral limits of the Northern Pacific Railroad company's grant have but a small chance of perfecting their title by assistance from the land department?

The only place relief can be had is in the courts, where the environments are not the same, as in the land department. Those that are prohibited from going into court by reason of the expense to be incurred, having just claim, may console themselves with the knowledge that by the rulings of the secretary there has been a denial of justice to them.

I have been informed that those claiming title to these lands by reason of a conveyance from the Northern Pacific Railway company, have asserted that they are sure of success in every case. I would have greater faith in their predictions if they had shown their ability to win even one case that has been tested in the courts. I am neither a prophet, nor the son of a prophet; I have, however, no hesitancy in saying that the Northern Pacific Railway company will not succeed in one case of this character before the supreme court of the United Stats.

It would be interesting to know whether in the recent change in the administration, any change will be made by the new secretary of the interior in the rulings in these matters, or whether the contention over the title to these lands must finally be settled in the courts, with all the attendant costs, expenses and annoyances connected therewith.

I think those who live in this vicinity are justified in protesting against the rulings of the land department in these cases, being of the opinion that a poor man has no rights that a land grant railroad is bound to respect.

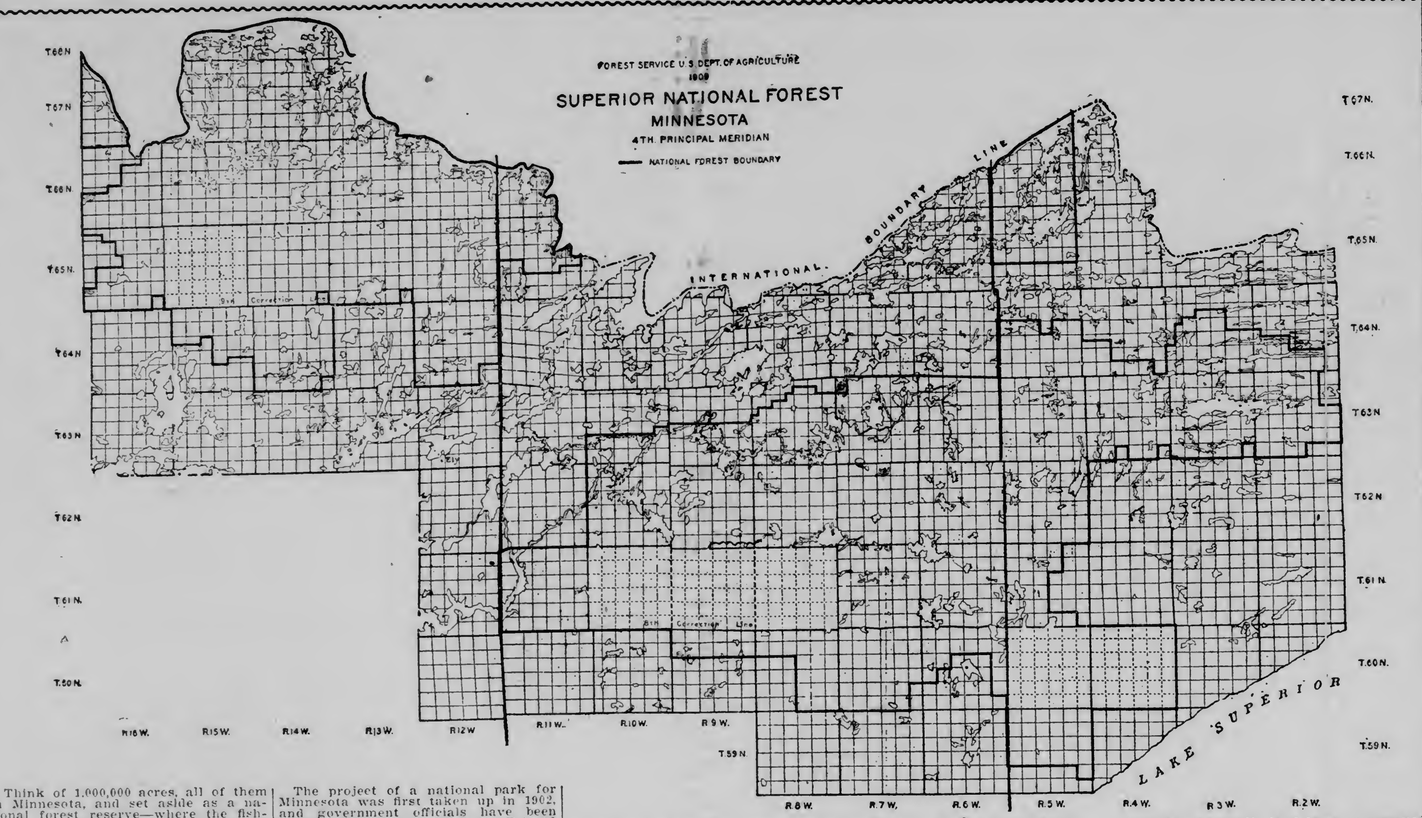
NEW FOREST RESERVE ESTABLISHED BY UNCLE SAM IN NORTHERN MINNESOTA



Think of 1,000,000 acres, all of them in Minnesota, and set aside as a national forest reserve—where the fishing is of the best, the scenery the prettiest, and game more abundant than in any other part of the country. It is set apart by Uncle Sam.

The land lies in three counties, St. Louis, Lake and Cook. At one point it runs down to within a short distance of Lake Superior, and it extends north to the Canadian boundary line. It is all a typical Minnesota forest, and will be left in its natural state exactly as it is today. It is cut up by many small streams from whose sparkling waters many beautiful specimens of the finny tribe have been brought, and is dotted with miniature lakes, for which the great state of Minnesota is noted. Game, both big and small, is abundant, and it is to this country that those who love to hunt moose always go.

The project of a national park for Minnesota was first taken up in 1902, and government officials have been working on it ever since. On Feb. 13 last ex-President Roosevelt issued his proclamation that the land be kept from settlement and that it be utilized as a great national forest reserve.

Settlement lands have become scarce in Minnesota of late, and the people had become anxious to know what was to be done with the proposed park. The land was kept from settlement, and there had been no definite action to make the land a park. The people demanded that the land either be opened up for settlement or that it be made a park. This was what brought the action of the president in the case, and what made him issue the proclamation.

Some of the land is very choice and other parts of the park are worthless. Altogether, however, it makes a great home for the game which is forced out of the other parts of the country.

There are a few tracts along the boundary that have already been settled on. This land will be bought by the government so as to make the 1,000,000 acres complete. If the settlers refuse to sell at a reasonable figure, the government may take the land under the right of eminent domain.

The proclamation of the president follows:

"Whereas, the public lands in the state of Minnesota, which are hereinafter indicated, are in part covered with timber, and it appears that the public good [illegible] be promoted by utilizing said lands as a national forest.

"Now, Therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States of America, by virtue of the power in me vested by section twenty-four of the act of congress, approved March 3, 1891, entitled, 'an act to repeal timber-culture laws, and for other purposes,' do proclaim that there are hereby reserved from settlement or entry and set apart as a public reservation, for the use and benefit of the people, all the tracts of land, in the state of Minnesota, shown as the Superior National Forest on the diagram forming a part hereof.

"The withdrawal made by this proclamation shall, as to all lands which are at this date legally appropriated under the public land laws or reserved for any public purpose, be subject to, and shall not interfere with or defeat legal rights under such appropriation, nor prevent the use for such public purpose of lands so reserved, so long as such appropriation is legally maintained, or such reservation remains in force.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington this 13th day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and nine, and the Independence of the United States the one hundred and thirty-third.

MADE TOUR OF MEXICO

Duluthians Travel 1,000 Miles by Automobile in Republic.

Machine Throws Consternation Into Hearts of Ignorant Natives.

A party of Duluth men, consisting of August Anderson, Max Shapiro, Fred Rossom, G. E. Alstead and W. P. McMillan, has just returned from an exciting automobile tour of Old Mexico. In many sections of the Southern country the residents had never seen or heard of an auto, and their consternation afforded the Northerners much amusement.

The object of the men in visiting Mexico was mostly business. They wished to visit various mining properties there, especially those controlled by the Lake Superior & Sonora Development company. Many of the mining properties are located at considerable distances from the railroads, and as burro and horse travel was not rapid enough to satisfy the desires of the Duluthians, it was decided to make the trip in an automobile.

Horace Harrison of Tuscon, Arizona, accompanied the party, and he proved an invaluable addition, being acquainted with the customs of the country, and also having a good idea of the routes to be traveled. Messrs. Alstead, Anderson, McMillan and Harrison traveled about 1,000 miles through the republic by automobile. The other Duluthians were with them only a part of that time.

Those who stuck for the whole trip had enough adventures to fill a book. The ignorant laboring classes of the interior of Mexico were amazed at seeing the machine skimming over the country roads, with no motive power apparent. They could not understand its operation. Afraid that the mysterious unknown might crush the lives out of their dogs and live stock, they took ludicrous precautions to keep the animals out of the path of the machine.

Dogs in Mexico are much like dogs anywhere else in the world, with a

HERALD DOWN TO THE SEMI-FINALS

W. G. Hall Defeats Brewer by a Score of 14 to 9.

This morning at the curling rink, W. C. Hall and Charles Brewer played off the tie in the A class of The Herald event.

Hall won the game by a score of 14 to 9. The ice was sticky and the game was played under great disadvantage to both rinks.

This game now makes Hall winner in the A class. He is playing Dinham this afternoon in the semi-finals and if he wins he will be up against the proposition of playing his A class rink against his C.

After this afternoon there will be but one more game to be played and that will take place some morning next week.

FROWNS ON SUNDAY SPORT.

E. H. Harriman Would Rather Not Attend Sunday Polo Game.

San Francisco, Cal., March 27.—E. H. Harriman frowns on Sunday sports, declaring that he would "rather not" attend a polo match which it was suggested might be played at San Mateo tomorrow.

"I would rather not attend a game on Sunday," said Mr. Harriman, and that settled it.

A New Industry for Duluth.

The first shipment of a 100-bale lot of leaf tobacco from Havana, Cuba, arrived through the Duluth custom house last Monday, consigned to the Villa & Alverez Cigar company, which contemplates opening a cigar factory, and has taken space at 125 West Superior street, above the Big Duluth Clothing company. A feature of the business is that it will make nothing but clear Havana cigars, and will import all its own tobacco. Mr. Alverez of the firm has connections in Cuba, who own vast tobacco plantations, thus insuring it the very select of the tobacco grown in that country. All cigars will be made by hand by Spanish workmen, and as this firm has had years of experience both in the selection of tobacco and in manufacturing, it should meet with great success here.

WORKED FOR MR. HATTON

Campaign Boosters Testify at Wisconsin Primary Hearing.

McDonald of Superior Testifies About Working Among the Barbers.

Madison, Wis., March 27.—Former Assemblyman Stout, one of ex-Candidate W. H. Hatton's workers, told the senatorial investigation committee today, that he was employed from January to August, preceding the campaign, but that none of the work was done in his own district. None of his work was along the line of organization, merely a preliminary survey of the situation.

Fred Hess, former sheriff of Waupaca county, testified that he worked for Hatton two months and received about $350, this amount covering his salary of $125 a month and expenses. He knew of no acts of corruption in the county during the campaign.

W. W. Powell, a newspaper man, and a Hatton worker, was recalled. He admitted having spoken with the senate members of the committee, concerning the resolution for a separate investigation of Stephenson. Powell added that he had suggested several things that he thought ought to be incorporated in the resolution.

George McDonald of Superior, president of the state barbers' board, told the committee he had been engaged by W. W. Powell to work among the barbers at Racine for Hatton.

W. P. Stenjen, who worked in Dane county for Hatton, said his expenses amounted to $119 or $123 and his salary $140 or $150 for twenty-eight days. Witness hired eight men as poll workers, after hearing that Stephenson's managers hired a number at the eleventh hour, word going around that "money was no object."

Lieut. Governor Strange today announced the appointment of Senators Marsh, Morris and Husting to continue the investigation of United States Senator Stephenson's election.

MRS. BOYLE TALKATIVE

Woman Kidnaper Says Much, But Really Tells Little.

Denies Having Any Part in Abduction of Child.

Mercer, Pa., March 27.—When Mrs. James Boyle, one of the kidnapers of Billy Whitla, was interviewed in jail today, the first question asked her was:

"Do you deny any part in the Billy Whitla kidnaping?"

"Most certainly I deny it," and she became for once absolutely serious.

"Where is your home?"

"In New York."

"New York city?"

"No; just New York."

"Mrs. Boyle, you don't deny having the big sum of money when you were arrested, do you?"

"I had that money all right."

"Will you tell where you got it?"

"Now, really, I would like to oblige you, but I cannot."

"How long were you in Cleveland before your arrest?"

"Quite a little. I was very sick there for several weeks."

None of the McDermott family of Chicago can be located here.

"Are you Anna McDermott of Chicago?" she was asked.

A negative response was received.

"Members of a family of McDermotts there have seen your photographs and declare you to be a daughter and sister."

"Why should a respectable family want to claim me, especially when I am not related to them? Besides my first name, even, isn't Anna. It's Helen."

"Will you tell your real name?"

"Boyle," was the laconic answer and the young woman compressed her lips.

"Where were you married?"

Again the smile appeared and with perfect self-possession and cool poise she placed a gloved finger over her veil covered lips in token of a seal.

"If you are not Miss McDermott, wouldn't it be kind to tell who you are and where you are from, to relieve the McDermotts, if for no other reason?"

"They will find out their mistake without my saying anything."

"Do you know that Mr. McDermott, the man who thinks he is your father, is expected in Pittsburg and likely to step into this room any second?"

"Is he, really?" and she exhibited not the least trace of concern.

"What is your maiden name?"

"Helen." Here the smile reappeared and remained for a minute. I am very sorry," she continued, "but I cannot talk about myself. It wouldn't do. I have denied everything and affirmed nothing."

TWENTY-EIGHT YEARS IN NAVY

New Officer of Gopher Tells of World Cruise.

George Kelvin, who for twenty-eight years has been in the United States navy, has been appointed by the government to the position of chief boatswain's mate on the Gopher, which is now undergoing repairs in the local harbor.

Mr. Kelvin was on the battleship Ohio with the fleet in its cruise around the world. He says that the world-encircling trip by the fleet was one of the greatest trainings for the navy that possibly could have been undertaken. It was one continuous drill from the time they left Hampton roads.

He has still two years more to serve in the navy before he will be retired on a pension. Originally Mr. Kelvin was from New York state.

ORIGIN OF THE CLUB SANDWICH.

Washington Herald: Alan Johnstone is said to have originated the famous club sandwich, and the story runs that on going to the club one night between midnight and daybreak he found the cafe closed, the cooks gone, and being nearly famished, he invaded the larder, toasted himself some thick slices of bread, sliced them through, buttered them while hot and laid theron everything he found in the refrigerator, cold chicken, ham and let-tuce, with a spoonful of mayonnaise. The result was such an epicurean discovery as is not often made, but the story was too good to keep; he confided the recipe to his cronies and it straightway became one of the popular dishes of the club menu, and so the father of the club sandwich, so deservedly popular, is the present British minister to Copenhagen.

TWIN BROTHERS ARE STRICKEN ON SAME DAY

Three Deaths in the McDonald Family in a Week.

Grim Reaper Threatens Three Other Members of Household.

To be born on the same day and to die on the same day, was the sad, strange fate of William J. McDonald and Charles A. McDonald, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Roderick C. McDonald of 4301 Halifax street. Death came to both boys yesterday, when they were 12 years and 6 months of age.

This double misfortune is not all that has befallen the family. Just one week ago, a 4-year-old son, Roderick, Jr., died of pneumonia, and yesterday it was discovered that the three remaining children of the family were afflicted with diphtheria in a bad form.

Willie McDonald died yesterday morning of fecal obstruction, and his brother died a few hours later of diphtheria at St. Mary's hospital. The boys were twins, and had been inseparable all their lives. Their parents are grief stricken over their untimely demise. Death came suddenly in both cases.

Mr. McDonald, father of the boys, has for a great many years, been employed by the Red Cliff Lumber company. He thought it was a hard blow, when his son, Roderick, died last Sunday, but when all his other children, five in number, became ill, he was driven almost frantic. The case is one of the saddest ever brought to the attention of the local health department.

The deaths of the twin boys were very sudden. Neither was thought to be seriously ill until the day of their deaths. The home is now quarantined, the baby, another son, and the mother all showing diphtheria in a malignant form.

The funeral of William will take place Monday afternoon from M. J. Filiatrault's undertaking rooms, with interment at Oneota cemetery.

WILL LEAVE FOR HOT SPRINGS

Arthur Jacoby Will Try to Recover Health in the South.

Arthur Jacoby, who is still severely crippled from an automobile accident last summer, will leave for Hot Springs, Ark., Monday, in hope that the treatment there will help him to recover from the injury which now threatens to be permanent, according to the specialist he has consulted.

Mr. Jacoby and Fred Harris were crossing the Northern Pacific tracks behind a passing train in an automobile, when they were struck by a train, which they claim they could not see, coming from the opposite direction.

Mr. Harris is recovering slowly from his injuries, but still is unable to be actively about. Mr. Jacoby, who bore the brunt of the collision, striking head foremost on the oncoming locomotive, has been unable to raise his head from his chest since the accident. He has visited doctors of reputation in the large cities, and has tried many different kinds of treatment, but all he claims has been to no avail. A short time ago Hot Springs was suggested to him by a friend, and as he says, he can do no more than try it, though he has small hope that it will help him.

OPPOSE TONNAGE TAX.

Members of West Duluth Commercial Club Condemn Bill.

The members of the West Duluth Commercial club, at their meeting last evening, passed a resolution hotly protesting against the injustice of the Bjorge tonnage tax bill. These resolutions will be forwarded to Governor Johnson and the state senate.

The bill was taken up at the meeting last evening, and all the members expressed their condemnation of it. A committee was appointed to draw up the resolutions.

A report was made at the meeting by the committee, which yesterday went over the proposed route of the Hermantown road. They outlined the course of the route, and expressed their hearty approval of it. They said that the county commissioners who were on the trip seemed well pleased with the proposition, and favored the building of the road in the near future.

A letter was received from the Virginia Commercial club, extending an invitation to the West Duluth club to attend the entertainment, to be given by the St. Louis County club on April 20. The president was empowered to furnish credentials to any members who wish to attend.

Favorable reports as to the progress they are making were made by the membership and banquet committees. The plans for the banquet will soon be complete, and the committee on speakers will soon announce the list of men who will make addresses at the club's annual affair.

LIGHT GIVEN SEVEN YEARS

Judge Cant Hands Out Stiff Sentence in Arson Case.

Old Man Was Convicted of Setting Fire to Store.

Kalman Light, the West Duluth storekeeper who was convicted of setting fire to his store on Central avenue, was this morning sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary by Judge Cant in district court.

Light was charged with saturating some paper boxes with kerosene and setting fire to them. The fact that a family was living in rooms above the store made the offense more serious.

A stay of execution was granted on his sentence, pending an appeal. The jurors, in their verdict, recommended the man to the mercy of the court owing to his age and infirmity, and the stay of execution was granted pending an appeal.

Pupils' Recital.

The concert given by Miss Mabel Fulton, assisted by her pupils, at the Asbury M. E. church last evening was one of the most successful affairs ever given at the church. It was held under the auspices of the Asbury Piano club.

The church was filled to the doors and not a seat was vacant after the start of the program, every number of which was most enthusiastically received.

The most pleasing feature of the evening were the vocal selections given by Marjorie McTague, who is only 6 years old. The child has a remarkably sweet voice and shows promise. The audience encored her several times.

LYNCH HIM, CRIES MOB

State Health Board Secretary Bracken is Menaced.

Gets Mixed in Quarantine Row at Swanville, Minn.

St. Paul, Minn., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Followed by a mob, and with cries of "lynch him!" "get a rope!" and "soak the stiff!" assailing his ears, Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, was arrested at Swanville, charged with assaulting the local school superintendent, A. N. Hutchins.

Taken into custody with him was Dr. R. R. Campbell, village health officer, and the two were arraigned before a justice of the peace, where they gave a bond of $100 to insure their appearance before a magistrate next Saturday. Assault and battery was the charge against both.

After he left the office of the justice of the peace, Dr. Bracken says the mob again followed and that some one in the crowd tried to trip him. Threats against him were shouted and the town marshal was obliged to drive the angry men back. Bracken declares his arrest was a mistake, as he had no part in the fight beyond that of acting as a peacemaker.

A factional fight over the school quarantine regulations put into effect by Dr. Campbell and indorsed by Dr. Bracken was the cause of it all and as a result the school superintendent received a severe drubbing.

As Bracken explains it, he went to Swanville, which is near Little Falls, not so much to take any hand in the town's stand against Campbell's health order as to give the officials a talk on sanitation in general and to see if future epidemics of diphtheria could not be prevented. Because of a case in the local hotel, where one of the teachers was the victim, the schools had been closed and much dissatisfaction caused. Prejudice against Dr. Campbell was increased because he did not include the hotel in the quarantine, and when Dr. Bracken arrived the town was rent with the controversy.

Dr. Bracken says he visited the president of the village and asked him to get the council together so they could talk over matters. This the president refused to do and is said to have indulged in uncomplimentary remarks about the state board of health.

Blows Exchnaged.

With Dr. Campbell, Dr. Bracken next visited the school building and called on the superintendent, A. N. Hutchins and asked for a conference covering the matters at issue.

"I was preparing to tell Mr. Hutchins," said Dr. Bracken, "that it was up to him to straighten out this matter, as he had been charged with the failure to carry some of Dr. Campbell's health order whereupon there was some words between the two and the first think I knew they were viciously striking at each other.

"Mr. Hutchins had said Dr. Campbell was no gentleman, and this Campbell resented with his fists. For a few minutes the mixup was lively, each alternatingin getting the other's head under his arm and uppercutting savagely. I begged them to desist, and when that failed I got in between them and separated them. That was my part in the affair, but it seems that one of the school children, who was passing the door of the room when the superintendent and Dr. Campbell were fighting, said that I also was pummeling the superintendent."

Supt. Hutchins is said to contend that Dr. Bracken held him while Dr. Campbell struck him.

Financially the Duluth Poultry association is in excellent condition, owing to the success of the show held in Duluth not long ago.

The following officers were elected last evening: President, Judge Windom; secretary, H. A. Nelson; vice president, Benjamin Wood; treasurer, J. W. Nelson; assistant secretary, Mr. Hallock. J. B. Greenfield declined the presidency.

LESS MEAT

Advice of Family Physician.

Formerly people thought meat necessary for strength and muscular vigor.

The man who worked hard was supposed to require meat two or three times a day. Science has found out differently.

It is now a common thing for the family physician to order less meat, as in the following letter from a N. Y. man.

"I had suffered for years with dyspepsia and nervousness. My physician advised me to eat less meat and greasy foods generally. I tried several things to take the place of my usual breakfast of chops, fried potatoes, etc., but got no relief until I tried Grape-Nuts food.

"After using Grape-Nuts for the cereal part of my meals for two years, I am now a well man. Grape-Nuts benefited my health far more than the $500.00 worth of medicine I had taken before.

"My wife and children are healthier than they had been for years, and we are a very happy family, largely due to Grape-Nuts.

"We have been so much benefited by Grape-Nuts that it would be ungrateful not to acknowledge it.

SIMPLE PROPOSITION.

"The simplest propositions," said Senator Beveridge in a recent address, "must be set out with the utmost care in the wording, or misunderstanding, dissent, even anger may result.

"Thus, as a train was moving forth from a Cincinnati station, a man stuck his head far out of the window.

"'Keep your head there,' a station attendant shouted in warning, 'or it will be knocked off.'

"'Knocked off!' shouted the passenger. 'Knocked off, eh? Well, it won't be knocked off by anybody the size of you, you bandy-legged shrimp!'"

NO CHANCE FOR A ROMANCE.

Philadelphia Record: A young woman living in the neighborhood of Thirty-third and Cumberland streets, the other morning, bought at a nearby grocery a dozen eggs. On one among them there was scratched the name, with address, of a young farmer up the state. He had also written on the egg a request that the person buying it write to him.

The young woman wrote a letter to the tiller of the soil and received an answer, in which the farmer declared himself pleased at having heard from her, etc. He wound his letter up with: "I hope you did not eat the egg, as I wrote that on it a year ago."

HAVE YOU NOTICED THE PERMANENT RISE IN DULUTH REAL ESTATE?

Oregon Fruit Lands

5 Acres $150 to $200 Per Tract

Payments $5 to $10 per Month

Knowing the large number who are anxious to secure small fruit farms at reasonable prices and easy terms we have looked for such a tract and have now found it in one of the best if newest fruit valleys in Oregon. NO IRRIGATION; FINE CLIMATE; PICTURESQUE SCENERY; NOT FAR FROM OCEAN; GOOD ROADS and SCHOOLHOUSES; CLOSE TO RAILWAY; GOOD MARKET; SOIL 10 to 20 FEET DEEP; COUNTRY ROLLING. This valley is already dotted with small farms owned mostly by native Oregonians. Prices are still very cheap, but Eastern settlers are getting in rapidly and prices are advancing. In a few years from now prices will probably have doubled and trebled.

Remember, ROUND TRIP tickets commencing JUNE 1st next, ONLY $50, which gives you the greatest chance to investigate.

If you are interested in becoming one of the lucky purchasers of this tract, call or write at once.

MANY BUILDING PLANS; REALTY MOVES SLOWLY

Tariff and Tonnage Tax Checks on Activity in Real Estate Market—Deals in the Air Until Conditions Settle—Home Building Encouraged and There Will be No Undue Inflation of Values.

The dullness which has characterized the real estate market for the past few weeks, continues steadily on, and the realty dealers are anxiously waiting for the rift in the clouds. The unsettled conditions of business throughout the country on account of the pending tariff legislation, and the conditions in Northern Minnesota while the tonnage tax bill is before the legislature, are responsible for the inactivity in real estate, as well as in other lines of business in Duluth.

There is plenty of preparation for the time when business will move ahead at its wonted pace. Inquiry is strong and many big deals are being lined up for future consummation. There is a note of uneasiness, which holds back the natural flow of business in the real estate world, and until that is quieted, there will be very little movement.

The remarks of Alderman A. G. McKnight at the banquet of the Builders' Exchange Thursday night, when he urged upon the builders the necessity of holding real estate values down that building work might prosper and the city grow, have been a subject for comment among the real estate men, who contend that, if Mr. McKnight meant to charge Duluth real estate men with a tendency to unduly inflate values, he was mistaken in his judgment of their business methods.

"All real estate men agree that only by the building of many homes can a city grow, and the undue inflation of values of building lots will retard the home building movement," said a real estate man yesterday in discussing the matter.

"There is absolutely no tendency on the part of Duluth real estate men to send values up above their true figures, and there is a universal desire to encourage the purchase of low priced lots and the building of homes by workingmen.

"The man of small means, who wants to buy a lot on which to build his home in Duluth, will have no trouble securing a lot, the price of which will suit his resources and the location he needs. In Lakeside, West end, Woodland, Park Point and other suburbs, there are lots to be had at ridiculously low prices. All the within easy distance of the car lines and ideal locations for the home of the man of small means.

"When one comes to consider the number of homes erected in Lakeside, Oneota, West Duluth and other suburbs during the past few years, he can see that the home builder is given every encouragement and very opportunity for gratifying his desires.

"Real estate values in Duluth today are on a safe and sane basis. During the past year there has been a steady movement in real estate, with much buying of unoccupied lots for home building, and yet there has never been anything resembling a boom, if by a boom you mean a rush for lots and an inflation of values under the excitement of buying movement.

"Duluth will indeed be a 'City of Homes,' and the real estate men, by their methods of advertising the city and urging the purchase of lots for home building, will do much to make it so. The real estate men of Duluth are conservative, sane, progressive business men, who realize the disastrous reaction of an unnatural boom just as well as anybody, who has ever seen one of those prosperity-destroying periods. There will be no unduly inflated values in Duluth. When the movement does come, it will be on a conservative basis, with every square foot of ground bringing its full value and no more than its value."

Though there is something of a depression in the real estate market, the building plans go on apace, and the prospect for a big building movement for the coming summer is no less bright than it was a month ago. There is no disposition on the part of any of the prospective builders to delay the work on account of business uneasiness, but the architects report that more work is going on their tables every day.

The rumors in regard to changes in the Lyceum building, which have been in the air intermittently during the past two years, are once more going the rounds. One rumor is that the theater portion of the building will be converted into office rooms, Duluth to be provided with a theater through changes in the old Masonic Temple building, on the corner of Second avenue east and Superior street. The other rumor is that three stories additional are to be put on the Lyceum building.

Little & Nolte, agents for the building, deny both rumors in no uncertain terms. They say that Thomas F. Cole, the owner, has considered making some changes in the building at a remote date, but there is no immediate prospects of either of the plans rumored to be in contemplation being carried out within the next year or two.

Bids will be taken by Architect W. A. Hunt this week for the new Bradley-Lyman-Cabot building, on the corner of Second avenue west and Superior street, and the work is now assured. The tenants will vacate May 1, and the contract will be let prior to that time, so that the work may go on immediately. Only the first two stories of the big building will be erected this year.

Bids are to be taken next week on new residence for Capt. M. L. Fay at Twenty-first avenue east and Superior street. The home, which will cost about $8,000 complete, was designed by Radcliffe & Price.

Other matters in the hands of Radcliffe & Price are as follows:

Archie Chambers was awarded the contract for the flat building for George Greenough on Third street between Seventh and Eighth avenues west. The building will be frame, costing about $4,000 complete.

Plans are being prepared for a flat building for E. M. Yates at Twenty-third avenue east and Second street. It will be of brick and will cost about $7,000.

Plans are being prepared for a new residence for Dr. C. H. Stewart at Twenty-second avenue east and First street. It will cost about $12,000.

Plans are being prepared for a home for Mrs. Anna Burg on Third street near Twenty-fifth avenue east. It will cost about $7,000.

The finishing touches are being put on the new Elks' building on First street near the Board of Trade. It is

NEW PAROC[H]IAL SCHOOL WILL[BE BUILT] IN DULUTH

Plans for a new parochial high school for Duluth are being prepared by Anthony Puck, the architect, and work will be begun on the building this spring. The building will cost about $60,000 and will be erected at the corner of Second avenue west and Fourth street.

The present cathedral high school was opened by Right Rev. James McGolrick, D. D., on Sept. 3, 1907, and placed in charge of the Christian Brothers, who have adapted their experience of over two centuries in the European schools to the special wants of the American youth. The aim of the Christian Brothers' system is to give to the students a thorough Christian and liberal training, which will fit them for the practical duties of life. The course of studies, comprising four years of high school work, consists of Christian doctrine, civics, bookkeeping, business practice, commercial correspondence, political economy, typewriting, phonography, English literature, Latin and elocution, besides the specialties ordinarily taught in high school.

In the spirit of generous devotion to the cause of Christian education, the Christian Brothers have already achieved great success in Duluth. While the students are led among the pleasant ways of high school work, the bread and butter subjects are kept before their minds. They are not permitted to forget how to add, spell and improve their penmanship.

Following no other avocation, the Christian Brothers devote their lives to making a success of their profession. Not mere imparters of knowledge, they are character builders, who seek to devote the noblest, and repress the dangerous qualities of the student.

The success attained by the Brothers throughout the country in fields of education is most remarkable, and they point with pride to the large number of their students who are now occupying positions of trust and responsibility in church, state and mercantile and professional pursuits.

The graduates will be prepared to enter practical life in any office, or pursue a higher course for a profession. The scholastic term embraces all that is required as a preparation for business or advanced course of studies.

The new school is an immediate necessity, school rooms and apartments for the various branches of science being absolutely needed.

The deeds transferring 210 lots and also some acre tracts from different owners to the United States Steel corporation were filed a few days ago. The corporation seems to be steadily adding to its holdings, both in Wisconsin and Minnesota. The proprietors referred to are located on the Minnesota side of the St. Louis river, right where the large Interstate Belt Line bridge is being built.

Duluth business people, who are interested in the coming of the steel plant, are also interested in the developments at Gary, Ind., where some idea may be gathered of the great results, which will come with the coming of the steel plant. A few days ago, 500 railroad and electrical engineers visited the Gary plant and saw the transformation that is going on. Two years ago, Gary had a population of 400, and today it has 15,000. It is believed that within the next five years, the population will reach 200,000.

One of the chief reasons for the increase is that other concerns are following the big steel plant. The plant will cost $100,000,000 when completed and fully 20,000 men will be employed. In addition, there will be the manufacturing establishments of the American Steel & Wire company, the American Bridge company, the American Tin Plate company, the National Tube company, the American Locomotive company, the H. C. Frick Coke company and many others. Seventy-two manufacturing concerns have applied for locations besides these mentioned, which indicates how industries follow in the wake of steel plants and how they may turn toward Duluth.

CLOQUET DEFEATS EVELETH.

Range City Basketball Players Are Badly Beaten.

Cloquet, Minn., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Last evening Cloquet outclassed the Eveleth high school team, defeating the visitors by the score of 53 to 7.

The local high school showed exceptional form, the guarding of Dupont and McKenna being the features of their play. Eveleth showed good team work, but their inability to cage the ball when opportunity offered accounts for their low score. The spectators were pleased with their clean, hard playing.

This is the last game of the season for the Cloquet high school and the boys have made an excellent record for the school. As only two men graduate, and good material has been developed during the year outside of the regular players, the prospects for a winning team next year are the best in the history of the school.

HEAVY COST FOR WATER

Expense of Rock Excavation Obstacle to Extension of Mains.

Petitions Held Up For Conference With Property Owners.

The members of the board of water and light commissioners are in a quandary. Petitioners for the extension of water and gas mains have put up to them a proposition that will give them much opportunity for thought and consideration before it is solved. How can the department furnish water and gas to families needing them, when the extensions mean the expenditure of four or five times the normal cost of laying the pipe on account of rock excavation? That is the question.

At the meeting of the board this week, thirty-four petitions for extensions of from one to eight blocks were put before the board and ten of them were held up. The manager was asked to invite the petitioners on the ten petitions to appear before the board and discuss the matter.

Manager A. N. Case reported his estimate of the cost of each extension, including rock excavation, cuts, fills and frost boxes. On the ten petitions held up, the cost would be excessive on account of rock excavation, that it was thought better to call in the petitioners for consultation before going any farther with the matter.

For instance, of the proposed extensions, the ordinary cost of laying the pipe would be $711. The cost of blasing out the rock necessary to permit the laying of the pipe would be $2,888. In another, the ordinary cost of laying the pipe would be $189 and the cost of rock excavation would be $749. In other, the ordinary cost would be $422 and the cost of removing rock would be $933. The three examples are those on which the cost is most excessive, but all ten furnish proportionately the same problem.

The custom of the board has been to estimate the cost of laying pipe at $1.50 a foot, and require a guarantee from the petitioners of 8 per cent of the cost. On the hillside system, laid during the past two years the custom was departed from and the ordinary cost carried $40,000 additional for rock excavation, on which a guarantee was given by the property owners.

The problem is a difficult one to solve and the members of the board are puzzled. One of the petitions is signed by sixteen families, but the guarantee on the cost of the work, carrying the cost of rock excavation with it, would be too heavy for some of the people in ordinary circumstances. Yet they need water and gas.

Some of the petitions held up now were also held up last year and passed by for further consideration. Even if the board does its part and extends the mains, the property owners will be up against a serious difficulty on account of the excessive cost of making connections with the mains. The service from main to house through solid rock has been know to cost over $300, and some of the people desiring water cannot pay that amount for the connection.

SUICIDE PACT IS HINTED AT

Between North Dakota College Youth and Minister Friend.

Fargo, N. D., March 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Was there a suicide pact between F. A. Russell the young agricultural college student, who took his life yesterday, and Rev. R. L. Douherty, the Congregational minister who killed himself at Buchanan, Russell's home town? is the question agitating the minds of young Russell's relatives and friends. This theory appears to furnish about the only motive for the two crimes.

Notes left by the two suicides were almost identical in wording, except the minister said he was both a mental and physical wreck, while the young man claimed he was a physical wreck.

Russell was at his home in Buchanan during a holiday when the minister took his life and was greatly affected, and has frequently commented on the death of his friend.

Russell's mother, who was in Iowa, is expected here tonight and the funeral will occur at the home at Buchanan tomorrow or Monday.

The Clock of Santago.

In Southern California, where a good many Minnesota people go sometimes to get away from the winter, is a wonderful clock which tells simultaneously the time in all parts of the world with the days of the week and of the month. It is twenty-one feet high, took fifteen months to build, and cost $3,000. Think how many cases of good Golden Grain Belt beer this clock represents. People who drink Golden Grain Belt beer do not need to go to Santago to get away from the winter. Order of your nearest dealer, or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing company.

DURUM MAKES NEW HIGH MARK FOR DULUTH PIT

Sells at Highest Point in History of Local Board.

Strong Foreign Demand Gives Firm Tone to Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 27.—Under the influence of strong foreign demand, durum wheat continued its upward course on the floor of the Duluth board of trade during the short Saturday session today. It closed at $1.05¾, the highest figure it has brought in its history as a trading factor. It was supported strongly all the way through with hardly a waver in the upward tendency, and today's close was 1¼c over that of yesterday, which was the high mark for the crop.

There were no sales for export today, the cables holding just enough under the market to support the price, and the foreign demand was such as to give strength to the market.

Durum is constantly coming into greater prominence as a factor in the world's wheat trade. Though the highest price in history was bid today, members of the Duluth board believe it is cheap at that price. They argue that durum is cheaper than Argentine, even at present prices.

Wheat was well supported in the markets today, all American markets showing a slight increase over yesterday's strong prices. The May option closed ⅝-¾c up in Duluth, 1⅛c up in Chicago, ¾c up in Minneapolis, ⅝c up in New York, 1¼c up in Kansas City, and ⅞c up in Winnipeg.

The July option closed ⅝c up in Duluth, 1⅛-1¼c up in Chicago, ⅞-1c up in Minneapolis, ⅞c up in New York, 1⅛c up in Kansas City and 1½c up in Winnipeg.

Oats were ¼c up in Chicago and corn was unchanged at 66⅝c.

Cables were stronger today. In Liverpool, wheat closed steady ½d to ¾d higher. Corn was dull and unchanged. Wheat closed unchanged to ⅛c lower in Paris, ¼c higher in Budapest, ⅛c higher in Berlin, and ⅝c higher in Antwerp.

Broomhall cables from Liverpool: "Steadiness characterized the trading in the speculative wheat market here today, and after an opening advance of ¾d, values further gained ½d to ¼d. There was a fair demand for cargoes, which were slightly higher, and London was a free buyer last night of cargoes and parcels. Manitoba offerings were scarce and higher. The world's shipments are expected to be light, with another good decrease in the amount on passage, against a decrease last week of 1,928,000 bu, and there continued a fair demand from the continent. At the close the market was firm, and from ¼d to ½d up from Friday.

"Corn was steady and unchanged. The firmness in La Plata offerings was offset by the better American cables yesterday.

Trading was quiet on the Duluth board today, but the market was well supported and prices in both wheat and flax went up. The advance in durum furnished the only feature of the session.

May wheat opened ⅜c up at $1.15, advanced to $1.15⅝, fell back to $1.15¼, advanced to $1.15⅝ again and closed at $1.15¼-⅜. July wheat opened ¼c up at $1.15½, advanced to $1.16¼, fell off to $1.16, advanced to $1.16⅛ and closed at $1.16⅛ asked.

May flax opened unchanged at $1.64 bid, advanced to $1.65, dropped off to $1.64¾, advanced again to $1.65¼, fell off to $1.65 and closed at $1.65 asked. July flax closed 1c up at $1.64½ and September flax closed 1¢c off at $1.41¾ bid. October flax opened ¼c up at $1.38, fell off to $1.37½, then to $1.37¼ and closed at $1.37⅛ bid.

Durum wheat closed 1¼c up and cash spring wheat 1¼c over May. Oats were ⅛c up and the other grains were unchanged.

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 60 against 57 last year, and at Minneapolis 200 against 202 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 260 against 259 last year. Chicago received 57 against 15 last year. Winnipeg received 223 against 147 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 482,000 bus, last year 412,000 bus. Shipments 249,000 bus, last year 332,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 61,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 351,000 bus, last year 584,000 bus. Shipments 384,000 bus, last year 491,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 69,000 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Price Advance Due to Demand by Commission Houses.

Chicago, March 27.—Wheat prices advanced sharply at the opening of the market today owing to brisk demand by a number of prominent commission houses. Initial quotations showing gains of ¾@⅞c to ⅝c, compared with the previous close. Demand was inspired mainly by the strength of cables, the Liverpool market showing an advance of ¾@1d. Offerings were comparatively light, although there was considerable selling of the July delivery on the swell. May opened at $1.17¼@1.18¼ and quickly advanced to $1.18⅛, while July, after opening at $1.01⅞@1.05, sold up to $1.05⅝.

The feature of trading was the purchase of more than 1,000,000 bu of the September delivery by a leading bull. Sentiment was bullish all day and the high point for May was reached at $1.18⅝. July sold up to $1.05⅜. The market closed strong with May up 1⅛c at $1.18⅜, and July at $1.18; high at $1.05⅝@1.05⅞.

Light receipts and the bulge in wheat caused moderate strength in the corn market, there being a good demand in evidence by local shorts. Prices at the start were ⅛c lower to ¼c higher. May being at 66⅛@66¾c. Later May sold at 66⅞c.

The market was steady at the slight advance during the remainder of the session. At the close May was unchanged.

The strength of wheat and corn brought out considerable demand for oats by local shorts resulting in a firm tone early in the session. May opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 53⅞@54⅛c, and advanced to 54¼c. An advance of 2@10c in the price of live hogs caused slight firmness in the provisions market. Trade, however, was dull. Prices at the start were unchanged to 2½c higher.

NEW SALEM FIRE LOSS QUARTER OF A MILLION.

New Salem, Mass., March 27.—The big plant of the Carr Lea company caught fire at 1 p. m. today and half an hour later the flames were threatening surrounding property. The company employed 150 hands.

Efforts to save the property failed, but nearby buildings were saved. The loss is estimated at $250,000. The cause has not been ascertained.

The plant had just closed for the usual half holiday, when the flames were discovered. Much of the machinery destroyed had just been installed.

Are your tenants the sort who "let the landlord worry" about the rent? A few insertions of a want ad. will find you the sort of tenants who do that part of the worrying themselves.

The market closed very animated and buoyant. The upward movement gathered force and breadth and carried the whole list higher in the most active trading for several weeks. The industrials kept a prominent position Amalgamated Copper rising 3⅜. New York Air Brake and Westinghouse Electric 2¼, Toledo, St. Louis & Western 2⅜, American Malting preferred and Union Pacific 2¼, National Lead, American Sinelting and General Electric and Reading, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Louisville & Nashville and International Paper 1¾ to 1¾.
